Over there he became friendly with Sardar Mohammed Ibrahim Khan, then president of the Kashmir government. Sardar talked Haight into joining the Kashmir forces as a captain, with the promise of a good civilian job at the end of the fighting.

• • •

"It took about six weeks to see that we were fighting the wrong kind of war," Haight says. "We were dissipating our energies attacking cities. So I went back to the president and laid a new plan before him. I suggested that we concentrate on cutting the key roads and stopping supplies getting through to the cities."

The president of Kashmir was impressed with the plan and sold it to other Kashmir leaders. To Haight's surprise they asked him to carry it out as the head of a brigade of 500 regulars and 1,500 tribesmen and with a promotion to general.

"My forces were mounted on everything from camels to jackasses," Haight recalls, "but they were plenty tough. The deal was an even better job after the fighting, with all of his expenses paid in the meantime. He refused a salary of $800 a month for fear of losing his U. S. citizenship.

"I was given two .38 Specials and a good sword," he says.

• • •

Just as his master plan for driving the Indian army out of Kashmir was getting into high gear, international politics poked into Haight's blooming career. The Indians put a price on his head and began pressuring Washington to get him out of the action altogether.

The American consul got a message to him from Washington urging him to quit his post at about the same time Haight discovered a plot against his life.

"I was coming home from a party when two men ambushed me and tried to kill me," he says. "I am sure now that they were Russian agents. When I escaped I decided that it was time to get out of the whole business, and fast."

Crossing the border, he claimed that he was an American reporter interested in doing some stories on refugees. The Indian army officer in charge failed to ask for press credentials and became so

• • •

"Russ, whatever job you get, you always seem to end up in somebody's army. Why don't you go back in your own?"

He took the advice, and now ex-general Haight, his wife and three young daughters are living near Alexandria, Va. He's working for a college degree in engineering in his spare time and thinks he might get out when this hitch is up.

Looking back he says, "Sometimes they needle me a little about my experiences, but it was fun and I don't regret a minute of it."

Princess Likes Latest Chaplin Film

LONDON (Reuters) — Princess Margaret laughed and wept alternately last night as she watched Charlie Chaplin's new tragi-comic film "Limelight" in its world premiere.

Afterwards in the foyer of the theatre she told the actor-director-producer-writer: "It was a lovely film. I do congratulate you most heartily."

Chaplin took her hand in a warm grip and replied: "You have honored me greatly with your most gracious presence here tonight."

The movie ended in a storm of applause from every corner of the crowded house. Chaplin, who had been sitting a few yards from Princess Margaret, walked on to the stage, thanked the audience and introduced his leading lady, Claire Bloom.

WINS LAUGH

As they left the stage, Chaplin won a final round of applause and laughter by breaking into the shuffle and sidekick for which he was famous in his earlier films.

The general opinion among the brilliant gathering at the premiere was that Chaplin's latest film, if not as funny as they had expected, had touched great heights of drama and artistry.

British film magnate J. Arthur Rank said he considered the film a masterpiece.

If Ike Knows War Answer Duty To Tell It—Truman

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—President Truman declared yesterday that if Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower really knows a quick way to end the Korean war it is his duty to reveal it now.

Truman hurled this challenge on the first day of a New England tour in which he came close to calling the General a political horse thief.

The president rang in a little of everything—he even played the piano for a crowd at New Britain, Conn.—in the opening round of a three-day northeastern tour on behalf of Governor Adlai Stevenson and the Democratic ticket in the Nov. 4 election.

CHANGES SPEECH

At Hartford, momentarily casting aside the speech he had meant to deliver, Truman said Eisenhower "has stated that he knows a panacea that will cure the Korean situation."

"He and one of his snollygoster foreign policy advisers have said that he knows how to do that job.

"Now he (Eisenhower) has been my military adviser ever since I appointed him Chief of Staff of the army. And I will say right here that if he knows a remedy and a method for that situation, it is his duty to come and tell me what it is and save lives right now."

Truman didn't identify the "snollygoster" he had in mind. He has used the term "snollygoster" before in his campaign to mean a man who disregards the truth to win political advantage.

Collect 28,689 Bottles Of Blood In 9 Months

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario division, Canadian Red Cross Society, collected 28,689 bottles of blood in the first nine months of this year, the division's executive committee was told at its quarterly meeting today.

Dr. J.L. Carroll, of Brockville, chairman of the society's Blood Donor Committee, said plasma is being used in vast quantities in the Korean War. The Canadian Red Cross has been asked by the Defence Department to collect blood for the armed forces and for civil defence. This means that the organization must greatly increase its collection of blood above the needs of the civilian transfusion service.

The meeting was told that Ontario branches of the Red Cross were believed to have raised $50,000 more than last year in the 1952 campaign.

Honorary memberships for outstanding service to the organization were presented to Leslie G. Mills, H.F. Vigeon, C.B. Routley and Mrs. W.P. Gamble all of Guelph.

ARCTIC SOLDIERS — Soldiers in the Arctic must prepare to face a double enemy, frigid weather as well as opposing troops. The cold-weather clothing these paratroopers are wearing may hamper their operations a bit but serves to earn at least a draw with Old Man Winter. AIR ARSENAL—In a significant change of practice, the Canadian armed forces now obtain most of their arms from this continent rather than using British arms as in the First and Second World Wars. One of the important producers is the Canadair factory at Montreal where United States-designed F-86E Sabre jets are built. The R.C.A.F. fighter arm is Canada's main contribution to the international concept of a balanced over-all strength. Canada is spending as much on the air force alone as on the army and navy together.

Canadian Factories Equip Three Fighting Services

Canada's armed forces have jobs at home and abroad. That double role is making them less British, more American—and distinctively Canadian. What is happening to their character is told in this story, one of a series of stories on defence by Douglas How of The Canadian Press staff in Ottawa.

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Significant changes have come over the Canadian armed forces since the end of the Second World War.

The navy, army and air force fought two wars largely with British arms. Now their arms come mainly from this continent, and in large measure from factories in Canada.

The services' British background, structure, ranks and uniform types remain, but their character is becoming more Canadian. Long-range plans look to the retention of Canadian identity by all three services in any future war—on much the same scale as that achieved by the First Canadian army in the last.

None intends to submerge much of its effort under the banner of another country.

U.S.-CANADA LINK

At the same time, they are working more closely with United States forces as the two countries prepare to defend North America together if necessary.

Even the navy, most British of the services, has felt the trend. Engineering and flying training are among the few remaining links with the Royal Navy which used to school Canadian officers.

At least two other significant trends run parallel specialization and integration.

All three forces and the military science arm show pronounced specialist tendencies. The basic reasons are the costs and complexities of modern war and the growth of international teamwork which allows individual countries to develop certain fields.

BIT TASKS

Thus the navy is concentrating on anti-submarine warfare, the air force on a fighter force and the army on airborne and infantry troops. The Defence Research Board is concerned mainly with Arctic, gas and germ warfare as well as certain weapons.

Unification or integration was the central theme of the Defence Department from 1947 until 1949. It now has become part of the foundation of all three forces. It produced, among other things, common pay scales, common codes of discipline and punishment, similar food and quality of clothing, joint officer training at three services colleges and arrangements for joint use of hospitals.

The old national concept of balanced military forces is emerging in a new international form. Only the big powers can any longer afford full military might. The Atlantic Pact Powers are seeking a balanced over-all strength. This is one key to Canadian specialization. This Canadian trend started before the Pact was drafted but the Pact confirmed and strengthened it.

BIG CONTRIBUTION

One result is that Canada is spending as much money on the air force alone as on the army and navy together. The R.C.A.F. fighter arm is Canada's main contribution to this international concept.

There are two main reasons behind Canada's switch to North American arms. One is that it is easier for Canada to produce U.S. weapons because the engineering designs and patterns of the two countries are more similar than those of Canada and Britain. The other is that if North America were ever under siege, Canada should be able to rely on immediate sources of supply, not sources which might be in enemy hands.

The result is that the lion's share of the $3,500,000,000 Canada expects to spend on arms and equipment in her three-year defence program, started in 1951, will be spent in North America. She has switched from this pattern to order Centurion tanks, an aircraft carrier and some other equipment from Britain, but these purchases are exceptions arising from price differences and the fact that tanks were not available in the United States.

The army has found it possible to graft U.S. arms on existing organization and keep things largely as they were—that is, primarily British in origin. This British background is something none of the services want to lose regardless of where arms originate. However, there is an urge to maintain Canadian identity and it shows itself in various ways.

WARTIME LESSON

The navy and air force learned their lesson in the Second World War. They had large commands of their own but thousands of their men served as individuals or small units in the British forces. One in every four R.A.F. fliers, for example, was a Canadian.

The air force now is setting up a substantial force in Europe, under over-all U.S. command but large enough to be a distinct Canadian unit. It is a Canadian bridgehead which would be expanded if war came.

The army's brigades in Germany and Korea were distinctively Canadian and have orders to stay that way even though they accept operational orders from higher command. One reason the army is not being turned into a mechanized force—the main one is the cost—is because mechanized units would be more likely than infantry to be broken up and scattered to support various foreign formations.

The navy already knows where it would do most of its fighting in another war. The northwest Atlantic would be Canada's sea, defended largely by Canada's Navy.

Tomorrow: The Canadian army.

Bullfighter Inspired By Rita Hayworth

Matador Luis Liguel Domigue raised his three-cornered hat to Rita before his performance and declared: "I want to express appreciation for your visit to Spain and your personality."

He then turned to fight and made a one-blow kill, for which he was awarded the bull's ears, top honor for a bullfighter.

Shot To Scare Them Paquin Statement

PEMBROKE (CP)—A statement in which Herman Paquin told police "I shot to scare them away" was read yesterday in court at the manslaughter trial of Paquin, charged with shooting Delbert Logan last August.

The statement, admitted as evidence, said Logan and two companions threatened to break down the door of Paquin's residence when he refused to give them a drink in the early hours of Aug. 19.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's high-riding dollar is in for a spill, Harold S. Backus, president of the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada, said yesterday. In an interview, Mr. Backus said the Canadian dollar "might be a little too hard for its own good."

WORCESTER, Eng. (Reuters)—Clarence Hall, 28, who seared his wife's face with red-hot coal so that other men would not look at her, was sentenced yesterday to three years' imprisonment.

Believes Russian Production Up

QUEBEC (CP) — Veterans Minister Lapointe said last night that the industrial strength of the Communist world, though still behind that of the democratic countries, is steadily catching up.

The Minister told the Canadian Industrial Preparedness Association that it should be kept in mind that "one-third of the human race today exists under the Communist system."

Those best qualified to judge were convinced that "a far higher percentage of (Communist) national output is being reinvested in heavy industry than is the case even in Canada, which probably has the highest such rate in the free world.

"This simply means that the gap between the industrial strength of the Communist world and that of the free world is being steadily closed, although it is still quite large."

60 Airways Pioneers Will Meet In London

LONDON (CP)—A band of intrepid airways pioneers, some 60 members of the British Guild of Airshipmen—one of the most exclusive clubs in the world—will meet in London at the end of October to rededicate their faith in the airship as a mode of future transportation.

The men, most of them more than 50 years of age, are fliers that blazed the trail with lighter-than-air craft that had a popular vogue immediately after the First World War. Among them are four survivors of the ill-fated R-101, destroyed with heavy loss of life in 1930. It was this disaster that brought about Britain's abandonment of the airship.

ALSO AT REUNION

Also attending the reunion will be the Guild's president, Sqdn. Ldr. R.F. Durrant, a crew member of the R-34, first airship to make the east-west trans-Atlantic crossing in 1919.

Durrant, on every flight of the R-101, except the ship's last one, is still a firm believer in the future importance of the airship.

"We say that the airship has a definite use in civil aviation if only the prejudice caused by the R-101 disaster can be overcome," he said. "Passengers would realize they had the freedom of an ocean liner. And they would be safe now because non-inflammable helium gas is used."

New York Paper Praises Pearson

In an editorial the Herald-Tribune says:

"The parliamentary tangles that lie ahead of the General Assembly will, doubtless, make heavy demands upon its president. But there is ample reason for confidence that he will meet them triumphantly."

Truman Says Eisenhower Accepts Nazi Practices

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman said today Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower "has had an attack of moral blindness" and is willing to accept Nazi practices although he had a leading role in freeing Europe from Nazi domination.

The accusation, one of the bitterest the president has ever directed against the Republican presidential candidate, was made in a speech prepared for reading before the National Jewish Welfare Board in Washington.

Truman himself is whistle-stopping through New England, where he said in an address prepared for a Lawrence, Mass., audience that Eisenhower "appears to be willing to undermine our safety if that will get him elected president."

RACIAL SUPERIORITY

The reference to Nazi practices came as the President attacked the McCarran immigration bill, passed by Congress over his veto. He said the bill adds up to "the philosophy of racial superiority developed by the Nazis."

Truman then went on to mention Republican senators who helped push the measure through Congress, adding that Eisenhower can not "escape responsibility" because he is now endorsing these same senators.

Eisenhower, virtually ignoring his Democratic opponent, Governor Adlai Stevenson, continued to lash out at the Truman administration's record of spending, Korea, corruption, and what he said was his failure to get "a better peace."

Stevenson, in California, described the Republican policy toward Korea as one of "scuttle and run" and said in a speech prepared for delivery at San Diego that the "best chance for a just and peaceful world" hinges on a Democratic victory in the November election.

PULLS NO PUNCHES

Eisenhower pulled no punches as he campaigned through Delaware, New Jersey and New York.

He said in Paterson, N.J., last night there could be no perfect peace as long as "the Godless doctrine of Communism" remains strong, but he said Americans have a right to demand: "Why have we not a better peace than we have?"

CAN'T MATCH STRENGTH

The general said "America is still marked with indelible invective as Communism's final and greatest victim-to-be but he added that under proper leadership the U.S. need not fear: "The strength of the enemy . . cannot match our own at its best."

Stevenson, winding up in San Diego a crucial campaign for California's vital 32 electoral votes, flies to Texas today.

SUPPORTS SEAWAY

Truman said at Manchester that he advocated a northeastern power pool made up of hydro-electric development of New England rivers, plus the St. Lawrence seaway. This would be similar to those set up in the Pacific northwest and the Tennessee Valley.

He said a majority of the Republicans have joined in the fight against the St. Lawrence seaway and power projects "which would bring cheap power and new industry to New England."

"What I've been trying to get for this country is a northeastern power pool, made up of your river basins and the St. Lawrence seaway.

"If this is done, then you wouldn't be at a disadvantage," he said.

OTTAWA (CP)—The 72-foot ketch Memory is carrying seven young Canadians and an Englishman on a dream adventure—a two-year cruise around the world.

The stout sailing craft, purchased in England for the cruise sailed out into the Atlantic from Hamble, on the south coast of England, last month for the first lap of the trip, a cruise of the Mediterranean via Portugal.

In her lockers were provisions for 30 days. And aboard were Cameron Rougvie and Bill Dewan and their brides, Eddie Hughes and Bruce Kirby, all of Ottawa, Kelly Brownson of Eldorado, Ont., and Ralph Menhinick of Hamble.

Menhinick, a sailor with deep-sea experience, joined the Canadians in England and was elected skipper of the ship.

DESCRIBES PREPARATIONS

Kirby, a reporter on leave from the Ottawa Journal, has written a series of articles, describing Memory and the work that went into outfitting her.

He told of the first trial cruise, an overnight jaunt to the coast of France, of the special gear and sails which were fitted and of the weddings of Rougvie and Dewan.

The weddings took place the day after the girls, Claire Parent and Marienne Wilson, arrived from Canada. After honeymoon trips to Paris they returned to Hamble where Memory was being outfitted. From then on, wrote Kirby, there was a definite feminine touch about the boat.

"A new curtain appeared in the shower; wash basins turned from black to white. Clean towels made an appearance and bars of soap cropped up. When we sat down to a meal we were confronted by knives and forks."

TO FRANCE AND BACK

Within two weeks of this feminine face-lifting and a lot of hard work by the men, Memory was ready for a trial sail. They took her out into the Solent under auxiliary power then hoisted sail. They found the ship stout and with a good turn of speed and were so pleased they sailed all night to the French coast and back.

Memory put out to sea Sept. 11.

2 Army Shows Going On Tour

OTTAWA (CP)—The army is sending two road shows on tour to teach its armored corpsmen the latest wrinkles.

Teams of strolling players—as the army calls them—will head east and west from the armored corps school at Camp Borden this week-end to dish up a blend of instruction and entertainment.

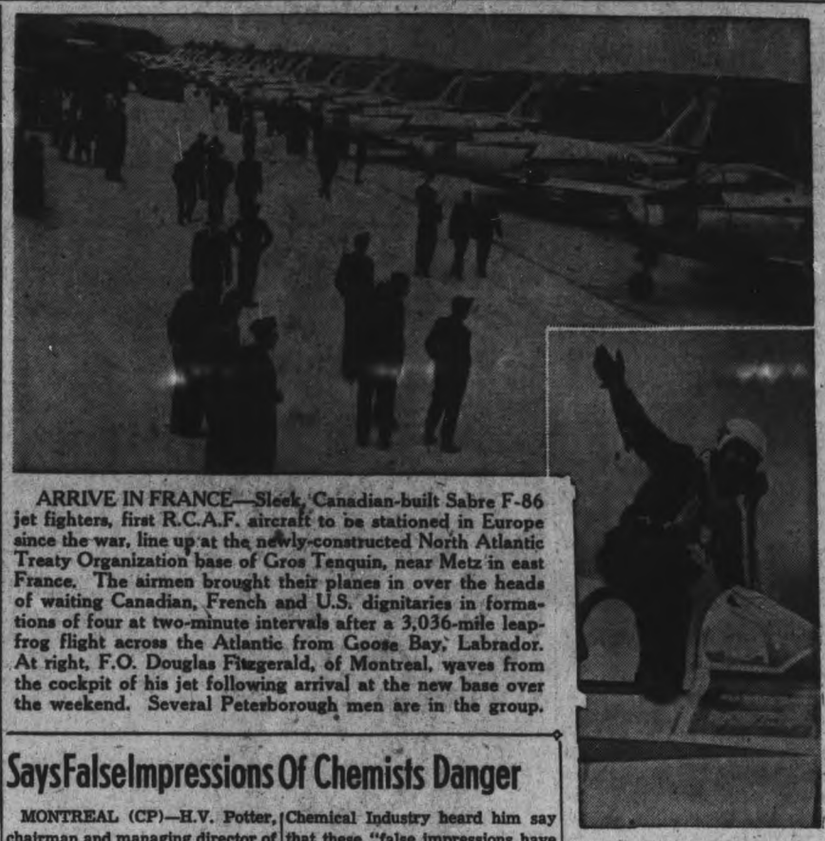
The two six-man teams, first of their kind, will tour eastern and western Canada for two months, appearing before all Reserve Force armored corps units and both active armored regiments.

An army announcement yesterday said the army has learned that bright entertainment lessons are the ones that are remembered. The entertainment will come in demonstrations and skits by team members as they burlesque wrong ways of doing things.

In the eastbound team are Capt. B.M. Milligan, Barrie; Lieut. J.L. Kennedy, Lisle; Sgt. J.F. Armstrong, Cornwall; Sgt. R. A. DeBartok, Ottawa; Sgt. A.R. Bechard, Foster, Que., and Cpl. V.E. Heath, Sydney, N.S.

Family Argument Ends In Slaying

DETROIT (CP)—A family argument between a deaf-mute husband and wife ended when the husband died with five bullet wounds in his body, police said yesterday.



They said Mrs. Mildred King, 26, wrote the following after the body of her husband, William, 31, was found on the floor of the King home:

"He signalled he would kill me. He got his gun from the bedroom and then laid it on the table to signal me some more. I shot at him eight times."

Says False Impressions Of Chemists Danger

MONTREAL (CP)—H.V. Potter, chairman and managing director of Bakelite (Chemists) Ltd., London, England, last night told Canadian chemists to correct the "public's misconception of your trade as a mystic art" before serious damage is done to the industry.

Delegates at a banquet of the Canadian division of the Society of Chemical Industry heard him say that these "false impressions have retarded advancement in several branches of the industry, although British societies have helped erase the damage."

Earlier, Dr. R. K. Stratford of Sarnia was re-elected chairman of the Canadian division of the society.

Muskrat Trappers Establish Special Area For Women

PELICAN NARROWS, Sask. (CP)—A "no man's land" has been set up in the Pelican Narrows area northeast of Prince Albert and near the Saskatchewan-Manitoba boundary.

Trappers in the area decided to set aside a 60-square-mile area, rich in muskrat, for women only.

The Pelican Narrows District Trappers' Council decided that the distance to outlying traplines and the severity of the northern winter created hardships for women who earn a living by trapping.

Only those women who depend on their own efforts for their livelihood are eligible. The first two "trappees" or "trapperettes" to be given the right-of-way in the exclusive area were Jean Iroquis, a widow, and her daughter, Bernadette.

It is expected the women will harvest muskrats but leave the few beaver to multiply and build their colonies for better harvest later.

A member of the Pelican Narrows Trappers' Council is Mrs. Nancy McCullum, Saskatchewan's famed woman trapper. She told the council that any man found guilty of trespassing in the "no man's land" would be immediately and thoroughly dealt with.

Hospital Plaque To Honor J. R. Marshall

A memorial plaque to commemorate the contribution of the late J. R. Marshall in the organizstion and erection of the Civic Hospital was approved Thursday by the hospital board of governors.

Mr. Marshall was instrumental in getting public support for the building of the new hospital and made the completion of the building the goal of his retirement years. A retired general manager of the Nashua Paper Company, Mr. Marshall lived to achieve his goal. He died recently after serving as the first chairman of the board of governors.

He was succeeded last January by the present chairman, former mayor Max Swanston.

The board has approved a recommendation of a special committee set up to decide on a suitable memorial to Mr. Marshall.

An inscribed metal plaque will be placed in the alcove in the centre of the second floor and the plaque will be illuminated.

Secretary John Hornal was instructed to obtain designs for the proposed plaque to be submitted to the board for selection of a suitable one.

NO MORE PLAQUES

In future, there will be no more memorial plaques placed in the hospital. It was decided to recognize outstanding contributions to the hospital by individuals in the future in this way:

A resolution will be passed by the board of governors and written into the board's records, giving the reason for the recognition. This resolution will be copied on parchment and presented to the person being honored. A copy of the resolution will also be placed in a book which will be an honor roll of citizens who have contributed to the welfare of the hospital.

Two memorial plaques from the old Nicholls Hospital, one in honor of nurses from the hospital who served in the First World War and the other in memory of Dr. J. T. I. Halliday will be placed in the Civic Hospital the board decided.

After the wooden mountings are re-finished to harmonize with the interior of the hospital, the plaque honoring the nurses will be placed in the nurses' residence and the one in memory of Dr. Halliday will be placed in the medical library.

Prince Direct finally sold for $700 at the auction to Grant Underhay of Myrtle. Top price at the sale was $1,225, paid by P. A. Dougall of Pembroke for the brood mare Miss Iowalta. About $30,000, considered a low total, was received for the 76 horses, most of which were brood mares and yearlings. Besides the horses, a good deal of harness and a number of sulkies and carts were auctioned.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

City Pays $10,000 Interest On Utilities Debentures Unnecessarily—Dr. Langley

Commissioner Charges $300,000 Debentures Sold Before Needed For Filtration Plant, Now Paying Interest On Money Lying In Bank

When Dr. G. R. Langley tossed a $10,000 verbal bombshell into the lap of the Utilities Commission Thursday, manager Ross L. Dobbin promptly relayed the explosive question to city treasurer Stanley Couper. Why, Commissioner Langley wanted to know, were $300,000 in debentures for the erection of the addition to the filtration plant issued in May?

"Someone made a $10,000 bull," declared Dr. Langley.

He explained that the $300,000 had lain idle in the commission's current account since May 20 and was costing the city $1,112.50 per month in interest. "The first progress payments on the construction work will be made some time this fall," he continued.

The payments made this fall will be "trifling amounts," Dr. Langley went on and most of the money will not be needed before February or March 1953.

Mr. Dobbin said the city treasurer would undoubtedly have an explanation for the issuing of the debentures last May. "We told the city we did not want the money till the end of August."

BANKS COULD LOAN

Dr. Langley told the commissioners he had looked into the matter and learned that "when a city passes a bylaw banks will gladly make a loan on that bylaw."

During the last six months, Dr. Langley said interest on the debentures had cost $6,675—"we have paid nine times as much as we should have. If we had borrowed the money from the bank we need not have floated the loan," he asserted.

An interjection by commission chairman Gordon Matthews that banks could not loan the commission money brought the rejoinder from Dr. Langley that the city could borrow the money when it was needed and pay it over to the commission.

It is the established practice in municipal financing to issue debentures when the money is needed if the cost of an approved project is known before hand, Mayor Hugh Waddell said Thursday night.

In the laying of sewers, and building of new streets, council sometimes borrows from the bank to do the work, as a local improvement, because the cost of the work

Thieves Rob Post Office Of 3 Parcels

OMEMEE (ENS) — Thieves broke into the Omemee post office before dawn today and got away with three C.O.D. parcels of undetermined value and a fountain pen. A safe in the same office showed no signs that it had been tampered with.

Also during the night the C.N.R. toolhouse, three blocks northwest of the post office, was entered, presumably by the same thieves.

It is believed they first broke into the toolhouse to try and get some section men's tools—such as pinch bars—but railwaymen report nothing is missing.

LOCK SMASHED

The lock on the front door of the post office was smashed and this got the thieves into the main waiting room. From there they squeezed through a wicket into the office. Three C.O.D. parcels and a fountain pen, owned by Assistant Postmaster William Wedlock, were taken.

Chief Constable Stevens, who investigated, found that a side window had been tampered with but not forced. The side door that is bolted from the inside was found open when post office employees arrived early today. The thieves are believed to have left by this door and didn't bother to close it.

Westclox Names W. J. Hardill Vice-President

A resident of Peterborough for many years, Mr. Hardill has been employed with the company since 1924. He is well known to the trade throughout Ontario, having been in charge of sales throughout the province for many years.

The appointment of Mr. Hardill brings to three the number of top Westclox executives from Peterborough. J. H. Vernor is first vice-president and general manager, and H. T. Cranford is vice-president, secretary-treasurer and assistant general manager.

R. H. Matthiessen of New York is chairman of the board of directors and A. J. Wilson also of New York is prediseat.

Brood Mare Brings Top Price Of $1,225 At Stewart Sale

Top price paid at the horse sale Thursday at Hugh Stewart's Hilltop Farm was $1,225, paid by P. A. Dougall of Pembroke for Miss Iowalta, a good brood mare with a fine racing record. Stewart Direct, the stable's top money winner ($35,000), sold for a flat $1,000 to G. E. McCaffrey, of Russell, near Ottawa. Mr. McCaffrey bought a number of horses and a god deal of equipment.

Mr. Stewart said he was a little disappointed at some of the prices. "I gave some of those horses away," he said, "but didn't do too badly all round."

Buying went on at the farm near the hospital for more than seven hours, from shortly after noon until about 7:30 p.m.

In spite of a chilling wind that got colder as the light grew less, buyers and spectators hung on until almost the final sale. When the auction closed, there were only a score or so in the large tent.

SOME SOLD AT $50

Horse prices ranged from $50 to the top of $1,225 paid for Miss Iowalta. Some sets of harness sold for more than the lowest horse prices.

Mr. McCaffrey, who was the biggest buyer at the auction, laid out more than $4,300 for horses that went for top prices. He bought a good deal of the harness, blankets and other tack.

These are some of the prices he paid: Katherin Tipton $1,000, Stewart $1,100, June Bars $1,200, and Stewart Direct $1,000.

Majority of the buyers were from Ontario, and only a few were from the city and district. Harry Yates, a breeder and owner from Sault Ste. Marie, paid $1,100 for Beth Guy, a 10-year-old brood mare.

20 Men Join Reserve Unit

Recruiting for the 50th H.A.A. Regiment has been well above average so far this training season, according to regiment statistics which show that 20 Peterborough men have joined the reserve unit since training resumed in September. Besides these men a number of officers have transferred from other reserve units, adding to the enrolment.

Regiment officers attribute the increase in the flow of recruits to publicity during the Peterborough Exhibition and to the regiment's plans which will make the training more interesting.

The 20 new recruits bring the total strength of the 50th Regiment to 165 all ranks, including 27 officers, 48 N.C.O.'s and Junior N.C.O.'s and 90 gunners.

One new anti-aircraft officer, Lieut. D. E. Metcalfe, has joined the regiment, while there are four other probable officers who have moved recently to the city that plan to be transferred from other reserve units to the 50th. These officers are from light anti-aircraft units and field artillery regiments.

A two-week junior N.C.O. course was started Wednesday and will run nightly, including Sundays. These men, now gunners, will qualify as junior N.C.O. and those successful will attend an N.C.O. course later this year, probably shortly after Christmas.

Fewer Patients Than Expected Slashes Revenue

An unusual drop in the number of patients treated at Civic Hospital during September resulted in an operating loss of $14,859.08.

However, in presenting the September financial statement to the hospital board of governors Thursday night, treasurer T. T. Rodger indicated he is not unduly worried about the hospital's finances.

Hospital superintendent John Hornal said, "September was more than usually slack."

The number of patients in the main hospital during the month was 640, as compared with 664 in August and the total monthly average of 671. The total number treated was 653, counting 13 in the communicable disease division, 27 less than in August and 10 less than the 1951 monthly average of 690 for the entire hospital.

STILL AHEAD

Despite the drop in patient revenue during the summer months, however, the hospital is still keeping its accounts free of red ink. Mr. Rodger's September statement shows an excess of revenue over expenditures of $10,959.94 for the first nine months of this year.

Total revenue so far has topped the budget estimate by $15,697.25. Expenditures, however, are running slightly ahead of the budget estimate, being $4,723.36 more than three-quarters of the budget.

The financial picture is "working out very close to plan," commented Mr. Rodger. "We expect that November and December will be particularly heavy and sufficiently so to take care of the falling off in December (due to Christmas)."

By keeping a close watch on expenditures, Mr. Rodger said he was confident the hospital would reach the end of the year without a deficit.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Cliff Waite, New Ontario Forums Secretary, Coming to Peterborough Forums Meeting, Normal School, Monday, Oct. 20....Western Ontario Farmers Object to Hydro Rate Increase Jan. 1....George W. Henry Advises Purchase of Purebred Cattle While U.S. Market Closed.

Cliff Waite, secretary of the Ontario Farm Forum, is coming to Peterborough Monday, Oct. 20, for the social evening at Normal School as a preliminary of the approaching new season of broadcasts and group meetings.

Peterborough's rural communities made considerable progress last year in organizing new groups and altogether were active throughout the winter. The novelty of having the presidency in this county in the person of Mr. Sutton is wearing off a little, but the challenge of increased effort remains. This county and adjoining district can show their support of him in one of the most valuable rural enterprises on the continent by example in extending the local Forum organization.

Monday night's meeting will open with a business session and close with refreshments and a social period. Mr. Sutton said yesterday he hoped there would be a large attendance of farmers to meet the new secretary, Cliff Waite.

At Hereford Finals . . .

Francis Walsh of Skibbereen Farm, Otonabee, attended the Ontario Hereford Cattle championships show at Erin fair on Thanksgiving Day. He took two bulls for this competition, finals of the various Hereford regional shows throughout the province, and won the summer yearling class, placed fifth for progeny of dam, and fourth in the class of fifteen entries for two bulls of any age. Also from this district in the competitions were: Charles Fisher of Bailieboro and Whitton J. White of Balsam, Victoria county.

"I thought it was good experience winning in that kind of Hereford company," Mr. Walsh said yesterday. "There were 110 head, regional show winners. Most of them were from western Ontario.

The western Ontario breeders of white-faced cattle seem to think that all the good Herefords are from west of Toronto. They are strong, but our eastern Ontario events, and especially this year, indicate that there are lots of quality Herefords east of Toronto."

Odds and Ends

Miss Jean Noble, district home economist, will conduct a girl's training school Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday next week in the office of the Ontario Department of Agriculture...Archie Davidson of Otonabee and Orland Brown and George Shoniker will likely be the Peterborough County team competing to qualify for the Ontario judging team in the nationals finals of the year at the Royal Winter Fair....It is understood that three steers will be shown at the Royal by John Denure, Aberdeen-Angus; and Neil Whitfield of North Monaghan, and Robert Moloney of Enniskore, Shorthorns....Port Hope isn't letting Cobourg grab all the spotlight of publicity on the 1953 international plowing match. Mayor W. N. Moore headed a Port Hope delegation bearing banners at the Carp match and also at the concluding dinner blazoning "Port Hope 1953"...Farm Forum broadcasts begin November 3, preceded by a preview program, Monday evening, October 27....Frank Paterson, agricultural representative, had an interested audience of 50 at the St. James' Church Fireside Hour last Sunday night. His subject, "Soils and Men," elicited interesting topics during the discussion period....Melville Johnston attended the hog producers' meeting in Toronto Tuesday. They decided to ask the Federal Government to continue the 26-cent floor price after December 31.

U.S. Cattle Congress

Grand champion bull at the Waterloo (Iowa) Dairy Cattle Congress was Smithland Supreme Champion. Winner for the second bull bred by J. R. Henderson of Kingston. He was named 'All-Canadian aged bull for 1943 while owned by J. C. Nelson & Son and J. F. Bennett of Campbellford and J. M. Fraser of Streetsville, Ont.

The grand champion female was Woodyglen Queen Mazie, a seven year old Holstein cow bred by W. W. Thompson, Hornby, Ont.

Protest Hydro Boost

Federation of Agriculture representatives of ten southwestern Ontario counties at a zone meeting in London this week proposed that the Hydro-Electric Power Commission should draw on its estimated reserves of $563,000,000 instead of raising rates January 1 next.

A resolution by Andrew Cromarty of Dorchester suggested that the Ontario Federation prepare a brief to the provincial government protesting the increase while the Hydro had such large reserve fund.

The zone delegates also recommended that agricultural interests be represented on arbitration boards appointed to settle disputes on amounts awarded to farmers when their lands were traversed by hydro towers, pipelines or highways.

They decided to petition the government to have two Federation representatives on these boards.

John Broderick, St. Catharines, immediate past president of the Ontario Federation, discussed recent unsuccessful attempts to establish a pool for purchasing coarse grains from western Canada. Both federal and provincial governments had "declined graciously" to acknowledge any responsibility in that matter. Three major eastern co-operatives had declined the pool project on the ground that "farmers will still buy where they can get it cheapest". Mr. Broderick said efforts were continuing toward the establishment of such an agency.

C. R. Belyea, fieldman-economist for the Ontario Federation, predicted little or no export of Ontario winter wheat, due largely to the depreciation in the U.S. dollar.

Mrs. Newman Tucker of Komoka was appointed zone representative of the women's committee of the federation. It was agreed that the federation offered wider scope for women and their aid than had previously been recognized.

Holsteins Average $520

Seventy Holsteins averaged $520 at the second annual Quebec Holstein Sale for a total of $36,405. Top price was $2,000 paid by W. K. MacLeod of Thetford Mines to F. A. Ayerst of Ormstown, for the bred heifer Glen Ayerst R. A. Ballerina. Second best price was $1,000 by Meride Cie, Stanbridge East, to Brown Corporation, La Tuque, for the bull calf Browns Abegweit Leander.

George W. Henry, president of the Canadian Holstein-Friesian Association, told the Examiner here Wednesday that twelve new breeders bought their first Holsteins at this sale.

"This period of exclusion from the U.S. market," said Mr. Henry, "continues to offer a great opportunity to owners of grade dairy cattle to buy pure-breds at attractive prices. It is also an opportunity for parents to buy quality calves for their boys and girls in calf clubs. Our future rests with our young people, and there is no better time than right now to help them get off to a good start.

"I sincerely hope our farmers do not let this price and quality [illegible] June next year [illegible] the embargo on our cattle. It will probably be a year from the date on May 19 last when our cattle were declared free of foot and mouth disease."

Mr. Henry was one of the last to leave the Black and White show at Morrow Park this week.

MISS MARY WOOD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wood, of Peterborough, has the distinction of being the only girl to hold an executive post in the Holstein cattle clubs of Ontario. She is secretary-treasurer of the Peterborough Holstein Breeders. With her in this group at the West-Central Ontario Black and White Championships Show at Morrow Park Wednesday are, left to right, F. C. Eligh, of Finch, vice-president of the Canadian Holstein - Friesian Association; Mayor Hugh Waddell who offered the city's welcome to the 59 breeders and the big ringside crowd; John Powell, Brantford, director of publicity; and George W. Henry, of Todmorden, president of the Canadian Association, son of George S. Henry, former Premier of Ontario, and although now retired as a breeder of Holstein cattle, is widely known among the Canadian fraternity of Black and White cattle breeders.

4,440 4-H Clubs In Canada, 58,706 Belong

Canadian 4-H Clubs have a total membership of 58,706 boys and girls this year, a gain of 890 members in 4,440 clubs, as reported by James D. Moore in his news letters from Ottawa.

Ontario is still the leader with 1,460 clubs and their membership of 15,954. Nova Scotia is second with 7,823 members; Quebec is next with 7,812; Manitoba's enrolment is 7,799, Saskatchewan 6,533, Alberta 6,294, New Brunswick 2,961, Prince Edward Island 1,941, and British Columbia 1,589 members.

Club average is 13.22 members. Total number of girls enrolled is 30,047, and boys 28,659.

Peterborough 4-H Club should imagine themselves as groups and individuals in all that company of young folks from rural Canada. When the council on 4-H Clubs was formed in 1931, the enrolment was 21,142. This year the clubs have reached a new peak. Their activities reach the annual climax during the week of the Royal Winter Fair with the interprovincial judging competitions.

A Heartening Story

Mr. Moore relates an episode in adult support of the 4-H movement that is worth reporting even here, where the clubs have excellent leadership from their sponsoring Junior Farmers, backed by Frank C. Paterson and Ken Best of the Department of Agriculture, and also from parents.

"The rewards that 4-H Club leaders receive for their efforts are many and varied. An incident that occurred in the program of the Bapaume 4-H Beef Calf Club in Saskatchewan should be retold.

"Just before starting on their annual three-day outing at a nearby summer resort, the leader, Hartley Clark, said to one of the parents, 'You know Mr. Garrison, I shouldn't be going away. I still have 250 acres of summer fallow to cultivate.' Mr. Garrison's reply was, 'Don't you worry about your summer fallow, Hartley, we dads of the club members will have it all done when you return.' The dads lived up to their word. Certainly a wonderful gesture to a club leader by the community. Stories such as these really put 4-H Club work on a high plane."

At 4-H Club State Fair

One hundred members of the 4-H Clubs in Lambton County, Ontario, journeyed to East Lansing, Michigan, to attend the Michigan State 4-H Club Fair.

The group watched with interest the county winners from all parts of Michigan compete for state champions in dairy cattle, beef cattle, sheep, swine; as well as showmanship in each of the sections. Also on display were exhibits of vegetables and home economics.

A feature of the evening program was a 4-H band concert competition. Thirty 4-H bands competed following which a tired but inspired group of Lambton county 4-H members departed for their return trip. The party was under the supervision of W. P. Macdonald and Douglas MacKechnie, agricultural representative and assistant for Lambton county.

Iron Ore Vital In Farm Economy

Canadian farmers whose tractors, trucks, harvesters and other implements once were made from imported iron ore now can take pride in equipment as Canadian as their wheat.

In the last decade or so, Canada has changed from a country completely dependent for its iron ore supply upon friendly neighbors to one with a superabundance of her own. And iron is one of the major factors which brought about the era of farm mechanization.

The story of how his change came about is told by W. M. Goodwin, Ottawa consulting geologist. Canada's first iron furnaces used local ores that sufficed for a time but were inadequate when larger modern furnaces were developed. Notable in this early stage was the enterprise at Londonderry, N.S., where pockets of ore in the region's lovely hillsides were sufficient for the first small furnace and made iron that was renowned for its quality even in England. But all these early operations failed when the giant blast furnaces of modern times came along. For years Canada depended upon imported ore.

Then, in rapid succession, came the revival of the old Helen mine northeast of Lake Superior by the Algoma Steel Company in 1939; the coming into production six years later of the vast Steep Rock deposits in northwestern Ontario; and the discovery of a major ore field in central Labrador. Newfoundland's entry into Confederation brought Canada the famous Wabana deposits. A huge bed has been found north of Belleville, Ont., by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. Last June another "find" startled tobacco farmers in southern Ontario. On the strength of magnetic surveys which indicated the presence of a large ore body below the surface, the United States Steel Corporation took options on about 5,400 acres south of Simcoe.

Canada's production of iron this year is expected to exceed domestic requirements of 4,000,000 tons. By 1946 Canadian ore beds will be yielding about 27,000,000 tons annually, still another indication of the richness of this country's resources.

23 Combines Harvesting 100,000 Bushels On 14,000 Alberta Acres

The magnitude of farming operations in the western provinces is daily news in such papers as the Calgary Herald. Two recent headings are typical chapters in the harvesting of the tremendous grain crop of the prairies, literally dwarfing the comparable methods in the east.

A few glimpses of this type of free enterprise of Canadian primary producers are of general interest.

"A group of farmers headed by O. B. Lassiter of Peace River fame has pooled resources in a great effort to beat the winter.

They have mustered 85 men and equipment worth nearly $350,000 —including an all time record parade of 23 combines—to sweep up crops covering 14,000 acres. These are big figures, and the men behind them are at least as big. They are the personification of modern Canada, and the big way of doing things."

In this gigantic job tractors are dispensed with. D-8 caterpillars dragging five "one-ways" lined up on a single cable, cover a working front of 38 feet.

Another story, in part, follows: "A 100,000 bushel grain crop is being harvested on the Willow Springs Ranch owned by Victor Watson of Airdrie. With good weather for another ten days, every bushel of the 2,100 acre crop will be safely binned. Four combines were hard at work Tuesday (last week) and another two were added today.

Eight hundred acres were sown to Victory and Beaver Oats. A 100-acre field which had been swathed, and was being combined Monday afternoon, was going 125 bushels to the acre. Mr. Watson said he expected his whole oat crop, all registered seed, would thresh out between 100 and 125 bus. an acre.

Seven hundred acres of barley were yielding around 40 bus. an acre; and 450 acres of registered Thatcher wheat was running about 35 bus. to the acre.

One hundred and fifty acres of rye and 100 acres of Vantage barley completed the crop. Combines with blazing headlights were working in the fields until 10 p.m. Monday, and Ross Zeasley of the Associated Screen News, Montreal, was on hand to film the operation for newsreels which will be shown all over Canada.

Mr. Watson said it was the biggest and best crop he had ever raised. Last year he was almost completely hailed out."

Here's another expansive chapter: "In one of the biggest land deals in recent years, Fred Nelson of the Shepard district, east of Calgary, sold his 2,000 acre farm to a wealthy U.S. industrialist for $100 an acre, or a total of $200,000 . . . The Nelson place was built up from an original quarter section holding to its present area of 2,000 acres."

Youngster Breaks Arm

NORWOOD (ENS)—Fred Webb, four-year-old son of Councillor and Mrs. Rod Webb, Norwood, was treated in Peterborough Civic Hospital Thursday for a broken right forearm.

The youngster received the injury when he fell from a neighbor's clothesline and while playing with a chum.

He was treated by Dr. A. R. Atkinson, Norwood.

NEW WINGS FOR JAPAN—The first Japanese airplane to be manufactured since the end of World War II is inspected by officials and visitors at the Tachikawa airplane plant, in Tokyo. The plane, a two-place, open-cocpit, secondary-training craft, has a 130-horsepower engine and can remain aloft for five hours. It has been presented to a Tokyo newspaper, and will be used for training schoolboys who are air-minded, but cannot afford flying instruction.

Suggest Nehru Read Flook

LONDON (CP)—So Prime Minister Nehru of India doesn't like cmic strips? Well, he ought to try reading Flook.

That's the advice given by a columnist in The Times of India, as reported here. The Columnist says the strip of which Flook is the hero involves "a dream world more real than life, more imaginative than dreams."

The tip followed Nehru's recent complaint at a press conference that he didn't like comic strips and didn't understand why newspapers paid good money for them.

Flook is drawn by Wally Fawkes, formerly of Vancouver and now living in London. The cartoon character named Flook is a rotund, panda-like creation capable of transforming itself into virtually anything at short notice.

Changed His Mind

VANCOUVER (CP) — Murray Champniss, 16-year-old high school student with thoughts of a writing career, obtained police approval for a tour through the police station from cell blocks to morgue. Now he has decided to become a forestry engineer.

SCOOTS ACROSS CHANNEL — Georges Monneret, French motorcycle champ, didn't let a little thing like the English Channel keep him from making a motorcycle trip to England. He mounted his bike on this pontoon-like affair. The rear wheel drove the propeller, and his front wheel became the rudder mechanism for his craft. On arrival at Dover, England, he dismounted the cycle and scorched off to London.

Four Jurymen Fail To Arrive

KITCHENER (CP)—Four persons summonsed for jury duty failed to turn up for the beginning of the fall assizes. Two threw away their summonses thinking them unimportant.

Mr. Justice P.E.F. Smily rebuked the two, Irvin Cober of Waterloo township, who said he read only the first few lines of the letter, and Joseph Bartels of Preston, who said neither he nor his wife read the letter.

H. Paul LeClair of Galt said he had gone to Kitchener city hall by mistake and found it hard to find a parking space, while Carl Schneider of Waterloo explained he had confused the opening of Wednesday's criminal sessions with that of Tuesday's grand jury sessions.

"COOL CONTROL"

TABLE TENNIS

1 The Forehand Grip: Control of every shot is vital, and comes only from the properly-held bat. Grip the bat simply and naturally. The handle should be held by the whole hand. Blade is held between thumb and forefinger; thumb on one side, forefinger on other.

2 Make sure bat fits snugly in hand while the three fingers clasp handle with relaxed, controlled grip. Held in this manner the bat becomes an extension of the arm and hand.

3 The Backhand Grip: For a backhand shot the bat is turned slightly in the hand when changing from the forehand position. The thumb steadies the backhand shot; the first finger steadies the forehand shot.

Yes, it's control that counts, in table tennis as in every sport—control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

Universities Drop Proposal To Bring Russian Students

By BERNARD DUFRESNE

QUEBEC (CP) — The National Federation of Canadian University Students has discarded proposed reciprocal Soviet-Canadian students' tours by approving a resolution that student tours, in general, should not cause disruption within the organization.

Faced with a threat of secession from two of its members—Laval University and Ottawa University—should the proposal be approved, the federation last night voted 11 to 8 that:

"This conference approves the principle of student tours on a reciprocity basis insofar as it shall not cause any constituent members of the federation to revise its relationship with N.F.C.U.S."

The resolution, in effect, gave the convention no choice but to strike from the report of the International Affairs Commission 11 resolutions dealing with details of the proposal.

The situation arose following a telegram to the convention from Russia's Anti-Fascist Committee of Soviet Youth saying that the Soviet group "approved" such visits.

Voting went as follows:

In favor (11)—Dalhousie University, University of Alberta, Mount Allison University, Queen's University, Ottawa University, University of New Brunswick, Laval University, Acadia University, University of British Columbia, University of Manitoba, Bishop's University.

Against (8)—University of Western Ontario, McGill University, McMaster University, Sir George Williams College, University of Toronto, University of Montreal, Carleton College, University of Saskatchewan.

Nineteen of the 20 universities represented at the convention had power to vote. St. Dunstan's College, Charlottetown, was represented but had no voting power.

The wording of the resolution resulted from an amendment moved by British Columbia and seconded by Manitoba to the original proposal drawn up by the I.A.C.:

"That this conference approves the principle of a Soviet-Canadian student tour on a reciprocity basis."

DEBATE LENGTHY

Voting followed 3½ hours of debate on the proposal which became known to the 60 delegates representing about 45,000 students as "the Russian question."

Paul-Emile Patry of Laval said the convention could not vote on a "principle" and a practical case—the Soviet-Canadian student tour—in the same resolution.

The British Columbia-Manitoba amendment to the resolution was prompted by what was termed a desire to protect N.F.C.U.S. "unity."

Frank Muldoon, Manitoba delegate, said "The presence of Laval in N.F.C.U.S. is worth more than the presence of Soviet students for one or two days on a campus."

Raymond Boulet of Laval said that perhaps Canadian students travelling to Russia would return "disillusioned" while Russian students coming to Canada would be "very well prepared and drilled" to pick subjects on the Canadian scene for Communist propaganda.

Louis Munroe of Ottawa doubted that the proposed three-week visits would result in an effective exchange of ideas and knowledge of the ways of life in Russia and Canada.

SAYS MINORITY RULES

Robert Sutherland of Toronto said the resolution was not a choice between Laval and Russia, but that it gave, in effect, "A veto power" to a small group opposing the will of the majority.

He said that a threat to secede by a minority group could lead the majority to bow to the will of the minority on any question.

Mr. Sutherland moved, and Manitoba seconded, that a poll be taken to ascertain which university would change its relationship with N.F.C.U.S. in the event of a Russian-Canadian student exchange.

Dalhousie, Ottawa and Laval were the only ones to answer affirmatively.

This followed voting on the main resolution.

British Columbia moved, seconded by Montreal, that the resolutions dealing with details of the resolution be dropped. The convention carried the motion.

Judge Admits Meek Statement

CORNWALL (CP)—A statement signed by Elias Meek describing attempts at choking, stabbing and hitting Mrs. Dollie Alguire was admitted as evidence yesterday at Meek's trial on a charge of murdering his employer's wife.

Mr. Justice J. C. McRuer ruled that the statement, taken by police less than 24 hours after the mutilated body of Mrs. Alguire, 28, was found Sept. 28, 1951, could be used by the Crown in its prosecution.

The statement said Meek, 21, hit Mrs. Alguire over the head with a hammer "once or twice," tried to choke her and stabbed her twice with a butcher knife.

"There isn't much to tell; I don't know why I did it," the statement said.

Meek was arrested the day after Mrs. Alguire's body was found at her farm home near Harrison Corners, 11 miles northwest of here. His employer, Alan Alguire, was away at the time.

Mr. Mills told Hamilton police he missed the brief case shortly after disembarking from a train at Hamilton Wednesday night.

Wage War Against Legion Of Smugglers

BONN, Germany (AP)—A hot little war is raging along West Germany's frontiers between German police and legions of smugglers flooding the country with contraband coffee and cigarettes.

Police say the illicit trade involves hundreds of smugglers ranging from lone operators who sneak across the border to international gangs operating fleets of trucks.

The West German Government reports that smuggling nicks the national budget over $100,000,000 a year in lost taxes.

Gun battles between the police and the coffee and cigaret runners flare almost nightly along the frontier.

After powerful, coffee-laden automobiles tried to run down several customs agents, police announced they would shoot any smugglers refusing to surrender.

In one battle on Lake Constance on the Swiss-German border, a hail of police bullets forced two speedboats laden with 6,700 pounds of green coffee beans and cigarettes to make for shore.

Customs police have killed three smugglers and wounded eight others in the last six months.

In Aachen, on the German-Belgian frontier, a special smugglers' court has been set up to handle the large number of customs offenders.

In one month the tribunal fined 210 smugglers, while 144 others were tried in regular courts along the Dutch and Belgian frontiers.

German jails along the border are so crammed with smugglers that new arrests cannot be accommodated.

Delay Shutdown Of Work On Secret Ships

VANCOUVER (CP)—Shutdown of two major steel shipyards here has been "postponed" pending further talks between management and unions, company spokesmen said last night.

Earlier, the companies had announced that the shipyards, one of them working on three secret destroyer-escort ships, would be closed at the end of the afternoon shift today.

Six hundred workers in the yards of Burrard and Pacific drydock companies were given notice yesterday.

The spokesmen said, however, that the shutdown was postponed when union officials asked that contract talks be reopened.

The workers, members of seven unions, had voted to strike for higher wage demands. No date was fixed for the walkout.

CAN'T GET ORDERS

"With this strike threat hanging over us we are unable to get new orders for the yards," a company spokesman said.

The men demanded a 20-cent-an-hour pay boost. The companies want to hold wages at last year's rates.

The men are members of the Marine Workers and Boilermakers' Union local 1 (C.C.L.).

"We are still willing to sit down and bargain at any time," said Jack Lawson, union spokesman.

Lamport Claims $6,000,000

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Allan Lamport told act-finding Ontario government committee yesterday that Toronto is entitled to $6,000,000 of the $25,000,000 which will accrue to the province as a result of its recent tax agreement with the federal government.

The mayor also emphasized his belief that the remaining $19,000,000 should be shared with other Ontario municipalities but his main plea was that the provincial government ease the tax burden for Toronto.

In a brief submitted by the city, the provincial government was urged to relieve Toronto of all financial responsibility for education, welfare, hospital expenses and the construction and maintenance of roads outside the city.

Open $11,000,000 Factory In Scarboro

TORONTO (CP)—Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors Corporation, yesterday officially opened a new $11,000,000 plant of the Frigidaire Company of Canada in suburban Scarboro.

The plant, covering 111 acres, will employ 3,000 workers at full capacity and produce 1,000 appliances in the Frigidaire and Delco lines.

Mr. Howe said the new plant released Frigidaire's other factory at Leaside for defence work, the making of jet engine parts. Premier Frost termed the plant typical of Ontario's development in the last two or three years.

Mr. Wilson said Americans were impressed by the way Canadians are developing this country Noting the construction by General Motors of a new truck plant at Oshawa, a foundry at St. Catharines and a warehouse in Winnipeg besides the Scarboro development, he said, "We're proving it by what we're doing."

Expedition Loses 2 Men

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)—Two porters of the Swiss Mount Everest expedition died before the team reached Namche Bazar village, 170 miles from Katmandu, it was reported here yesterday. Cause of death is unknown. The expedition is establishing its main base camp at the foot of Hkumbu Glacier, to make the attempt on the world's highest mountain.

Propose Sweeping Changes In Lawyer Regulations

TORONTO (CP)—The Law Society of Upper Canada yesterday proposed sweeping changes in the regulations governing transfer of lawyers from one province to another.

At the same time the society announced that graduates of law schools anywhere in Canada will be called to the bar in Ontario after completing the third and fourth years of the Osgoode Hall law school course.

This move was taken at the request of Dean Horace Read of Dalhousie Law School at Halifax, who suggested graduates of the Halifax school receive these privileges, which are the same as those given graduates of the University of Toronto law school.

The Ontario body urged the law societies of other Canadian provinces to meet immediately to approve these proposals:

1. Abolition of the special call fee required when a member of the bar of one province wishes to practise in another province. This fee is as high as $1,500 in some provinces.

2. That a lawyer wishing to plead a case in another province may do so without paying a call fee.

In this connection D. Park Jamieson, Q.C., of Sarnia, chairman of the Law Society's committee on uniform standards of admission to the bar, cited the recent case of John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative Member of Parliament, who was required to pay a call fee of $1,500 in British Columbia to plead a case there.

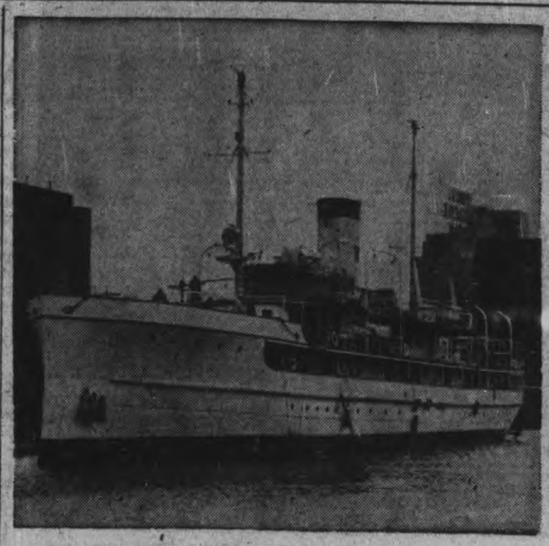
To Tap Glaciers As Source For Power

By SIDNEY TAYLOR

SION, Switzerland (Reuters)—High in the stony mountains of the Valais, Switzerland is pushing a vast plan to tap 20 of her famous glaciers as a source of hydro-electric power.

The 15-year plan will collect water from the glaciers and conduct it through 80 miles of tubes as large as railway tunnels, store it in a reservoir behind a dam 900 feet high, and finally feed it through turbo-generators.

When the plan is completed, it will make tiny, industrialized Switzerland self-sufficient in electricity.



It is the highest hydro-electric project in Europe. The dam, Europe's tallest, will hold back 400,000,000 cubic feet of water.

The eventual cost will be about 1,000,000,000 Swiss Francs, (more than $224,000,000), all of it being met by private enterprise.

Switzerland already has a dozen hydro-electric projects, but in the winter she still has to borrow electricity from France. This is repaid in the summer, when Switzerland has a surplus, and France's industrial need is greater.

Have Bill To Guarantee Rights Of Residents

TORONTO (CP)—A bill to guarantee the rights of residents who lose land and buildings when the St. Lawrence Seaway is constructed is scheduled to come before a special session of the Ontario Legislature Monday.

Little opposition is expected since all seaway legislation in the past has drawn unanimous support.

During hearings of the International Joint Commission at Cornwall, residents of Dundas, Stormont and Glengarry counties expressed concern over differences in interpretation of existing laws which left some doubt as to the protection of their rights.

Vancouver Taxis Ran Up $3,500,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — Taxis in this city of 340,000 ran up $3,500,000 on their meters last year. The take is expected to be bigger this year.

"It was a 12-hour night shift that grossed 60 cents and netted me 20 cents," McLeod recalls.

He now runs an 85-car fleet which last year carried 1,135,000 passengers, ran 4,080,000 miles and reported a payroll of $463,832.

The cab business, says McLeod, is costly and its expansion is restricted by traffic congestion

In 1950, his company paid out $136,000 for gasoline, $30,000 for insurance, $12,000 for stand rental, $10,000 for telephones and $6,800 for licences.

DEPRECIATION HEAVY

"We run them up to 16 months. Then we get only $1,200 for the trade-in. That is $100-a-month depreciation. The reason is, the public won't buy ex-cabs, although no car is kept in as good condition as a cab. It has to be. It doesn't make money in the garage."

Another problem is traffic. "In the old days," McLeod says, "from the pier to Hotel Vancouver was an easy three-minute trip. today you often have to wait four minutes to get started. We have got to the point where our daytime business is at its absolute peak."

Of course any TV is pretty wonderful, and when you're buying your set you may not be too concerned about the fine points that make one picture better than another. But someday, when the novelty has worn off, you'll wish you had been! Westinghouse has been concerned with the fine points of television for over 25 years—long before most present day makes were ever heard of.

Westinghouse knows what makes a better picture, and builds that knowledge into its sets. A better picture must be clear and lifelike. The picture-tube must be properly shaped and shielded to eliminate glare and outside reflection. The values of black and white and tones of gray must be true and positive, so that you don't have to strain your eyes to pick out details or squint against the brightness. A better picture must be free from distortion right to the edge, and, last but not least, it must be consistent, giving the same fine performance all evening every evening.

When the novelty has worn off, and you look more critically at your TV picture, these qualities will be the ones that count, and the attainment of these same qualities is what makes the Westinghouse picture better.

price, or size of screen you want — 17", 21" or 24", there's a set to suit you in the wide Westinghouse selection of modern and period designs—prices from $319.50 to $1,495.00. Your Westinghouse dealer will be glad to show you the full line, and will arrange installation on terms to suit your requirements so that you won't miss any of the wonderful T.V. entertainment during the long winter evenings ahead.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

With Apples Now At Peak Try Hungarian Pudding

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Market-stalls are filled again with luscious apples. Gravensteins and Wealthys, good cooking apples, are at their best now. McIntosh and Snows, among the best eating apples, are also at their peak.

There are any number of ways to prepare apples and here's one apple dessert recommended by the consumer section of the Canadian Department of Agriculture:

HUNGARIAN PUDDING

Four large sour apples; three tablespoons fruit juice; one cup fine soft bread crumbs; one tablespoon butter; two egg yolks; one-third cup sugar; one-half teaspoon salt; two egg whites; three tablespoons sugar.

Pare and grate apples. Add fruit juice and blend. Add bread crumbs. Cream butter, add egg yolks, sugar and alt and beat thoroughly. Add to first mixture and combine well. Beat egg whites until stiff, beat in remaining sugar until mixture holds in peaks.

Fold into first mixture and pour into greased baking-dish. Place in pan of hot water and oven-poach in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for one hour. Serve with hard sauce. Six servings.

APPLE CHUTNEY

The department has an apple chutney recipe for relish enthusiasts: 12 apples (12 cups chopped); two cups cider vinegar; one cup raisins; one tablespoon salt; one teaspoon ground ginger; one teaspoon cinnamon; one large onion; four stalks celery (three cups chopped); two cups sugar; one-half teaspoon pepper; one-eighth teaspoon ground cloves.

Wash, quarter and core but do not peel apples. Chop apples, onion, celery and raisins. Add vinegar and pepper. Cook slowly one hour, stirring often. Add other ingredients. Cook until thick. Seal in sterilized jars. Yield: About 2½ pints.

Glazed apples: 1½ cups sugar; two cups water; six apples.

Make syrup of sugar and water. Core apples and pare about 1½ inch down from stem end. Place in syrup with pared surface down and simmer five minutes. Invert and cook until tender (10 to 15 minutes). When tender place under hot broiler flame and baste frequently with syrup until well glazed. Yield: Six servings.

EASY SPREAD

A new margarine on the market is described as being so spreadable "it can be taken out of the refrigerator ice-cold and spread at once in an even layer over a slice of bread."

DOROTHY DIX

Student Asks For More And Nicer Clothes

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a teenager in high school and considered popular. My parents give me a small dress allowance, and I earn extra money for clothing. Still, I would like more and nicer clothes. While I realize my parents are trying to make me responsible, they could afford to add to my wardrobe. Do you think they are fair to keep me so restricted?

POLLY K.

ANSWER: Your parents are wise in their solution to the clothes problem. Probably no teen-ager has, or ever did have, enough clothing according to her desires. Being responsible for your own purchases gives you experience in buying that can come in no other way than through practical knowledge.

If you want to add to your wardrobe without too great expense, why not learn to make your own clothes? You can then have many more dresses—and of better quality than can be purchased at the same cost in the stores. You will also have acquired a talent that will be useful the rest of your life.

DEAR MISS DIX: A few months ago my family moved to a new neighborhood. When we moved in I noticed the very nice boy next door. I'm only 14, but I have been attracted to a boy before. I still go around with the old crowd and will admit we were considered pretty wild. I guess my new neighbor heard some of the tales because he seems friendly to other kids but not to me.

B. B.

ANSWER: You have apparently earned an unenviable reputation, which will take lots of work to overcome. In the first place, continuing to pal around with the very people who are responsible for your unpleasant standing in the community will continue to make your position worse and worse. If you want your nice

QUESTION: . . . let me say I enjoy your column very much—the friendly talks as well as the recipes. Our church group is helping cater to a gathering of 125 . . . for luncheon . . . I would appreciate it if you would suggest a suitable menu for this occasion. We will have to transport our food and prepare it in a strange kitchen so there will be some difficulties; also, we would like something a little different, but not so different that we can't make it . . . thanks for any help . . . it will be fun hearing from you anyway.—Helen H.

ANSWER: I wish I did not have to be so everlastingly businesslike on these Question-and-Answer days, for I would love to write you a letter that would be fun to receive. It would be, too, for we could swap yarns. My mother was born in a small village about 10 miles from your town. I know the area very well. My brother and I, when we were 10 and 6, "borrowed" a watermelon from a neighboring farm after dark one night. We almost got away with it, too. My mother was an angel, but an alert one!

CHICKEN A LA KING

If you make this with turkey it will not cost any more—for both of these meats stretch so far when prepared this way.

One and one-quarter lbs. butter or margarine, 1¼ lbs. chicken fat, 2¾ lbs. flour, 2½ ounces salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 13 quarts whole milk, 1 gallon (4 qts.) rich chicken stock, 10 or 12 lbs. lean coked chicken cubed (or turkey). Using the first 7 ingredients make a white sauce. (Melt butter and chicken fat, stir in flour and seasonings then stir in the milk and stock, which should be hot to speed up thickening. Stir until thick). Add cubed chicken. Other additions are canned sliced mushrooms, and chopped green pepper and canned pimento. Serve on bed of fluffy boiled rice (or patty shells or toast points).

The squash requires little handling. Use pepper squashes cut in quarters with brown sugar, dot with butter and sprinkle with salt and paprika. Bake the squash at 375 deg. Fahr. for 60 to 75 minutes.

Deep Apple Pie is easier to make than regular pies for it may be made in large square institution pans. Fill buttered pans to depth of 2 inches with sliced apples, sprinkle generously with brown sugar and cinnamon and dot with butter. Cover with thick rich pastry with plenty of slashing. Glaze top by spreading with mixture of sugar and milk. Bake in oven of 450 deg. for 16 minutes, then reduce heat to 375 for 35 or 40 minutes. Each serving should be a 3½ or 4-inch square.

LETTERS from Mary R. R. and Margaret F. giving us their Ripe Cucumber Pickle because I sent out an S.O.S. for Mrs. A. M.

RIPE CUCUMBER PICKLE

(Contributed by Mary R. R.)

About 9 medium-sized ripe cucumbers, 4 cups vinegar, 1 oz. broken cinnamon sticks, salt, 1 lb. sugar, ½ oz. clove whole, or 1 or 2 sweet red peppers are optional. Peel cucumbers and remove seeds, cut in fourths lengthwise and again crosswise. Soak for 24 hours in a salt solution, using 1 cup salt to 1 gallon water. Remove from brine, soak for 24 hours in vinegar and water, 1 cup vinegar to 1 gallon water. Make a syrup of 4 cups vinegar, 1 lb. sugar, cinnamon and cloves. Add cucumbers, cook till tender and clear. Add sweet peppers cut into strips when cucumbers are almost tender. Strain out whole spices if you wish. Pack in hot jars and seal.

(Contributed by Margaret F.)

Twelve ripe cucumbers peeled and seeded. Cut through lengthwise then slice very thin across each piece; 8 large onions cut in slices. Put a layer of each in crock or kettle and sprinkle with salt, using about 2 tablespoons. Let stand 2 hours. Drain dry. Put into kettle and add ½ tablespoon black pepper, 1 tablespoon each mustard, turmeric and flour mixed together, 3 cups white sugar. Stir and add 1 cup white wine vinegar. Boil slowly one hour, then put in sterile jars. Makes five quarts.

ANSWER: Thanks girls, for both of these—that winds up the cucumber season—unless somebody has a bright idea and is determined to keep on making pickles all winter.

H. and S. Sponsors Meeting Of Parents, PCVS Teachers

First of a series of parent-teacher meetings sponsored by the P.C.V.S. Home and School Association was held in the collegiate auditorium Thursday night.

Speakers were Howard Moebus, director of vocational guidance at the school, and Mrs. Jacob Low.

Mr. Moebus discussed the curriculum offered at the collegiate, and Mrs. Low spoke of the place of extra-curricular activities in school life.

Some of the parents present expressed the view that they did not wish to see extra-curricular activities outweigh the worth of actual classes. At the same time, they expressed their belief in the value of sports, dances, and other such activities.

President of the Home and School at P.C.V.S., Mrs. Eleanor Martyn, expressed her beliefs in the association in a mimeographed sheet handed out to those attending the meeting.

Purpose of the meetings, she said, was to make the association more directly useful in its work. Asking for the parents' constructive criticism and suggestions, she pointed out that the association has paid more attention to meetings dealing with certain problems at various school levels than to the traditional general meeting.

Speaking of education as "more important than any other activity of your child," she called for parents to express an "active and sincere interest" in their children's educational problems.

A committee was formed to make plans for a dance for students of Grades 9 and 10.

St. Joseph's Aux. To Purchase Office Machine

At the meeting Thursday evening of the Ladies' Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital, held in the nurses' residence, it was unanimously decided to purchase a bookkeeping machine for the hospital office. Cost of this machine will be $2,000.

The latest design in a water cooler has been purchased for the hospital cafeteria.

President Mrs. B. Monaghan presided for the meeting. Mrs. Jos. Paquette reported a considerable increase in the membership, both life and annual. Miss G. Collins, treasurer, reported a comfortable balance in the treasury.

A letter of appreciation is to be sent to the I.O.D.E. for the gift of a magazine subscription for the patients. Also a letter of sympathy to Mrs. N. McConkey regretting the death of her mother.

Mrs. Monaghan and third vice-president Mrs. Paquette are to attend the annual meeting of the Ontario Hospital Association in Toronto, starting October 26th.

Mrs. J. J. Crowley reported the decorating of patients' trays for Thanksgiving. Mrs. J. Poole has started preparations for the nurses' dance to be held on Hallowe'en in the residence. Visiting committee under Mrs. Gilmore has made regular weekly visits. Mrs. F. J. Hickey's report showed St. Joseph's cupboard to be well equipped. Mrs. J. Deanard reported the fall sewing is now in progress. Mrs. J. V. Gallivan, flower convener, has also been active.

The indoor cactus garden displayed at the Exhibition was drawn for and Sister Ligouri was the recipient.

A large number were present to enjoy a very enlightening address by Father McGuire, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral. He spoke on the origin, work, privileges and indulgences to be gained by membership in this Pontifical Society which was established in Canada 44 years ago. Father McGuire was introduced by Mrs. Lane and thanked by Miss Teresa McNamara.

Mrs. R. McCabe, membership convener, reported 155 members.

Miss T. McNamara, convener of linens, reported 119 pieces of linen sent to the Missions last year for which a letter of thanks was received. Miss McNamara has some linens on hand ready for sewing and will hold "open house" on each Wednesday afternoon when she will be glad to have anyone interested come to her home, 606 Walkerfield Ave.

Mrs. F. J. Lynch, convener of vestments, reported three sets of vestments completed and forwarded. A letter of appreciation was received.

It was decided to forward a donation to the annual Christmas shower to be held November 16th at Rosary Hall, Toronto.

The meeting adjourned with the service of dainty refreshments under convenership of Miss Loretto Murray.

Ever Awake Class Holds Nice Tea At St. James

Mrs. H. Rolufs, the president of the Ever Awake Class of St. James' United Church, is largely responsible for the success of the afternoon tea and bazaar held on Thursday. More than 200 tickets had been sold and though all ticket holders could not attend a good crowd enjoyed the affair.

The decorating committee, which was headed by Mrs. H. Bothwell, had the Sunday school room in Wesley Hall marked off with an attractive arrangement of streamers and banked with colorful, potted foliages and baskets of cedar boughs with tall, gold-dipped cat-tails. The streamers were in nicely contrasting shades of fuchsia, pale green and gold.

Serving table centrepieces were unique. Base of each was a half of a small green squash and they were filled with flowers and small branches clustered with red berries. Symbols of the fall season were also used for an effective centre on the tea table—cedar, bittersweet and cat-tails.

The class had on display one of the lovely baby layettes which they make for sale or for giving away in some cases of need. This one is destined for a baby girl as all the knitted garments are in pink.

The apron table in the bazaar section did a rushing business and was completely sold out. Home baking and candy went at a slower pace and some attractive novelties made by members were sold.

Mrs. Rolufs was assisted in receiving at the door by Mrs. H. D. McCormack, wife of the minister, and by past president Mrs. C. Jones. Mrs. McCormack also poured tea following Mrs. E. M. Davis and Mrs. G. H. Hewitt, and Mrs. Jones also acted as tea room hostess with Mrs. T. Busby. Mrs. G. Towns was at the treasurer's table.

Servers were Mrs. T. Nurse, Mrs. C. Stone, Mrs. W. Dodd, Mrs. J. Nurse, Mrs. Rosebush and Mrs. H. Ferguson. Plates were replenished by Mrs. C. Sedore and Mrs. D. Traynor. Kitchen convener was Mrs. H. Monks and she was assisted by Mrs. C. Brown, Mrs. B. Dewar, Mrs. H. Bothwell and Mrs. R. Lawes.

Attendants at the bazaar tables were Mrs. S. Watson, Mrs. S. Elmhirst, Mrs. J. Bailey, Mrs. B. Callan, Mrs. E. Maudsley, Mrs. D. Carter, Mrs. J. Kelly and Mrs. E. Carl.

Those who assisted Mrs. Bothwell with the decorating were Mrs. J. Nurse, Mrs. W. Seabrooke, Mrs. S. Watson and Mrs. G. Towns.

Life Membership For Mrs. C. Dodd

HASTINGS (ENS).—Mrs. Allan Sherwin was hostess to the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Mrs. J. M. Ritchie read the scripture and the president, Mrs. Charles Dodd, led in prayer.

Mrs. W. S. Fife took the topic, an interesting paper on Thanksgiving. Fourteen members answered the roll call with a verse of scripture in keeping with Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Ritchie presented on behalf of the society a life membership to the president Mrs. Dodd and Mrs. Dodd very fittingly expressed her thanks.

Mrs. Henry McMillan presented on behalf of the society a parting gift of remembrance to Mrs. Ritchie, who will leave shortly with Mr. Ritchie to take up his new charge.

Mrs. Sherwin served delicious refreshments and Mrs. Dodd extended a vote of thanks.

SIGNING THE REGISTER is the former Miss Ann MacDonald who until two years ago resided in Peterborough. Her marriage to Mr. Arthur M. Waghorn of Weston took place in Toronto recently.

Waghorn-MacDonald

A wedding of Peterborough interest took place quietly recently in Rosedale Presbyterian Church, Toronto, when Margaret Ann, only daughter of Mrs. M. MacDonald, formerly of this city was united in a double ring ceremony to Arthur Merle Waghorn, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Waghorn of Weston. Dr. James D. Smart, formerly of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, performed the ceremony.

The bride looked charming in a white lace gown with full ballerina skirt of nylon net. She wore a dainty Juliet cap with fingertip veil and carried white orchids and stephanotis. Her only attendant, Miss Barbara Huffman, also formerly of Peterborough, wore an antique gold dress of tissue taffeta in the ballerina style, with Juliet cap of the same material, and carried a spray of bronze and gold baby 'mums.

The groomsman was Jack Waghorn, brother of the groom, and the usher was Harry Waghorn, youngest brother of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Waghorn are spending their honeymoon at Lake of Bays, and on their return will live in Toronto.

U.N. Woman Delegate Says Many Difficulties Hamper

Anyone who has thought the United Nations slow to accomplish its aims might have received some insight into the reason from the speaker brought here Thursday evening by the Local Council of Women. This speaker was Mrs. R. J. Marshall who was one of the Canadian delegation to the sixth session of U. N. and attended meetings and sat in committee for three months of last year in Paris, France.

Mrs. Marshall strove to picture to her audience of 130 very interested persons the very great differences in background and opinions of the delegates from 60 different nations which must be resolved before a recommendation can be made. "They say the same words but they mean different things," she explained. Brief character sketches of a half dozen of the women delegates only served to illustrate her point.

At the last session there were 61 problems on the agenda and she said it was found very difficult to resolve any of them to a place where a recommendation could be passed on to the present session. This seventh session which has just opened in New York will be lessened somewhat for she said at the close of the sixth session there had been a feeling that a "greater will to live and let live" had been created. The U. N. has gone through an uncertain stage, a bickering stage, and is now considered in the "reasonable" stage.

"United Nations is the 'town meeting' of the world" said Mrs. Marshall. "It is where the conscience of mankind is crystalized." She also made the statement "If we put into U. N. a fraction of what we put into war, all the problems would be settled."

Listing the accomplishments of U. N. she first mentioned the limitation and balanced reduction of armaments which includes Russia; then, Russia's concession to inspection of atomic weapons but with a condition which makes it doubtful that she would ever allow an inspection.

Then Mrs. Marshall spoke of the program of assistance to underdeveloped countries, inaugurated at the sixth session, which will raise living standards throughout the world if it can be financed. She explained that the Canadian delegation did not vote for this program because it knew the government did not have money to pledge to it, but she feels that when other commitments are met this should be supported.

Social contact of the 600 delegates at U. N. sessions is probably having as much effect on the future as the committee meetings Mrs. Marshall suggested. She said Mr. L. B. Pearson, chairman of her delegation, told them to be good Canadian diplomats as well as good delegates. "Breaking down the barriers that separate people from people will bring success in U. N. but this means we have to strengthen our own civilization and be willing to share what we have," she pointed out. "In this war of ideas we must not be lulled into a feeling of security. The outcome of this war begins with each one in his own community—that he be willing to share ideas and thoughts as well as assets."

Mrs. Marshall listed four impressions of the United Nations which have come to her since her return. First: That U. N. may seem slow to lay people but that is true of any great international organization. Second: What is being done to better conditions for people all over the world in contrast with the old days of diplomacy and each nation seeking its own good. Third: That U. N. does not want any propaganda gesture but wants an honest, free program. Fourth: That U. N. is a potent influencing the needy, etc.—and that it is practical.

Six committees meeting under U. N. are: political, economic, social, humanitarian and cultural, (Mrs. Marshall sat on this committee as does Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt) trustee, budget and legal. Each delegation appoints one delegate to each committee and also has an alternative delegate. Delegates do not speak for themselves but give the opinion of the "Canadian delegation" or of the "Canadian Government." Each consults with advisers and specialists on the subject before making a statement.

The speaker also refreshed memories of the aims of U. N.: To promote peace and security; to promote better conditions in the world; to resolve all questions of international dispute by peaceful negotiation.

Concluding her address Mrs. Marshall said: "United Nations is still the hope of mankind and certainly our best hope."

Several questions were asked from the floor regarding the appointment of the advisers and of the delegates.

Mrs. A. W. Nelson, vice-president of the Local Council of Women, conducted this meeting, held in the Y.W.C.A. recreation room. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. W. H. Morton and was thanked by Mrs. Charles Forsythe.

Cookies, Pies And Bread With Raisins

EMEM'S RAISIN HERMITS

(These have quite a few health features for I made them for Pete and Marianne's lunches, which he packs.)

One-quarter cup each peanut butter and margarine or butter, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons cream or milk, 1¾ cups unsifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon each ginger, allspice and nutmeg, ½ cup wheat germ, 1 cup raisins. Cream the peanut butter and shortening together until soft and light, then add sugar and egg and beat for 5 minutes. Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and spices and sift them into the shortening and sugar mixture. Add all remaining ingredients and beat until well mixed. Drop from teaspoon onto buttered cookie sheets. These do not spread so you do not need to leave a big space between cookies Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 10 minutes, having them on shelf in centre of oven. Molasses may be used instead of 2 tablespoons of the sugar and all of the milk or cream.

NUT AND RAISIN BREAD

(This slices better on second day, and is good to have on hand for those unexepected drop-ins for tea in the afternoon or coffee in the evening.)

One cup bread flour, 1 teaspoon each salt and soda, 8 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ cup broken walnuts, ¾ cup raisins, 1¾ cups whole wheat flour, ¼ cup grapenuts, ¼ cup molasses, 1 cup sour or buttermilk, 1 tablespoon salad oil or melted butter, 1 egg. Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and soda. Put through food chopper together the nuts, raisins and whole wheat flour. Add the sifted flour mixture to them with all of the remaining ingredients, and beat very well. (For you will notice the egg is not beaten first.)

Bake in greased baking powder tins or in small loaf pan at 275 deg. Fahr.—a very slow oven—for about 1 or 2 hours—depending on size of pans used.

SOUR CREAM RAISIN PIE

Filling: 1 cup thick sour cream, ½ cup sugar,, 1 cup raisins (chopped if Lexias are used), 1½ tabelspoons flour, 2 eggs, yolks and whites separated, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, shake of nutmeg, shake of salt, and, if desired, a few gratings of lemon rind. Mix together all but the egg whites. Beat whites stiff and fold in. Pour into pastry lined pie shell and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes in lower part of oven, then raise to centre oven and reduce heat to 325 deg. Fahr. until custard is set.

In above pie, whites may be kept out, and beaten with 4 tablespoons sugar and used as a meringue to put on pie when baked. Return to oven to brown meringue for about 20 minutes at low heat.

PINEAPPLE UPSIDE DOWN CAKES

Fruit Layer: One-half cup butter or margarine, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 No. 2 can sliced pineapple, about 12 or 14 large whole pecans.

Batter: One cup sifted cake flour, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 3 eggs yolks and whites separated, 1 cup granulated sugar, 5 tablespoons pinapple juice.

Method: Melt butter for fruit layer in bottom of large baking dish, and spread the brown sugar evenly over it. Over these arrange the slives of pineapple cut in halves to make crescents, filling the spaces with the pecans or marachino cherries. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Beat egg yolks until light, adding sugar gradually; add pineapple juice and sifted flour mixture; fold in stiffly beaten whites. Pour this batter over the pineapple. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 35 minutes. To serve turn out upside down on attractive serving plate and pass whipped cream if desired.

NOTE: Inverted peaches, the spaces being filled with a cherry, make another variation for this upside down cake. Other fruits are apricots with prunes, or cherries with pecans. A combination of cranberries and apples is good; both apples and craberries may be added to the syrup raw.

HOMEMADE HOT ROLLS

Over low but direct heat scald ¾ cup milk—but do not let it boil over. Pour into large bowl with 2½ tablespoons good quality soft shortening or margarine, 1 tablespoon sugar and 1 teaspoon salt. Stir and let cool to lukewarm. In one-quarter cup of lukewarm water, dissolve 2 yeast cakes or 2 envelopes of granular yeast. When dissolved add to the milk mix and stir. Add one well-beaten egg, then stir in bread flour to make a stiff dough—by that I mean a dough that when stirred comes away from the sides of the bowl but is not too heavy—this is about 2½ cups bread flour. Knead for 2 minutes. Then cover and let rise in buttered bowl, until twice the bulk. Turn out on floured board, roll out and make into desired shapes, but to go with chicken salad these should be small. Make Parkerhouse rolls of them or clover leaves in muffin tins, greased. Cover, let rise to double their size, and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. Serve hot with the best butter—that is unsalted butter if you have the nerve.

CANADIAN - MADE, this yarn-dyed chamois taffeta dress of lavy grey by Bill Mintz has gun-metal pearl beads at the front of the bodice with a pleated "fill in" of grey nylon tulle for a soft neckline effect. The full skirt is belted at the waist.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

What's Right?

You are smoking a cigarette when the elevator you are waiting for stops at your floor.

RIGHT: Put out the cigarette before entering the elevator.

neighbor or any other reputable youngsters to be friendly, earn their friendship by offering them something better than a soiled name. It is really amazing how choosy most adolescents are of the company they keep. You are old enough now to realize the difference between a tawdry crowd and a nice one. Make the right choice and you'll have no trouble making the friends you want.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: A friend of mind has asked my advice regarding the length of time she should wait to marry a widower whose wife died recently. I said she should wait a year, but her pastor told her three months would be long enough. They are both middle-aged. The man's last wife had been an invalid for many years.

T. K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since the woman's pastor is in a much better position to know and understand the circumstances than either you or I, his counsel can certainly be followed safely.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: How can I get rid of a boy who wants to sit with me between dances. I don't want to hurt his feelings.

S. A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: A rounded social life can include many incidents of this typo. You can't always be with people you like and admire. Being kind to those for whom you have no great affection is a social grace you must learn sooner or later; so let it be sooner. Be pleasant to the boy until someone else approaches for a dance.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been going steady with a boy for a year. Now, however, he is acting most peculiarly. He doesn't come around as often as he did, yet he doesn't want me to go out with other boys. He just expects me to sit and wait until he is good and ready to take me out.

J. A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If the boy is sincerely interested in you, and wants you to go steady, his behaviour belies it. You are completely right in assuming that you should go out with other boys if he neglects you. Stop taking foolish orders, assert yourself and insist on knowing what he really intends to do—go out with you exclusively, or play the field. If the latter is his intention, you are entitled to the same right. Don't take him too seriously after just one year's friendship. Perhaps you have been assuming too much in expecting him to be your friend, exclusively.

Lakefield Women Hear Rev. Richmond

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—The Rev. Charles Richmond of Christ's Church, Omemee, was guest speaker on Tuesday evening, when W.M.S. of the Baptist Church held their autumn thankoffering service.

A missionary in Africa for a number of years, Mr. Richmond told of many experiences while there and of times he had been saved from death by a miracle of God. Following the address he showed beautifully colored slides of Africa which he had taken. Mr. Richmond was introduced by Mrs. Wallace Hendren and was thanked by Mrs. Roland Darling.

The many guests were received by Mrs. W. B. Walker and Mrs. Percy Darling. During the devotional period, presided over by Mrs. W. Hendren, the Scripture reading, meditation and prayer were taken by Mrs. Kenneth Sweeting. Mrs. W. J. Bingham of Norwood favored the meeting with an appreciated solo, "Under His Wings," with Mrs. J. A. Arnott at the organ.

The thank-offering was received by Mrs. Walter Walker and Miss Ruby Nichols and the dedicatory prayer given by Mrs. Hendren.

Under the convenership of Mrs. J. A. Arnott, refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Lindsay Board Vetoes Plan To Collect Tax

LINDSAY (ENS)—The Lindsay Board of Water Commissioners last night rejected a suggestion from town council that the board collect an extra 30 per cent levy from every water user in the town, to pay the levy for the new sewage disposal plant.

The suggestion came in the form of a letter from town clerk W. R. Allely, on the advice of the finance committee. Mayor Charles Lamb, who had been at the council meeting, said that council wanted the board to collect the monies as an item on the water bill. "We'll get everyone using water that way, whether they pay taxes or not. Some home owners with large families are paying high enough taxes now, without an added tax."

Chairman Gordon, of the board, said, "In other words, the council want to put a new tax on the water bill."

M. Collins, a member of the board, stated that, as a taxpayer, he would question the wisdom of changing the method of collecting the tax this late in the year. As a commissioner, he said, he didn't wan' to be saddled with what looks to the consumer a rise in the water rates.

PLANT COST $280,000

Duncan Sinclair asked the mayor how the town knew what the cost of the new disposal plant would be. Mayor Lamb replied that estimates placed the cost at about $280,000. At that Mr. Sinclair asked, "Why should we be a collection agency for the town?"

Chairman Gordon then pointed out that, in the event of renovation or replacement to any part of the waterworks system, the board would have a hard time explaining that extra levy on the water bills, if the 30 per cent raise in question had already been added.

Superintendent Reynolds asked whether any favoritism should be shown in extracting the levy, whether industry would be let off easier. Mayor Lamb thought industry, the large users of water, should not be assessed the full amount. Mr. Collins summed up his feelings by expressing the opinion that the principle of the thing was wrong, but he said "if the council want to do it that way the water board should be willing to co-operate. We'll give them the figures from our cards and let them collect the extra levy."

Mayor Lamb explained that the average working man would be able to pay the new levy on the water board plan, quarterly instead of in a lump sum as the taxes are paid. The board finally decided to return the reply to clerk Allely to the effect that the board would supply the figures but wouldn't do the collecting.

Conscience Trouble

DES MOINES (AP) — A 52-year-old small town banker says he revealed embezzling $73,000 from his bank because "my conscience bothered me so badly." Ura Francis Beichamp, manager and only employee of the Grimes branch of the Des Moines Bank and Trust Company walked into the Federal Bureau of Investigation office here Wednesday and told agents how he kept a dual set of ledger sheets for 17 years to cover up the missing funds.

20,801 Reside In Galt

GALT (CP) — This city has a population of 20,801, highest in its history and 1,439 more than last year. Of this gain 1,164 came through annexations.

The city's total taxable assesment has reached $29,773,205, an increase of $1,163,920.

Welder Killed

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Ivan Kushon, 50, a welder with the McLeod-Cockshutt gold mine at Geraldton, died yesterday after an explosion of his welding machine. An inquest will be held.

City Pays

can not be determined until it is finished said Mr. Waddell. Then, the debentures are issued and the loan repaid.

However, bodies such as utilities commissions and boards of education planning additions to existing facilities or new projects, such as the filtration plant must tie costs down before building starts. The plans must be first approved by the respective government department, then, the board or commission requests council to issue debentures for the estimated cost.

REASON FOR ISSUE

Once such a request is issued said Mr. Waddell, council is required by the Municipal Act to issue the required debentures. "That is why the debenture issue for the utilities was issued last spring."

Mayor Waddell added that a better price was obtained in May when the issue was sold at a premium for four and one quarter per cent than could be obtained now.

Present bond issues are costing slightly more than four and a half per cent at par, and present indications are that before spring, money will be costing municipalities as much as five per cent.

Dr. Langley questioned the issuing of the debentures after asking Mr. Dobbin about the progress in building the filtration plant addition. Mr. Dobbin replied that work had been started. Payments are to be made to the contractor, W. H. Mortlock on the basis of 85 per cent of the value of the work completed at the end of each month, he said.

So far, no progress payments have been made and Mr. Dobbin indicated that only small amounts would be required until late in the winter.

Chairman Gordon Matthews said he felt the method of financing had been handled properly.

"The money has been lost," insisted Dr. Langley. "The city is out $10,000. How can you put it otherwise? We are not getting that interest in our current account."

GET SOME INTEREST

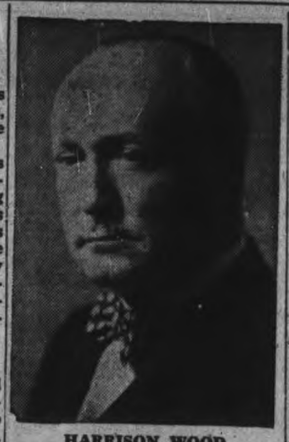
Mr. Dobbin said the commission received interest on the money in its current account and intimated he believed it was one and one-half per cent. Dr. Langley questioned this, and a check at the bank after the meeting revealed the commission received one per cent on the minimum quarterly balance in its current account.

This would bring the interest on the $300,000 for the year down to $9,750 for the year, taking into consideration the amount received by the commission in its current account balance.

Dr. Langley said he could not understand why the bonds were issued when they were. Did they fear a rising interest rate? he asked. Then he answered his question by quoting prevailing bond interest rates in December 1951 (4.69) and the present rate (4.65).

The commission passed a resolution January 30, asking the city to issue the debentures, stipulating the work on the addition to the filtration plant would be started this fall.

The addition to the plant will be capable of adding an extra three million gallons a day to the city's water supply.



"I told them we expected to make the first progress payment in October," said Mr. Dobbin as Dr. Langley pursued his argument that somebody had made a mistake that was resulting in interest money being wasted.

"We can't wash our hands completely," insisted Dr. Langley when Mr. Dobbin suggested that the city treasurer and council must have had good reason for selling the bonds when they did.

"Why was it done? It should not be done again. It is a matter of city financing that should be looked into," said Dr. Langley as the discussion ended.

Man Adjourned Picked Up On Theft Charge

An alcoholic with a criminal record extending back to 1922 was sentenced to reformatory today when he pleaded guilty to a charge of theft and two liquor charges.

When he appeared before Magistrate W. R. Philp Thursday on two drunk charges alleging two previous convictions for drunkenness, Arthur King, 49, no fixed address, pleaded for an adjournment.

ON CRUTCHES

Unable to walk without crutches King argued he needed medical attention for a crippled leg injured in an accident a year ago. He claimed he should have an operation on the leg but could not be admitted to hospital while he was being held in the county jail. He said the jail doctor, Dr. Ralph Clark would not have him admitted to the hospital "because he would be a charge on the county."

King won his point and obtained an adjournment. At two in the afternoon, he was arrested by Constable Vic McConnel in front of Zeller's department store on a charge of theft.

King was sentenced to three months definite and one month indefinite when he pleaded guilty to stealing two pairs of men's socks from Zeller's.

In sentencing King on the theft charge, Magistrate Philp said he was not aware of King's extensive criminal record when he gave him an adjournment Thursday. "On the drunk charges, I was trying to give you every consideration," the magistrate said.

On the two charges of being drunk on October 5 and October 6, King pleaded guilty to both counts and admitted two previous convictions for drunkenness as alleged.

Chief Constable John Thompson said King had been an alcoholic for about a year and a half. King admitted he could not blame his criminal record on liquor as he was first convicted in 1922.

He was sentenced to five months definite on each of the liquor charges. The five month reformatory sentences are to run concurrently and the three months on the theft charge will also be concurrent.

Cancer Survey

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A survey of approximately 100,000 men smokers past 50 shows 11 with symptoms of mouth cancer, but there is no indication that smoking caused the cancer. Heavier Fighting Indicated In Latest Casualty Figures

OTTAWA (CP)—Intensified fighting between United Nations and Communist forces during recent weeks is reflected in the army's 142nd casualty list of Korean war.

The army reported four killed, two missing and 21 wounded in action among Canadian forces serving with United Nations troops which have been beating off heavier Communist attacks recently.

The list reported the largest number of Canadians killed since Oct. 9 when eight men were reported killed in action.

Although it will be several days before details reach army headquarters, a spokesman said it may be assumed that the Canadians have been participating in a supporting role in the increased ground fighting in Korea.

The majority of the men named in yesterday's list—21 of the 27—were members of the Royal Canadian Regiment.

The new list brought to 1,100 the number of casualties suffered by Canadian ground forces—201 dead, 813 wounded, 73 injured, 12 missing and one prisoner of war.

The navy has reported three killed and three injured in action.

Ontarians in the list included:

St. Paul's United Celebrates 100th Year In Warkworth

WARKWORTH — St. Paul's United Church here, a church started by the Episcopal Methodists in 1852, celebrates its 100th anniversary next week.

At that time, Warkworth was known as Percy Mills. It was a hamlet then, with a flour mill, a distillery and a tavern. The Episcopal Methodists came to the hamlet in 1845, an ardently religious group.

Seven years after their coming the Rev. John Tuke, an itinerant preacher, was put in charge of the congregation. His assistants were two earnest local preachers, J. L. Sweet and Joseph Stone.

In their battle with the Wesleyan Methodists, the Episcopal Methodists met with some success, but their advantage over the Wesleyans was not great.

The Rev. George Carr, Percy Mills' first regular preacher, reported in 1852: "During the year, souls have been converted and added to the church. We finished the chapel in Seymour which had been in an unfinished state for years.

"We have another chapel at the village of Percy Mills in the course of erection, and which we expect to complete during the next year."

Mr. Carr declared that progress was slow and tollsome, but in 1853 he brought out a more gratifying report. Relating how the year began with severe trials, he said that the "places which have been most favored by the outpouring of the Spirit are Oak Heights and Percy Mills.

"At the latter place we have succeeded, during the year, in finishing our new church which has already proved a great blessing. In it a goodly number of souls have been converted."

CENTENNIAL SPEAKERS at the 100th anniversary services of St. Paul's United Church, Warkworth, will be the Very Rev. Jesse H. Arnup, former moderator of the United Church, shown at left, and right, the Rev. H. G. Tuttle, of Toronto. Mr. Arnup will speak October 26, and Mr. Tuttle on this Sunday.

But, in 1885 the Episcopalians and Wesleyans forgot and forgave, and united to form one church. This action strengthened the smaller charges scattered throughout the township.

Ministers of the Norham charge have been: W. Graham, John Tuke, N. Howard, W. E. Norman, Eli Woodcock, W. H. Peake, J. R. Peake, J. W. Shier, W. A. Bunner, S. Crookshanks, J. F. Robson, H. B. Rowe, H. C. Garbutt, E. F. Swayne, F. J. Horwood, E. W. Caffley, J. F. Everson, J. R. Clare, J. W. Flatt, J. A. Plant.

Warkworth charge ministers have been: C. Carr, V. B. Howard, E. Ward, J. E. Richardson, W. L. Scott, D. A. Johnston, S. Night, J. Todd, A. Browning, E. S. Rupert, E. Cragg, A. Doxsee, W. Buchanan; W. Find Life In Nudist Colony Fine For Soul, Hard On Feet

By PRESTON GROVER

ISLE OF LEVANT, France (AP)—Life in this Mediterranean nudist colony is fine for the soul and hard on the feet.

The island lies 10 miles off France opposite the summer vacation spot of Le Lavandou. I took a boat ride over.

As the boat comes in to the small dock, the nudists come running out from among the trees and rocks and help the passengers ashore.

The men are more nude than the women. The children are nudest of all—right spanking nude. The men wear a covering about the size of a folded pocket handkerchief, say five or six inches square.

Some women wear halters, but most don't. Elsewhere they wear about the smallest bathing suit you ever saw.

The law requires that the minimum one piece of cloth be worn. We were told that a good many are not very particular about that when they get back into the "interior."

The island is six miles long and two wide, containing nearly four square miles of trees, barren rocks and brush. Mainly the island seems to be rocks, gravel and dry paths under the trees.

Many live in tents although there are four small hotels. People come from England, Germany, Holland, France, Spain, Italy and both North and South America. At a grocery store the nude little housewives buy long loaves of bread and sacks of food, cuddling them in their arms as they mince in bare or sandled feet along the gravel paths to their tents.

Real Variety

CLARE, England (CP) — Mrs. Christiana Mason planted seven pips from one apple in the garden of her Suffolk home in 1927. This year the seven trees yielded seven different varieties of apples.

Big Feast

GREAT YELDHAM, England (CP)—Council of this Essex community plans to celebrate the coronation next year in a big way. Events will include a feast on the village green, with a roasted bullock as the main dish.

Ruling Held On Obscene Literature

Defence Argues Case Not Proved At Ottawa Hearing

OTTAWA (CP)—This city's obscene literature hearing ended yesterday with judgment reserved on whether four novels and seven magazines imported from the United States could corrupt the morals of Canadian readers.

Crown Attorney Raoul Mercier, in his closing argument, termed the publications filthy, demoralizing and "commercialized pornography." He urged the protection of Canadians against "the purveyors of commercialized filth."

Defence Counsel Gordon Ford called for dismissal of 11 charges against the National News Company, Ltd., of Ottawa, of possessing and distributing such books as Erskine Caldwell's "Tragic Ground" and "Journeyman," and seven American magazines. Also involved are Mae West's "Diamond Lil" and Toreska Torres' "Women's Barracks," a wartime novel about French army girls in a London barracks.

RAPS CROWN'S CASE

Mr. Ford claimed the Crown had not proved that the company actually possessed the publications seized in a city-wide police search. He continued that it was not enough to prove certain books contained passages that were lewd, filthy or debauched. The Crown had not shown they were obscene in the legal sense of tending to corrupt morals "by inflaming the passions and inciting to immorality."

Both Crown and defence counsel brought as witnesses literary critics, professors and representatives of community groups.

The consensus of defence witnesses was that Caldwell's writings were brilliant, honestly portrayed a part of the southern United States society and contained a moral protest against conditions there.

NO PRAISE FOR MAE

They had little praise for Mae West's literary skill, but said her book was written to amuse, and harmless to readers.

Soft Coal Strike Facing U.S.

Wage Board To Vote On Legality Of $1.90 Wage Boost

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A full resumption of soft coal production or an almost certain all-out strike hung in the balance as the Wage Stabilization Board got set for a vote today on legality of the recent $1.90 daily wage boost for John L. Lewis' 350,000 miners.

Public members of the W.S.B., headed by chairman Archibald Cox, hold the balance of power on the tri-partite panel. Labor members are sure to call the wage increase justifiable under government stabilization policy and industry members appear certain to oppose it as inflationary.

Persons close to the case cautiously predicted majority approval of the Lewis-soft coal contract signed last month.

150,000 NOW OUT

Failure of the wage increase to show up in recent pay cheques covering the first part of October led to a walkout of more than 150,000 soft coal miners. Their protest strike, which spread through the oal fields all week long, needed no prodding from Lewis. It appeared more as a reflex action —they felt their contract was not being honored.

Actually, the new Lewis contract could not be honored legally without W.S.B. approval. The amount of the increase is nearly twice as much as that which cost-of-living pay regulations automatically allow.

But labor members of the 18-man board argued during board deliberations the last four days that other pay regulations, coupled with the rise in the cost of living since last winter, justified approval of the contract.

Should the board decide the wage boost is too high and order it cut, next week would probably bring the first full-scale coal strike since the long dispute over the 1949 contract. Since coal stockpiles today are near a three-month level, no immediate hardship is likely.

Without A Shot

Jack Labrash, Sherbrooke St. W., has been hunting for partridge ever since the season opened Sept. 20. He hasn't shot one yet. This morning the partridge came to him. While he and his family were eating breakfast, a partridge hurtled through the window in a shower of glass and landed at Jack's feet with its neck broken. Jack finished it off and the Labrash's have partridge for dinner.

See-Saw Fighting Ends In Retreat, 3,750 Reds Killed

SEOUL (AP)—United States troops broke the last Chinese Communist foothold on Triangle Hill today in vicious, see-saw fighting on the central Korean front. Two miles to the east, South Korean soldiers fought off three Chinese attacks on Sniper Ridge. All day, Allied artillery hurled thunderous barrages at Red positions north of Triangle and Sniper. Allied planes roared down on Papasan mountain, dumping high explosives and flaming gasoline on the massive hill which the Reds use as a massing point for their assaults on Triangle and Sniper.

Five days ago the Americans and South Koreans launched the biggest Allied attack of 1952, with the goal of winning and holding these two hill masses north of Kumhwa.

A.A. FIRE HEAVY

Eight B-29 Superforts ran into heavy flak and rocket barrages and fought off at least seven Red night fighters early today in a bombing attack on a Red army headquarters at Tosong, in northwest Korea. All eight planes returned to their base on Okinawa.

Associated Press correspondent Mil Farneti reported that U.S. 7th division troops stormed to the top of Pike's Peak, at the northwest corner of Triangle Hill, just after daybreak.

Intense Red mortar and artillery fire forced them to fall back several hours later, Farneti said, but the Americans counter-attacked and recaptured the crest at 10:32 a.m.

Pike's Peak was the last Red stronghold on Triangle Hill. However, a few Chinese suicide troops hold out in scattered caves and dug-out positions.

BEAT OFF ATTACKS

AP correspondent John Fujii watched South Koreans dug in on Sniper Ridge stand off three Chinese attacks each mounted by 1,000 to 1,500 infantry. Fujii reported the Reds suffered 110 counted dead, 75 additional estimated dead and 250 estimated wounded. This was in addition to 460 Chinese counted killed, 399 more estimated killed and 216 estimated wounded the first four days of the fighting on Sniper Ridge.

Up to Friday night, the Chinese had lost an estimated 3,750 soldiers on Triangle Hill.

A U.S. Eighth Army staff officer said South Korean troops sealed off entrance of Red caves on Sniper Hill big enough to hold 150 men. "They were well-constructed and concealed with as many as four entrances," he said. "The Communists went into the caves to escape air strikes and artillery fire. They were strong enough to withstand 500-pound bombs."

U.S. Troops Take 35 Per Cent Of Casualties

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is estimated to have borne about 35 per cent of the battle casualty load in Korea while supplying nearly half the combat manpower.

South Korea has suffered the heaviest losses, an estimated 61½ per cent. The other 15 U.N. countries have borne the remaining 3½ per cent.

No precise comparison between American and other United Nations figures of killed, wounded and missing can be made for a given date.

The official U.S. casualty total last week stood at 121,154 The last tabulation made from United Nations and foreign sources. Aug. 30, placed the total for all other U.N. forces at 221,876, of which all but 10,899 were South Koreans.

The war-torn Republic of Korea is unsure of the exact extent of its manpower loss. In the early, desperate months of the war the South Korean army lost and picked up men with more rapidity than its harried administration could keep track of.

Estimates by informed sources of battle casualties for all Allied forces show that approximately 300,000 Americans engaged in ground, sea and air phases of the conflict have accounted for some 35 per cent of all U.N battle casualties.

The forces of South Korea with an estimated 450,000 to 550,000 men have borne about 61½ per cent, and the other Allies together with about 40,000 men, the remaining 3½ per cent.

The U.S. casualty total reflects the bitter period in the last part of 1950 when American troops formed the bulk of the Eighth Army and were continuously in the thick of the heaviest fighting The reorganized army of South Korea has since taken over a much greater share of the battle line, and in recent weeks has borne the weight of the heaviest enemy assaults.

The Eighth Army now counts 18 divisions and additional smaller tactical units. Ten of these divisions are South Koreans.

The U.S. now has six army divisions and the 1st Marine division in the zone of combat.

The British Commonwealth is the third heaviest manpower contributor with some 25,000 soldiers, sailors, marines and airmen.

The bulk of the Commonwealth strength is in the Commonwealth division, made up of United Kingdom, Canadian, Australian and New Zealand troops.

Canada has some 6,500 soldiers in the Korean theatre and Canadian troops have suffered 1,105 casualties, including 202 dead, 817 12 missing and one captured.

O.L.R.B. Orders Marmora Unions To Vote

TORONTO (CP) — Officials of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O-C.C.L.) announced today that a vote has been ordered by the Ontario Labor Relations Board at the Bethlehem Mines Limited at Marmora to decide bargaining representatives.

The Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union asked that it be automatically certified without a vote. The Steelworkers union is opposing efforts of the Mine, Mill to obtain certification.

The rival Steelworkers did not directly intervene but backed up a group of 56 workers who informed the O.L.R.B. that they didn't want to belong to Mine-Mill. They were represented by the Steelworkers' counsel, David Lewis, who claimed there had been intimidation.

After hearing all parties the O.L.R.B. adjourned the hearing to consider the evidence. And today they ordered a vote so the workers can decide who they want to be the bargaining agent.

The Steelworkers argue that all Bethlehem Steel ironworkers in the United States are members of their union, and the Marmora workers should be as well.

California Court Backs Loyalty Oath Statute

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A law requiring a loyalty oath from all California state, county and local government employees was held constitutional by the state Supreme Court yesterday.

But the court ruled that he highly-controversial loyalty declaration required by the University of California regents was invalid because their authority to make such regulations was removed by the bill.

The court ordered reinstatement of 17 University of California faculty members who were dismissed when they refused to sign the special loyalty oath.

6,000 Vietminh Drive South To French Line

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—Communist-led Vietminh today smashed their way into the strategic town of Nghia Lo, 100 miles southwest of Hanoi, and drove on toward the Red River delta, main French defence bastion in indo-China.

French Army headquarters said the Reds used more than 6,000 shock troops to beat down the resistance of 600 defenders in Nghia Lo.

There was no indication of how far the Vietminh thrust might go before the Reds ran into a major battle with the French. There are numerous strongly defended French posts beyond the town which the Vietminh would have to crush to continue their drive.

VAIN EFFORT

The French threw in waves of bombers and fighter planes in a vain effort to beat off the Red shock troops who had been pounding the town with artillery and mortar fire since Thursday.

Nghia Lo, a town of 3,000, is the gateway to the mountainous Thai country that stretches up to the border with Red China. It lies midway between the French military centre of Hanoi and the regional capital of Lau Chau.

Vietminh soldiers, streaming down from the mountains that ring Nghia Lo, smashed their way into the town despite stiff resistance by French and Thai mountain troops.

There was no immediate estimate of French Union losses, but they are believed heavy as a result of the hand-to-hand fighting which preceded the fall of the town.

There were some 600 defenders in the town itself who took the brunt of the final Red assault as other French Union forces fell back.

The speed, precision and style of the Vietminh attack clearly in-

The drive, too, has shown the Vietminh are getting heavy calibre guns from Red China. The artillery used in the siege of Nghia Lo was the biggest the Vietminh have used in the six-year war.

Said Cause Of Auto Murder, U.N. Secretary To Testify

BALTIMORE (AP)—A 28-year-old Canadian secretary, for whose love the state contends George Edward Grammer caused his wife's death, was expected to face him from the witness stand today. She is Mathilda Mizibrocky, an employee at United Nations headquarters in New York when the two met last November. Her family lives in Hamilton, Ont.

The state charges that Grammer beat his wife to death the night of Aug. 19 so that he could marry Miss Mizibrocky.

State's Attorney Anselm Sodaro told the court Tuesday Miss Mizibrocky would testify that she and Grammer lived "as man and wife" for 10 days last July and that she had gone to Canada to get parental permission to marry him despite religious differences.

ADMITS STRIKING WIFE

In a signed statement, admitted as evidence yesterday, Grammer said he struck his 33-year-old wife, Dorothy May, on the head with a piece of pipe in a whisky-fired rage when she commented he thought more of his work than of her.

He said that when his wife made the remark, he stopped the car in which they were riding, got out, picked up a piece of pipe lying beside the road and hit her.

Mrs. Grammer was found dead from deep head wounds in her car after it sped down a street in north Baltimore, barely missed a police cruiser and overturned

A pebble was found jammed under the base of the accelerator, holding down the gas pedal

Grammer said in one of the four statements admitted as evidence that he "could have" placed the pebble under the accelerator, but he didn't remember whether he did.

He denied in the statement that another man or woman was involved in his wife's death.

Abbott Predicts No Drop In Tax

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said last night it is not realistic to expect "substantial reductions" in taxation unless international tension lessens or Canada's production capacity increases.

He told a meeting of local Young Liberals:

"I don't anticipate in the immediate future any possibility of substantial cuts in defence. We are not at present spending in excess of the danger that faces us or in excess of our share of world security."

He said he felt that increased productivity was the "more promising avenue" and if it continues "I think we can count on it giving some real measure of taxation relief."

Federal Surplus Drops To $290,967,000

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government's budgetary surplus dropped to $290,967,000 from $336,668,000 in September when expenditures exceeded revenues by more than $45,000,000.

The Septmber deficit, first of the current fiscal year, was reported yesterday by the Finance Department in its monthly report on the government's financial position.

See Egypt Move Toward Republic

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt is going to abandon her monarchy and become a republic, a usually reliable source said last night.

Rumors circulated throughout Cairo that the Egyptian state broadcasting company would issue a momentous announcement shortly. Newspaper offices said they were standing by for such an announcement.

A three-man regency council that has been ruling for the baby monarch was reduced Tuesday to a single regent, Prince Mohammed Abdel Moneim, a second cousin of Farouk.

Herriot Scores Defence Treaty

BORDEAUX, France (AP) — French government hopes of securing early parliamentary ratification of the European Defence Community suffered a blow last night when veteran statesman Edouard Herriot emphatically announced the pact as conflicting with the French constitution.

Herriot, president of the National Assembly and a former premier, spoke in opposition to the treaty at a congress of the Radical-Socialist party. Delegates, who warmly applauded his speech, re-elected him national president of the party.

Acid-Tongued Andrei Back

Vishinsky To Outline Red Peace Plan

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Acid-tongued Andrei Vishinsky is expected to outline today how the Kremlin thinks the world's hot and cold wars can be solved.

The Soviet Foreign Minister is scheduled to speak in the United Nations Assembly debate after the world body hears from Ecuador.

Western diplomats hoped that he would come up with something more acceptable than the warmed-over proposals handed to the U.N. yesterday by Poland's Foreign Minister Stanislaw Skrzesezewsky, Communist terms for a Korean armistice, world disarmament, banning germ warfare and a big-five peace pact with Red China sitting in.

'NOTHING NEW'

When the Polish delegate finished his nearly two-hour speech, the general reaction from western and neutral countries was that it contained nothing new. If this was all the Reds had to offer, western diplomats said, then there was little chance that the General Assembly would be able to help unsnarl the deadlocked Korean armistice negotiations.

Canada had planned to urge the Assembly to appeal to the Communists to accept a truce in Korea but decided not to do so after the Polish stand. Canadian delegation sources said they felt it would be pointless to make such an appeal at this time.

Health Minister Paul Martin, in a prepared speech, was ready to ask the U.N. to make a "solemn" appeal to the Chinese Communists and North Koreans to accept the truce.

But after the Polish delegate reiterated the Communist terms for an armistice, Martin did not include the paragraph referring to the appeal when he delivered his 3,000-word address before the Assembly yesterday. The deletd paragraph read:

"Let us again make a solemn appeal and with it let us hope that by consent there will in the interim be a minimum of fighting and a maximum of restraint in the propaganda war across the battleline, so that no incident or insult will impinge on the sober consideration we expect our appeal for peace will be given."

Martin told the Assembly that Canada will take it "as a fundamental premise that present hostilities must be limited to the Korean peninsula and that the search for an early settlement of those hostilities by negotiation at Panmunjom must be continued."

ONE ISSUE REMAINING

Apparently referring to the prisoner-of-war question, Martin said only one issue is holding up a truce. There should be a way "to resolve this sole remaining sticking point if there is a real desire on both sides to come to an agreement."

The west is ready to stop fighting but is opposed to forced repatriation of all prisoners, as the Communists insist. The Reds and the U.N. Command have been split for months on this issue and the talks at Panmunjom have been indefinitely suspended.

Russia was defeated again yesterday in its effort to unseat the Nationalist Chinese delegation and replace it with men from Communist-ruled Peiping. The Russian demand — now a familiar practice at the beginning of each U.N. session — came in the credentials committee, which voted instead to recommend to the General Assembly that it take no action on the Chinese delegation question at this session.

The Assembly overwhelmed south African objections and voted 43 to 18 to debate a charge by Asian and African countries that South Africa's white-supremacy policy is a threat to world peace. Eight countries, including Canada, abstained.

Korean Charges Japan Tries To Start Aggression Again

In a strongly-worded official denunciation of Japanese policies, he said the Traditional Japanese characteristics of defamation, blackmail, aggression and tricks are making enemies out of friendly nations."

He centred his attack on alleged illegal Japanese fishing in Korean waters and smuggling of Japanese products into Korea.

The spokesman was referring to a series of disputes over fishing rights which have been growing more and more serious since South Korean President Syngman Rhee announced a new definition of Korean sea rights in January This "Rhee line" claimed South Korean sovereignty in some areas as much as 60 miles from the coast

Since 1947 the South Korean Navy has taken 140 Japanese fishing vessels into custody and returned 103. The Japanese Maritime Safety Board now has ordered all its patrol vessels to be armed to deal with any "interference."

Japanese-Korean disputes have also been responsible for disturbances in many parts of Japana.

The Japanese government has give the estimated 700,000 Korean residents in Japan until Oct. 22 to register as aliens or be deported. Savage fights have broken out between those who refuse to register and those who are complying with the order. Some Koreans have been lynched.

Ask Mossadegh To Clarify Break With United Kingdom

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Loyd Henderson called on Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh today to ask "clarification" of the announcement that Iran would sever diplomatic relations with Britain because of the prolonged oil dispute.

Reliable sources said it was safe to assume that Henderson was inquiring whether the break would be partial or complete. A partial break might leave consulates in both London and Tehran. A complete break would entail recall of all diplomatic personnel from both capitals.

British officials here still have not received official notice of the break. Foreign Minister Hossein Fatemi said last night Iran would deliver the formal notification when she decides which country will represent her in London.

SWEDEN IRAN'S CHOICE

The Swedish Foreign Office announced in Stockholm last night that Iran has asked Sweden to represent Iranian interests in the British capital. The Foreign Office said no decision had been reached on the request.

Mossadegh announced the decision to break off relations with Britain Thursday. It was another development in the 18-month dispute with Britain that followed Iran's decision to nationalize her oil industry and take over Iranian holdings of the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

The impression was growing in Tehran today that the government is delaying taking the final steps to make the decision effective in the hopes the United States may intervene and give the Iranians a chance to change their minds without losing face.

Wm. Anderson Supervised Big Lifts At CGE

William Anderson, 395 Edison Ave., retired on Friday at the C.G.E. after 29 years of riding and watching the cranes at work. For many years Mr. Anderson has been a familiar figure in every department of the big plant where a bridge crane is used. A soft-spoken Scotsman, he is called "Mr. Cranes."

Wherever there was a big lift or an unusual lift to be made, there was Mr. Anderson, casting a critical eye over the proceedings and making sure that everything was just right before the load moved one inch off the floor.

ARRIVED IN 1923

Mr. Anderson came to Peterborough from his native Scotland in 1923, and began his continuous service with C.G.E. in October, a few weks after arriving here. Born in Greenock on the River Clyde, it was only natural that he should find his way into the famous Clyde shipyards when he first started out to work. Shipbuilding and boilermaking were the occupations he followed in the John Brown Shipyard of Clydebank. He began getting acquainted with cranes there, and also worked for the Singer Sewing Machine Company in Clydebank before coming to Canada.

In C.G.E., he soon began his career association with the half dozen cranes then in use in the shops. He served several years as an operator, and was one of 16 men working for John Trombley, who then held the position he is retiring from today. Mr. Anderson later worked for Jim Davis, and succeeded him as foreman when Mr. Davis died in 1937.

In the 15 years that he has been cranes foreman, he has seen a lot of lifts and a lot of changes. The 16-man staff has grown to 84; the half dozen cranes of 1923 now number 30, with several more to be installed in new buildings now under construction. Of the original staff who were here when he came, machine shop crane operator Jack Heffernan is the only one left.

Generally, Mr. Anderson's job for the past 15 years has been to supervise the crane service in all departments. He was always on hand in any shop where a tricky bit of lifting was about to take place, and accepted the responsibility for seeing that the lift was conducted in the best manner. This responsibility was a serious one, because the danger to life and damage that could result from a miscalculated 50-ton lift allows no margin of error.

SAFETY A "MUST"

Safety has understandably been an important part of his job, and surprisingly few accidents over the years have been attributed to crane men or equipment. He has kept a close eye on all cables and ropes in use, and these are instantly replaced when they show the first signs of wear. Two skilled cable splicers in his crew keep the plant supplied with safe, dependable ropes, cables and slings.

The Anderson family has had a long association with C.G.E. One son, Alec, has been there 23 years and is now in machine shop production. Two other sons worked there at one time and are now in the Canadian army; Bill is with the 27th Brigade in Germany, and Jim is at Petawawa. Mr. Anderson's daughter, Dolina, worked in porcelain for several years prior to her marriage.

HAGGARD, BATTLE-WEARIED soldiers of the 9th Republic of Korea Infantry Division await their turn at a mobile surgical hospital for treatment of injuries suffered during a clash with attacking Chinese Reds for possession of White Horse Mountain. The strategic crest has been the object of fierce see-saw battles between South Korean infantrymen and Communist troops for many days. It has changed hands more than 25 times.

Norwood Native Bishop White Home For Visit

NORWOOD (ENS).—The Rt. Rev. W. C. White, D.D., formerly Bishop of the Diocese of Honan, China, officiated in Christ Church, Norwood, at the confirmation of Beverley Jean Carleton of Havelock on Thursday, October 16th, at the request of Bishop Beverley.

During his address, Bishop White referred to his attendance at Christ church some twenty years ago. Next year will mark the 100th anniversary of the church in Norwood, and the Bishop hoped that some great forward step in the church life would be made to mark the occasion.

A former resident of Norwood, the Bishop is a graduate of Norwood High School, and told of incidents in his own school days here. He later attended the University of Toronto and Wycliffe College, before going to China in 1897. He was consecrated Bishop in 1909. After his retirement from the position in 1935, he became head of the Oriental department of the University of Toronto, and was responsible for much of the display in the Chinese department of the Royal Ontario Museum. He is the author of several books, the latest of which is a biography of the Canon H. J. Cody, recently president of the University of Toronto.

$16,000 Farmer In Seven Years

By NEA SERVICE

REPUBLIC, O. (NEA). — The best advice for ambitious young farmers, from Wayne Vogel, who has just been named the best young farmer in the nation, is brief and to the point:

"Be sure to have your farm equipment all set to do a job and then, when weather conditions are right, get busy on a 24-hour daily work schedule until the job is done."

Following this simple rule over the past seven years has brought the 21-year-old Ohioan on to a capitalization of $16,000 in farm machinery and livestock, and the American Star Farmer award, top honor bestowed by the Future Farmers of America in their national convention in Kansas City every fall.

At 14, Vogel had no equipment but a bicycle. Living with his mother on a one-acre plot near McCutchenville, O., when he was a high school freshman, he enrolled in vocational agriculture, and started to get ideas.

He rented small plots of land nearby, rented the machinery to cultivate it, ranted some sheds in which to raise chickens and ducks hired-out doing day labor for other farmers, mowed lawns and found himself with $1,402 at the year's end.

His crops were six acres of corn and one-fourth acre of potatoes, while his poultry consisted of 85 ducks, 400 ducklings, and 370 chicks.

During four years in high school Wayne earned nearly $3,000 from farming, and more than $1,200 from outside work. In addition, he served one-year terms as secretary and later as president of the local chapter of Future Farmers of America, represented the chapter two years in the State F.F.A. public speaking contest, served as president of the county's Junior Fair Board, was secretary of his Sunday School, assistant steward of the local Grange, went to a religious camp in Michigan for two weeks every summer, went to the State F.F.A. camp every summer, and acted as a livestock judge.

It was in his junior year at high school that Wayne first rolled into high gear. He bought a used tractor, machinery, and farmed wherever he could find land for rent. He expanded his poultry enterprise and raised a few hogs.

One of his plots of land was 30 miles away, and he trucked his tractor and implements to the place, working night and day until the job was done. The 24-hour ordeal is fairly natural to him now.

Although his longest stint was three consecutive days and nights with only a few minutes rest, his average day in the field during the busy season is only 18 hours.

But his friend and teacher, Harold Moorhead, of Sycamore, explains that the Vogel "busy season" extends well through the winter. For the last two years Wayne has rented 160 acres from W. B. Shumway, a retired banker of Tiffin, who, after several bad experiences with other tenants, likes the work of young Vogel so well that he has invested $3,000 in improvements.

"Wayne is the unusual type of farmer who is out there pushing the work rather than the work pushing him," Shumway said. He had intended to sell the farm until Wayne took over.

Wayne was married last spring to a former schoolmate, Kathleen, who help with the work in the fields during the rush season. During the week she works in a manufacturing plant in Tiffin. They are saving for the time when they can own their own land.

With the American Star Farmer award, worth $1,000, Wayne is hoping to find property adjacent to the farm he now is renting, so he can handle both.

This fall, the young American Star Farmer who started with a bicycle owns 400 chickens, 28 sheep, 18 pigs, two cows, two tractors, a six-foot grain combine, a truck, grain drill, corn-picker and many other implements. His accomplishment was summed up by Warren G. Weller, state supervisor of vocational agriculture for Ohio:

"Wayne is as well established in farming as many men who have worked a lifetime."

Vessel Aground, Floats Free Soon

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 5,700-ton coastal steamship Prince George, southbound from Alaska, nosed onto the beach at up-coast Ripple Point early today during dense fog.

However, four hours after the grounding the R.C.A.F. reported the Canadian National Steamships vessel was "floating free in the channel" and waiting for tugboats dispatched from Vancouver.

The Prince George, which carried a crew of 130 and an undetermined number of passengers, hit the beach at 6:26 a.m. EST, approximately 130 miles north of Vancouver.

Supt. G.A. MacMillan of Canadian National Steamships told The Canadian Press he had been in touch with the Prince George by radio-telephone and was assured there was no danger to the passengers or crew.

Capt. E.B. Caldwell of Vancouver informed Mr. MacMillan that the vessel was intact and the passengers were remaining aboard.

Little Old Lady Knocks Off Bank

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A grey-haired woman in her 60s held up a cashier at a branch of the California Bank yesterday.

She walked sedately up to teller Marguerite Evert's window and said in a soft voice: "Fill up this bag with money."

"I can't hear you," Miss Evert said.

This time the woman, about 5 feet 3 and 125 pounds, spoke up. "This gun does my talking for me," she said. "I can use it."

The woman walked quietly to the door and disappeared.

Scared Silent Once, Actors Return To Political Arena

By BOB THOMAS

During the Franklin D. Roosevelt years, the acting breed was vocal in support of candidates and issues. In the era immediately following the war, widespread political activity in Hollywood was lacking. The reason: too many actors had been stung by supporting the wrong causes.

Now the issues appear more clearly defined, and Hollywood names are again beating the drums for the campaigners. Stars such as Irene Dunne, George Murphy, Rosalind Russell and Dick Powell are booming for Eisenhower. The Stevenson bandwagon has drawn such adherents as Ethel Barrymore, Robert Ryan, Ava Gardner and the Humphrey Bogarts.

SOME RAN

Although actors have been active campaigners, they have seldom run for office, with a few exceptions.

Two years ago, Congress had two former acting figures. One was Helen Gahagan Douglas, Democratic representative from California. The wife of actor Melvyn Douglas, she was a stage and operetta star and appeared in one movie, "She." Mrs. Douglas was defeated in the Senate race by Richard Nixon, who has lately been in the news.

The other was John Lodge (Rep. Conn.), now the governor of his state and a leader in the fight to nominate Eisenhower. He played in many films of the early '30s, including "The Scarlet Empress" with Marlene Dietrich and "The Little Colonel" with Shirley Temple.

Albert Dekker served a term in the California Legislature, but said he gave up politics because he couldn't afford it. His pay as a representative was $1,200 a year, about what he could earn in a week in the movies.

Put Microtron In University

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A unique type of atom-smasher, developed by Canadian scientists, is coming to the University of Western Ontario shortly, to fill the remaining gap in the university's program of radiation research.

Negotiations for the microtron were completed last night by the board of governors which accepted a contract with the Dominion Government's National Research Council under which N.R.C. will supply the equipment and a $15,000 grant to finance installation and initial research.

Dr. G. E. Hall, university president, called the transfer of microtron to Western a tremendous advance in the university's teaching and research program, particularly in the study of radiation which "at Western is one of the most out-standing in Canada."

Western's reach with the microtron will be relatively fundamental, Dr. A. D. Misener, head of the department of physics, said.

With installation of the microtron completed, Western will be the third eastern-Canada university to have atom-smashers in operation. McGill and Queen's both have cyclotrons.

However, the microtron, because it is only a fraction of the [illegible] buildings will be required as they are at McGill and Queen's. It will be fitted in a room in the science [illegible] teration necessary the erection of building with the only major alshielding to trap the intense radiation obtained in atom bombardment.

Rumor E. German Boss Killed By Anti-Reds

BONN, Germany (AP) — West German government officials are investigating rumors that Walter Ulbricht, East German Red leader, was killed by Polish anti-Communists aboard the Warsaw-Moscow Blue Express train.

Ulbricht is deputy premier of Soviet-occupied East Germany and boss of the ruling Communist Socialist Unity party.

The independent Bremen newspaper Weserkurier yesterday reported from Bonn that according to its information Ulbricht was riding the Blue Express when Polish anti-Red underground partisans derailed it.

It said all passengers not killed in the derailment were slain by partisans.

Adenauer Asks Allies To Halt Red Attempts

BERLIN (Reuters) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today asked the Allies to overcome Russian attempts to "split the west."

"Moscow's game is clear," he said. "The United States is to be split from France and Britain and the integration of Europe is to be hindered."

He said "certain circles" in Britain and France wanted to compromise with Russia.

He told the congress of his West German Christian Democratic party that the one hope of German unity and European peace is European integration and the formation of a European army, in which German divisions would play their part.

Truman, Eisenhower Volley Criticisms

President Truman and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower volleyed sharp criticisms against a backdrop of cheers, hisses and boos, Governor Adlai Stevenson was questing for votes deep in Texas today.

The President stirred storms of applause in Boston's Symphony Hall last night with a charge that Eisenhower, by supporting Republican Senators Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin and William Jenner of Indiana, has endorsed a "reign of terror by slander." The audience hissed and booed the senators' names.

At Newark, N.J., Last night Eisenhower praised Gen. George C. Marshall, his onetime army boss, as a "great American patriot." He repeated that, as the Republican candidate for president, he listens to advice but makes his own decisions and is still a "no deal" man.

This was in obvious reply to Truman's charge Thursday that he was not "sticking by" Marshall, and to Democratic accusations that he has come under the thumb of McCarthy and Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

In his Newark talk, Eisenhower accused the Democrats of exploiting minority groups through promises rather than performance.

He said President Truman "claims to be the only true friend our Negro citizens have," and, he said, voted in 1942 as a senator against "lifting the poll tax restriction even for members of the armed services."

Truman, in an address prepared for delivery today at Providence, R.I., contended Eisenhower held out "a false hope to the mothers of America, in an effort to pick up a few votes."

"You remember what he said," the President went on. "He said we ought to pull our soldiers out of the fighting in Korea and let the South Korean army fight the Red Chinese hordes alone."

HITS IMMIGRATION ACT

Truman again assailed the McCarran immigration act, saying: "If you think that law ought to be changed and made fair and just, you'd better vote Democratic."

Eisenhower yesterday called for a rewriting of the law to improve the hopes of "the unhappy and oppressed."

A wave of protest was kicked up by Truman's statement yesterday about the immigration bill—and his accompanying charge that Eisenhower, by endorsing senators who had voted for it, showed he was willing to embrace Nazi practices to become president.

These senators, he said, included McCarthy, Jenner and Richard M. Nixon of California, now the Republican nominee for vice-president.

Godson Buys Out Partner In Car Agency

With the purchase of the interest of his associate, Paul M. Irwin, in the firm of Irwin-Godson Ltd., Ford Motor agents at George and King Streets, Wm. R. Godson said today that the business is being continued in the new name of Godson Motors Limited.

The intention of Mr. Irwin to retire from the company which he helped to establish here has been rumored recently, and Mr. Godson said the transfer of ownership became effective Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Irwin left on Friday for a vacation in Detroit.

Godson Motors Limited will remain in their present premises until next spring when they will move to a new building on the west side of Aylmer St., north of Townsend St., construction of which will be begun almost immediately.

NEW SERVICE STATION

"Our property on Aylmer St. has an area of 60,000 sq. ft.," Mr. Godson said, "and we are opening next week the new service station which was only recently completed.

"We have four departments of our business in separate locations which are to be brought together on the Aylmer St. site when the new building is finished and ready for occupation next year. In the meantime, we are continuing as we are at present. The only immediate change is the opening of the Aylmer St. service station next week."

The departments which are eventually to be amalgamated on the new property are: the body shop on King St.; used car business on the west side of Water St. south of Brock St.; the service station at the northeast corner of George and Sherbrooke Streets, and the sales office, parts, accessories, and other details at George and King Streets.

Plans for the building on Aylmer St. place it to the south and rear of the new service station, integrating architecturally the two into one place of business. The major part to be constructed will have floor space of 9,000 sq. ft., and the overall frontage will be 120 sq. ft.

"The entire property provides us with ample parking area," Mr. Godson said, "and gives us convenient access to the large industrial section of the city centering around the Canadian General Electric Company. With all our facilities in the one location, we will be in a better position to service our customers.

HAMPERED NOW

"The way our departments have been distributed in four separate places tended to hamper us in taking care of the increasing volume of business with the efficiency we want to give it. We have been fortunate in securing a spacious property with plenty of room for customer accommodation as the city continues to grow."

Mr. Godson joined Mr. Irwin in the former company June 15, 1948. During the Second World War he served with the R.C.A.F. Soon after his discharge, he was engaged with the Ford Motor Company Toronto district office in its sales department, retail and wholesale.

"Irwin-Godson Ltd. started with eleven employees. We now have 35, and our sales of cars and trucks is now five times the volume of our first year. The new company will begin construction on Aylmer St. before the frost sets in, and the service station will be operating next week."

Mr. Godson said that Mr. Irwin had bought and improved a house in Lakefield, and would be living there when he and Mrs. Irwin return from their present vacation.

Week In Bush, Two Men Found

PARRY SOUND (CP) — Murray Atkin and Jack Morris, missing since Saturday in the dense bush of this Georgian Bay district, were found yesterday and flown 30 miles east to the summer resort of Bala.

The two Toronto men were taken to a hotel and given soup. It was reported they were near exhaustion.

An R. C. A. F. search craft spotted the men early yesterday but could not land. Instead it tried to guide them out of the forest by swooping low above them.

Atkin, 35, and his 62-year-old companion set out from Toronto a week ago to examine timber tracts in the district. They were expected to emerge from the woods Saturday after a night in the bush.

Britons Eat Better, Lord Tells Meeting

Instead of masses of food, badly prepared, they now have "very little food" under rationing, but make sure it is well prepared.

Lord Courtauld-Thomson traces his gastronomic career from 1868, when, during a bout of pneumonia at the age of three, he ate the bread poultice off his chest. It was a soggy mess of bread soaked in hot water.

The 88-year-old peer was guest of honor last night at the annual banquet of universal cookery and food association, whose aim is to give Britons better cooking.

Delay New Trial Of Meek For Sanity Test

CORNWALL (CP)—The second trial of Elias Meek on a charge of murdering Mrs. Alan Alguire, his employer's wife, was delayed yesterday to give the 21-year-old farmhand a sanity hearing.

A special jury to try the sanity issue was sworn in late yesterday at the order of Chief Justice J.C. McRuer. It will decide whether Meek is mentally fit to stand trial for the hammer and knife slaying Sept. 28, 1951.

BROTHER KILLED SELF

A defence witness, Dr. J C. Wilson of Cornwall, said he examined Meek a few days after the slaying and believed the youth was mentally ill. He had seen the accused several times since and believed he was still mentally ill.

Meek's eldest brother, John Meek, testified that another brother had committed suicide in hospital at Prince Albert, Sask., two weeks ago.

The trial was interrupted earlier yesterday while Chief Justice McRuer considered whether to order a retrial after he learned the trial jury had visited the movies Thursday night against his orders.

He decided to let the trial proceed when he was satisfied the jurymen had not communicated with outsiders during their outing.

The 12 men were guarded as they walked to the theatre. The Chief Justice had ruled out the theatre trip but Charles F Johnston, court constable, told him the order was misinterpreted.

The crown closed its case yesterday with two witnesses, Dr. W. D. Hay, Cornwall pathologist said Mrs. Alguire was stabbed in the abdomen 10 or 15 times by a knife. Dr. Noble Sharpe, director of the Ontario Crime Detection Laboratory, testified that blood found on Meek's overalls and Mrs. Alguire's

Avert Grain Workers' Buffalo Strike Threat

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A two-day strike by 400 A.F.L. grain elevator workers that threatened a complete tie-up of Buffalo's huge flour milling industry was settled yesterday.

The elevator workers and the Federation of Grain Millers, also an A.F.L. union, agreed to meet Thursday to negotiate a jurisdictional dispute that led to the strike.

Buffalo's flour milling industry, largest in the world, was on the verge of a complete shut-down, as its grain supplies from the elevators were cut off. The industry employs more than 5,000 men.

The dispute is over which union should have jurisdiction over jobs in the Harper feed mill, where 15 men are employed.

Mr. Kay gave a very interesting and humorous talk on birds and animals which his audiences have come to enjoy so much. He promised to bring his films to Selwyn as soon as possible. He was introduced and thanked by Mrs. Sweeting.

The Darling Of Fortune In The Atomic Age

Canada has a fortune in its Laurential Shield. This has long been known and many fortunes have been mined from it already but the greatest good fortune for Canada's future in the atomic age may be in pitchblend and uranium out of the Precambrian shield. The shield is big; even in this district we get from its outcroppings the whisper of important riches. North of the county and out towards Marmora the needles of geiger counters quiver excitingly. But local people cannot expect to find here the fortune in uranium that lies north of Lake Athabaska. There the geiger needles jumped when the great geological fault, eight square miles in area, was discovered in 1946. This find—between two small lakes known as Beaverlodge and Ace — has been one of the two most important developments for Canada's atomic future. The other is its powerful reactor at Chalk River.

* * *

Leslie Roberts, writing in the Canadian Letter published by the stock-broking firm of Robertson and Morgan, sees Canada as the darling of fortune of the dawning atomic age: "For war or peace, for defence today and the atomic industry of tomorrow, recent uranium discoveries in Canada, and the all-out manner in which they are being developed by the Canadian government (through its wholly-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Company) have secured this hemisphere in the raw materials of atomic energy for any forseeable future emergency. Furthermore, it is not wishful thinking to envisage the Canada of tomorrow as the world's largest producer of radio-active minerals."

* * *

Canada's "heavy water" reactor at Chalk River, a hundred miles northeast of Ottawa, is said to be a more effective instrument than the graphite piles of the United States—and Canada is now building a second pile. The United States is aping Canada in this and has begun to construct heavy water plants on the two-billion dollar Savannah River project. Canadian research has — as every Canadian knows — been concentrated on the constructive uses of atomic energy — for so-called "cancer-bombs," for example, rather than for atomic bombs.

* * *

Whether or not Canada remains in the van of atomic research, (and why should she not? She has the scientists, is spending millions, and already is creating additional refining plants so that Canadian uranium will not have to be sent to the States, as now, to be converted into metallic rods and then sent back to Chalk River) — whether or not Canada maintains her research prominence, she will be pivotal in the atomic age because of her uranium deposits, the largest in this hemisphere. And Canada has not been slow to find and develop her uranium luck.

* * *

In the early 1930's pitchblend was discovered astride the Arctic Circle at Great Bear Lake. A producing mine resulted and the raw product was carried down the MacKenzie River system for a [illegible] miles to the railhead at [illegible] continent to Port Hope to be converted into radium and uranium salts. This was the Eldorado mine and the Eldorado refinery, a private concern. The war closed Eldorado's markets.

* * *

In 1942 British and American (and German) atomic physicists were hot on the trail of an A-bomb. The Minister of Munitions and Supply, Mr. C. D. Howe, asked the Eldorado company's president to re-open the mine — the Canadian government becoming the sole customer. In 1944 the Government bought the company and all its rights, and the mining of uranium-bearing ores by private interests was barred. So great was the Allied secret need for the radio-active material that technically-trained prospectors were flown into distant Canadian areas, fanning out across the Laurentian Shield looking for the precious stuff. This resulted in the great strike north of Lake Athabaska. The milling unit of uranium mine there — at Beaverlodge—will handle five hundred tons of ore a day at first (it is nearly ready for operation) and an adjacent shaft will hoist two thousand tons a day. There is a warren of drifts and crosscuts underground — totalling in length about eight miles. Thirteen million dollars have been spent to bring the first mining and milling unit into production.

* * *

Will Canadian individuals personally reap any of the atomic fortune? This is possible. To encourage further prospecting and development, the ban on the private mining of uranium was lifted more than a year ago. Private interests may now seek, develop and process uranium ores, but must sell their product to the Eldorado company. Private operations are now being carried out, but the Government at its Beaverlodge mine remains the biggest and chief operator.

* * *

Individually and as citizens creating government, Canadians stand to profit tremendously, and to ensure their safety, by their uranium deposits. The one really great source of the metal on the American land mass is held in the heart of Canada's north and is a key to the western world's continued development and freedom.

Algae Gone?

The city's filtration plant engineers report that algae in the water processed by the plant disappeared during September. That is good to know, and that the green particles littered the water only for 66 days this year, compared with 99 days last year. We see in these figures no reason to be complacent about algae, and to believe that it is just a matter of time before the algae in this district's water disappear. It is a matter of time; the question is, how long?

To have the stuff come into the filtration plant for even 66 days is too long—and we shall not say that because it is gone from that water for the year that it has gone from the Kawarthas. It has not. On Thanksgiving Day the water in several of the lakes was positively green from algae.

We hope that the city and county and particularly the Provincial officials will continue to consider algae a major menace which should and must be disposed of. We hope that the present investigation into cause and cure will be pressed, and that definite remedial action will be taken. It is not good enough merely to be wise and say out of the side of the mouth: "Algae? Ah! well, those fellows at the Trent Canal know more than they say: and if you want canal, locks and power dams, you'll have to put up with algae". We do not believe that the canal system is the only cause, or that we have to put up with the stuff forever.

If it is only a matter of time before the Kawarthas can be rid of algae, let it not be to the end of time.

Easy With Osgoode!

We hope that the city of Toronto will go no farther with its threat to expropriate some of the lawns of Osgoode Hall. Mayor Lamport was reported as saying that the land in front of Osgoode could be used as parking space. Of course it could; all open space in Toronto could be used for parking, but what a city it would be when that came about! The handsome iron railings around Osgoode are one of the prettiest sights in Toronto, and before Toronto decides to rip them down and make a parking lot, we think it would be wise to remember that Toronto is not simply a city in itself, but a provincial capital, and the people of the province expect that it will be kept as handsome as a provincial capital should be. Osgoode Hall itself is a fine example of the earlier architecture of this province, and whoever lays an unhallowed hand upon it arouses every architectural enthusiast —professional and amateur—in Ontario.

We do not sufficiently realize in Canada that one of the functions of a community—village, town or city—is to be beautiful, and in consequence we have in our country some of the most offensively ugly collections of buildings in the civilized world. In winter, when the green of Nature no longer mercifully shrouds our architectural indecencies, a majority of our towns are eyesores. But the situation is not hopeless; we [illegible] mischief that has been done.

One of our duties, however, is to hold fast to that which has been done well. We must take pains to keep old buildings and old houses which have any architectural grace to recommend them. Osgoode Hall, whoever owns it officially (and we haven't a clue as to what body this may be) is an architectural possession of all the people of this province. Therefore we suggest to Toronto that it think twice before ripping up the lawns which Osgoode needs; Toronto has not so many beauties that she can be prodigal with them.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Stalin is keeping all the top jobs, despite the Soviet Communist party's reorganization. The old hand has not lost its grasp—or shrewdness.

Archaeologists have discovered the thumb of a woman who lived a million years ago, and the reptile who writes "Once Over Lightly" for the Ottawa Citizen vilely suggests that they look under it for the remains of her husband. How can he—and in Charlottetown, too!

The Journal of Samuel Marchbanks

SUNDAY: Business takes me to the U.S.A., where I have not been for about five years, and so much has happened since then that I am not sure how I, as a foreigner, will be received. Nor were my doubts stilled by the first sign I read after crossing the border, which said "Tourists—Worms"; on closer examination it proved to have some connection with fishing, but for a moment it shook me badly. . . . As I drove southward toward New York I noted with approval that not all vendors of trash now hang out a sign saying "Antiques". Some, who have nothing manufactured previous to 1900 modestly describe their accumulation of coal-oil lamps, commode sets and rocking-chairs as "Bygones." I even saw one sign saying "Choice Junk", and I knew that the proprietor of that shop was too honest to stay in business long. . . . At Saratoga I was grieved to see that the romantic old Grand Union Hotel is being pulled down. It was a palatial establishment, truly American in the charm and also the grandeur of the luxury it offered. Its Crystal Ballroom must surely have been, in its heyday, one of the most splendid apartments in this hemisphere. But for years it has been closed to all save pigeons, and now it is to be reduced to salvage. And with the great hotel Saratoga, as a resort, seems to be dying.

✧ ✧ ✧

MONDAY: In New York and busy, but not too busy to take a stroll in Central Park and stare at the people, who looked odder in my eyes than those I left at home—but I knew that this was merely because I have grown accustomed to Canadian oddity, and am indeed a partaker of it myself. I had one moment of signal triumph, when I passed a husband and wife, deep in debate about clothes. The man still wore a light summer suit. His wife pointed at me, "See", she said, "Everybody's wearing waistcoats now!" I glowed, for never before in my life have I been held up to anyone, however lowly, as a model of fashionable attire. And that I, in a Canadian suit three years old, should be thus singled out in a fashionable park—the glory of it made me dizzy, and I hurried to a quiet retreat where a Negro waiter beamed upon me: "Yes sir", he carolled, "what kind o' groove-juice for you this mawnin'?" I named an internationally famous type of groove-juice, and sipped it while basking in my new glory as Beau Marchbanks. . . . Later I was astonished to see a load of hay—just a large, untidy load of hay, pulled by two horses—ambling up Madison Avenue to the dismay of the motor traffic. Found this comforting, for New York always makes me feel rather slow and dull, and it was good to know that a load of hay could make one of its busiest streets slow and dull for several blocks. . . . At dusk, beggars began to appear from everywhere, and a New Yorker told me that they are much on the increase.

✧ ✧ ✧

TUESDAY: New York is overwrought, and yesterday I set this down to the approaching presidential election. Had I not seen an otherwise beautifully dressed woman wearing earrings which spelled "Ike?" But today it dawned upon me that the more immediate cause of neurosis was a succession of games of rounders (here known as "baseball") and called the World's Series, though it is the merest parochial uproar. At Rockefeller Centre I watched the skating, and one man whizzed around the ice with a portable radio held to his ear, keeping in touch with the game. It struck me that this desire to enjoy both winter and summer sports at once was typically American, revealing a zest for life which has got slightly out of hand. A taxi-driver took me to the wrong address, and excused himself by saying that his mind was far away, on the game. But I took this with a grain of salt, for it has been my observation that New York taxi-drivers have a poor knowledge of their own city. In this they compare unfavourably with the taxi-drivers of London, who must pass a stiff examination in London geography before they are given a license. All a New Yorker seems to need in order to set up in practice as a taxi-driver is a dirty shirt and a bad temper. Waiters in the restaurants also appeared to be quite unnerved by the games, and expected me to share their disquiet. As I did not know who was playing what, or why, I found this wearisome.

✧ ✧ ✧

WEDNESDAY: I admire the people of the U. S. A., but I cannot share some of their national legends concerning themselves. One of the most cherished of these is that they are extremely quick about everything. True, they move quickly, but they do not always act quickly. It takes me about an hour to get my breakfast, surrounded by rush and bustle all the time. This usually means that I am in a hurry to get to my first appointment, so I take a taxi, which moves very slowly through heavy traffic. When I buy something in a store and ask to have it delivered, somebody quickly makes a note of my address and assures me that I shall have my package—on Friday. This is no quicker than London, which is supposed to be a slow place. . . . Are there no egg-cups in New York? My breakfast egg is served in a thing like a shaving-mug. When I ask for an egg-cup I am told that there are none. The head waiter vaguely re[illegible] clothes using such a thing, "Dictionary of Biblical and Moral Anecdote"; it was a big book, a perfect mine of pious stories for use in preparing sermons, published in 1872. I am sure that if I had it, and made use of it, the tone of everything I write would rise steeply. For instance, under "Procrastination" I found a moving story of a man who, at the age of 80, sought his pastor and asked if there was any hope that he might be saved? He had, it appeared, fallen into the dreadful habit of procrastination as a youth. "I will," he said, "put off thinking about my soul's salvation until after I am married." Then he put it off until he was 30—then till he was 50—then until he retired. With what result? Oh, brethren, tremble! At 80, he found that he could no longer believe that he might be saved, and died shrieking for mercy. . . . The whole book was composed of tales of this kind, dealing with Drink, Adultery, Secret Vice, and other popular pursuits of the unregenerate. I hankered for it, but it was huge, and the Customs men would have held me up for hours, as they perused its lurid pages, so I bade it a reluctant farewell reflecting that I could, at need, invent my own pious reminiscences, as many a good man has done before me.

SATURDAY: What is wrong with me? I seem to be the sort of man whom waiters immediately put at a table near the kitchen, which smells of other people's food, or in a draught, or too near the orchestra, or someplace where nobody wants to sit. If anything is spilled, it is mine; if anything spilled is scraped up from the floor, and served with carpet-fluff in it, it is mine. Am I so broken-spirited a creature that I fear to make a row in a restaurant? Well, all the evidence points in that direction. I am even so base that I lack the courage to refuse when the waiter suggests that I eat something which I do not want. This evening, for instance, I was thus dragooned into eating a Greek sweetmeat called Baclava; it tasted like a Bible printed on India paper which had been thoroughly soaked in honey, and took just as long to eat. When I had chewed my way down to Revelation the waiter asked me if I had enjoyed it and I, poor spiritless wretch, managed to nod . . . It is high time I went home I have done all I came to do, my ears sing, my feet hurt and my digestive tract is as inflamed as a neon sign. I yearn for the Stoic simplicities of Marchbanks Towers, where there is still no fire; my hotel room here is hotter than the Seventh Circle of Hell and in the mornings my eyes bug out with heat. So away I go to my sub-Arctic native land, and farewell to New York, where I live the nervous life of an outlander.

ent? . . . One reason why I like big cities is that they are full of statuary. Nothing rests me like sitting in a bar, sipping groove-juice and looking out of the window at a large effigy of Columbus, or Bolivar, preferrably mounted on a large horse. We are short of statues in Canada and many of those we have are disgusting. Sir John A. Macdonald, on a horse, and Laura Secord, on a cow, should be in every town over 10,000 in population.

THURSDAY: When in New York I spend my evenings at the theatre, for I am a frivolous fellow. This evening saw a very good dramatized version of Pickwick Papers, a book which I have been devoted to since first I read it as a boy of ten. Pickwick and his friends were charmingly brought to life before my eyes, and I was delighted. Not so an old gentleman behind me, who grumbled constantly that it was "exaggerated"; in the interval he told his companion that Dickens never meant his characters to be exaggerated —a statement so supremely idiotic that my jaw fell and my ears flapped. Does everybody become a dogmatic bore after the age of 70? Not all, but too many. Leaving the theatre I heard another ancient—a female, this one—say "Well, it reminded me of 'The Lady's Not For Burning'; it was English too, you know."

✧ ✧ ✧

FRIDAY: Busy as I was I took time today to visit some bookshops and saw a good many things I would have bought if I had had enough money and a dray to bring them home. One rich volume which I reluctantly decided to leave where I found it was a

DEAD END

No Excuse For These Toll Gates

(FINANCIAL POST)

A GRADUATE of the provincial law school in British Columbia pays a fee of $500 to practice his profession in that province. But when a graduate of a law school in another province goes to B.C. to practice he is charged a fee of $1,500. "The whole purpose of this discriminatory fee," declares the Victoria Times, "is to keep lawyers out of British Columbia. It is a tariff, nothing less, and as such is repugnant to the whole spirit of our constitution, which forbids all interprovincial barriers."

That is the plain truth, and unfortunately British Columbia is not the only offender. Several other provinces, including Ontario, have similar barriers. It has never been seriously suggested that the locally trained product is one whit superior to that turned out in another province. Aside possibly from Quebec, where a special situation exists, legal training is or could be identical, throughout Canada. The only reason for charging graduates from another province a higher entry fee is to preserve the local field for the local talent. It is exactly the same sort of trick that tight little groups of artisans have employed in various municipal areas to keep out competition.

There is not the slightest reason why the legal fraternity should not set up a training standard for all Canada, in the same way that the medical people have done. Once a law student qualifies anywhere in the country he should be allowed to practice anywhere.

On more than one occasion the Canadian Bar Association has come out sharply against political discrimination in legal appointments. The C.B.A. should set an example by condemning the obnoxious discrimination which exists within its own circles.

Mr. Duplessis' Plea For Lotteries

(Ottawa Citizen)

Premier Duplessis' newest plea for a provincial lottery as a means of helping to meet provincial social welfare and education expenses represents an evasion of provincial responsibility. In effect, Mr. Duplessis blames the federal anti-gambling laws for the unsatisfactory state of Quebec's social welfare and educational institutions.

According to Mr. Duplessis' figures, $14,461,507 in bets were placed in Quebec's parimutuel race tracks last summer. This, he says, indicates "apparent prosperity" and a source of wealth which, if tapped, could contribute much to the improvement of provincial services. But if Quebec has wealth that should be channeled into welfare projects of one sort or another, the proper way to recover it is through taxation. Other provinces pursue this method, in addition to reaching tax agreements with the federal government. The same course is open to Quebec.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Then Peter, turning about, seeth the disciple whom Jesus loved following; which also leaned on his breast at supper, and said, Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee? Peter seeing him saith to Jesus, Lord, and what shall this man do? Jesus saith unto him, if I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? folow thou me.

Then went this saying abroad among the brethren, that that disciple should not die: yet Jesus said not unto him, He shall not die; but, if I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to hee? This is the disciple which testifieth of these things, and wrote these things: and we know that his testimony is true. (John 21: 20-24.)

The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave unto him, to shew unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass; and he sent and signified it by his angel unto his servant John: who bare record of the word of God, and of the testimony of Jesus Christ, and of all things that he saw.

Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein: for the time is at hand. (Rev. 1: 1-3.)

And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea . . . And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away. And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. And he said unto me, Write: for these words are true and faithful . . .

He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son. (Rev. 21: 1, 3-5, 7.)

A Losing Business

(Le Soleil, Quebec)

The virtues of that goose that laid the golden egg, the tourist business, has been so often celebrated that we have perhaps forgotten to make sure of where she has placed these famous eggs. As a matter of fact tourism has become a deficit business for Canada. We are spending in the United States ten time more proportionately than do Americans on a visit to Canada. Canada had a credit balance of $145 millions from tourism in 1948. This surplus fell to $49 millions in 1950 and last year at last touched a deficit of eight millions. The statistics for 1951 have just been published and nothing indicates—indeed on the contrary—that the tendency will be reversed for the current year. Canadians have spent $280 millions on travel, mainly to the United States, whereas tourism in Canada brought in only $274 millions.

1842 Letters of Instruction To Warsaw Postmaster Reveal Early Postal Methods

By RICHARD F. CHOATE

The best history of Peterborough county has been written in the letters and documents carried by the couriers of the Royal Mail service. So voluminous is this history, however, that it can be studied with profit only as it is "colligated," as the historians put it, within particular fields of inquiry (or frames of reference) to be selected by the student.

The writer (who is a journalist and not a historian and who concurs in the belief that we shall have better history if and when we have better thinking upon that neglected study, Philosophy and History) has selected from the mass of documentary evidence in his possession hand-written letters of two men who held key positions in the Canadian postal service and helped to direct the arrangements when Thomas Choate, the writer's grandfather, established the Warsaw Postoffice in 1842.

Warsaw is still, as it was 110 years ago, a tiny speck on the map, yet we may look to it for helpful illustrations of the principles which activated the resourceful men who were laying the foundations for a postal service which later entered the Global Postal Union; which gave us Imperial Penny Postage (with the Mulock stamp reading "We hold a Vaster Empire than has been"); and which now is capable of shuttling letter-bags across the Atlantic twice in one day.

While we give all due credit to the glorious "Silent Service" the Royal Navy, let us not forget our indebtedness to another service of the Crown, which is so noiseless that its presence is seldom recognized. Prince George, when he remarked a few years ago that "The Navy and the Multiplication Table are taken for granted," might well have added the Postal Service. Is it too much to say that Her Majesty's Postal Service has been one of the greatest of all agencies in the weaving of the gregarious aspirations of Humankind into what is possibly the only social fabric in which may be found an ordered and unified world pattern?

The subjoined letters of appointment in 1842 and of resignation 47 years later in 1889, best illustrate the modes of operation in Postal Service of that time if reproduced verbatim. Still better would they be as illustrations could they be reproduced in the actual handwriting of the Postoffice Department officials who then wrote their instructions with meticulous care in graceful, vigorous long hand first from Toronto and later from Kingston after the Inspectorate was established there.

It may be historically rewarding to give attention to at least two of the passages in the correspondence:

1. The suggestion to the new postmaster that a call upon the Postmaster of Peterborough (in office taken over first after by the well-qualified S. J. Carver) might "in one hour afford more insight . . . than could be gained in many hours of close application to the study of the instructions, etc." From which remark we may be justified in inferring that William Richardson, then acting Postoffice Surveyor at Toronto, was not a lover of bureaucratic red tape, and was not minded to have the service entangled in its coils.

2. The remark of the veteran Gilbert Griffin, writing from the Inspector's office, Kingston, in 1889, a touching "good-bye" letter to his Warsaw co-worker of nearly half a century in the service: "Nearly all the old boys have left us and their names are only known by their sons or grandsons and the Department itself is a very different affair. Politics rule everything now and the change is not for the better." Doubtless "politics" connoted as it usually does in ordinary colloquial speech, "preferment through partizanship."

On his retirement in 1889 as Postmaster of Warsaw, Thomas Choate was succeeded by his son, Arthur F. Choate. The record of postal affairs since that time is reviewed elsewhere in these columns.

Subjoined are the official letters of appointment of the first Warsaw postmaster in 1842 and of acceptance of his resignation in 1889, 47 years later, when he had reached the age of 80 years.

THE BEGINNING . . .

22 Sept., 1842.

Dear Sir:

The Dy. P.M. General having sanctioned my report in favor of an office in Dummer to be called Warsaw under your direction as Post Master I now send you herewith enclosed bond in duplicate which is to be executed by yourself and two responsible sureties. The oaths of office of yourself and assistant are to be attested to before a magistrate and I have to request that you will have the bonds etc. executed and returned to me at once so that I may furnish you with the necessary books and instructions to enable you to open the office on the 6th of next month. Be careful to fill in the names of the sureties, their places of residence and occupation, and also the date of signing the bond, which must be in this month.

I remain, Dear Sir,
Your most obedient servant,
wm. Richardson

Acty. P.O. Surveyor
Thomas Choate Esq.,
Warsaw, Township of Dummer.

City of Toronto
30 Sept., 1842

Dear Sir:

I have this day put up in a packet to your address the necessary equipments for the office at Warsaw under your directions as Post Master and I enclose herewith a receipt embracing the details of these equipments which you will be pleased to sign and return to me at an early date. Having filled up the distances in the Table appropriate for that purpose you will merely have to fill in the rates of postage in conformity with the rules for rating, on the back thereof, and this you had better do without loss of time. The Book of Instructions, Department Orders and Circulars will, I hope, be sufficiently explicit to enable you at once to enter upon your duties but should you feel at a loss I would recommend that you call upon the Postmaster of Peterborough who in his office taken over first after by the well-qualified S. J. Carver might in one hour afford more insight into the nature of the various directions and references than could be gained in many hours of close application to the study of the instructions, etc. The charge for stationery is to be made at the rate of 2/6 for each £5 of receipts for unpaid received and paid sent postage. . . . AND THE END

Post Office Inspector's Office,
Kingston.
September 10, 1889.

My dear Sir:

As you and I seem, from my Mr. Jones' report, to be like the last roses left on the tree—I write to say good-bye to you on your leaving the old Department.

Mr. Jones informs me that you hold your appointment from Mr. Stayner. Can you see if your commission is registered by me? In what year was it?

I entered Mr. Stayner's office in 1836-37 and have been knocked about a good deal since that long ago!

Nearly all the old boys have left us and their names are only known by their sons or grandsons and the Dept. itself is a very different affair—Politics rule everything now, and the change is not for the better.

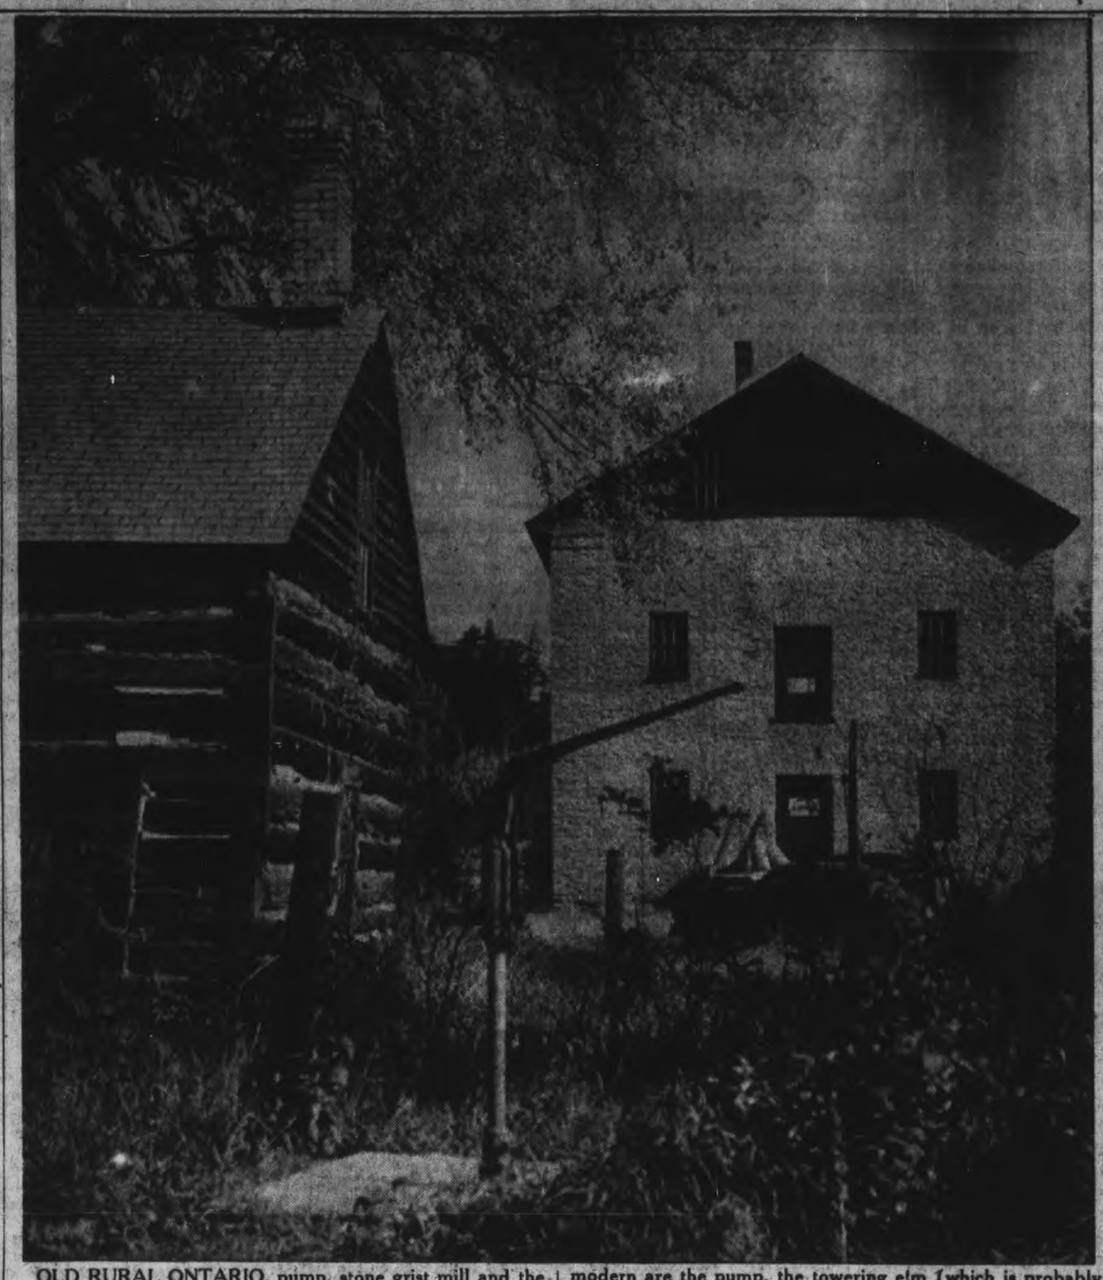
Yours faithfully,
GILBERT GRIFFIN.

T. Choate, Esq., Warsaw.
Post Office Inspector's Office,
Kingston.
October 16, 1889.

Dear Sir:

Bonds are never returned. They are cancelled and no claim can be made on a bond after the date of the new bond which supersedes. Mr. Elias Burnham and Mr. Achibald R. Kidd are the sureties, and they are freed of all responsibility on and after date of bond of your successor.

Thanks for your goodbye! Yes, I am the last rose of summer—left alone! I have seen all disappear who joined the Dept. on Civil Service when I did: Mr. Stayner; Mr. King, the accountant; my brother, the Deputy Postmaster-General; Wicksteed; Dewe; Grant Powell; Ashworth and all the others. I count 52 years' service and I am at my office before 9 o'clock every morning!



Yours faithfully,
GILBERT GRIFFIN.

T. Choate, Esq., Ex.-P.M. Warsaw.

GENIUS

Genius . . . has been defined as a supreme capacity for taking trouble . . . It might be more fitly described as a supreme capacity for getting its possessors into trouble of all kinds.

—Samuel Butler.

OLD RURAL ONTARIO, pump, stone grist mill and the miller's log house at Lang in Otonabee township. Mill and house belong to the first half of the last century; more modern are the pump, the towering elm (which is probably less than a hundred years old) and the cars.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Mighty Council Chamber On Otonabee

Serpent Mounds on Rice Lake were not constructed by the Mound Builders of 2,000 years ago, according to a theory advanced 43 years ago by a Toronto naturalist, Bonnycastle Dale.

Mr. Dale argued that a great slaughter of Mohawks by the Ojibway Indians resulted in a mass grave being built by the Ojibways and filled with the bodies of the massacred Mohawks.

In a graphic story of the battle, told in the Evening Eaminer of April 5, 1909, Mr. Dale recounted the words of Chief Paudash of the Hiawatha reserve.

NOT HURONS

The chief made it clear that his people — of the Hiawatha reserve — were not of the Huron tribe. They were Ojibways, a more warlike group.

"This Lake of Wild Rice (Bukwuche Wabuhnoomin) was ours long before the white man came. We caught the Kenojah (the maskinonge) — killed the Sheseeb (the wild duck) — and trapped the swift Shaungwasha (the mink) — when our father, Hiawatha, was chief of the red men," the chief began his story.

On those wooded shores of Rice Lake, the Ojibways hunted and fished in peace until the Mohawks came, driving the Hurons like sheep before them. In the chief's words: "All along the shores of the big lakes they drove the Huron before them as we drove the frightened deer."

Pressing beyond the boundaries of Huron territory, the Mohawks encountered tiny bands of Ojibways and slaughtered them.

To the head of their tribe on Lake Superior, the Ojibways sent runners to ask for help. Men came a month's journey, said the chief, from the Silver Water (Lake Superior), arriving as the wild rice was ripe.

On a plain at Campbellton — at the right-angle bend of the Otonabee four miles north of Rice Lake — the Ojibways built a council chamber. Chief Paudash's father was the chief of this group who had come to deal with the Mohawks.

"My father built a great camp on the Otonabee; built it of pine trees, a mighty council chamber. And then, they built another inside it," the chief's story ran.

Between the double walls of the council chamber was room for one warrior in every foot of the wide circle the chamber encompassed.

"We sent a messenger, told them to come to our camp and talk it over. We met them on the river bank, we left our knives and bows on the ground, then we all went in the big council tent.

KILLED THEM ALL

"Our chief threw the peace-pipe on the ground and we killed all that came."

"As the Mohawks disembarked and came slowly and watchfully up the hill, their hosts ostentatiously deposited their few remaining weapons on the pile at the door of this big tent-like structure.

"The visiting red men, murdering marauders though they had been, followed this simple wildwood courtesy of their hosts and laid all their visible weapons on the ground. Once inside they formed in two opposing half circles, squatted on the grass.

"How the keen desire, the taste of the coming slaughter must have surged through the bulging veins of the Ojibways! How the watchful Mohawks must have rolled their dark eye, nervous, anticipating they knew not what.

"Then the Ojibway chief, Megezee — the Eagle — took the peace-pipe, while from the hidden recesses of the double walls of that great green tent eyes that burned with hate told where the other half of the Ojibways were concealed.

"The silence, as the great chief of this powerful northern tribe raised the red stone pipe to his lips, was rent . . . by the war cry of the Ojibways. And as he dashed the emblem of peace to the ground, there leaped from out the pine walls of the council chamber a hacking, slashing, painted crowd of demons into the semi-light of the great tent.

From the council chamber the Ojibways rushed, throwing their torches to the walls to turn them into a funeral pyre for the massacred enemy.

RAIDED MOHAWKS

Then, to the camps of the Mohawks they went by canoe. The Mohawks had no sentries; what had they to fear from these despised fishermen and trappers, the Mississaugas, as they called this branch of the Ojibways.

In their camp the rest of the Mohawks were slaughtered, mostly drugged by sleep before they could retaliate. Next day they dug an immense trench, in the form of a serpent. Four mounds in the shape of turtles were erected nearby.

This was the final insult to the dead Mohawks; they would be buried in trenches and by mounds shaped like their emblems; the blacksnake and the turtle.

Archaeologists who have been digging at the Serpent Mounds this summer told no such story of the mounds' history. But they did say that when the mounds were first opened — in 1896 — a number of skeletons were found.

Below these skeletons was first a layer of earth, then a layer of rock, then the bones and implements of the mound builders of 2,000 years ago. These skeletons in the more shallowly buried layer may well have been those of the Mohawks who fell victim to the vengeance of the Ojibways.

A NICE PIE FROM COLD SALMON OR MACKEREL

SKIN the pieces, and remove all the bones. Then pound the fish very fine in a mortar, with mace, nutmeg, pepper and salt to taste. Raise the pie of paste, as for meat pies, and ornament the sides in the usual manner. Put the salmon in, and cover it, and bake until nicely browned. When it comes out of the oven, take off the top crust, and put in a little melted butter; cut a lemon in slices, and lay over the top; stick in two or three leaves of fennel, and send to table without a cover.

Cold Mackerel may be served in the same way, mixed with cold veal. The sauce to be poured into this, should be of melted butter, cream or milk, with chopped parsley. Or, bruise the roes of the mackerel, whether hard or soft, with the yolk of an egg; beat up with a little pepper and salt, and some fennel parsley chopped very fine, mixed with thin melted butter.

When a man has the headache, and says: "It's the salmon," you may safely conclude that he has been "drinking like a fish."

A-F-I-E-L-D with NICK NICKELS

In these modern times hunting is sport rather than a necessary means of filling the larder—or should be. And an aftermath of the fun is to preserve a trophy of it. It impresses your friends, if you are that type, or provides years of pleasant memories. Years, did I say? That is wrong for wives throw up their hands in horror at these moth-catching specimens around the house and side-track them into the garbage can on the first provocation.

Cavemen started this momento business in the steamy past when they made crude drawings of mammoth hunts on stone walls. We read of bloodthirsty conquerors preserving heads of their captives on pike staves. Perhaps they had something there. But this is getting away from my subject, taxidermy.

You would think in our Kawartha country of fish and game that taxidermy would be a lucrative business. It probably is, but search as you will, you will find it hard to locate anyone who mounts birds and animals.

Miss Elcombe's name as a trophy maker of fish specimens is well known in city and district as her father's was before her. But other types of wildlife go unmounted. This situation may be corrected as of now, for, through a tip-off from Constable Art Beardsmore, I was able to track down a young man of 17 who has already been in the business for five years. His name is Ralph Hall.

At the age of 12 he shot his first specimens, squirrels, and to date has gathered quite an impressive collection in his farm home. Ralph bought himself a mailorder course for $10.95 and applied himself diligently. His museum includes black, red and flying squirrels, two partridge, two wood ducks, a deer head, two owls, a raccoon and a raccoon rug, a deerfoot lamp and a groundhog.

The method of mounting birds and animals is similar, Ralph, tells me. First he skins the specimen out and cures the hide with borax. Then an artificial wire body is made and filled out to shape with excelsior. The tanned skin is placed over the form, sewed up and fur or feathers put back into place. Natural head bones filled with potters clay are used to shape the head and glass eyes inserted in eye sockets. The specimen is finally mounted on a suitable base and some daubs of varnish make it ready for the fireplace mantel. Partridge are the hardest things to prepare because their thin skin tears easily. Squirrels are the easiest.

TAXIDERMIST RALPH HALL WITH WOODCHUCK

Ralph Hall knows his wildlife. He traps muskrats and fox and skins rats, mink and beaver on custom basis for other trappers. Any day now you may see a shining new shingle by Highway 7 — RALPH HALL, TAXIDERMY; you will find him worth a visit.

He has never tried mounting fish, yet, but if fence-breaking trout fishermen on the Ouse start getting rambunctious he may stretch a hide or two on his barn. So far, he says, they are a peaceful lot.

How To End It All

There appears to be little sense in giving grave warnings to hunters to be careful with guns. Let us assume that some of them are asking for a hole in the head and in that case here are a few sure ways to get it:

(1) Take lots to drink on the hunt and keep reasonably pickled; it keeps out the cold.
(2) Squint down the gun barrel and snap the trigger with your big toe; this will ensure that there are no obstructions, other than ammunition, in the barrel.
(3) In worming through fences drag your gun after you; it slips through smaller openings that way.
(4) Don't make your outfit too conspicuous and tie a wreath of dead leaves around your cap so you will blend into the background and confuse watching deer.

If you would sit down for five minutes and give the thing serious thought many more simple ideas will come to you. And by all means before you leave home see that all insurance premiums are paid up; also have a current photo taken and leave it with the Little Woman. Newspaper obituaries look far more important with your picture at the top.

Your Garden: Organic Gardening: Restore Soil With Leaves of Trees

By HENRY FREE (NEA)

The leaves from one large shade tree are worth from $5 to $10 in terms of plant food and humus, according to one expert in the art of organic farming.

The old gardener, long an advocate of organic gardening, agrees that leaves are fertilizer, and like all other organic wastes, should be treasured and used to their fullest.

The proof of this is the rich black soil that is found when forest lands are cleared and cultivated. These lands produce the finest, most abundant crops in the world.

What makes the leaves so valuable? Pound for pound, the leaves of many of our common trees contain twice as much minerals as manure, according to expert estimates. The leaf of a sugar maple has a mineral content of over 5 per cent and trace elements abide in abundance.

The greatest benefits derived from leaves are their large amounts of fibrous organic material. All types of soil can be improved structurally with the humus-building qualities found in leaves. Heavy clay soils are aerated, and sandy soils are prevented from drying out too quickly.

The leaves of the ash, sugar maple, tulip tree and basswood are the highest in minerals and make the best fertilizer in the shortest time. Other common species can be used if they are readily available.

It is important to remember that leaves must be used as soon after they fall from the trees as possible, for they lose much of their humus-producing qualities when allowed to decay on the ground.

Leaves can be spread directly on the soil and disked several times to break them up, or they can be mixed with manure and composted. Grass clippings, old straw, etc., can be used to great advantage when composted with leaves.

TWIG DROPPING IS NORMAL

This is the twig-dropping season for some trees, a phenomenon that alarms home owners. Twig falling is part of the tree's defence mechanism. It is simply getting rid of appendages to reduce nourishment needs and there is no real cause for worry.

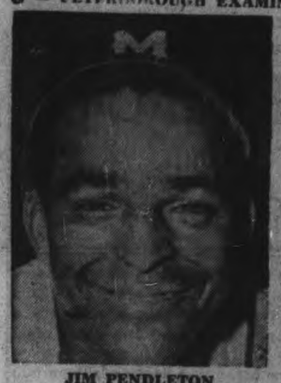
The big plants are apt to compensate for possible lack of nourishment, particularly in areas subject to drought conditions this summer. Twig falling generally represents the last annual growth.

GATHER LEAVES for use soon after they fall from trees before they lose humus-producing qualities.

You may have reason to suspect the twig litter on your grounds is excessive. In that case, it is a good idea to consult the tree expert. Either twig pruners or twig girdlers, or both, may be the real trouble. These insects actually sever the twigs from parent branches.

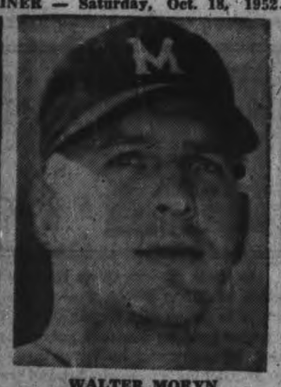
Trees also may show nutritional distress by leaf scorch and premature leaf shedding. Feeding with a balanced tree fertilizer high in nitrogen content usually is enough to correct the twig falling condition.

Gardening Questions



Q—I have started a rose shoot eight weeks ago. I still have the glass on it. Last year my friend started one the same time I did but removed the glass in the fall. —W. N. C.

A—Roses started from cuttings taken this summer should have the glass removed now to allow hardening of wood before winter. Any flower buds should be removed at once because strength should go to root—not flower development. Cover the rooted cuttings with a mound of sand for winter protection and early next spring transplant to the rose garden.



Q—Our Madonna Lilies have long passed on and we wonder what to do since their foliage is unattractive?

A—The stalks of Madonna Lilies may be cut back to the ground as they have finished blooming. The basal leaves which develop late in summer must be permitted to remain on all winter.

Britain Restricts Ticket Sales

100,000 Watch Dog Race But Only 70,000 Prize Fight

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Jack Solomons, king of British boxing impresarios, has big ideas for a mammoth coronation-year show of his own. But he says existing restrictions on fight crowds will have to be relaxed to make it a success.

Overtures have been made to the handlers of the world middleweight champion, Sugar Ray Robinson, and Joe Maxim, ruler of the light-heavies, with an outside chance that former heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott may be enticed to London next year.

But promoter Solomons, who runs a fish business and a "bookie" establishment as sidelines, states bluntly that it takes a king's size crowd and plenty of folding-money to bring top-notch fighters into the same ring.

"My bother is not with the boxers," Solomons says. "On the whole those guys and I get along fine together—even the Maxims and the Robinsons. No, my headache comes from the officials who control the size of London boxing crowds."

CEILING ON CROWDS

For his periodic shows, staged in London's huge White City Stadium, Jack must restrict his ticket sales to about 50,000 customers, while 80,000 are permitted to watch greyhound racing in the same enclosure. At Wembley, more than 100,000 spectators are admitted to the annual soccer cup tie, while the maximum crowd attending a fight program there would be limited to 65,000.

The payoff, however, Jack says, is the crowd regulation affecting Stamford Bridge, home of the Chelsea football club and the greyhound racing track. For the club's soccer games, some 70,000 may be admitted, with even more than that for dog races.

If Solomons attempted to stage a return match there between champion Ray Robinson and Britain's two-fisted slugger, Randolph Turpin, a crowd limit of some 11,000 would be imposed.

Existing laws that say it is safe for 100,000 or more to watch a football game or dog race, while it is deemed unsafe for about 70,000 to assemble if the attraction is boxing, are not only unreasonable, inconsistent, but "plain daft" Solomons argues.

Hildebrand's Score Gives Cleveland Win

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A disputed third-period goal by Ike Hildebrand gave Cleveland Barons a 2-1 victory over the defending champion Pittsburgh Hornets last night in an American Hockey League opener.

Goal judge Jack Powell ruled that Hornet goalie Gil Mayer had stopped the puck with his hand but referee Bill Morrison overruled him, giving the goal—and the victory—to Cleveland.

The Barons scored first on Ray Ceresino's angle shot at 9:33 of the first period. Pittsburgh tied it up at 7:23 of the second period as rookie Bob Sabourin broke loose and skated the length of the ice, passing to Ray Timgren who scored. Sabourin crashed into the boards on the play and suffered a possible rib fracture.

Attendance was given as 2,500.

Baltimore Racer, 64 To Try In Marathon

BALTIMORE (AP) — The old man of distance racing, Clarence H. Demar, is going to try running 26 miles in the third annual Baltimore marathon Sunday.

"He'll finish," predicted Don Heinicke, race chairman. Heinicke bases that on personal observation, having been beaten by 64-year-old De Mar 14 years ago and watching him finish the Boston marathon last year.

De Mar, a printer from Reading, Mass., missed the Boston marathon for the first time in decades this year. He won it seven times. But he announced he wasn't retiring.

B. McCarrell Leads

Bert McCarrell took high three with 925 this week in the City Bowling League at Duffus', as C. Cornwall had best single of 367. Madill & Post led teams with 3734 and single of 1357. They took over first place by sweeping Sunocos, and McGillis over Monumental, Shockey's, C.I.O.-I.U.E. and Payne's. B. McCarrell won the special prize with another going to Tony White.

Neat triples were: W. Stanbury 803, A. Pilling 745, H. Mowry 818, N. Gordon 739, J. Wade 732, C. Cornwall 775, G. Macdonald 718, C. Dunn 710, H. Gordon 795, J. Playford 802, G. Walton 716, P. Pryde 730, and A. Caccavella 706. Good singles included B. McCarrell 354 and 315, J. Playford 345, P. Pryde 349, H. Mowry 315 and 317, and J. Murray 291.

MERCS LOSE ANOTHER

NORTH BAY (CP)—North Bay Trappers of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association last night nosed out Owen Sound Mercurys of the Ontario Hockey Association senior A league 5-4 in an exhibition game.

Six of the nine goals came in the third period, including the winner by Chic Cecchini. Other North Bay marksmen were George Gosselin, Don Hogan, Bill Dwyer and Al Lewsey. Owen Sound scorers were Rusty Aiken, Mac McCallum, Kazarian and Tommy Burlington.

For Owen Sound it was the second loss in as many starts on an exhibition tour of the north. They dropped a 4-1 verdict to Pembroke Thursday.

Orfuns Take Over Top Spot With 10-9 Grid Win Over The Galloping Ghosts

Peterborough Orfuns jerked out a 10-9 win over Cobourg's Galloping Ghosts here last night before nearly 1,500 grid fans in Morrow Park to take over sole possession of top spot in their O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" grouping. These same squads tangle again in a highly important fray in Cobourg next Saturday and that game will probably decide which club goes into provincial "A" playdowns and which one hits the "B" trail. Orfuns have now won six straight after one loss and have 16 points—as wins over Kingston were four-pointers—while Cobourg has 14 points, but with a game to play with Kingston yet.

A FINE FRAY

It was first-class football. While there were a few roughing penalties and a few fumbles that hurt both sides, the rivals were very well matched and they played cautious football all the way. The low score testifies to that. It was 1-0 for Tony Kotowski's crew in the first quarter, and 6-4 for Art West's bunch at the halfway mark. The Ghosts were blanked in the third as Orfuns got six points, but the visitors tallied the only three of the fourth. Play at the finish was deep in Peterborough territory, but Orfuns had possession.

Three of the Gallopers were banged up in the clean but hard-hitting fray. Jake Edminston got it in the first quarter with a bang on the ribs. Coon Medhurst was hit on the head in a scramble in the next heat and had to retire. Red Alexander left with a knee injury in the fourth stanza. Jerry McGillis was missed by the Petes, being out with an army injury.

PLAYED CAREFULLY

After two previous extra close matches between these teams, the Ghosts and Orfuns played it exceptionally close to their vests. They took few chances, and there weren't many forward passes over the route. Both teams stuck to straight football on the ground, mainly plunges, with the odd end run and extension. The kicking was fairly even, with Jack Matthews possibly having a little edge in distance over Don Hatt. Again, the local line was probably a bit tougher to pierce than the Cobourg wall, though the Ghosts drove hard through them on two occasions. It was a pretty even match.

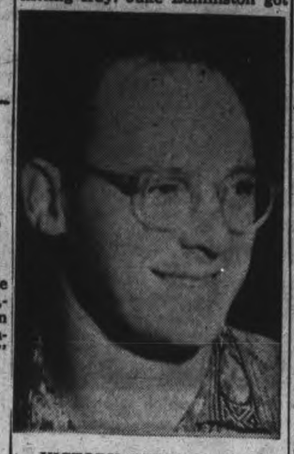
There were no particular stars in this contest. The backfielders showed up well when they had the openings up front. The passing was generally good, but there wasn't much of it. The kicking was fairly even, and the front lines held well most of the way in the stiff going. It would be unfair to single out stars in such a close and low-scoring contest, one that the fans enjoyed thoroughly. Several hundred attended from Cobourg.

GOT A POINT

Berry recovered a Petes' fumble early in the tilt on a Hatt hoot to the home 45. It was up and down for a space between the 40-yard chalks, and then Milligan opened [illegible] Matthews followed and Clive Naismith got in there fast to rouge Boyd Hendry over the line for a point. Cobourg later kicked to the Orfuns' 35 but Milligan passed up to Don McGillis for 10. A local fumble followed and Cobourg had it but missed on passes and had to kick. Lou Nickle and Rabbit White bucked for yards near the finish.

White and Armstrong plunged to move the sticks and Milligan flipped a 25-yarder to Naismith. He threw a shorter one to Wilde and White bucked four to get right into paydirt. But a fumble lost the ball next play and Hatt booted out to Berry on Cobourg's 32. A handoff to White, and bucks by Wilde and Army moved it up again, with Armstrong then kicking a field goal. Cobourg drove back on runs by Hendry, Currelly, Medhurst, Alexander, and Brodie to finally get it within range, for a run around end by Brodie for a major, Art Jones kicking the convert to make it 6-4.

SCORED A MAJOR



Groves pulled a 25-yard runback on a kick in the third, but the Ghosts broke through on Milligan, who attempted a pass, for a big horse loss. They kicked afterward when held, and Army and Huntley began driving on plunges through the line, with White bucking the convert to make it 10-6. His drive was from about 5 yards out. Hatt passed to Hendry and Brodie took a lateral. A Petes' roughing penalty followed and then a buck by Alexander took it to Orfuns' 18 as the quarter ended.

Art Jones kicked a placement to start the fourth and that ended the scoring. Jim Wilde ran 30 on a reverse and Huntley bucked for yards. Magee then intercepted a pass and Alexander knifed the line for six. Brodie got seven more, but then they were stopped and kicked. Huntley and Armstrong came back on solid plunging as they stuck to the ground attack. A roughing penalty put them back and they booted. Flesch got through for 20, but they finally lost on downs on some fine tackling by Fitzgerald, Trimm, and Beatty. That did it, as Huntley bucked for nine and they were driving up in the late stages when Cobourg blocked a kick, but it went out of touch and the Orfuns had the ball at the finish. Teams:

Orfuns — R. Wilde, J. Wilde, Jensen, Hodson, Beatty, Huntley, Armstrong, Berry, White, Naismith, Russelle, Thompson, DeCarlo, Beavis, Ouellette, Burns, Matthews, Trimm, Howe, Newark, Milligan, Giardino, Trimm, Fitzgerald, Bartley, Nickle, Conlin, Groves, D. McGillis, Berthelot.

Officials—Taylor, Service and Fry.

VICTORY SMILE — Coach Tony Kotowski of the local grid Orfuns was wearing that victory smile after last night's 10-9 win here over Cobourg as his team had taken its sixth straight victory. But Tony was quick to admit that his club had a real tough task in the return game in Cobourg next Saturday. It is the one which will likely decide the group winner.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

A guy rises in wrath to tell us that it's not true that our lacrossers brought the only Canadian sports championship to Peterborough. Points out that several chaps have done that in the past. Quite true, there have been a few individuals. We believe Gene Hurtubise many years ago was recognized as a Canuck amateur wrestling champion. We recall Al Marshall winning the Canadian swimming breast-stroke title. And Jack Dugan won the Dominion amateur middleweight boxing crown not so long back. Yet no other local team but the Timbermen won a Canadian title, though several squads—as recent in hockey as the Petes of 1940—took Eastern Canada honors. Where no east-west competition occurs, one can't claim a Canadian championship.

* * * * * *

Cobourg's Galloping Ghosts have been boasting for the past decade of winning several intermediate grid championships of Canada. But all they won were Eastern Canada titles. The 1952 C.R.U. annual book doesn't mention Cobourg in its list of Canadian intermediate champs, but it does list Hamilton Panthers, who beat the west for it last year. Which brings on this, more in sorrow than in anger:

"Dominion champions," Cobourg boasts—
The bragging gridiron Galloping Ghosts;
Such talk's strictly for the birds,
The record book has no such words;
They've never a Canadian pennant unfurled—
Next they'll say they're champs of the world!

* * * * * *

Really a Close Fit, Eh?

Be that as it may, the Rapid Wraiths gave the Orfuns quite a scrap here last e'en ere bowing 10-9, and you can't make it much closer than that. It was a dandy duel between two well-matched squads, and the big one is next Saturday when they clash again to probably decide which one goes into the provincial "A" hunt and which settles for the "B" trail. Yeah, a swell struggle, and as keen and exciting as a Big Four number. They both played it carefully, though we think Tony Kotowski's classy pack had a little edge on the play. The kicking of Jack Matthews, Jim Milligan's few but accurate passes, and the plunging of Armstrong, Huntley and White, proved a strong offensive. The whole line was real solid but for two hard Cobourg drives.

* * * * * *

You could hardly single out stars in this fray. It was too close and there wasn't much scoring for a football match. That single point, when Clive Naismith early got up there fast on a walloping boot by Matthews for a rouge, actually spelled the difference. Each side then got a converted touchdown, and each side booted a placement. It was that close. Three of the Ghosts retired after a banging up in the hard-hitting but clean contest. A few roughing penalties on each side, but a generally clean game. Several hundred fans on deck from Cobourg and they whooped it up plenty. We sat next to the Cobourg "spotter" in the press box, the comely daughter of Fred Dufton, manager of the Ghosts, and neither one of us wanted to bet a dime on the outcome. Yeah, the Westian Wraiths and the Kotowski Orfuns have a real tussle coming up yet on the gridiron overlooking Lake Ontario before this group race is finished.

High Schoolers In Action

Three high school grid games concerning local teams today, but two are out of town. P.C.V.S. seniors are off for Alliston to tackle Banting District H. S. in a sudden-death joust to see which club represents this area in the big Red Feather tournament next weekend in Toronto. Junior P.C.I.-ers have a group game with Oshawa C.V.I. in the Motor City. The tilt here is at 2.30 in Morrow Park between Oshawa Central and St. Peter's juniors with the group leadership at stake. Neither team has suffered a reverse so far this semester. All high school football will be cleaned up within the next few weeks. C.O.S.S.A. finals are billed for Nov. 15.

IRATE SMYTHE PROTESTS

TORONTO (CP)—Conn Smythe, managing-director of Toronto Maple Leafs, last night announced that he has filed an official protest with Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, against the refereeing of George Gravel.

The protest followed the Leafs' 2-1 defeat by Boston Bruins in Boston Thursday night.

Although the protest was made over the game it was directed at Gravel's action in giving Tod Sloan of the Leafs and Leo Labine of the Bruins match penalties following a stick-swinging bout

"I'm protesting the game finally to get my point across about Gravel," Smythe said. "This is the third time Gravel has been involved in match penalties to Toronto players. I'm getting sick of it. I've had enough. We're not getting a break."

Five stitches were required to close a wound in Sloan's face when, according to Sloan, Labine cross-checked him into the boards and cut him across the front of the head. Labine was not injured.

Both players were given match penalties under N.H.L. Rule 44 "attempt to injure." Smythe maintained the penalties should have been under Rule 49 "deliberate injury of opponent."

The Leaf mentor said Labine should have been penalized under the "deliberate injury of opponent" rule while Sloan should have been charged under "attempt to injure."

Under the "deliberate" ruling the guilty player is retired from the game, automatically fined $100 and his team must play shorthanded for 10 minutes. The player also faces further penalties from the league president.

3 BILTS CALLED UP

MONTREAL (AP) — Manager Frank Boucher of New York Rangers yesterday called up three youngsters from Guelph Biltmores for a trial with the National Hockey League club.

The three, all 20 years old, are defenceman Harry Howell, centre Andy Bathgate and left-winger Leo Reise, who is expected to Miss the games with Toronto tonight and with Boston tomorrow.

Barrie's Flyers Move Ahead, Beat Gens 4-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barrie Flyers forged ahead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A race last night, carrying their unbeaten streak to four games. Their first-place lead was strengthened by a 4-3 win over Oshawa Generals, sitting next-to-last with only a tie to their credit.

Last night's action also saw the Kitchener Greenshirts move into second place, downing the last-place Windsor Spitfires 4-0. Windsor hasn't won a game in four starts.

GUELPH WINS FIRST

Guelph Biltmores won their first game in four by trouncing Toronto Marlboros 4-2. The Bilts are tied for third place with the Marlboros at three points, one point behind Toronto St. Michael's and Galt Black Hawks.

Barrie fought a see-saw battle with Oshawa before Ken Collins scored the tie-breaker in the third. The Flyers took an early lead on a goal by Bill Stewart and Bob Mader in the second. Ralph Willis put Barrie ahead early in the third but Harry Armstrong tied it up. Then Collins slammed in the winner.

Kitchener goalie Bill Harrington chalked up his first shutout of the season by holding off the luckless Spitfires. Len Croke led the Shirts attack with two goals. Singles were potted by Orv Tessier and Grieg Hicks.

MARLIES BOW EARLY

After a scoreless first period at Guelph, the Bilts opened on a goal by Billy McCreary. Wally Maxwell tied it up three minutes later. Guelph went ahead again on a long shot by defenceman Ted Brady, his first in two seasons. McCreary and Irv Scott took advantage of two minor penalties to Marlboros to increase Guelph's lead. The final Marlboro goal was netted by Louis Bendo.

US Vs. European Horse Race Seen Experiment

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—A long-range effect on international horse racing probably will come out of today's Washington International race as well as the winner among four foreign and three United States thoroughbreds.

The $50,000 Laurel race is being watched as an experiment by horse experts on both sides of the Atlantic. They all admit it's not a case of the best American thoroughbreds racing the best European, but the ingredients for such future events are present.

The most important aspect to breeders and owners is whether horses can be taken across the ocean and quickly be ready for a good showing. This test is being made in the Laurel race.

ONE CANADIAN ENTRY

Zucchero, owned by George Rolls and Wilwyn, owned by R.C. Boucher, were flown from England just last Tuesday. The other two foreign entries, Max Bell's Indian Hemp, representing Canada, and Baron H. Thyssen's Niederlander from Germany, have been over here only a few weeks.

Indian Hemp was purchased by Bell, a Calgary publisher, in England where it did all its racing.

This is the first time several horses from different countries have met in the United States. In 1923, the Epsom Derby winner Papyrus and the Kentucky Derby winner Zev met in a match race in New York. The American horse won easily.

The English felt avenged in 1936 when the Triple Crown winner, Omaha, went over for the Ascot gold cup and was beaten by the appropriately named Quashed.

U.S. FAVORED

A majority of American experts figure the U.S. entries will run one-two-three in the Laurel race. Greek Ship, the most successful turf runner of the year in the U.S., is rated the choice with Pilaster second. Pilaster is a rugged horse and always at his best this time of the year.

Zucchero is given the best chance of upsetting the American applecart. The four-year-old will have one of England's best jockeys, Charlie Smirke, to curb any of his noted temperamental acts.

On the other hand, Greek Ship is to be ridden by the top U.S. jockey, Eddie Arcaro.

Post time is 4:15 p.m.

Weekend's Play In N.H.L. May Give Montreal Edge Over Chicago Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League may have a new leader after weekend games. Montreal Canadiens, now two points behind the league-leading Chicago Black Hawks, can go in front by beating Boston Bruins tonight and Detroit Red Wings Sunday. The Sunday fixture is second-place Detroit's only weekend contest.

The other game tonight finds New York Rangers visiting Toronto. The Maple Leafs go to Chicago Sunday while Rangers meet Boston. Sunday's Chicago fixture may give some indication of whether the Black Hawks are reverting to previous year's paralyzed play.

N.Y. ADDS STRENGTH

The revamped Hawks started this year in terrific fashion by winning their first four games, before being dumped 7-0 by the Red Wings Thursday night.

The winless Leafs tonight encounter a refurbished New York squad. Beaten in three consecutive starts, Rangers have brought up three youngsters from Guelph Biltmore Juniors in the Ontario Hockey Association. The trio are defenceman Harry Howell, centre Andy Bathgate and left-winger Dean Prentice.

Howell will fill in for injured Leo Reise, expected to miss weekend games because of torn shoulder ligaments.

SMYTHE KICKS UP FUSS

Conn Smythe, Toronto's managing director, announced last night he has filed a protest with N.H.L. President Clarence Campbell over the refereeing of George Gravel. Smythe claimed Gravel discriminated against the Leafs in handing out a match penalty to Tod Sloan Thursday night when Toronto was beaten 2-1 by Boston.

Smythe said he was protesting "to finally get my point across about Gravel. This is the third time Gravel has been involved in match penalties to Toronto players. I'm getting sick of it. I've had enough. We're not getting a break."

It took five stitches to close a wound on Sloan's face. He said Labine cross-checked him into the boards and cracked him over the head. Labine also was given a match penalty.

Claim Communist Leader Falsified Pope's Views

By BARRETT McGURN
New York Herald Tribune News Service

ROME—Pope Pius XII's conviction that the central social problem no longer is the advancement of worker benefits but the defense against an all-engulfing socialization has provoked one of the bitterest postwar clashes here between the Pontiff and the head of Italy's Communists, Palmiro Togliatti.

The Pope, through his acting-secretary of state, Monsignor Giovanni Battista Montini, has protested that Togliatti "malignly twisted" the Pontiff's concept in a recent open-air address in Rome.

Togliatti said that the Pope's stand now is that society substantially has solved the problem of raising laborers to the level of the upper classes and of subtracting workers from the uncertainties of economic life. He added that the Pope's new stand denies the necessity of nationalizing great enterprises which enrich a few monopolists even at the expense of national economies, and that the Pope's stand also denies the right of workers to increase their own wealth through participation in management.

"L'Osservatore Romano," the Vatican newspaper, in an unusual front-page statement, said that the Communist leader falsified the Pope's views and that the Pope "highly appreciated" telegrams that he had received from the leaders of the Rome Catholic clergy and laity denouncing Togliatti's interpretation.

ACTUAL VIEWS

The Pontiff's actual views, according to a text of a recent Papal statement on the subject, is this:

The social struggle of modern times may be divided into two phases, the first of which seems to have reached a climax and the second of which appears to have begun. The first phase consisted of raising the miserable conditions of the laboring class, abandoned as it was to the ebb and flow of economis situations. The task was to give these citizens clearly established rights.

At least in the essentials this task now has been accomplished. The supreme question and task of the second phase of the social struggle is different.

The individual and the family must be defended against the vortex into which "the socialization of everything seeks to swallow them," a socialization "at the end of which the terrible picture of Leviathan would become a terrible reality."

Leviathan is the monstrous creature mentioned several times in the Old Testament.

SUPREME MATTERS AT STAKE

The same Catholic Church which campaigned for workers' rights will fight the battle of the second phase with "extreme decision because supreme matters are at stake, the dignity of man and the salvation of his soul," the Papal text said. The reason the Papacy denies that the work contract gives labor the right of comanagement is because the greater right of private property is involved, the text said. Private property is a right flowing directly from the dignity of the human person and even though that right includes clear social obligations, it is none the less a right and not just "a social function," the text said.

Togliatti in his speech used the Papal statement as the basis of one of his few direct attacks on the Pope. In the past, Communists have been cautious in this overwhelmingly Roman Catholic country.

A telegram from clergy and laity published by the Vatican paper showed the Pontiff that the Catholics of Rome were with him "to the death" recognizing him as one who goes even to the "sacrifice of himself" in his "ever more vigorous defense of the Church's divine right."

Togliatti gave strong indications that he would attempt to use the Pope's new concept as a major electioneering point in Italy's second postwar national political campaign now beginning.

30TH BLOOD DONATIONS

Ab Adamson and Sam Agnew, both employees of the C.G.E. made their 30th donations to the Red Cross Blood Bank during September. Mr. Adamson made his first donation in December, 1942, and Mr. Agnew his first in February, 1943.

ELECTED TO I.U.E.

Gloria Lang, former secretary of Local 599, International Union of Electrical Radio and Machine Workers (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) has been elected to the international executive of the I.U.E. She is the only Canadian trustee. Local 599 is the bargaining agent for the C.G.E. office workers.

FEW FLOWERS LEFT

Dr. S. Y. Walsh's border of salvias at Rubidge and Charlotte Streets were among the stricken flowers after last night's frost. Other victims were the leaves of the catalpas and the Duchman's Pipe vines. It hastened the falling of the maple leaves. Lawns and sidewalks were ankle deep with their parchment foliage this morning.

FIRST CREW

Approximately 15 Junior Farmers of Peterborough county will make up the first crew for clearing brush from the Cedar Lakes park project. The Junior Farmers will work at the park on Wednesday. Crews from other organizations in the city and district are planning to travel to the park on future dates to continue the brush clearing.

C.G.E. GENERATOR

Waters of the Nechako river in British Columbia have been diverted through a ten-mile tunnel to feed the Kemano powerhouse and to drive a generator which will be built at the Peterborough C.G.E. works. The large project has deprived the river of water and from now on it will be dry. The power generated at Kemano will be transmitted to the aluminum smelters at Kitimat on the Pacific coast.

Feared Slain, Men, Girl Found

CHESTER, Calif. (AP)—A 200-man posse was dismissed early today after two men and a little girl who had been missing since last night turned up safely northwest of here. Sheriff's officers had feared a repetition of the robbery-massacre of a grocer and three children a week ago.

Grim-faced, armed lumbermen had massed swiftly to scour the rugged country where only a week ago the beaten bodies of grocer Guard Young and three small children were found stuffed into an auto trunk.

However, shortly before 5 a.m., the sheriff's office got a report that they were found.

Seeks Sister

CHICAGO (AP) — Joseph H. Hammer yesterday asked the missing persons bureau to help him find his sister, Mrs. Mary Bright, who left home in 1881—71 years ago—to get married. "I'm getting along in years," Hammer said, "and I figured it was time to look her up." Hammer, who lives in a home for retired railroad men, is 88. His sister would be 91 if she still is alive.

RAMBLING RABBIT RETURNS

A large cottontail which during the past several cool nights has visited the George St.-Parkhill Road neighborhood, paid another visit to that area Friday night and it was nearly disastrous for him. The rabbit raced across the traffic-packed George St. Drivers going both north and south slammed on the car brakes; the cars stopped; the cottontail stopped. Then, after a second caught in the car-lights, Peter scurried back between the houses.

$1,700 In Tobacco Stolen From Transport

Thieves stole about $1,700 worth of cigarettes, tobacco and cigars early Friday from a transport in the lot of Hamilton-Peterborough Freight Lines, 248 Rink St.

The theft occurred sometime between midnight and dawn. It was discovered by employees who were about to unload the truck, about 10 a.m.

The tail-gate was removed from transport and the covering tarpaulin loosened. Eight cartons containing the cigarettes, tobacco and cigars, valued at $1,700, were removed.

The theft appeared carefully planned. City police believe that a car, stolen from in front of the home of Mrs. Minta Hill of 546 Homewood Ave., was used to load the tobacco in.

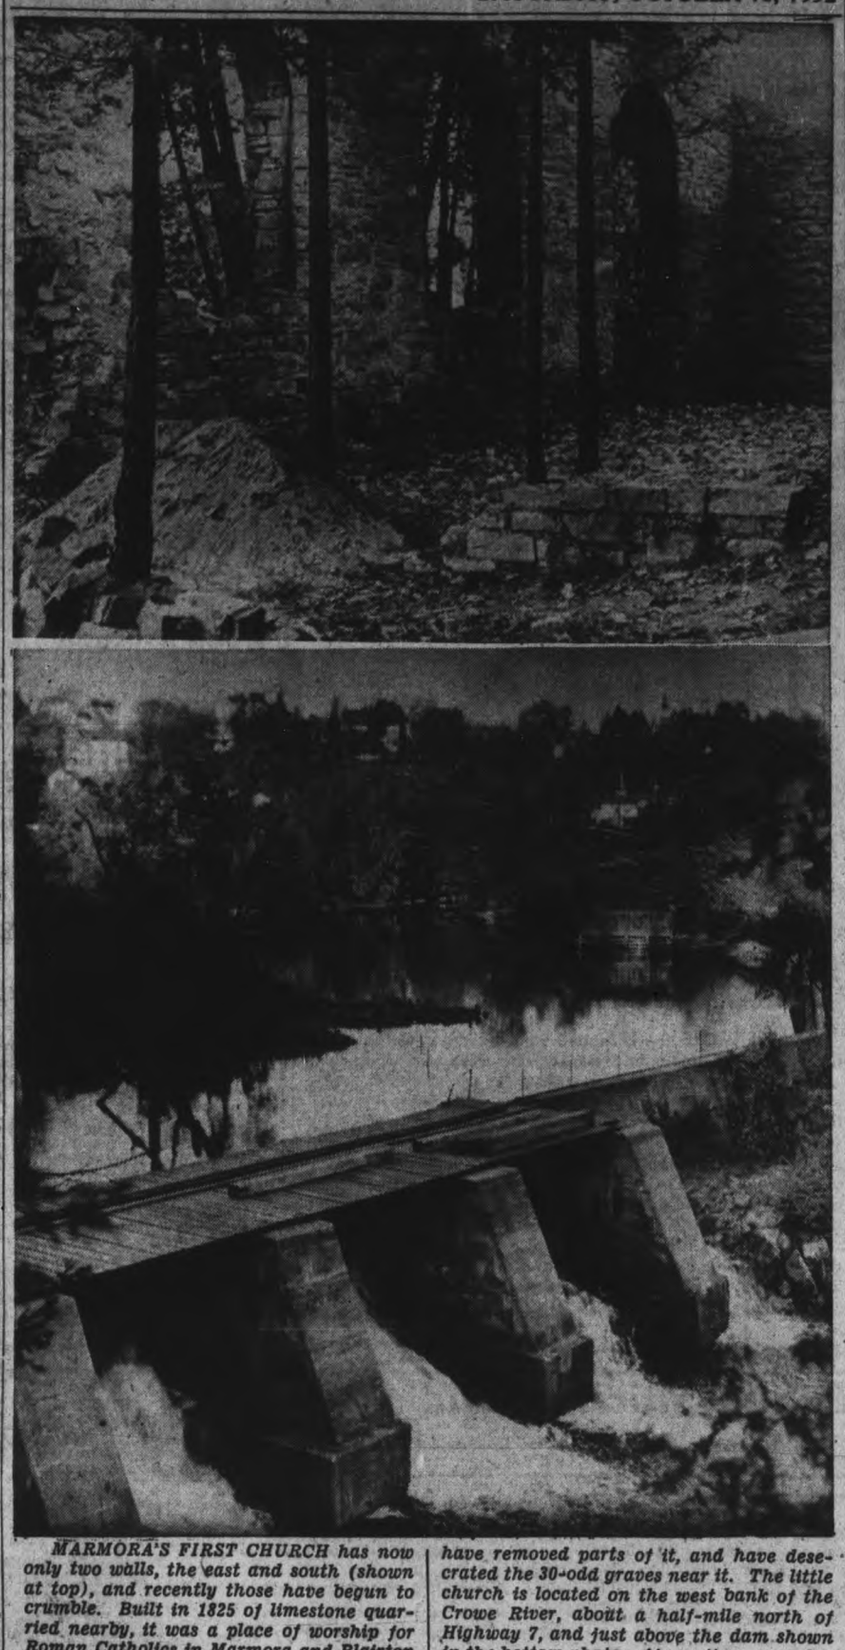
Fail To Find Burning Car

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS — Town firemen were routed out of bed at 2.30 a.m. today by the wailing of the fire siren.

They raced north into Seymour township about six miles along Highway 30 to the old airport where a fire had been reported by the night constable of Campbellford, Fred Cargin.

They could find no fire and the truck returned to the town with its cavalcade of cars following.

One of the firemen, Graydon Bell, stopping for coffee before going back to bed learned that there really had been a fire. A car was burning a little farther out than the truck had gone.



With a reporter tagging along, the fireman went out and found the car still blazing fiercely with O.P.P. Constable George Rose and Constable Cargin standing beside it.

Fireman Bell sped back into town and returned with three extinguishers and, with the help of the police, put out the flames.

The car was owned by 21-year-old Raymond Saltern, 451 Howden Ave., Peterborough. Police reported he said he had had a previous fire in the car Wednesday night, but had managed to put it out before damage was done.

Early today, he first noticed the fire when flames began shooting up through the floor boards of the car as he was coming down Murphy's hill.

He tried the brakes, but they didn't work and he geared the car down and jumped clear. He injured an ankle slightly in the jump.

MARMORA'S FIRST CHURCH has now only two walls, the east and south (shown at top), and recently those have begun to crumble. Built in 1825 of limestone quarried nearby, it was a place of worship for Roman Catholics in Marmora and Blairton until 1875, when it was abandoned in favor of a newer and larger church. Vandals have removed parts of it, and have desecrated the 30-odd graves near it. The little church is located on the west bank of the Crowe River, about a half-mile north of Highway 7, and just above the dam shown in the bottom photo. At one time a wooden bridge spanned the Crowe not far above this dam.—(Examiner Staff Photos)

Make Shrine Of Church Ruins

MARMORA (Staff).—Ruins of a 127-year-old Roman Catholic church on the west bank of the Crowe River form one of the few remaining links between the iron industry's past and present in this district. It was the first church built in Marmora.

Surrounded by cedars and pines, the south and east walls are all that remain of the tiny chapel which was a place of worship for Catholics of Blairton and Marmora.

Vandals have removed the window sash from the gothic windows of the church; lumberjacks have slept in it since its abandonment, and the double row of graves not far from it has been desecrated.

ON BANK OF CROWE

Its location is a beautiful one. It is about half-a-mile north of Highway 7 on the west bank of the Crowe River, only about 60 yards from the water. To the west of it are limestone cliffs that once were a shore of Lake Iroquois.

Lake Ontario and a good deal of the present north and south shores of Lake Ontario. Its main source in the Peterborough district was the Indian River. Incidentally, the lake covered the ground that is now the site of Peterborough.)

Through public subscription, it is hoped to partially restore the church, and maintain it as a shrine. The standing walls will be capped with concrete to prevent further wear by the weather, and an attempt will be made to restore windows as well.

NEAR NEW STAFF HOUSE

In charge of the restoration work on the church is J. D. Cumming, a mining engineer, who is contributing his time. Voluntary labor will probably do the work, and the ruins will be used as a shrine.

It was the place of worship for some employees of the Blairton iron mine, and at present is located only a few yards north of the staff house and executive houses being built for employees of Marmoraton Mines, the subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel Corp. that is working an open pit, low-grade iron mine southeast of Marmora.

The man who sparked the building of the church was Anthony Monahan, born in Ireland in 1794, who came to Marmora from Kingston to manage the iron mines at Blairton. It was he who was responsible for the choice of site.

Although the location seems out of the way now, it was ideal and central at the time. The church, when built, was not far from the west end of a wooden bridge which crossed the Crowe River at that time.

Worshippers coming from Marmora had some distance farther to go, but made the trek across the southern arm of Crowe Lake and then across country to the church.

TRAIL REMAINS

The trail they left is still visible and easily followed through the light bush north and west of the church. It is a pleasant walk through beautiful woodland.

Built of limestone quarried near Marmora, the church was about 43 by 25 feet. Facing the north was the entrance, its style that of the gothic windows that remain in the east wall.

Set high in the gable above the entrance was a small circular window. The side-wall windows were six feet wide, and have enough of the moulding left to show the type used. Glass in all windows was plain; there were four panes in the lower sections and three fan-shaped panes in the top part of each.

On the peak of the roof above the entrance was an iron cross, which was duplicated on the rear peak. The roof had a low pitch, and there was a stone chimney on the southwest corner.

In the days of its use, the church had an interior of plaster-covered lath, which followed the line of the rafters to a point short of the peak, where it curved in, instead of reproducing the angle of the roof.

Three-inch-thick planks of pine were used for the floor; they were tongued and grooved, and made by hand. These same planks now form part of a building owned by a Mrs. McGraw of Marmora.

HAND-MADE PLANKS

One tale of the church has it that the first pews were simply squared timbers, but those who recall the furnishings say that the pews were seats of pine, simply made. Total cost of the church is said to have been $200.

Still buried in the cemetery that is across the old road from the church are some Shannons (pioneers of Marmora), and Alexander McCollum. Mr. McCollum came from Cushindall in County Antrim, Ireland, and lived near Deloro on a crown grant.

On his way with food for men cutting marsh grass, he became lost along the river and died. His body was found the following spring and buried in the cemetery.

First to be buried in the cemetery was John Hughes, a son of [illegible] who chose the site of the church. John Hughes was drowned in the river nearby.

The late Mrs. John A. McCollum, a granddaughter of Laughlin Hughes, was married in the church and four of her children were baptized in it.

The church was built with the help of all denominations: Anglicans helping Catholics, as all denominations have aided each other in various village enterprises since.

By 1875 the little church was no longer in use. It had been superseded by Sacred Heart Church, built on the site of the new Catholic church in Marmora. Its lifetime in use was 50 years; its life as a shrine may be several times that.

Single Punch Costs Powless $445 In Court

A crushing one-punch blow — delivered during an argument with a workmate back in December, 1951—is going to cost Ross Powless, Peterborough lacrosse star, the sum of $445.

Victim of the blow was Douglas A. Metheral of R.R. 6, Peterborough, who was doing carpentry work on a Lansdowne St. service station last December when he got into an argument with Powless. The argument was trivial but the physical results weren't.

Metheral, who weighed about 145 pounds, was struck just once by Powless. He was knocked back three feet and sprawled upside down across a work bench.

Metheral lay unconscious for three minutes and was later found to have suffered a chipped eyesocket bone, fractured cheekbone, fractured nose, and three damaged teeth. He was away from work for three days and he still has a slight facial disfigurement as well as a potential sinus condition.

There was no police court action but Metheral sued in county court for damages.

Judge John de N. Kennedy awarded him $144.80 in special damages; $200 for general damages caused by pain and suffering, and for injuries and facial disfigurement; plus another $100 for exemplary punitive damages.

UNPROVOKED

In his three-page written judgment Judge Kennedy said that the "assault and battery was entirely unprovoked".

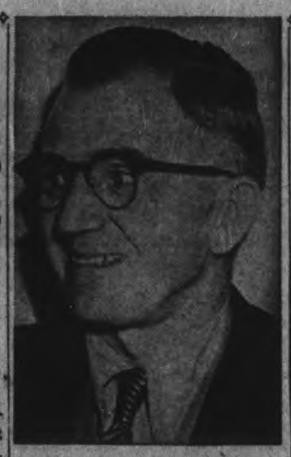
Summing up, Judge Kennedy said: "Metheral did not do anything which would justify Powless coming to the conclusion that Metheral was about to assault him (several witnesses stated that at the time the blow was struck the plaintiff had his hands in his pockets); nor did he say anything which in my opinion was sufficiently provocative to entitle any mitigation of damages."

Both men were working on construction at the service station and next week they were to do another construction job in Lindsay. Metheral suggested that Powless chip in some money for gasoline and he would transport him to and from Peterborough. An argument developed and Metheral was punched by Powless.

Metheral told the court that when he regained consciousness he reproved Powless, saying: "Ross—I thought you were a better man than to hit a person when he had his hands in his pockets."

The curt reply, according to Metheral, was: "If you don't shut up you'll get another."

Powless said he struck the blow in self-defence as Metheral was advancing on him in a threatening manner and using abusive language.



However this explanation was pooh-poohed by Judge Kennedy who found no justification for the Dempsey-like punch.

Trevor Clarke was counsel for Metheral and J. B. Lillico was counsel for Powless. Judgment was filed on Friday.

Ontario Barbers Hold Convention

Eighth annual provincial convention of the Ontario Barbers' Association will be held in Peterborough next Tuesday and Wednesday.

Business sessions on sanitation, barber training, and the election of a new provincial executive will take up most of the two days. Final meeting will be a dinner Wednesday night at which the Hon. Harold R. Scott, former minister of lands and forests, and Mayor Hugh F. Waddell, will [illegible] from most of the province, from as far west as Kitchener and as far east as Ottawa. Last year's convention was held in Oshawa.

FRANK H. PATTERSON of the Optimist Club has been appointed president for 1952-53 of the Peterborough Service Club Council. The secretary-treasurer is S. J. Black.

Car Somersaults After Collision, One Man Hurt

Ira Gillis of Cavan Township received broken ribs and dislocated right shoulder as the result of a two-car crash three miles north of Cavan village on Friday afternoon.

Two cars collided at the intersection of the Middle Road of Cavan and the 12th Line. Russell White, a straw-baling contractor was coming from a day's work in Omemee when his car collided with a westbound car driven by Maurice McGee.

The impact tossed the White car 100 feet and caused it to make two complete somersaults, finally landing unside down on the west fence of the road. Other passengers besides Ira Gillis in the White car were Arthur Fallis, Ross Gillis and Dick Earle.

The injured man was taken to a Peterborough hospital today for X-ray examination to determine the full extent of his injuries. The car driven by White, in the opinion of those who saw it, was a complete writeoff. McGee's car had damage estimated at about $300.

The accident was investigated by O.P.P. Constables Stanley Judson and Frank Clough, both of the Cobourg detachment.

Grabbed For Son Crashes Into Car

A mother's instinctive desire to save her baby from injury caused a two-car collision Friday afternoon at Aylmer and Hunter Sts. As it turned out nobody was hurt but property damage was $500.

The story as told later to Constable Harold Andrew went like this:

Mrs. George Astell of 169 Hilliard St., was driving south on Aylmer St. at 3.40 p.m. with her 15-months-old son Billy, who was riding in the front passenger's seat.

Mrs. Astell had to jam on the brakes when the car in front stopped for the red traffic light at Hunter St.

The jolt threw young Billy forward and Mrs. Astell reached out to grab him. She succeeded but her foot slipped off the brake pedal and her car crashed into the rear of the vehicle ahead.

"I was afraid Billy's head was going to hit the windshield," said Mrs. Astell. "I'd do anthing rather than see him hurt. He might have been injured for life."

About $200 damage was caused to Mrs. Astell's car and $300 — mainly to the rear end—of the car ahead, owned by Vernon Birkhof of 139¼ Hunter St.

Manslaughter Heads List; 3 Civil Cases

Leonard Condon Case To Be Heard By Grand Jury

A Peterborough County grand jury will decide Monday afternoon whether or not 22-year-old Leonard Condon of R.R. 4, Peterborough, will stand trial on a charge of manslaughter in the death of 37-year-old Michael Heffernan of Stewart St.

Heffernan was the father of two young daughters. He died shortly after midnight on Sept. 3 after being beaten up in a downtown beverage room brawl.

Condon was arrested by city police and he was committed for trial on a charge of manslaughter. At present he is free on $3,000 bail.

Justice F. W. Schroeder is presiding at the fall assizes.

If the grand jury brings in a true bill against Condon his trial will likely start Tuesday and continue all day Wednesday. Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, Q.C., expects to call about a dozen witnesses.

Gordon H. T. Farquharson is defending Condon.

THREE CIVIL CASES

Thomas R. Sheridan of Hamilton St., has entered a suit for $10,500 and costs of the action against Walter Snelgrove, a Cavan township farmer. Trial will be with jury.

Sheridan was a passenger in a car operated by Earl O'Toole when O'Toole's car was in collision with Snelgrove's on Highway 28 near Fraserville. The accident was on Nov. 24, 1950.

The other jury case lists Vernon Fleming of Toronto and Garfield Aylesworth as plaintiffs in a motor car accident suit brought against Fred Brethour, a Bancroft woodcutter.

Fleming and Aylesworth, both C.P.R. section hands stationed at Ivanhoe, were in a car that collided with another vehicle driven by Brethour, three and a half miles south of Madoc, on Jan. 31, 1951.

Fleming is claiming $1,784 for personal injuries and damage to his car. His passenger, Aylesworth, is claiming $202 and special damages. Brethour has filed a counterclaim for $309 to cover the cost of repairs to his car.

In the only non-jury civil suit listed, Edmund S. Edwards, North Monaghan laborer, is suing Floyd Michels, Frank St. taxi driver and Frank Thompson, taxi operator, for $10,153 plus costs of the action.

Edwards is a widower, husband of the late Mrs. Sarah D. Edwards, 63, who died after being struck by a car at Brock and Water Sts. Mrs. Edwards was struck on Sept. 13, 1950 and she died in hospital on Dec. 10.

Endless Variety Of Products Come From Ontario's Forests

Many will be surprised to learn that a significant trend has been going on in the interior wall finish of homes built on this continent during the past few years. Figures reveal that in the United States alone, the use of lath and plaster dropped from 90 percent in 1940 to 60 percent in 1950. Meanwhile housing using drywall (wallboard) construction jumped from 10 percent to 50 percent in the same period. There is ample evidence that the same trend is underway here in Canada.

Metal lath, wire lath, insulating plaster bases are more common now than wood strips. They provide the requisite bonding strength and make possible the use of less plaster. Before a builder begins setting his trim, the plaster should have abundant time to season. Damp, unseasoned plaster is always far too ready to give up its water content to any piece of wood that is nailed flat against it, and later drying will shrink the woodwork and cause every joint to open and remian open permanently.

When building, insist upon having your floors well nailed. Between the sub floor and the hardwood floor a good building paper should be used. You must shut out dampness from your hardwood floors, otherwise they cup and as you look across the floor you will see every narrow board lifting its two corners.

Remember that doors should be fitted so that they have the same amount of free space all around. The thickness of a 25-cent piece is the rule used by many an old carpenter. Too many doors are too close to the jamb in some places and too far away in others. Then how many times does the householder find that his windows either rattle in their runs or else stick immovably? This is most often due to being planed down too much until they have too much play. One corner gets a little ahead of the opposite one and the sash promptly binds in the frame. The question "What kind of windows"? should be given specially careful consideration before you build. There are windows available that are weather-tight and absolutely trouble free. Ask your lumber dealer about them.

Finish of lumber should be carefully scrutinized. If a careful, conscientious builder has been in charge the inside woodwork will have been sandpapered to a smooth even finish. If there has been careless work done you can detect scores of places where mill-run finish has been utilized without any bench work having been done on it at all. This is not right. Scratches, splinter holes and hammer marks, are all too often temporarily hidden by a little artful work with colored putty or wax.

If there are to be open fireplaces in your new house, these may be effective or ineffective. It is easy to give the wrong shape to the fireback and throat. Then the operation of kindling a fire is attended by such annoyances as billows of smoke that come out into the room and roll up to the ceiling. Today's modern efficient metal units overcome all these troubles without affecting the finished fireplace appearance. Your local hardware dealer will have information on these units to assist you.

The roof of your new house is going to shelter you from thousands of gallons of falling water, hundreds of pounds of melting snow, and the sweltering rays of the mid-summer sun, year after year. Give your roof a fighting chance—don't skimp on materials or workmanship.

One of the most important things to watch is the flashing. Many vital spots should be carefully covered by copper or rust-proof flashing.

Wood roofs of the best type are laid with edge-grain shingles. Staining or dipping in creosote gives them greater weather resistance.

Shingles usually come in either 16, 18 or 24 inch lengths. The 16 inch shingle is laid so that 4½ or 5 inches is exposed to the weather; the 18 inch length is laid 5½ inches to the weather, and the 24 inch length 7½ inches. Greater exposures result in thinner and less enduring roofs.

Of great importance is the use of a rustproof nail, with not more than two nails to a shingle. No nails should be exposed or visible. Make sure the nailheads are not driven into the shingles to destroy the fibre and invite decay.

Asbestos and composition shingles have now become very popular and durable. They come in many attractive colors, styles and textures to meet the home builders. demands.

Long Service

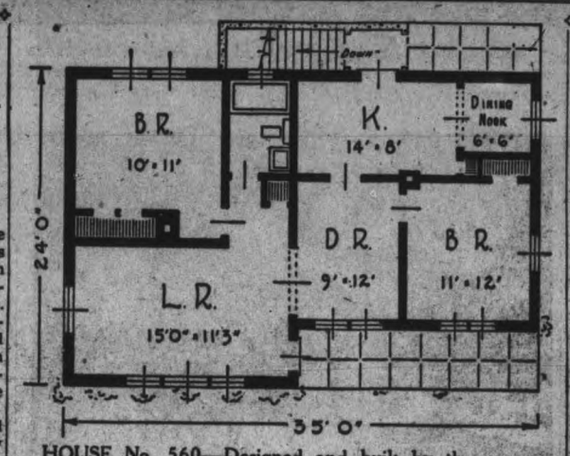
Omemee Driver Fined $25 For Carelessness



LINDSAY (ENS)—An Omemee resident, George Fisher, 20, was found guilty of careless driving in Lindsay police court this morning and was fined $25 and costs. Fisher was involved in an accident on Sept. 6 when his car and one driven by Garfield Everson of Lindsay collided on the Peterborough highway, south of the town.

Everson testified that he had just passed another car, driven by Cecil Hall of Fenelon Falls, when Fisher pulled out of the opposite side of the highway, from behind a parked truck, and into his path. He tried to stop, he stated, but crashed into the side of the old model car, and drove it into the ditch 30 feet away.

CROSSING ROAD

Fisher testified that he had been crossing the road, and thought he had plenty of time when he saw Hall's car in front of the Everson vehicle. He testified that he saw Everson passing Hall at a high speed when he was half-way across the highway and couldn't get out of the way. Hall, a mechanic, testified that he had inspected the Everson car and found the foot pedal to the floor after the accident, the emergency brake on, and no tire marks between the front and back wheels despite the fact the car had four-whel brakes. Everson testified earlier that he had not used the emergency brake.

Dave Thomson, acting for the defence, claimed that the charge of careless driving demanded due care and attention for others using the highway with reasonable care themselves, and undertook to show that Everson had been driving at an unreasonable speed, passing with a car crossing the highway in front of him, and driving without brakes. Magistrate Gee commented that he agreed that perhaps Everson should have been charged under the Highways Traffic Act, but that Fisher had not shown due care for others, and should have waited until both cars were past him before crossing the highway. Counsel Thomson asked for the minimum fine, but Crown Attorney Jordan asked that the penalty be above that. Magistrate Gee commented that a lower fine and higher costs would bring the amount to be paid to about the same figure in any case. Constable Monsteven of Lindsay O.P.P. was the investigating officer.

HOUSE No. 560—Designed and built by the owners, there's a lot of convenience packed into this one-floor design. Unfortunately, at the time of taking the photo below, landscaping was not fully completed . . . but it's easy to visualize the finished appeal of this straightforward design against its scenic background of forest clad mountains. Facing in a southerly direction both living and dining rooms with their unusually large glass areas are very bright and cheery. Exterior walls are finished in a pale green with peach for the living room. The chimney location in relation to the living room makes possible the addition of a fireplace at some later date if desired. Teachers Review Courses, Public Criticism Valid

TORONTO.—A cross-section of Ontario educators agreed yesterday that public criticism of the teaching of English is valid.

The teachers and officials, attending the three-day Ontario Association for Curriculum Development at the King Edward Hotel, reached no conclusion about what to do to remedy the situation. Their deliberations will continue today.

Phyllis Morgan, a North Bay teacher, said some Grade 13 students didn't know the difference between its and it's. Others can't spell which.

The principal of her school had told her, she said, that letters he receives from teacher job applicants have never been as bad as in the past four years.

An official said he received an application for a job from a teacher who misspelled superintendent. He added that of 100 letters received, only four of the applicants could write decent letters.

Another teacher said many people already teaching can't spell or express themselves.

Because of heir unusual candor, delegates at the discussion requested their names be made public only with their permission. Most declined to give permission.

An explanation for the lack of grammar and facility in the language was offered by Willis Wright, Leaside teacher. He said he has noticed that up to Grade 4 pupils make good progress in writing, reading and oral discussion.

"By Grade 5," he said, "the art of reading starts to decline. Too many subjects start to crowd in. The pupils don't read as much and don't spell as well. Teachers are rushed and too busy to correct the extra-curricular activities start to crowd in—music lessons, sports and Brownies, for example."

Mr. Wright said he believes part of the problem is that teachers forget the pupils' rate of forgetfulness. Things have to be repeated and repeated for them. Even in Grade 8, the multiplication table had to be reviewed constantly.

"We still have to review it in Grade 13," another teacher said.

Car Thief Gets 2-Year Term

DETROIT (AP)—Joseph Webber, 59, of Tonawanda, N.Y., convicted car thief, was sentenced to two years in prison yesterday by federal Judge Theodore Levin.

Two other members of an alleged international ring of car thieves already are in prison.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation said Webber headed a ring which stole cars in Detroit and disposed of them in St. Catharines, using titles and licences from junked cars in New York.

The stolen automobiles were identical models of the junked New York cars, the F.B.I. said.

Suspicion on the part of Canadian authorities led to the breakup of the ring. They started an inquiry after noting an abnormal number of New York cars entering Canada.

Webber used a father and son team as spotters, the F.B.I. said. Both the latter, William Degaing of San Souci, Mich., and his son, Edward, have been sentenced. The father is in prison in the United States, the son in Canada.

Burned Child's Hand

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (CP)—A 27-year-old mother of two admitted yesterday she held her five-year-old son's hand over a gas flame to teach him not to steal. "I didn't know what else to do," said Mrs. Eleonor Moak. "He was on his way to a life of crime." She was held for trial on a charge of cruelty to children.

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que. (CP)—Peter Stickler, 57, convicted of writing threats to blow up the dam at the Ontario Hydro's power project at Cheneault on the Ottawa River, yesterday was fined $75.

Stickler, owner of property in the development area, complained about the expropriation of his land.

Crown Appeals Dismissal Of Fish Charges

PARRY SOUND (CP)—Appeals have been entered by Crown Attorney A.G. Burbidge in the "fish hog" case involving eight Peel county residents.

Four of the men—George Laver of Cooksville, a deputy game warden; Dr. William Stubbs, Caledon veterinary; Dr. James Thomas, Caledon physician, and Lockwood Stubbs of Alton—were fined a total of $850 Oct. 9 for having 127 lake trout in their possession when the legal limit was 40 fish. The Crown Attorney termed them "fish hogs."

Charges against four other men, John Kydd, former magistrate; Gordon J. Bredin, councillor at Orangeville; William Ferguson, former councillor at Orangeville, and Otto Caven, funeral director at Alton, were dismissed by Magistrate C. F. Powell.

The charges resulted from a fishing trip to a camp near Algonquin Park by the eight men last spring. A total of 33 violations of the Game and Fisheries Act were originally charged. Several were withdrawn.

STOCK VALUE TRIPLES

Total value of livestock on Canadian farms in June, 1951, was $2,010,354,000, triple the 1941 value.

Postal Expert Predicts TV, Helicopters In New System

OTTAWA (CP) — Revolutionary changes are coming for Canada's postal system, W. J. Turnbull, deputy Postmaster General, disclosed yesterday.

Within a few years, push-button electronics, helicopters and television screens will be put to use in a drive to speed mail handling and deliveries across the country.

"Blueprints and planning already are under way," he added in an interview which delved into the postal future in Canada's electronics age.

"We'll have television screens and helicopters in operation in a year. Push-button electronics will take a little longer—perhaps three years."

By late 1953, said Mr. Turnbull, helicopters may be taking off from some Canadian post-office rooftops to beat downtown traffic snarls and speed up mail deliveries to outlying airports and communities.

But even before the helicopter makes its appearance on the post-office rooftop, television may be ushered in "well within a year" to inspect multiple mail handling operations for some central post-office point.

Television cameras would be focussed, for example, on the mail handlers, and inspectors, by merely flicking a switch, could make sure they were on the job and keeping the mail moving.

Television use already is on the drawing boards. It is incorporated in architectural plans for the new post office to be erected at Winnipeg next year.

More of a boon to the mail sorter are the plans for installing electronic mail conveyors which can shoot a letter into a given pigeon hole at the touch of a sorter's button.

Building Boom

WINNIPEG (CP)—Total value of building permits in Winnipeg has reached $16,300,000, less than $200,000 below the whole total for 1951. This year's figure may surpass the record high of $20,563,000 in 1912.

Too Many Privates In Army Not Enough Skilled Officers

The Canadian Army has units on three continents and different terms of service for each theatre. This story, one of a series, describes the problems caused by recent expansion and what is planned to overcome them.

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Canadian army is entering a period of consolidation to nail down the advances it has made since war broke out in Korea.

In 1949 it had six units, all on home defence. Now it has 26,000 men in 22 combat units—between one and two divisions—on active service in Korea, Germany and in Canada. Its total strength is about 48,000.

There are too many privates, not enough skilled officers and non-commissioned officers. Not infrequently men become sergeants only 18 months after enlistment because of need for N.C.O.s.

QUICK PROMOTION

At one camp they say half-facetiously that a man is likely to find himself wearing a lance-corporal's stripe if he speaks in a loud, firm voice.

This balance must be redressed. It will take about 18 months.

But the army's consolidation plans go beyond that.

Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, chief of the general staff, intends to make one army again, not something which tends to be three armies with a different term of service for each theatre.

He says he feels there should be no more special 18-month enlistments, as there were for Korea, and no more promises of discharge after a year in Germany.

MAY SERVE ANYWHERE

The average soldier now will enlist for the regular three-year stint and be liable for service anywhere. He may serve in all three places: At home, in Korea and in Germany. A triangular shuffle of units is contemplated.

For example, the 2nd battalions of the three Permanent Force regiments made up the original 25th brigade in Korea and now are in Canada learning the lessons of airborne warfare peculiar to the defence of this country. A year from now they are likely to be getting ready to sail for Europe.

This Korea-to-Canada-to-Germany movement and vice versa is slated to become the future order in the army. The day of special forces for special jobs is passing.

IN PLANNING STAGE

A fairly extensive reorganization may develop but it is still in the planning stage.

The army can think of consolidation because it is nearer than the other services to its manpower goal under the three-year rearmament program which started in 1951.

The original goal was 50,000 men and the army reached that in the spring. This summer Special Force men back from Korea started taking their discharge and by September the army's strength was down to about 48,000. Recruiting fell off seasonally during the summer but the Defence Department expects an increased flow now.

However, continuing Korea discharges and return from Germany of 1,900 men who can get out if they wish will probably hold army strength to 49,000 or 50,000 this year. The 1954 target is 55,000 although this figure may be revised upward.

Defence headquarters say no all-out recruiting drive is in the offing. They report they are meeting all objectives at home and abroad and still have men to spare.

SPECIAL CAMPAIGNS

There were special recruiting campaigns to raise the 25th brigade for Korea and the 27th for Europe but otherwise recruiting for Canada's volunteer army is by advertising, radio programs, posters, mobile exhibits and similar devices.

Inducements introduced during the last year include combat pay for men in the front line or in action zones and income tax rebates of $1 a day for those on duty in the Far East, and higher pay and allowances for all ranks. A first-class private now is paid $152 a month, including subsistence allowance; a sergeant $201, a lieutenant $299, a major $448 and a colonel $694.

Wartime mobilization plans are believed to call for fairly quick mobilization of two divisions. Actually, the army isn't too far away from that position now.

There are three brigades in a division. Canada has out-sized brigades in Germany and Korea and the equivalent of another on home defence in Canada, plus roughly two more brigades training in Canada as overseas replacements.

FOR HOME DEFENCE

The home-defence units are those which originally fought in Korea. They are in a state of transition, but, army authorities say, have always had paratroops in them to defend Canada against unexpected attack.

This formation used to be called an airborne brigade. Now it is called a "mobile striking force," consisting of three independent airborne battalions plus supporting units.

They are independent because army strategists say it is impossible for any potential enemy to mount an attack against Canada on a scale large enough to demand use of any force larger than a battalion—about 500 fighting men. Small-scale airborne attacks against radar stations and other remote defence outposts are seen as the likely threats to Canada.

One long-standing worry to the army is the lack of adequate transport planes to carry these mobile units into action. The first of 35 Fairchild Packet transports to fill this need have just come to Canada and the U.S.

ARMY COMMANDS—The Canadian army is entering a period of consolidation to nail down the advances it has made since war broke out in Korea. The manpower total October 1 was 47,638, compared with 32,715 January 1, 1951. Training establishments in the five commands in Canada are indicated on the above map.

IN GERMANY — Tanks, guns and infantry of the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade are drawn up on Waterlooplatz in Hannover, Germany, to honor the Queen on her birthday. Canada has one infantry brigade in Germany and one in Korea.

STILL NEED INFANTRY—It's still an infantry army, despite occasional outcries that Canada should turn it into a mobile, mechanized force. Active infantry units have increased five-fold since the Korean war started. In this photo Canada's footsloggers take cover during an attack on a Chinese-held hill in Korea.

Officials Uncertain About Iranian Move

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The Moslem Sabbath balked efforts Friday to find out just how Premier Mohammed Mossadegh intends to carry out his decision on breaking diplomatic relations with Britain.

The Premier announced the break yesterday. All government offices were closed today because of the Friday holiday, and there was no information on how the formalities accompanying a break in diplomatic relations would be accomplished.

Iranian and foreign observers were uncertain as to the degree of the break. They speculated on whether Mossadegh would recall his entire diplomatic mission from London and expel the entire British Embassy and consulate staffs from Tehran, or only the chiefs of missions and embassy personnel, with the consulate remaining.

In event of a complete withdrawal, each country could appoint another power to represent its interests.

Egyptian Police Question Reporters

CAIRO (Reuters) — Police arrested a score of local newspaper men overnight and questioned a number of foreign correspondents.

A high source said the raids were aimed at nipping a "big Communist spy ring."

Other Egyptian sources indicated the newspaper men questioned had shown too great an interest in the activities of former German officers now engaged as advisers by the Egyptian Army.

Security squads questioned British, American and other foreign correspondents and searched their homes. But none was arrested. Various papers were seized.

Tire Firm Workers Get 6 Per Cent Raise

WELLAND (CP) — Employees of the General Tire and Rubber Company, Stokes division, here were granted a six-per-cent increase in wages, effective Sept. 29. An agreement between the company and the Canadian Rubber Workers Union, Stokes division, also provided for discontinuance of a cost-of-living escalator clause and a cost-of-living allowance of 24 cents an hour was written into the basic rates.

The new agreement represents an increase of six cents per hour for all women operators and eight to 10 cents for men.

Woodstock Union Makes Switchover

TORONTO (CP) — The Textile Workers Union of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) Friday announced the 250-member local in Woodstock has decided to switch to it from the United Textile Workers of America (A.F.L.). The local's members are employed by the Harvey Woods division of the York Knitting Mills.

The T.W.U.A. also said it applied today to the Ontario Labor Relations Board for certification as bargaining representatives of the Harvey Woods employees.

Kicked By Horse Worker Killed

FOLEYET, Ont. (CP) — Leo Papineau, 32, of Montreal, was killed Wednesday when kicked by a logging company horse at a camp 32 miles southeast of this Sudbury area community. Fellow workers said Papineau had finished his day's work of skidding logs out of the bush and was unhitching a team when the accident occurred.

Provincial Constable Walter Etmanski of Foleyet is investigating. Dr. H.C. Nash of Sudbury has been appointed coroner.

Hitchhikers Wearing Driver's Clothes

LINDSAY—One of two men who have, according to police been breaking into cottages and summer homes in the Haliburton area appeared in Lindsay police court Friday charged with breaking into the cottage of a Toronto couple, and stealing a considerable quantity of clothes.

Myles Emmerson, 30, of Donald, in Haliburton county, pleaded guilty to the charge Friday. Constable John Williams of the Fenelon Falls detachment, testified for the Crown.

Constable Williams told the court that Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Johns of Leaside arrived at their cottage on Four Mile Lake a week ago to find that it had been entered and several articles of clothing to the value of about $217 stolen.

They started out for Fenelon Falls to report the incident and on the way, picked up two hitch-hikers whom they were surprised to find were wearing some of the stolen articles. The couple took them into Fenelon Falls and let them out of the car. They saw Constable Williams on the street, and told him about the men.

Constable Williams started a search, and found one of them, Emmerson, on the road out of town. He arrested him and brought him back to the office. Emmerson agreed to the submission of a statement he had given the constable in evidence in which he named the other man with him at the time of the breakin. He stated that the other man had admitted him to the cottage and given him the clothes. He had taken them, he stated, to keep warm.

About $42 worth of the stolen goods were found on Emmerson. Emmerson was remanded in custody for a week for sentence, while police seek the other man in the case, in a province-wide search.

THERE'S A LION IN THE HOUSE

MEET "LITTLE TYKE," perhaps the only lioness in the world that won't eat meat. Tyke is the household—yep, that's right, HOUSEHOLD, pet of Mrs. Margaret Westbeau, of Auburn, Wash. Recently, when Tyke's mistress held a big juicy steak close to the lioness' mouth, the animal turned away with an expression of horror, as if she had seen something ghastly. Like the dog that won't eat meat—because no one ever gives him any—Tyke has never developed her carnivorous instincts. She has been raised entirely on cereals. Today, some five years after a local zoo gave the Westbeaus the baby lioness to raise, "Little Tyke" still eats 12 different kinds of breakfast foods, mixed with milk. She lives right in the house with the family, hangs around the kitchen and even tries to help with the dishes. She even sleeps occasionally in bed with Mrs. Westbeau.

. . . off to the Land of Nod—we hope.

W. J. A. Fair Renews Charge Fining For Overstay At Market Meter "Fraud"

W. J. Arthur Fair, who recently challenged the legality of the city ordering motorists to pay fines for overtime parking on the city parking lot has repeated his charges that the city is "illegally extorting money from the public."

Placing tickets on the cars, notifying the people they must pay a fine is "a fraud upon the public" because there is no statutory authority for issuing parking tickets on parking lots.

In a letter to city clerk E. A. Outram, Mr. Fair emphasizes that he has "deliberately avoided becoming involved in any matter of local municipal politics" since coming to the city 20 years ago.

FOREST OF METERS

However, Mr. Fair adds that in this instance he cannot avoid voicing his opinion because his office window "overlooks this now fairly vast area that is growing into a grove of posts topped with clocks."

Mr. Fair explains that his purpose in bringing this matter to the attention of council "was to suggest a method of collecting parking fees that would not be annoying to citizens who must have parking space in the business district."

While the Municipal Act provides for parking meters on public streets, and there is a special provision in the Act for voluntary payments of fines for breaches of bylaws dealing with parking on highways, Mr. Fair insists there is "no such provision for a breach of any other bylaw, including parking bylaws."

Specifically, Mr. Fair claims council has no power to place a ticket on a car parked on the city parking lot advising that the owner must pay a fine for overtime parking. He argues that offenders must be prosecuted under subsection 2, Section 492 of the Municipal Act which means a charge must be laid by a complainant and a summons issued and served. "In this regard, there can be no doubt that the bylaw is bad," Mr. Fair writes.

In regard to city solicitor W. F. Huycke's explanation that leaving unexpired time on the meter instead of turning it back after the motorist has left, is like a smoker throwing away a butt, then asking for a refund for the unsmoked part, Mr. Fair states there is no connection whatever in the comparison.

He explains it is more like a person renting a store from the city by the month. If the same principle were followed as in the case of parking lot tickets Mr. Fair says that if the tenant stayed in the premises after the month expired he would be liable to receive a ticket fining him 20 times the amount of the month's rent.

TWO TYPES BYLAWS

There are two types of municipal bylaws, Mr. Fair explains, "enabling" bylaws and "prohibitive" bylaws.

A prohibitive bylaw can be passed prohibiting parking on certain streets for example. A penalty must be provided in a prohibitive bylaw but in an enabling bylaw dealing with the establishing and operation of a parking lot, "no prohibition can arise," he goes on.

Charging a fee to park on the lot after 6 p.m. is termed "scraping the bottom of the barrel," by Mr. Fair. "If any services were rendered in the care of one's car it would be different. No city I know of pushes its citizens that far."

"Let us look at this parking lot as property jointly owned for the benefit of us, the residents and our visitors and not as a gyp proposition," urges Mr. Fair in offering council a constructive suggestion for changing the existing practice.

First, Mr. Fair urges council to make sure they have not "spent the thousands of dollars they have on meters without authority, and devise some other less obnoxious and more lawful method to operate the parking lot."

Then, Mr. Fair proposes that an attendant hand a time-marked ticket to the motorist as he enters the parking lot and the fee for time charged on leaving. "This method is used in all large cities both municipal and privately owned lots."

As it is now, Mr. Fair asserts, anyone who is "a split second late in getting back to the car," is likely to find the watchman has tagged his car and he is branded as a criminal and liable to imprisonment.

Model Prisoner Paints Jail, Then Escapes

KELLOGG, Idaho (AP)—Lyle Peabody was a model prisoner and when he offered to redecorate the jail this week, police jumped at the chance.

Lyle, 45, did it up brown with shiny silver walls and a dull green floor.

Peabody isn't around to get compliments. He escaped last night and took off in the fire chief's sedan.

Police said Peabody's girl friend apparently boosted her 10-year-old son through a window to get a key out of the jailer's drawer and unlock the cell. Peabody was being held for extradition to California to face grand larceny charges.

Young was sentenced to two years in penitentiary by Judge A.G. McDougall. Six others face trial, but their cases had been postponed pending the result of Young's appeal.

Bomb So Successful Delay Second Blast

'Millionairess' Showcase For K. Hepburn

NEW YORK (AP) — George Bernard Shaw's "The Millionairess" brought Katherine Hepburn to Broadway last night in a play which only an actress of Miss Hepburn's peculiar quality might perform.

Shaw has taken as his theme the story of an attractive young woman who has inherited millions from her father. She wants only love. But she is concerned with whether her Romeos are more interested in her dollars than in her sex appeal.

Miss Hepburn's father (in the show) is an astute man. He arranges that the suitors for his daughter's hand must be financially successful.

Miss Hepburn is married first to a former prize fighter, but her temperament floors him. Then she falls in love with a Mohammedan doctor who is not interested in her wealth. A religious man, he has promised that he will not marry a girl unless she can live on $5 a month.

Miss Hepburn gets a job in a sweat shop to prove that she can earn, and live on $5 a month. Desiring to live in poverty, she finds that her natural ability earns her quick fortunes.

London stage audiences saw "The Millionairess" first. It was an immense hit with Miss Hepburn playing the role in which she now appears on Broadway. The company was directed both in London and here by Michael Benthall.

Canadian Destroyer Leads Assault On Western Korea

ABOARD DESTROYER IROQUOIS (CP)—Censorship has just permitted disclosure that the Iroquois directed a four-country amphibious assault in September which killed or wounded 200 enemy troops and knocked a hole in the Communist defences along the western shores of Korea.

The action came in a 24-day coastal patrol which preceded the engagement in which the destroyer suffered Canada's first naval casualties from enemy action in the Korean war.

In the early evening the Iroquois proceeded to an island off the southwestern end of Hwang-Hae province. At the same time two companies of South Korean troops set sail in junks to a rendezvous point off the beaches.

A third company moved off to strike at the eastward beach with the British cruiser Belfast to provide covering fire for their diversionary attack.

SHELLING BEGINS

About 2 a.m. the naval softening-up bombardment began. For two hours the Belfast's six-inch guns and the Iroquois' four-inchers pounded gun, mortar and troop positions as the assault junks worked their way in to the mud flats.

Control for the whole operation was maintained on the bridge of the Iroquois, while a running plot of every movement, each target and, later, supporting naval aircraft was kept in the operations room.

At 4 a.m. the South Koreans swarmed ashore and the ships lifted their fire farther inland to blast roads leading to the peninsula and head off reinforcements.

The landing force pushed home a hit-and-run assault. Resistance had been disorganized by the naval shelling. The attack lasted for two hours and the South Koreans accounted for a third of the enemy casualties. The raiding troops themselves suffered only a handful of wounded and no fatalities.

Aircraft from the United States carrier Sicily, directed from the Iroquois, wiped out all last attempts at harrassing fire on the withdrawing South Koreans. For good measure, they knocked out a dam and destroyed several gun bunkers with bombs and rocket fire.

Tobacco, Liquors, Fall From Free Duty List

OTTAWA (CP)—The Defence Department yesterday gave this tip to Canadians who send parcels to servicemen in Britain and Germany: Coffee, liquor, cigars, cigarets and tobacco no longer are free of customs duties.

New customs regulations have cancelled the concession under which two pounds of coffee monthly could be sent duty-free to servicemen in those countries. One reason is that there now is ample coffee available overseas.

Another apparently was explained by the department's statement: "For some time coffee has been at a very high premium in Germany and there have been cases where the concession to servicemen has been abused."

The department said tobacco and liquor now are available in quantity overseas, too.

Find Passenger's Body In Sea Near Korea

TOKYO (AP)—The air force said today a body washed ashore near a South Korean coastal airfield yesterday had been identified as that of a passenger on a C-46 courier plane that disappeared Thursday with 25 persons aboard.

The body was found three miles from Kangnung. The aerial search for possible survivors had been concentrated in the area, the air force said.

The two-engine plane, carrying 21 passengers and a crew of four, left Kangnung Thursday on a scheduled 40-minute flight down the coast to an air base near Pohang, 120 miles south of Kangnung.

UNNECESSARY. — William Lear says this picture of himself at the controls of an aircraft is old-fashioned. The man should be replaced by the machine. A. Pilot, a colorful and romantic figure who did much to change the 20th century's mode of living and thinking, was buried at the Montreal International Aviation Building. He was in his 49th year.

Born Dec. 17, 1903, at Kitty Hawk, N. C., A. Pilot was a son of the famous Wright Brothers. He died suddenly at a joint meeting of the Montreal Institute of Aeronautical Sciences, the Institute of Aircraft Technicians and the Ottawa Aeronautical Society.

William Lear, manufacturer of automatic pilots and holder of the Collier trophy for the greatest achievement in American aviation in 1949, conducted the services. As he said:

"A. Pilot is no longer necessary."

These might sound like harsh words about a character who has been a boyhood idol, an adolescent's dream and a free world's savior. After all, A. Pilot was one of the famous "few" to whom Churchill said all the world owes so much.

But Mr. Lear, while paying tribute to the part A. Pilot had played in 20th century life, said the character had outlived his usefulness. Anything A. Pilot could do, a machine could do better.

It could be that A. Pilot's apparently unlamented passing is merely a symbol of what is in store for the rest of humanity.

GET OUT in the country and take time to really enjoy autumn's rich colors!

FOR PARENTS ONLY:

Autumn Magic To Be Found Where You Look These Days

By NANCY CLEAVER

"See the pretty leaves, Mummy! Why are they so red?"

There is no end to a child's questions! It is small wonder that the miracle of the trees changing their green foliage to red and yellow fills them with amazement. By the time they start to school they want to find out how Nature withdraws the nourishment from the leaves and stores it in the roots for use in the Winter months. But to the little boy or girl the feel of the frosty air, and the golden sunshine and the gay colors is joy enough.

One of the characters in "Chez Nous" says regretfully: "Ah! Why have I lost the eyes of childhood!"

Parents who take their child for a walk in the woods can almost re-capture a child's delight in the color of the out of doors. Their ramble must be a leisurely, happy occasion. No one, child or adult, can drink in beauty in a hurry. W. H. Davies knew this when he wrote,

"What is life if full of care
We have no time to stand and stare!"

Anyone who watches one hillside will see the gradual transformation of the trees each day. After a sharp night's frost, suddenly great bright splashes of the maple — scarlet, crimson, red, gold and amber make it perhaps the most dramatic of all the trees. Anyone gazing at a maple will agree that no mistake was made when its leaf was chosen as our national emblem. No wonder Bliss Carman exclaimed:

"And one, in gown of scarlet,
The first beloved of all,
Still tells me tales of glory
When Autumn days befall."

A Canadian met a friend in London, England, and said, "It always does something to me to see a maple leaf!—I remember all the bright red and yellow maple leaves I collected as a kid in a little village in Ontario. I pressed and waxed them. I never could keep them quite as bright a color as when they first fell on the ground—but it was fun trying!"

VARIETY OF MAPLES

We Canadians have a wonderful variety of maples throughout our land and the other trees have their own peculiar charm. The yellow of the elms and the birches, the bronze of the beeches, the flaming red of the sumach bushes on the rocky ledges, all catch the eye and fill the heart with wonder. How the dark green of the evergreens stand out in sharp contrast to the bright shades of the deciduous trees! The graceful shapes of the different trees are accentuated by the variation in color.

The pasture land is often green right until the snow covers it, but the other fields, shorn of harvest, have strange and lovely hues. A traveller in the Autumn on a Trans-Canada train said, "The prairie fields are like giant sheets, and those in eastern Canada by comparison, are like pocket handkerchiefs. But east or west, they are all dyed with colors which make one long for a paint brush!". Perhaps it is this very wealth of color which lures so many amateur artists out of doors.

The autumn sky at dawn and sunset is something to be watched with delight. Across this vast dome, the birds are starting their long journey to the south. No one can help but pause and gaze with amazement at the swift, orderly flight of the feathered folk. Listen for the soft whirr of many wings and the low "Honk"! "Honk!" of the Canada geese or the quack of the ducks.

Canadians should be especially thankful for the wonderful variety of scenery throughout our land and for our brilliant beautiful Autumn foliage. Recently a new Canadian from Holland said: "I have asked for one holiday week in October so that I can take a trip and see the colored leaves. I arrived too late last year to see them and I know I missed a lot."

TRIP INTO COUNTRY

We cannot all go on holiday week's trips, but all of us can make at least one expedition to the country. So many of us take the Autumn colors so for granted that we hardly see them. We might as well be blind for all the dint they made on us!

Helen Keller, in her essay on "Three Days to See", mentioned one of the experiences which she covets is a walk in the woods. If we had "Three Days Without Sight" we would have a new appreciation of the shades, dark and light, all around us, particularly out of doors.

If we have no real thanksgiving in our heart for Autumn's colors, perhaps we should try the experiment of bandaging our eyes for even three hours. No country has a monopoly on beauty in any season, and we Canadians can appreciate this translation from a Japanese poet who wrote thus of "Autumn Magic":

"Valley and hill, where'ere I glance, the same
Glory of Colour! Surely Autumn weaves
A Spell to set the very Wind aflame
With Gold and Scarlet of the falling leaves."

THE SHORT DINNER GOWN (above) appears in a monochromatic blue with intricate draping. An Edith Small design in paper-thin taffeta, it has draped bodice and wide skirt with three ever-widening panels at the back. A single shoulder strap is draped, too, for a softer look and for more cover-up.

Joan Southern Wed Today In Toronto

A marriage of widespread interest was solemnized at a nuptial mass today in Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church, Toronto, when the Right Rev. Msgr. W. A. Egen united in marriage Joan Helen Mary Southern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Southern, Toronto, and Charles Carroll Kieffer, New York City, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Kieffer, Utica, N.Y.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a gown of ivory Italian silk poult de soie. It was fashioned with a modified off-the-shoulder neckline and revers of Point de Venice lace encrusted with seed pearls and rhinestones. The bouffant skirt terminated in a cathedral train. Her long veil of Rose Point lace was attached to a crown of seed pearls and rhinestones. She carried orchids and stephonatis.

Miss Barbara Southern, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and the other attendants were: Mrs. Paul Murphy, the Misses Mary Joyce Phelan, Justine O'Brien, cousin of the bride, Estelle Oulet, Rimouski, Que., and Mary Elizabeth Keiffer, Utica, N.Y., sister of the groom. They were gowned alike in ankle length champagne nylon net with a side panel drape of shrimp taffeta. All wore flower coronets in matching shades and carried Johanna Hill roses.

Dr. Harold Remmer, Utica, N.Y., was groomsman and the ushers were: Donald H. Allen, James Koegel, New York, Allen Clowes, Indianapolis, Joseph Driscoll, Washington, D.C., and William Dillon, Short Hills, N.J.

The church was decorated with standards of shrimp gladioli illumined by tall lighted tapers. The soloist was Mr. James Shields, who was accompanied at the organ by Miss Margo Lobraico.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Granite Club where the bride's mother received, wearing a rhinestone-studded Chantilly lace and net gown of cotillion blue with matching hat, and a corsage of mauve orchids. The groom's stepmother, Mrs. A. J. Keiffer, and his aunt, Miss Emelie Carroll, both of Utica, N.Y., assisted in receiving.

They will live in New York City.

BRIDGENORTH SCHOOL

Bridgenorth Home and School Association meeting Thursday evening was largely attended by parents and senior grade students to hear guest speaker Miss Mary Haddow, Reg. N., missionary nurse in Bolivia.

Also on the program was Terry Huffman of Peterborough who favored with music on the vibraphone for almost half an hour.

President Mrs. Ray Harding welcomed the assembly. Reports on special events held since May were read by Mrs. R. Arnott, Mrs. C. Payne, Mrs. G. Ray Jr., Mrs. D. McKay and Mrs. R. Wood.

Lace is closely gathered and set in innumerable pinwheels. A big yellow rose, poised at the waist, makes a splash of color. Desses' beautifully balanced evening gown (right) is in Coronation Red kuipure. A deep harem flounce and the off-shoulder decolletage are in the same red. Desses makes red in every shade from palest pink to deepest scarlet, his theme color this year.

Art Association Opens Season With Lovely Tea

Prelude to this year's series of meetings of the Women's Art Association of Peterborough was a delightful afternoon tea and reception of members which was held Friday afternoon in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A.

Decoration of the tea room in the lovely autumn colors was done most tastefully and with artistic skill by Mrs. Frank Buckland and Mrs. O. J. Frisken. They made use in unique ways of the attractive fall vegetables, cauliflower, squash and rosy red apples and the motif for the mantel was a modernistic design of sumach in a dark green pottery bowl.

The table centrepiece was in keeping, with oak leaves, baby cat-tails and sprigs of wheat arranged effectively around deep yellow 'mums. It was set in an old-fashioned china tureen which was on a matching platter. The cloth used was a beautiful design of cutwork on cream linen.

Tea pourers were the group conveners, Mrs. Osborne Smith, Mrs. L. B. Martin, Miss Jean Buck and Mrs. C. B. Waite.

Vice-presidents of the association, Mrs. H. R. Scott, Mrs. W. J. Gilling and Mrs. F. E. Hooper, acted as hostesses.

The tea assistants were Mrs. C. H. Crowe, convener; Mrs. H. L. Bamforth, Mrs. W. R. Philp, Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, Mrs. G. H. Cutmore, Mrs. R. R. Baker, Mrs. G. W. Craw, Mrs. J. M. Hart, Mrs. James Turnbull, Mrs. B. W. Harvey, Mrs. J. C. Ellis, Mrs. P. S. Foster, Mrs. H. F. Foote, Mrs. C. S. Browne, Mrs. E. Yelland, and Miss Helen Staples.

W.M.S. Groups At Millbrook

MILLBROOK (ENS)—Mrs. J. M. Ritchie of Warkworth was the special speaker at the thankoffering meeting of Grace Presbyterian W.M.S. held on Wednesday afternon in the church auditorium.

Missionary groups from the Presbyterian churches in Port Hope and Centreville had been invited as well as those from St. Thomas' Anglican and St. Andrew's United, Millbrook.

In her address, Mrs. Ritchie said that Thanksgiving was a time not only to take stock of the things for which we had to be thankful but also for taking stock of ourselves. Her talk was filled with quotations in verse from her scrapbook. She concluded with the thought: "Nobody else can do the job God has marked out for you."

Mrs. Ritchie also sang a solo "I Shall Not Pass Again This Way."

Mrs. W. H. Houstle conducted the worship service. Mrs. Ritchie was introduced by Mrs. Bruce Ingham of St. Andrew's United to lead in prayer.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. John Thompson and Miss Agnes Johnston, W.M.S. president, thanked all those who had taken part.

Following the meeting refreshments were served in the Sunday School hall by the members of Grace W.M.S.

Lace Featured In France

PARIS (NEA)—Lace makes a big splash in the current collection by French designers, sending ripples out that touch even dressmaker suits in daytime wear.

It's the obvious fabric for the softer, more feminine silhouette. There are lots of the traditionally filmy versions but there are also many of the heavier wool and guipure laces that have been turned to practical uses.

Balenciaga, for one, endorses chenille and wool laces in end-of-the-day dresses. One is a gray wool lace that has a straight, slim skirt topped by an unfitted middy blouse with casual neckline. Another designer, Jacques Heim, uses cellophane re-embroidered brown lace over flesh-pink tulle in a short-length dress with off-shoulder neckline.

Jacques Fath pairs the sheerest Chantilly lace with fine wool jersey and gets some interesting results. The lace appears in a finely-pleated skirt and the jersey in an unfitted, draped sweater top.

The conversation piece of the Griffe collection is an ankle-length evening gown of 700 yards of fine, black Valenciennes lace closely gathered and set in innumerable pinwheels. Many of his dinner dresses get ultra-wide stoles in gossamer Chantilly lace.

Castillo of Lanvin likes to use gleaming satin as a foundation for the new laces in stem-like, slinky dinner gowns.

Pale, clear colors—grey, greige, flesh, butter and blonde — are stressed. Black is a favorite, of course, followed by the warm autumn-leaf tones (flesh to burnt amber) for the twilight hours.

NO SPORT is more all-Canadian than ice-skating and so there has been designed a skating outfit for the junior miss. The velveteen skirt has a screened pattern and the figured blouse is made with balloon sleeves.

Young Lady With Good Job Stalls At Getting Married

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been going with a girl for six years. I have asked her several times if she would marry me but she keeps saying she doesn't want to get married for another two years. She has a very good job and claims she prefers it, just now, to matrimony. I am 26 and she is 21. I offered her an engagement ring, which I thought would change her mind, but she still insists she wants to wait at least two years. Even then, she doesn't guarantee that her attitude will change. She doesn't seem as anxious to have me around as she used to, so I am wondering if her love isn't fading somewhat. Do you think I should wait for the next two years to pass?

V. A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your young lady gives every indication of being somewhat less than in love with you. Perhaps her ardour hasn't survived a six-year friendship; again, perhaps the difference in your ages has made you more serious minded than she is. After all, when you began to go together, she was was only 15 — scarcely an age to form a permanent attachment — while you were 20 and capable of having a more fixed purpose. It may be that you are rushing the girl a bit, even now. I suggest that for a time—but not two years—you go along with her ideas, keep the ring and don't urge her for dates. In fact, don't even ask as frequently as you have done. If that arrangement satisfies her, I'm afraid you are in for a bad period of readjustment. She may, however, need just such neglect to awaken her to the fact that she really loves you. Lots of luck!

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a girl of 14. Would it be proper for me to write to a boy of 19 who is in the army? He has written to me and asked me to write back.

D. R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: This question should be settled by your mother. You are rather young to become involved in a correspondence of this type, but if you and the boy know and like each other and if you are capable of writing the sort of letters servicemen like to receive —humorous and chatty — there should be no harm in the venture.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Eight months ago, after 12 years of married life, my husband left me and our son and begged for a divorce so he could marry someone else. It was such a shock that I was laid up in bed for some time. For about four months I was despondent. Recently, I have met a very nice young man. Now, I find I am in love with him. He loves me, too, and wants to marry me. I applied for a divorce; now my husband wants to come back. Who should I choose?

P. W.

ANSWER: It strikes me, first of all, that you overcome heartbreak with amazing alactrity. Three months ago you were a despondent, forsaken wife, now you are in the throes of a new romance.

For your own protection, I certainly think you should take your husband back. He has had his lesson, now it's time for your's. Your love is won too easily and your responsive emotions can easily lead to trouble. Set up a new home with your family and try a little harder to make it a success.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 18 years old, and have been in love with the most wonderful boy since I was 15. On my 16th birthday he gave me an engagement ring. We had our spats, and usually made up, but three months before we were to be married, we broke up for good. Now he is engaged to someone else. Recently I met him at a party. He was most attentive and danced with me all evening. The break-up, I may add, was my fault.

— BEWILDERED

ANSWER: If you were to blame for the parting, you should have made some effort to patch things up before this. However, it is not too late yet, if the boy still loves you, as you suspect. Put your pride in your pocket; get in touch with him; tell him that you realize you were at fault. Ask him frankly if he really loves his fiancee. If the answer is "yes," there's nothing you can do but admit defeat. There is a possibility that he became engaged in a moment of self-pity, in which case it will be much better for the engagement to be broken now before three people become involved in a very difficult situation.

QUESTION: Cooking to you seems such a pleasure and you are helping me in liking working in my kitchen a little more every day. I am enclosing recipe for pineapple Upside Down cake—I like it because the cake is thin on the fruit . . but mine turns out soggy. Do you think the recipe as given to me is right?—Mrs. C. S. W.

ANSWER: The recipe looks okay, but I want to give you mine then I can be sure I am recommending something that I have tested.

PINEAPPLE UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

In a heavy 10-inch frying-pan melt ⅓ cup butter. Sprinkle ½ cup brown sugar over it. Arrange slices of pineapple over butter-sugar coating, and garnish with maraschino cherries and pecan or walnut halves—in centre of rings and in little spaces. Pour over this the Cake Batter: Beat until thick—for at least 3 minutes—2 eggs, then gradually beat into them 2/3 cup sugar. Add 6 tablespoons canned pineapple juice and 1 teaspoon vanilla and beat. Sift together 1 cup sifted cake flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt and sift this over the wet mixture and beat hard to mix. Pour over prepared fruit in frying-pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes or until toothpick comes out clean when tried at centre of cake. Immediately turn upside down on large serving plate, but do not remove pan for a few minutes, for the brown sugar mix will run down cake. Serve warm with plain or whipped cream.

NOTE: Prunes, peaches, apricots, blueberries may all be used instead of pineapple—some of them may be used in combination.

QUESTION: Have you recipe for Tomato Marmalade or Tomato Jam? It calls for oranges or lemons or both—Mrs. Sam S.

ANSWER: I think this recipe answers all of your requirements.

RIPE TOMATO MARMALADE

Eight pounds ripe tomatoes, 8 pounds granulated sugar, 6 lemons, 1 tablespoon ginger. Peel and chop tomatoes and grate rind of lemons and add it and their juice. Boil everything together until thick, then add chopped walnuts if you want to. They are recommended. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

QUESTION—I have noticed that people write in for different recipes . . would appreciate it if you would give me a recipe for canning pumpkin to use in pies during the winter.—Mrs. O'K.

ANSWER: Do they ever! About the only thing I haven't been asked for is broiled humming-birds' wings —but there's plenty of time.

CANNED PUMPKIN

(I strongly recomend that pumpkin be canned in pressure cooker—I would not can pumpkin if I did scrape out seeds and stringy portions. Cut into pieces of size to handle. These may be steamed or baker, or boiled in a small amount of water—they must not be water-soaked. Cook until tender. Scrape from skins and force through sieve or colander. Bring to boiling point, adding a very little boiling water to prevent pulp from scorching. Stir constantly until it boils all over. Pack boiling hot into sterile jars leaving ½-inch headspace. Process in pressure canner 70 minutes at 10 pounds presure for pints; 80 minutes for quarts. Process 3 hours in hot water bath, for both pints and quarts.

QUESTION: Could you send me recipe for glazing vegetables. I would like to make some glazed carrots . . could you tell me if they would go with any meat, or if they are better with certain foods?—Eileen M. H.

ANSWER: The glazed vegetables seem to be most popular with pork products and chicken. I don't fancy them as much with beef or veal or lamb. But if you or any members of your family do, go ahead.

GLAZED CARROTS

Cook carots until almost tender in any shape—whole, shredded, in strips or rings, in as little water as possible. Cook each 2 cups of them drained, in ¼ cup each butter and sugar until soft and glazed all over —they must be turned gently and heat must be low. They must be boiled in salted water first. This treatment is good for undercooked sweet potaoes too.

Married In City In 1927 Couple Honored

The members, adherents and friends of Campbell's Bay United Church charge, Quebec, held a surprise party for their minister and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. John Renshaw, in the church hall of St. Andrew's of Campbell's Bay. It was the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Renshaw was presented with pink carnations and a chest of silver flatware. Mr. Renshaw was given a white carnation for his lapel and a gold wrist watch. A three-layer wedding cake was cut by the bride and guests signed a leather-bound guest book.

Mr. and Mrs. Renshaw were married 25 years ago in Peterborough, their home town.

"Dear Mr. and Mrs. Renshaw,—

"On this, the 25th anniversary of your wedding, we have gathered to celebrate with you this important event of your life. In these days when families break up so easily, it is always of deep interest to all concerned when there is a marriage that lasts for 25 years or more. We congratulate you on passing this long term together.

"We know that together your life has been a highly serviceable one. In the pastorates that you have served we are sure that the principles and ideals that you and your home have shown here have been emphasized previously. As a result the lives of your people have been brighter. You have served us most faithfully in the two years you have been here, and we want to say we love you both. You have a host of friends on this charge.

"You have both done your part well, and we hope that both of you will be long spared to give counsel, guidance and joy to your people. This is our heartfelt prayer for you both and your family."

Mr. and Mrs. Renshaw send their kindest regards to the people of Peterborough who wished them well on their wedding day 25 years ago.

Movie-Makers Believe Lanza Through

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Is Mario Lanza through in the movies?

Yes, a check of top industry disclosed today. The movie-makers, almost to a man, believe the booming tenor sang past the finish in his row with MGM over the ill-fated "Student Prince."

Lanza failed to show up for the picture although other members of the cast including co-stars Ann Blythe and Edmund Gwenn hung around for a week until the production was cancelled.

The movie moguls hold that an artist can be temperamental before a picture starts production. In fact, then it often makes good publicity. But when temperament sets in after production that costs money. It cost Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer $700,000, the studio claims, and in this day of rising television and declining movie box office, that's a sin not easily absolved.

Lanza's agent, Music Corporation of America, and even some of his recently-fired business associates believe otherwise. They look for the whole thing to blow over and for Lanza to come back lustier than ever.

SUPER ECCENTRIC

Lanza himself is mum to charges that he is a super eccentric in a town where eccentricity is the norm of behavior; that he is a fellow kicking $1,000,000 a year in the face; that he desperately is trying to ruin his career.

Lanza is not only on suspension from M-G-M but also the defendant in a studio suit for $5,195,888 damages. That represents M-G-M's claim of loss from the shelving of the picture, plus $4,500,000 in anticipated profits. The latter figure is a conservative one. Lanza's "The Great Caruso," grossed $19,000,000 its first year and some countries haven't been heard from yet.

Curtis Bernhardt, the man who almost directed "The Student Prince," said that Lanza's outbursts about his "God-given voice" really covers up an inferiority complex.

"I think he was unsure of himself in this picture because the role called for good acting as well as good singing."

By coincidence, Bernhardt's theory is the same as that of a close friend of Lanza's and also of conductor Dr. Peter Adler, who worked with Lanza in "The Great Caruso."

CAME UP TOO FAST

The close friend said Lanza feels keenly the lack of formal voice training. He realizes, the friend said, that he came up too fast. Lanza has been largely self-taught.

Dr. Adler was quoted thus:

"Hollywood is Lanza's Frankenstein. The pressure he is under is tremendous, always having to put up a front; and his voice is not settled yet. He knows he has come up too fast and he feels insecure. For this he overcompensates by boasting and showing off."

Lanza long has been a problem child for M-G-M. His current picture "Because You're Mine" truthfully advertises that it took one year to make. That was due to the delays occasioned by the spaghetti-loving Lanza allowing his weight to get up to around 240 pounds.

Bernhardt sums up the feeling of most industry people who were checked by this reporter: "I don't think the picture will ever be made. The studio can't afford to take a chance with Lanza now. No other studio or producer would dare to as long as M-G-M's contract is in force."

First Buyers Sign For House In Subdivision

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart McGiffen are buyers of the first house to be built in the Queen Elizabeth realty subdivision. It is one of the group of six that was begun the other day by Sands and Bateman, who have three or four other prospects.

The preliminary to transfer was given a little civic flourish Friday afternoon in Mayor Waddell's office at the City Hall.

The young couple are buying one house, but decided to concentrate on a better one. So, the first becomes a credit for the second if that is the way of financing.

Mr. McGiffen is employed at the C.G.E. After the war in which he served with the Essex Scottish from 1940 to Sept. 8, 1945, he came to Peterborough.

City council recognized the probability that no actual housing progress could be made on the larger housing area in Smith this year. So, several properties were bought nearer the city across its north border. It was hoped that essential improvements could be accomplished early, including the surveying. However, there has been some promising progress, with Sands and Bateman arranging definitely for the first sale and turnover.

Cheese Inspector J. Murray Buried

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS)—Federal cheese Inspector John Alexander Murray of R.R. 3, Campbellford, was buried today at the Burnbray Presbyterian Church. Funeral service was under the auspices of the Masonic Order and the Rev. James McAvoy officiated.

Pall-bearers were Fred Hay, Alvin Pollock, Lindsay Watson, Jesse Lock, Ernest Ingram and Vernon Spencer. Burial was at Burnbray cemetery.

Mr. Murray died suddenly at his home on Wednesday. He was born Andrew Murray and Susanne Justice, and has lived in the district a lifetime.

Besides his wife, the former Bertha May Watson, he leaves two daughters, Mrs. Gerald Mitchell (Jean) of Campbellford and Mrs. Warren Beatty (Helen) of Brantford, and two sons, Watson at home and William of Campbellford. A sister, Mrs. Blake Ketcheson, lives in Marmora.

Before becoming Federal cheese inspector Mr. Murray was a district cheesemaker for many years. He was a member of Burnbray Presbyterian Church and of its Board of Managers.

Police Barrage Kills Fugitive

POTTSTOWN, Pa. (AP)—A man wanted on charges of carrying concealed weapons was shot to death and two state policemen were wounded early today in a gunfight at a home near Pottstown.

Police Capt. A.J. Oldham identified the dead man as Robert Jensen, about 26, believed to be a resident of San Bernardino, Calif.

Oldham said the two policemen, sent to arrest Jensen, were fired on as they approached the house. They broke into the home, cornered Jensen in a second-floor bedroom and shot him down after he had wounded both of them.

The policemen are:

Albert B. Kissinger, 24, in serious condition with a gunshot wound in the chest, and John J. Flannery, 26, shot in he right arm, condition good.

Public School Inspector Would Abolish Report Cards

TORONTO—A public school inspector from Sudbury suggested yesterday that report cards should be abolished.

C. M. Elliott told a panel discussion at the Ontario Association for Curriculum Development here that the teachers' time consumed in preparing reports and the misinterpretation made of the results by parents outweighed any advantages.

"The report card has been used as a whip by parents to drive their children on to greater achievement," he said. "They compare the results with those of Johnny next door. It's always a struggle to get them back duly signed so there must be a struggle at home about them."

He added that an interview between parent and teacher was even more time-consuming.

Others on the panel disagreed with him. Mrs. W. P. Augustine of Windsor, vice-president of the Ontario Home and School Federation, said there would be an awful squawk from parents if reports were abolished.

But two teachers said they run into a tremendous amount of indifference from parents. They wondered if all the effort put into reports was worth it. One said she has been teaching at a high school in London for three years and has yet to meet the parents of even one of her students.

The panel settled the fact that reports should be continued, in some form or other, and today will tackle the problem of what they should contain.

The educators agreed that there is less interest in the progress of has to see about a dozen teachers. No one teacher will take the responsibility, he said.

Other teachers disagreed and said most high schools have a form teacher for each class who is responsible for such information.

Vernon Trott, Forest Hill board psychologist, said standards of marking wobble from teacher to teacher and school to school.

"The child who moves from one school to another is often behind the eight-ball," he said. "He may get 80 in the class he left and be in the bottom fifth of the class in his new school."

The educators suggested various means of reporting to parents, including one suggestion that the child's mother should actually come to the class and watch her child at work.

"That would just result in exhibitionism by the pupil," commented Dr. Alex Wingfield, Hamilton board psychologist.

"And it would be hard on the teacher," said Mr. Trott.

The Forest Hill psychologist said he liked the system used by the school his children attend. Every day they bring home the tests and papers they have worked on during the day and the parents can not only see how well they did, but where they went wrong.

"At some schools where that is tried," commented Miss Eva Walker, of Toronto, "the test papers just litter the school door and never get home. The children tell us their parents tell them not to bring that stuff home, they haven't room for it. The children know their parents are indifferent and don't want the papers they don't even want the children around, in some cases," said Mr. Wingfield.

NO RESPONSIBILITY TAKEN

George Trussler, of York Township, thought it was because it is much harder for a parent to penetrate the secondary school and get the information, since the parent

Air Search Continues For 2 Lost On Flight

HALIFAX (CP) — A search fleet of 31 planes took to the air today to continue the hunt for a twin-engined American Beechcraft missing since Thursday on a flight from New York to Goose Bay, Labrador.

Two men were aboard the plane when it was last spotted near Seven Islands, Que.

The search craft today came from the R.C.A.F. stations at P.E.I., and American bases in Newfoundland.

SYNTHETIC RUBBER

In 1951 Canada produced an average of 5,191 tons of synthetic rubber and 423 tons of reclaimed rubber a month.

Cadi Criticizes Adjournments In Peterborough

COBOURG (ENS)—"I have not been any too happy the way they adjourn cases out in Peterborough," declared Magistrate R. B. Baxter Friday in connection with a charge against a Peterborough man which was laid over here because the corporal from the detachment in that city was unable to attend court in Cobourg.

The accused was Howard J. Wyatt of Peterborough who was charged with illegal possession of liquor. Crown Attorney Harry Deyman informed the court that Corporal Aime Gaudry of Peterborough had advised him that he would not be able to be present and requested an adjournment.

"Why didn't he tell me that he wouldn't be down? It costs me money to come down here and now I have to come again. This whole case is a misunderstanding in the first place," said Wyatt.

"If you had asked for an adjournment I would have had to grant it to you no matter how many witnesses the Crown had called here and I am obliged to give the Crown the same consideration. I have not been any too happy the way they adjourn cases out in Peterborough. I don't see why the corporal isn't here but he may have a good raeson and I shall not prejudge him," commented the magistrate.

A charge against Arthur Turpin of Colborne on having liquor illegally was dismissed. Turpin and James Coyle, a man on the interdicted list were drinking in Turpin's apartment when provincial police visited the place and seized a bottle in Turpin's bedroom which had been obtained, police believed, from a bootlegger, Coyle putting up the money. Turpin told the court that he and Coyle had a drink out of his own bottle and also out of the one Coyle secured and that he put Coyle's bottle in the bedroom because they were discussing a business deal and he wanted Coyle to have a clear head. The magistrate ruled that the foundation for possession had not been clearly established.

Based on a collision which occurred on the outskirts of the town when a taxi and a private car collided, a charge against Oliver Crowe of Port Hope was heard in court Friday. The magistrate dismissed the charge. Harold Ruddick, taxi driver of Cobourg and his passenger at the time, Miss Shirley Slator, both testified that when they pulled out of a private drive around midnight Sept. 20 they were struck by a car driven by Crowe, which had no lights on.

Clarence Grimshaw, motel proprietor across the road saw both the taxi and the other car just before the accident and said that the Port Hope car didn't have the lights on but that Crowe turned them on after the accident. Robert Chadwick, garage mechanic, who tested the light switch for the provincial police, after the accident, testified that the switch was defective and would cause the lights to flicker when the car was jarred.

Crowe said that the switch was hard to operate if one was not familiar with it. Both he and his passenger, Tom Hudson, testified that the lights were operating before the accident. Crowe gave the opinion that the impact of his body against the steering wheel, which broke, could have pushed the light switch off and that after the impact when he saw they were off he turned them on.

Alliance Replaces Commonwealth

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. A.R.M. Lower, a Queen's University professor, said yesterday before a women's club gathering that the British Commonwealth now is being replaced by an American commonwealth, a "much more powerful alliance than anything heretofore in history."

"Canada's place in the setup is problematical," he said. "We still manage to keep some of our independence and retain a feeble toehold on our lives and our identity in this new commonwealth."

Small countries often lose their independence when they become partners with more powerful nations and "it's not too much to suggest that a small country should take certain decisions on its own," he said.

MARATHON GAME—The next move is studied by the above two Canadians who began a marathon chess game during the large scale exercises held in Germany. Up to now they have found time to make only one or two moves a day since mid-September. They are L-Cpl. Peter Burgess, left, of Montreal, and Sgt. Ron Wake, Camp Petawawa, Ont. Both are members of the Royal Canadian Dragoons.

English Canon To Speak On Thursday

Canon Bryan Green, rector of Birmingham, England, and famed missionary, will be in Peterborough Thursday night to conduct, A Service of Witness, at the Brock Arena.

This service is under the auspices of the Archdeaconry of Peterborough, which extends from Port Hope to Haliburton and Norwood to Port Perry.

Canan Green is coming to Canada to lead the Diocesan Mission to be held in the Coliseum, Tortonto, Oct. 26 to Nov. 4 under the auspices of the Church of England, Diocese of Toronto. While he is in this country the Birmingham rector will speak in a few other centres.

Canon Green is well-known in England as the rector of St. Martins, the parish church of Birmingham. But his fame throughout the English-speaking world is as a missioner. He paid his first visit to Canada in 1939. And since 1945 he has been a popular missioner in England, Canada and the United States. He has held Diocesan Missions in Boston, New York, Washington and Philadelphia.

The music for the Peterborough service will be provided by representatives of the choirs of all the Anglican Churches in the Peterborough Archdeaconry. Mr. Robert Johnston will be at the piano.

GUILTY OR NOT GUILTY, Principal J. G. Nichols of Confederation School (right) asks an "accused" (with his back to camera) who appeared in the school's Saftey Court Thursday charged with violating a safety rule. The court holds one session each week and is in connection with the school safety patrol program being instituted in city schools by Constable Don Mackay (centre). Patrol Captain Jack Pulkingham (left) has just finished reading the charge. Principal Nichols, who took over for A. Olmstead, teacher in charge of patrols at Confederation who was absent, heard the evidence and decided whether offenders were guilty or not guilty of the charges.—(Parks Studio Photo).

Seaway Team To Washington

OTTAWA (CP)—Top men of Canada's St. Lawrence Seaway team are going to Washington for final hearings of the International Joint Commission Monday on the power end of the $700,000,000 project.

Transport Minister Chevrier will head a group of government officials and technical experts sitting in on the expected close of one of the major phases of the hydro-navigation development.

The Canadians are going mainly as observers, Mr. Chevrier said yesterday, but they will be prepared to give evidence if that is needed to reinforce the joint Canada-United States application for authority to produce power on the international section of the river.

The Washington sessions of the commission, the Canada-U.S. body that regulates the use of boundary waters, are expected to last two or three days. Barring snags, they will see the last evidence taken by the commission, which for several weeks has been holding sittings at points on the rivers and Great Lakes.

Special Cake

BEACHY HEAD, England (CP)—The 50th anniversary of the famed Beachy Head lighthouse was quite a party. Guests at this Sussex town saw a model of the lighthouse in cake and sugar, topped with a flashing light.

"BIG GUN" IN CANCER WAR — One of the newest weapons in the fight against cancer is this 24-million electron-volt betatron, which has been installed at the Memorial Centre for Cancer and Allied Diseases, in New York. The machine, 12 times more powerful than conventional X-ray equipment, will be used for research to determine ways of increasing effectivenes of surgery and of radiation treatment of the disease.

Maples Not Reds Test Indicates

TORONTO (CP)—A survey by experts of maples lining University Avenue shows that as far as they can tell not one of them is a red maple as ordered by the city.

Alderman Roy Belyea announced the results of the official survey yesterday which indicated that all the trees are Norway maples. These trees turn yellow or brown in the autumn rather than the gold, yellow and red colors of the red maple.

Mr. Belyea commented: "I must insist that the trees be removed and replaced by the contractor with the red maples the city ordered."

Everyone agreed, however, to wait for the final report of Professor R. C. Hosie, chief dendrologist of the faculty of forestry, University of Toronto, which will be made Monday. Professor Hosie made tests on all 127 trees yesterday and confirmed previous opinions that they are Norway maples.

Return To Knowledge Needed For Advance

TORONTO (CP)—Stability of the Canadian national and social development which is almost bound to follow the present economic boom depends on a return to knowledge with roots and background, Dr. W. A. McIntosh, principal of Queen's University, said last night.

Speaking at the Homecoming banquet of the University of Toronto Alumni Association, he said the great task of universities in this new era is to educate graduates to resist the pressures of immediate considerations.

The new education must necessarily be an education of the few and not of the many, he said. Care should be taken that selection is not made on a financial basis.

Urges Wider Taxation

TORONTO (CP)—All municipal residents should share in the cost of education and social welfare rather than just property owners, the National House Builders Association Provincial-Municipal Relations Committee, the Association also urged that real property be taxed only for such services as benefit it.

Dog Dead, Tag Needed

ST. CLAIR BEACH (CP)—Austin Petty discovered yesterday he will have to buy a licence for his dead dog, killed on a highway in August. Village authorities informed him that, since he owned the dog for more than six months during 1952, he will have to buy a licence for it.

School Youngsters Charged In "Court" For Offences

A benchful of offenders sat swinging their feet outside the court room as the court officials filed past and went inside, closing the door.

"Who'll be first," they were thinking. Then the door opened and a 13-year-old was summoned inside to answer a charge.

Safety Court is another feature of Constable Don Mackay's program of safety instruction in public schools in connection with school safety patrols.

JAYWALKING

As the first accused entered the nurse's room in the school basement which serves as a court room Thursday morning's he was confronted with a charge of jaywalking at King Edward School.

School principal J. G Nichols sat behind the "bench" with Constable Mackay and doubled in the role of prosecutor and magistrate, meting out summary justice to convicted offenders.

Members of the school patrol act as court officers and give evidence concerning the charges which range from failing to obey the safety patrol, to riding two on a bicycle, or even insulting a member of the patrol.

As the first offender was brought before the court, a freckle faced patrol captain read the charge. "Is it true you were jaywalking at King Edward School?"

The youngsters take safety court sessions seriously and come up with excuses and explanations that bear a remarkable similarity to those offered by motorists who appear before Magistrate W. R. Philp in Traffic Court.

Instead of entering a plea of guilty or not guilty, the "accused" launched into an explanation on the jaywalking charge and won an acquittal on a technicality.

NOT OWN PATROL

He admitted crossing the street when the King Edward school patrol was not stopping traffic but was he expected to obey all school patrols in the city? After all he was willing to obey his own school patrol but at intersections guarded by another school patrol wasn't that a different matter?

When a boy or girl disobeys the school patrol, or breaks any safety rule, the patrol members fills out an infraction slip, noting the offender's name, and the time and place and type of offence.

Principal Nichols assumed a judicious air as he pondered the accused's explanation for jaywalking and handed down this judgment:

"With justice I think we can find you not guilty of this charge," he said. However, he added this warning, "You really must obey all traffic safety laws anywhere and I trust that in the future you will obey our traffic safety laws."

ON WRONG SIDE

Next came an 11-year-old charged with riding his bicycle on the wrong side of the street. This time the accused pleaded guilty after patrol captain Jack Pulkingham read the charge.

The sentence: "You will not be permitted to bring your bicycle

The third accused stalked into the courtroom to face a charge of insulting patrol captain Pulkingham and patrol lieutenant Lawrence Wicks.

He admitted the offence but claimed he was being picked on and had protested against rough treatment.

The patrol lieutenant explained that the accused had just been told to hurry up. A member of the patrol was called to give evidence and he added that the accused had been told to quit walking on lawns along the way.

This was ruled out as being a case of lack of courtesy but not applying to the charge of insulting patrol members. However, the principal said he was finding the accused guilty because of being impudent to patrol officers. "They are doing a job and speak and do things for the school," he added and said that sentence would be passed on Friday.

Constable Mackey then explained to the convicted offender that "each patrol member on duty is just like a policeman. They are on duty to look after your safety and must be treated as policemen when they are on duty."

SAFETY CONSCIOUS

Safety Court has a feature that Traffic Court lacks. It is not concerned mainly with punishmnt of offenders, but rather with instilling in the youngsters a sense of responsibility and respect for the authority of the safety patrol who are looking after their interest. This has the effect of making the youngsters even more safety conscious and impresses them with the fact that it is in their own interest to observe safety rules.

Proof that this policy is having results is shown by the fact that there were 17 offenders when the first Safety Court was held a week ago. On Thursday there were only six offenders charged. "We fully expect to have a clean sheet this week," Constable Mackey said.

Treat Toronto Boy For Tropical Illness

The 12-year-old boy is suffering from schistosomiasis, an illness common in the tropics, which the lad picked up while wading in a river in Africa more than a year ago.

Schistosomiasis occurs when parasites that breed in snails in tropical rivers burrow into the human body until they enter the veins. Within a fortnight they enter the bladder veins and when the male and female parasites meet they produce eggs which perforate the kidney. Enough of these perforations can lead to kidney failure.

Crippled Children Get Chance At Camp

TORONTO (CP)—Every crippled child in the province will eventually have the chance to go to summer camp, R.W. Hopper, executive director of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, said yesterday.

Plans are being made, he told the board of directors of the society, to enlarge present camps to accommodate 900 children next summer. The society sent 536 such children to camp last year.

Two new camps will be built by the society, he said—one in Northern Ontario and the other in the Niagara Peninsula.

Police Chief Fired For Drinking

PERTH (CP)—The dismissal of E. Carson Smith as police chief of this eastern Ontario town was confirmed yesterday by town council. Mayor H.E. Burns cast the deciding vote after council members were deadlocked on the chief's appeal of an earlier council decision to fire him.

The chief was charged with drinking on duty and fighting with an Ottawa motorost, R.J. Oliver.

Terrorists Raid Douks' Colonies

Violence and terrorism—including arson, nudism and beatings by night riders—was reported yesterday from the West Kootenays and from the quiet Doukhobor colony at Hilliers, 25 miles from Nanaimo on Vancouver Island.

More than 50 Doukhobor men, women and children have fled their homes in the Grand Forks district, fleeing to Hilliers only to find terrorists in the island colony.

A colony spokesman said the young members of the sect resented the arrival of elder Doukhobors from the Kootenays.

In the Kootenays, Doukhobors who have been sending their children to school have been terrorized. Homes have been entered by hooded men in the early morning hours and the occupants threatened.

Last Of Sheriffs Dies At 92 In California

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—William Anson Loomis, 92, perhaps the last of the law officers who dealt with the bandits of the old west, died yesterday.

He was personally acquainted with such figures as Jesse James, Billy the Kid, Pat Garrett, Red Kelley and Wyatt and Morgan Earp. He claimed to have officiated at 15 hangings.

Loomis was a cowpuncher in the Las Cruces, N.M., area before he became city marshal at Leadville, Colo.

Librarian May Lose Job If At Red Meet

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver library board yesterday ordered suspension of a branch library clerk unless she can satisfactorily explain a report that she is attending a Communist conference in Red China.

The clerk, Mrs. Ray Gardner, is scheduled to return to her job Nov. 1 after being given a two-months leave of absence.

Doubt On Korea Reflected In Lower Market

By HARRY KINGDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Uncertainty marked stock market dealings on the Toronto Exchange this week and was reflected in a declining market.

Traders have been uncertain about Korea, future business conditions and the United States presidential election for some time, and this week, another factor was added—the trader who got tired of waiting.

The upward leap of the market last week was ascribed partly to prospects of increased activity in Korea as the Communists attacked and truce negotiations were called off.

This week, however, Communist attacks eased off somewhat. Also, many observers felt that the influence of Canada's L.B. Pearson as the new president of the United Nations Assembly was having a conciliatory effect on international disputants. This might mean a slackening of demand for many products, particularly metals.

PICTURE CONFUSED

The U.S. election picture will be confused until the returns are in. Traders will then decide whether to look for an easing of excess profits taxes and income taxes on corporations under Eisenhower or for a continuation of them under Stevenson.

On the general business uncertainty, Harold L. Trapp of Playfair and Company, Toronto, says: "Popular opinion these days seems to indicate some reaction in general business in the latter part of 1953. . . The stock market may be discounting an easing-off."

Faced with numerous uncertainties and a market that continued to decline, some traders this week started to sell stocks they had been holding for an upturn in the market. This selling probably was not extensive but it did have an effect on the market.

It remains to be seen whether the firm upswing that took place Friday was an indication that traders have resolved these uncertainties and decided to buy or whether it was merely a technical correction of Wednesday's sharp declines.

The Toronto market started the week Tuesday with a general decline that turned into sharp dip Wednesday. In Montreal, industrials rose Tuesday while papers slipped, but both turned downward Wednesday.

LATE WEEK RISE

The decline continued in both centres Thursday, but was checked Friday by a general rise.

New York followed a similar pattern: Decline Tuesday, sharp dip Wednesday that continued Thursday and then a general recovery Friday.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials down 4.33 at 313.32, golds down 4.51 at 82.50, base metals down 4.93 at 175.93 and western oils down 6.29 at 120.08.

In the Montreal averages, banks were up .06 at 31.51, utilities down .8 at 87.7, industrials down 4.0 at 200.8, combined down 2.9 at 163.31, papers down 10.60 at 664.88 and golds down 3.20 at 61.78.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down 1.40 at $105.10.

Scientist Suicides

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP)—A young atomic scientist, honored for wartime research, died yesterday on Rutgers University campus after drinking a chemical solution. Two college workers were unable to halt him. A coroner ruled the death of Dr. John F. Lape, 36, as a suicide.

Awaits Sentence For Manslaughter

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Richard Monette, 29, yesterday was convicted of manslaughter in the fatal beating last November of 83-year-old Harper Harris, Grantham township farmer. He will be sentenced Thursday.

Monette was convicted last January of murdering the elderly bachelor and sentenced to be hanged in April. However, an appeal on the grounds that Mr. Justice H. A. Aylen erred in his explanation to the jury of the meaning of "reasonable doubt" won him a retrial.

Joseph Sedgwick, who argued the appeal for Monette, claimed the court should have asked the jury to determine whether a crime was committed when Harris' body was found at the foot of his cellar steps or whether death was caused by an accidental fall.

In the retrial, Dr. Lorne Whittaker, pathologist at St. Catharines General Hospital, testified that the injuries on Harris' body could not all have been caused by a fall downstairs.

U.S. Announces 2 Contracts With Canada For Nickel

WASHINGTON (CP)—The United states government Thursday announced the signing of two new contracts with Canadian firms which it said would result in production of 4,104,000 pounds of nickel.

Jess Larson, defence materials procurement administrator, said the loan-purchase agreements with Milnet Mines, Ltd., and Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd., both of Toronto, also are expected to bring production of a considerable amount of copper and some platinum and palladium.

He said nickel has many defence uses and is essential in production of jet engines. It is listed by the defence production administration as "most critical." U.S. consumption in 1950 was nearly 200,000,000 pounds, Larson said, and added that demand has increased since then.

STARTING MINING MARCH 1

Larson said the agreement with Milnet provides for it to start mining ore in the Sudbury district of Ontario not later than March 1, 1953. It will produce ore at an average rate of 2,100 short tons per week to the end of 1954.

The ore will be processed for the government by Falconbridge at Falconbridge, Ont., and Kristiansand, Norway.

The defence materials procurement agency will advance company $440,000 to assist in getting the mine into production, Larson said. He added this will be repayable with interest as ore is produced and sold to Falconbridge. He estimated total cost of getting production under way at $950,000.

The government agreed to purchase 4,104,000 pounds of nickel which the Milnet ore is expected to yield and such platinum and palladium as is produced. It also agreed to purchase any copper recovered from the ore if it is offered by Falconbridge.

BASE PRICES

Base prices, with some leeway for adjustment to market quotations, were announced as: Nickel 56.66 cents per pound; platinum $93 a troy ounce, and palladium $21.50 a troy ounce, all F.O.B. Kristiansand. A floor price of 27.5 cents a pound for the copper, F.O.B. Kristiansand, is guaranteed by the contract.

Larson said the new agreements are similar to those announced recently with Falconbridge and East Rim Nickel Mines, Ltd., Toronto, but cover much larger quantities of nickel.

Urge Police Issue Driving Licences

HANOVER (CP)—The Grey and Bruce Police Association Thursday passed a resolution recommending that police departments be responsible for instruction and for examinations for issuing driving licences.

The resolution also suggested that a certificate from a licensed mechanic be required before any vehicle is allowed on the road; that all drivers be required to be examined by a physician every five years; that applicants for driving permits satisfy the examiner that they are able to read English and that a uniform method be used for instruction throughout the province.

Loyola Teacher Fr. Kehoe Dies

MONTREAL (CP)—Rev. Aloysius F.J. Kehoe, 41, who suffered a heart attack last February at Regiopolis College, Kingston, died Thursday night.

Father Kehoe was a professor at Loyola College, Montreal, from 1936 to 1939. He left Loyola to study theology at West Baden College, West Baden, Ind., where he was ordained in 1943. He then taught at St. Mary's College in Halifax and left there for Regiopolis College.

He was a native of Red Bank, N.J., and was educated there and at St. Joseph's College, Memramcook, N.B., and later studied in Guelph and Toronto.

When he became ill in Kingston he was brought to the Retreat House at Beaconsfield, near Montreal, until his recent admission to hospital.

To Build 25 Houses In Goderich Area

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal and Ontario governments have agreed to build 25 houses in Goderich, to rent at approximately $65 a month each.

The federal government will pay 75 per cent of the cost of the $245,000 project. Ontario will pay the remainder. Goderich will service the land on which the houses will be built.

Malenkov Seen Firmly In Control Now

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

Developments of the Communist party congress, including the selection of its new praesidium announced Friday, tend to confirm the impression that the Malenkov group, firmly in control, is about to enforce the strictest party domination over all phases of Soviet life.

The domination of Georgi Maximilianovich Malenkov is evident from at least two aspects of the new praesidium: the demotion of Alexei N. Losygin from full politburo member to alternate praesidium member, and the dropping of politburo member Andrei A. Andreyev.

It is also plain that the breed of Communist epitomized by Malenkov — with the accent on youth — holds the reins of the party, and that these Communists are determined to guard this control jealously, particularly from any possible encroachments from the Soviet army and navy.

TIGHTEN CONTROL

On the surface, the selection of a praesidium with 25 members and 11 alternates to replace a 12-member politburo looks like a broadening of the base of the party leadership. The likely purpose was stricter party control. Outside the top rulers of the party, members of the praesidium are either regional party leaders or heads of ministries or party sections.

The authority of the name of Joseph Stalin still holds sway, but there seems little question the Malenkov group is making full use of this authority, likely under the direction of the aging Stalin himself. Stalin retains the top positions of the party. But the secretariate of the party seems fully in the hands of Malenkov. Malenkov even now may be the operating head — in effect, the general manager.

The demotion of Kosygin is highly significant. Kosygin, at 47 the youngest member of the politburo, made a meteoric rise under the sponsorship of Andrei Zhdanov, once considered Malenkov's chief rival for the mantle of Stalin. Zhdanov died in 1948, and many of his adherents subsequently disappeared.

DEFEAT FOR MOLOTOV

The plodding and colorless Andreyev has been tottering for a long time. His failure to make the praesidium indicates a drop in the prestige of his protectors, including Vyacheslav M. Molotov.

It also indicates his loss of the contest over how Soviet agriculture was to be developed. Andreyev represented caution — fear of the reaction of the peasants. His disappearance from the praesidium probably signals a crackdown on the peasantry to transform it more and more into a corps of agricultural labor.

Finally, there is a notable lack of military influence at the top. No career military man made either the praesidium or the party secretariat. This is just one more evidence of the historic Russian tradition — the army is not to be trusted.

Abbott Predicts Tax Cuts Introduced In 1953 Budget

Plan Legislation In Ontario Aid Road Building

TORONTO (CP)—Legislation aimed at improving the financing of highway construction in Ontario will be introduced at the special session of the Ontario Legislature which opened today. The surprise announcement was contained in the speech from the throne read by Lieutenant-Governor Louis Breithaupt at the opening ceremonies. The 300-word speech, outlining proposed government legislation, also dealt with two other measures —forecast in advance by Premier Frost—which will come before the assembly.

The 300-word speech, outlining proposed government legislation, also dealt with two other measures —forecast in advance by Premier Frost—which will come before the assembly.

One will be a bill to ratify the tax-rental agreement between the province and federal government signed last Aug. 29 by Premier Frost and Finance Minister Abbott. Under this Ontario will turn its personal income and corporation tax fields over to the federal government in return for fixed annual payments over a five-year period ending March 31, 1957.

COMPENSATE OWNERS

The second will provide legislation to compensate property owners along the upper St. Lawrence River whose land is expropriated or damaged during the proposed St. Lawrence hydro development, to be built in conjunction with the seeway project.

The throne speech said the new bill will also "enable the government and the Hydro - electric Power Commission of Ontario to deal effectively with certain special problems of planning, rehabilitation, the rendering of services, and any exceptional claims that may arise."

The highways bill, the speech said, "will render more effective the financing of the construction and maintenance of our provincial highways, the construction program for which has been greatly extended."

VOTE HIGHWAY FUNDS

"It is proposed that hereafter all monies to be provided for highway purposes will be voted for such purposes by the legislature."

In the past, highway expansion and improvement have been paid out of funds provided automatically under the highways improvement act. Members have been unable to deal with specific highways expenditures.

The new legislation will establish a special highway reserve account from which highways expenditures will be made.

The speech also told members they will be asked to vote money at this session to the new highways fund.

Bazooka Bomb Explosion Killed 2 Soldiers

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP) — It was the explosion of a bazooka bomb which took the lives of two Canadian soldiers and injured 21 others in a training accident near Kure, Japan, last Friday, 25th Brigade headquarters disclosed today.

The accident occurred at the Canadian wing of the Commonwealth division battle school at Haramueea near Kure, but in announcing it Friday the army gave no details.

Killed were Cpl. Carlo E. Bignucolo of Chapleau, and Pte. Warwick C. Ryan of Bell Island Nfld. Two other soldiers, Pte. Russell E. Brand of Kirkland Lake, and Pte. Clarence Vincent of St. John's, Nfld., are listed as dangerously ill as a result of wounds suffered in the accident.

In giving details of the accident today, 25th Brigade headquarters told this story:

Thirty-two Royal Canadian Regiment soldiers were getting machine gun instruction on the firing range from Lt. G.F.B. Ritchie of Brantford. During the morning break Cpl. G.F. Eady of London, Ont., discovered a bazooka bomb in the area and removed it to a safe place.

He warned the men against touching it but shortly afterward Cpl. Bignucolo discovered it and began examining it. It was then that the rocket-type missile exploded.

Ottawa Delays B.C. By-Election

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government may wait for some time before calling a by-election to fill the Commons' vacancy resulting from the appointment of Fisheries Minister Mayhew as Canada's first ambassador to Japan.

Actually Mr. Mayhew's British Columbia constituency of Victoria will not become vacant until Nov. 15—the date his new appointment takes effect.

Mr. Mayhew resigned from the Cabinet Oct. 15, the day his appointment was announced by Prime Minister St. Laurent. However, he did not at the same time resign from the Commons.

Some observers interpreted the move as an indication the government will wait for more favorable political winds in British Columbia before calling a by-election.

It takes from 45 to 50 days to run off a by-election. If Mr. Mayhew had resigned immediately, for instance, a by-election could have been held in the later part of November or early December.

Actress Bette Davis Collapses On Stage

The well-known film star was carried off the stage by two stage hands, but returned a few minutes later to finish the show.

"You can't say I didn't fall for you," she told an applauding first-night audience.

Physicians said overwork in preparing for the revue was responsible for her collapse. Miss Davis' stage role is her first in several years.

Refuses Reopen Talks On Communist Terms

In a strongly-worded message he told the top Red commanders in Korea the United Nations Command will never agree to negotiate further on any proposal requiring forced repatriation of war prisoners.

Clark told them today it was the "same old package" and contained "nothing new or constructive." The U.N. suspended the talks indefinitely Oct. 8.

African Riot Death Toll Reaches 11

5,000 Fight Police In Running Battle, Order Now Restored

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — Heavily-armed police ringed New Brighton township today following weekend riots which left 11 persons dead, at least 27 injured and great property damage in the Negro section.

The township, a part of Port Elizabeth housing 40,000 Negroes, was quiet today after an orgy of violence, looting and arson Saturday. Only authorized persons were allowed to cross the police cordon.

Before gun-firing police were able to restore order Saturday night, a New Brighton post office, a large motion picture theatre, five shops and stores and many automobiles were burned, the railway station and municipal buildings badly damaged.

Trouble flared first at the station when railway police tried to arrest two negroes on charges of theft. By-standers attacked the police, who opened fire to disperse them. Later a bigger mob returned to the attack.

The crowds fanned out, burning and looting buildings and setting fire to cars and trucks. At one time during the riot, about 5,000 Negroes fought a running battle with the police.

Police reinforcements were called into Port Elizabeth from surrounding areas, citizen defence units were notified and police took up positions at power stations and other strategic points around the city. The trouble did not spread beyond the Negro quarter, however.

The disorders were reported to have had no connection with the current native campaign of civil disobedience protesting South African racial laws. New Brighton had been regarded previously as a model for racial harmony. The Negroes there were considered more settled and contented than elsewhere in South Africa, and the crime rate was relatively low.

Don Jail Inquiry Opens In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Royal commission inquiry into the administration of the Don jail opened today before Judge Ian MacDonell.

Among the exhibits was a scale model of the Toronto jail from which members of the Boyd gang escaped twice within less than a year.

George T. Walsh is senior counsel at the inquiry which will investigate circumstances surrounding the Sept. 8 escape of Edwin Alonzo Boyd, Steve Suchan, Leonard Jackson and William Russell Jackson. Assistant counsel for the province is Clare Hope.

Coast Guard Rescues 40 Stranded Children

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — The Coast Guard early today rescued 40 children stranded since Sunday afternoon when a pleasure boat ran aground.

The children and five adult chaperones — all from St. Petersburg—spent anxious hours waiting to be rescued while the Coast Guard rounded up small craft that could reach the boat stuck in the shallow water.

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW POST OFFICE building excavation started on Saturday as power shovels started to rip out a basement hole that will measure 209 by 150 feet. Much preliminary work was required to change the shape of the west bank of Factory Creek (to right of photo, not shown) chiefly to cut down many of the large willow trees and throw up an earth coffer dam to divert creek water from flowing back into the basement digging operation. Though there is a nip of winter in the air today, contractors are ignoring it; work will proceed normally and steadily, they say. It is well up to their work schedule so far.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Britain Flying Battalion To Halt Terror

LONDON (AP) — Britain is flying a battalion of white troops to Kenya tonight to cope with Mau Mau terrorists out to drive the white man form the East African colony.

The Colonial Office said the cruiser Kenya would be sent to Mombasa, 400 miles from Nairobi, within the next few days to support troops in the Kenya capital.

It will be the first time in years that a British battalion has served in East Africa. The colony normally is garrisoned by African soldiers serving under white officers.

During the last few weeks Mau Mau terrorists have committed dozens of murders, arson, cattle killing and other crimes.

The Mau Mau is a secret society of the big Kikuyu tribe — whose warriors ranged the plains of Kenya until the British farmers moved in around 50 years ago.

Africans who refuse to take the Mau Mau oath — usually sworn over the entrails of a goat at dead of night — are hung by the neck from rafters until unconscious.

Figures given to the House of Commons by Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttelton last week showed that the society is responsible for 43 murders, including a prominent African chief and several Britons. Other people have been driven to suicide by fear of the Mau Mau.

Saboteurs Fail Wreck Pipeline

ELAN, Wales (AP) — Police disclosed today that an unsuccessful weeken attempt was made to blow up a pipeline carrying water to Birmingham, England's second largest city.

[illegible] an explosive to Birmingham from reservoirs in the isolated Elan valley in the mountains of central Wales. The charge blew an eight-foot-deep crater under one arch but failed to damage the pipeline.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh are due in the area Thursday to open a new dam.

Another case of suspected sabotage during the weekend took place at Armadale, in West Lothian, Scotland, where explosives were used in an attempt to wreck a privately-owned coal mine. No one was hurt.

Durban Train Derailed 23 Passengers Killed

COLENSO, South Africa (CP)—The Durban-Johannesburg passenger train was derailed on an embankment in Natal today, killing 23 passengers and injuring 37 others.

All the casualties were Africans except three Europeans. The Africans were travelling in "African-only" wooden cars while the European injured were in steel "white" cars.

Radar Not Working Liner Hits Rocks

VANCOUVER (CP)—Drydock will be the next port of call for the luxury liner Prince George following a brush with disaster in British Columbia's Johnstone Straits. The $3,000,000 Canadian National Steamships vessel, her radar out of order, was groping through heavy fog Saturday when she struck a glancing blow and ran aground briefly at Ripple Point, 130 miles north of here. Capt. E. B. Caldwell said one of the Prince George's propellers was damaged when she struck, "starboard aft."

"There was not too much of a thump," he said, reporting that none of her 144 passengers or 130 crew members was injured.

ARRIVED SUNDAY

The Prince George completed her southward journey from Alaska at 7:05 a.m. yesterday, nearly 28 hours after the accident.

The 5,813-ton vessel, biggest ship ever built on Canada's Pacific Coast, made port under her own steam, but was escorted all the way by tugs rushed to Ripple Point after she flashed an S O S.

Capt. Caldwell said he had made every effort to have the radar repaired, but was unsuccessful.

"Unfortunately in cases like this, you can't find technicians and necessary spare parts in the northern coast ports," he said.

ORDER INQUIRY

At Ottawa, the Department of Transport ordered a preliminary inquiry into the mishap and, in Vancouver, C.N. steamships announced the steamship Prince Rupert will take over the Prince George's northern run temporarily.

Ripple Point is not to be confused with treacherous Ripple Rock in Seymour Narrows. The point is some 40 miles from the Rock.

Pounding Waves Damage Road

SARNIA (CP) — Sections of Lake Shore road were in danger today as pounding waves smashed close to the pavement after an all-night gale. At several points the bank had been eaten away within a few inches of the road.

The road still was passable at mid-morning but slippery. In a dozen places waves were breaking across the pavement.

A "twister" of snow and wind from the lake hit the Brights Grove school at 10 a.m. Hail was sheeting the highway near Brights Grove and a second storm appeared to be coming from the north.

Chief Constable Arthur Nesbitt of the Sarnia township police said today he feared the road might go out near the Brigden sideroad.

Power was off from 9 p.m. to 4 a.m. last night as rural hydro crews worked to cut away several fallen trees menacing power lines and poles.

Swap Snow Stories

CHATHAM (CP) — Residents from Chatham and nearby Blenheim swapped snow stories today and nobody could remember as heavy an October fall as occurred last night.

The latter figure was reported this morning and road-scrapers and small snowploughs were brought into action.

Production Boost Almost Certain Finance Chief Says

VANCOUVER (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott today forecast increased production, virtually assuring Canadians of tax cuts in the next budget. As in previous references to the possibilities of tax relief, the minister said only through increased production could Canadians hope for a reduction in the tax load. Then, referring to the possibilities of a production boost, he added for the first time: "This, I believe, we can confidently expect."

Half the current $4,500,000 budget, he reiterated in a speech prepared for delivery before the Vancouver Board of Trade, is for defence and most of the remainder for social welfare.

CONTINUE ARMS SPENDING

"It seems to be unlikely that the necessity for defence expenditure will soon disappear or that we shall be willing to give up the progress we have made in the fields of social welfare.

"Our real hope for substantial reductions in tax rates lies in the prospect that increased production will make the burden of taxation less—that the annual increments to our national product will go in increasing amount to improve our standard of living."

Mr. Abbott's reference to tax cuts came at the end of a 6,000-word speech dealing mostly with complaints that the exchange rate of the Canadian dollar is too high.

DOLLAR MAY DROP

He said he would not be "unduly alarmed" to see the dollar dip below par some time in the futre, but the government will not attempt to force it down by artificial means.

This would mean buying "substantial" amounts of American currency and since there was no surplus cash "lying idle" in the treasury, the government would have to "increase taxes or borrow more from the public." Such artificial manipulations would cause inflation.

"If we desired deliberately to promote inflation in Canada, I think we would get our dollar down, but perhaps rather faster than we would want; and that is another kind of price which most of us would hesitate to pay"

PRODUCTION BOOSTS

24 Liberals Desert Party In Greece

ATHENS (AP) — Twenty-four prominent Liberals, including former Premier Emmanuel Tsouderos deserted the Liberal party yesterday and joined forces with the dominant Greek Rally party for November's Parliamentary election.

The Greek Rally, headed by the popular war hero, Field Marshal Alexander Papagos, won more seats than any other party in the election of Sept. 9, 1951. However, it was deprived of control of Parliament by a coalition of Liberals and left-of-centre Progressives.

King Paul dissolved Parliament Oct. 7 and fixed Nov. 16 as the date for an election aimed at bringing to power a government with a clear majority capable of halting inflation and stabilizing Greece's financial position.

U.N. Soldiers Turn Back Red Assault

SEOUL, Korea (AP).— Hordes of screaming Chinese Reds charged recklessly through their own artillery fire Sunday and early today, but failed in an attempt to recapture two important central front hills.

U.S. and South Korean soldiers on Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge forced back the fanatic Communists in fierce hand-to-hand fighting.

Artillery, mortars and rockets supported the Communists. Allied front-line officers estimated that a full regiment, 3,000 to 3,500 men, advanced on each of the hills north of Kumhwa late Sunday.

IGNORE CASUALTIES

Ignoring casualties, the Chinese advanced through heavy barrages from their own and Allied big guns. It was their strongest counter-attack since U.N. troops seized the two heights last week.

At last report, the Communists held Pike's Peak, the north-western knob of Triangle Hill. Allied troops controlled the rest of the rocky mass.

After hand-to-hand fighting, the Reds called off their attack at 8 a.m. today and holed up in bunkers and caves to the north.

An American patrol today blew up the entrances to a tunnel under Triangle Hill, burying alive 12 Reds who had refused to come out.

U.S. 7th Division soldiers discovered the abandoned mine more than half a mile long, four days ago. The Chinese had been using it to infiltrate Allied lines.

Interpreters pleaded over loudspeakers in Chinese for the Reds inside to surrender. They refused, so the order came today to seal the entrances.

Allied fighter-bombers swooped over Papa-san mountain, overlooking both hills, and unloaded tons of bombs, rockets and searing gasoline on the Communist staging area.

Early in their assault, the Communists surrounded troops of the U.S. 7th division on Pike's Peak. But the Americans fought their way out. They joined other U.S. troops and in a furious bayonet and grenade battle beat back Chinese who had swarmed to within 300 yards of Triangle's main crest.

Two miles to the east, the Communists advanced to the top of Pinpoint Hill, highest point on Sniper Ridge. South Korean 2nd division troops counter-attacked and drove them off.

Report MacLean Seen In Warsaw

[illegible] today Donald MacLean, British diplomat missing since May, 1951, had been seen in Warsaw.

In a story from Paris, the paper said he had been seen and identified by a fellow diplomat, not a Briton, who had known him when he was serving in the British Embassy in Washington.

The Chronicle said the information had come from a "highly-responsible American source."

MacLean disappeared at Rennes France, with Guy Burgess, another Foreign Office man. They have not been heard since.

Many London papers have claimed they disappeared behind the Iron Curtain, but there has been no official evidence to support this.

Hint Woman Shadow Planned For Queen

LONDON (Reuters) — Scotland Yard is considering the appointment of a woman "shadow" for the Queen.

Ever since London has had a police force it has supplied an officer to protect the reigning sovereign. There were no women police in the days of Queen Victoria—the last female monarch—so she was shadowed by a male officer.

To Turn On Pressure

US Plans Hard Campaign Get More Men For Korea

UNITED NATIONS [illegible] The United States is prepa[illegible] a "hard" campaign to get more troops from more United Nations members onto the Korean battlefield.

The drive for more fighting allies was hinted at by State Secretary Dean Acheson in his opening U.N. policy statement, and was kicked off in New York by John D. Hickerson, assistant secretary of state.

Addressing the annual U N week meeting of the American Association for the United Nations, Hickerson said:

ASKS MORE TROOPS

"We intend to press hard in the general assembly to get as many United Nations members as possible who have not done so to face up to their responsibilities in Korea. There should be more troops there now, ready to continue the fighting as long as necessary."

Canada has contributed troops and air force and navy units.

Hickerson said the campaign should reach its height when the debates about U.N. action on a Korean armistice come up in the U.N. Assembly political committee, possibly within a week or two.

Russia's Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky indicated in his policy address Saturday that the Communists intend to continue their refusal to accept U.N. armistice terms.

Russian experts to work [illegible] insky's official Russian text, to determine if any unnoticed phrase indicated some Communist change of position which was not caught when Vishinsky and the U.N interpreters raced through the speech Saturday.

Acheson's speech held an unmistakeable note for the anti-Communist majority in the assembly when he said, "it is in Korea that our whole structure of collective security is meeting its supreme test. . ..We shall have an opportunity by action at this assembly to demonstrate to the aggressor that we are united in purpose and firm in resolve."

WANT PART IN TALKS

The North Koreans, meanwhile, sent a message to U.N. Secretary General Trygve Lie demanding that their representatives take part in any discussion of Korea. "No decision taken by the U.N. in our absence would be valid," the message said. They refuse to accept the Allied proposal that prisoners are free to reject Communism upon repatriation.

The general policy debates are scheduled to continue in the Assembly's sessions today.

Also today, most of the assembly committees — social, economic, budgetary, trusteeship and legal—are to elect officers and decide in what order to debate the numerous questions on their heavy agenda.

In 46 Years

TORONTO (CP) — Southwestern Ontario last night had its earliest snowfall in 46 years. The weatherman said today that the cold snap accompanying it broke a record set in 1922.

Milder weather is indicated for southern Ontario Tuesday.

Shipping from the Gulf of St. Lawrence almost to Toronto was hit by the storm and the federal signal service reported movement of freight and passengers slowed on a more than 800-mile stretch.

The snow and cold air covered all of southern Quebec and Ontario. Near Goderich, Ont., the fall was "blinding" and more than an inch fell by midnight.

Four-fifths of an inch was recorded at Toronto where the temperature fell to 26 degrees. Only twice, in 1922 and 1872, have thermometer readings been so low this early in the year.

At Caledon three inches of snow were reported early today. In the London area high winds and snow cut visibility for motorists.

Can't Go Beyond Means

Must Exercise Judgment About UN Troops—Pearson

NEW YORK (CP)—L. B. Pearson, president of the United Nations General Assembly, [illegible] last night the U.N. must exercise judgment in deciding how to use armed forces provided under arrangements for collective security.

"Our acceptance of this collective principle—or at any rate, its application in practice—must be qualified, as are so many things, by what the members of the United Nations are willing and able to do," he said.

He qualified his statement on the use of "judgment" in fulfilling collective security obligations by saying that this "does not mean that we can ever afford to turn a blind eye to any act of aggression."

Pearson said that after seven years the U.N., despite disappointments, is making progress in fostering the spirit of "interdependence in the world."

Trygve Lie, U.N. Secretary General, warned that the world faces "violent upheavals" and "widespread chaos" unless the challenge of impoverished millions is met.

"Almost all the people of Asia and Africa, and hundreds of millions more in other parts of the world, have lived for centuries in voiceless poverty," Lie said. "They are still in poverty, but they have found their voice. The demand for freedom, for equality of rights, for economic opportunity, can be heard with rising insistence and urgency by all who have ears to hear."

Half Coal Miners Stage Walkout As US Boost Cut

PITTSBURGH (AP)—More than half the country's 375,000 soft coal miners refused to work today as a protest against the government-ordered cut in the $1.90 daily wage boost they recently won from the industry. Major coal-producing states counted at least 260,000 miners idle. West Virginia, the country's No. 1 coal-producing state, led with 115,000 diggers refusing to work. That figure represents the state's entire union membership.

Come-to-work whistles were ignored by 67,500 miners in western and central Pennsylvania alone. These diggers joined the 160,000 miners who refused to work last week across the country while the Wage Stabilization Board was debating approval of the pay increase for miners formerly earning a basic minimum daily wage of $16.35.

After the W.S.B. approved $1.50 of the pay increase, bringing the new basic daily wage to $17.85, more miners joined their idle fellow workers. Now at least 227,000 are staying away from work, including 30,000 in Kentucky, 12,000 in Ohio, 8,500 in Indiana, 17,000 in Illinois and 700 in Oklahoma.

AMPLE COAL SUPPLIES

The walkout came at a time when coal stocks are at a near record high. The estimated 85,000,000 tons of stored coal is the biggest stockpile in history except for 1942 when the supply of coal above ground was around 100,000,000 tons. Ample supplies mean that industry and householders won't feel a coal shortage for two months or more.

Most miners said they considered the W.S.B. action as nullifying their contract. Members of the United Mine Workers traditionally won't work without a contract.

NIGHT SHIFT STRIKES

First positive signs of the walkout appeared in West Virginia when 17,000 miners failed to report for work on midnight shifts at the Grant Town No. 3 mine of Eastern Gas and Fuel Association, and the Owings and Riversville Mines of Consolidation Coal Co. of West Virginia. All are in the northern area.

In Fayette and Greene counties, heart of the western Pennsylvania soft coal fields, union heads said 19,000 to 22,000 coal diggers voted not to work until the full increase is granted.

George Gober, president of the Nemacolin local, which covers men employed at Youngstown Sheet and Tube's big operation in Greene county, said:

"The men simply felt that the Wage Stabilization Board's action leaves them without a contract."

Lewis signed a contract with soft coal operators last month. It called for a $1.90-a-day wage boost and an increase in royalty payments for the U.M.W. welfare fund to 40 cents from 30 cents on each ton of coal mined. The W.S.B. approved this boost.

The W.S.B. ruled Saturday that the miners are entitled to only a $1.50-a-day increase. That would bring basic minimum daily wages to $17.85.

In announcing the W.S.B. ruling, board chairman Archibald Cox, 40-year-old Harvard law professor, [illegible] sense of the coal miners and wisdom of their leaders" to abide by the decision.

LOT OF PROFIT-TAKING

The power of the dollar was currently sustained by Canada's foreign trade surplus, Mr. Abbott said. There has been heavy movement of capital into Canada, but also has been a lot of profit-taking by American investors in Canadian securities.

"With the international situation as disturbed as it is at present, and with our unusual exposure to movements of capital originating in the U.S., fluctuations in our exchange rate have to be accepted."

It may be that at some future time, the government may consider it appropriate to fix an exchange rate for the dollar, but at

Offer $10,000 For 5 Bandits

CAGLIARI, Sardinia (AP)—The Italian government yesterday put $10,000, dead or alive, on the heads of Sardinia's five top bandits in a drive to stop the island's new wave of highway robbery.

Gen. Ugo Luca, who smashed the notorious Salvatore Giulianc gang in Sicily, was sent here to head a Sardinian cleanup.

The drive followed public criticism of police after the Oct. 5 road robbery here. Eight masked machine-gunners blocked a road and robbed 250 travellers while police were holding their annual parades in the big cities.

Begin Sentencing Prominent Japanese

TOKYO (Reuters) — The Tokyo district court today began imposing sentences on prominent Japanese involved in a bribery and corruption case which involved government reconstruction loans to the Showa Denko Fertilizer Company.

An 18-month jail term was slapped on former Finance Minister Takeo Kurusu. He also was fined 3,500,000 yen (about $7,000).

With more than 50 others, Kurusu had been charged with accepting millions of dollars in bribes from the fertilizer company in return for state loans.

The scandal caused the downfall of the Hitoshi Ashida government four years ago. Ashida himself was convicted and likely will be sentenced this week.

Report Moscow Liquidating Cominform

LONDON (AP) — Moscow is quietly liquidating the Cominform, the Yugoslav Communist (anti-Kremlin) organ Borba said yesterday.

A Belgrade radio report added, however: "Moscow has not renounced the aims for which the Cominform was designed, but is only changing the form of its aggressive design."

The cominform, successor to the Comintern as the international Communist organization, was founded in Poland in April, 1947, and established at Belgrade Oct. 5, 1947. It moved to Bucharest, Romania, after Premier Tito was read out as a Communist heretic in June the following year. The original members of Cominform, an abbreviation for Communist Information Bureau, were the Communist parties of Russia, France, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Romania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Hungary.

Borba's article yesterday said Moscow intends to have the Cominform disappear quietly from the world scene. It claimed that one of the main reasons for the disintegration of the organization was "the complete failure of its activity against Yugoslavia."

Court Dismisses Driving Charge

Black, a salesman and an experienced driver, admitted not coming to a stop as he drove west along Romaine St. and crashed into a car at Aylmer St., on Oct. 3. The other car was going south on Aylmer and was being driven by Mrs. Margaret Wright of Wolfe St.

Black said a fly got trapped between his glasses and his right eyeball and this caused him to miss the brake pedal.

STORY BELIEVED

He continued on into the intersection, striking the left side of Mrs. Wright's car. Damage to the two vehicles totalled about $900. A passenger in the Wright car, Mrs. William Peacock of Bethune St., received a cut on her left knee.

Crown Attorney John Bradshaw, Q.C., said that after hearing the evidence he could see no reason why Black's story should not be believed. He said the charge was laid because he thought the facts of the case should be heard in open court.

Magistrate Philp said he believed Black's story and dismissed the charge.

Special Constable At Exhibition Jailed For Theft

As he whiles away a two-month stretch in county jail Joseph Leo (Red) Feeley, 40, may, with some justification, be humming those familiar lines of Gilbert and Sullivan:

"Ah, take one consideration with another—
"A policeman's lot is not a happy one."

Today in police court Feeley was sentenced to two months for theft of about $120 worth of foodstuffs from the deep-freeze lockers in the T. J. Cavanagh exhibit on the last night of the Peterborough Exhibition.

Feeley's fall from grace caused some red faces among the already harassed members of the Exhibition Board. The reason: Feeley was hired by the Board as a special constable to guard the exhibits while the four-day fair went on.

Apparently everything went off all right until the last night and then, as Feeley put it, delicately, "I guess I had a bit of a drop in me."

RAIDED ICE BOX

After a bout of drinking Feeley raided the ice box (so to speak) in the Cavanagh exhibit and made off with three turkeys and $100 worth of frozen foods. Only one turkey was recovered.

Today in police court Feeley pleaded guilty.

"Are you suggesting this man demolished two turkeys all by himself?" asked Magistrate W. R. Philp, incredulously.

Constable Douglas Farthing said he thought Feeley exchanged some of the pilfered food for booze.

Three months in jail, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw suggested.

But Magistrate Philp took a less serious view of the offence.

"Two months in county jail," he said.

Feeley also pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness on Lake St. and was ordered to pay $10 and costs or do another 10 days in jail after his two-month term expired.

Market Prices Slip Slightly On Exchange

TORONTO (CP) — Stock market prices slipped slightly in early afternoon stock market trading today as western oils and base metals declined.

Volume for the first three hours totalled 756,000 shares.

Western oil losses outnumbered gains about four to one with losses ranging to about 15 cents. Federated and new Superior slipped while Albermont and Peace River gained pennies.

Senior golds held firmly to early gains while juniors gained strength slightly. New Dickenson added pennies while Campbell slipped. Prospects slipped in light trading as Bevcourt dropped pennies. Gunnar traded 24,000 shares to lose three cents. Holding companies moved backward from an early firm position.

Turn On Gas Jets Two Children Die

TORONTO (CP)—Two young children were asphyxiated Saturday in a room in the east-central section when one of them turned on a gas jet. Mrs. Thelma Punshon, 20, had left the house to pick up a mother's allowance cheque at an old address leaving Richard, 21 months, and Janis, nine months, asleep in the room.

Mrs. Marjorie Colquhoun, the landlady of the house, had checked the room shortly after the woman left and found nothing amiss.

Mrs. Colquhoun, who had promised "to look in" on the children, returned a half hour later and found them dead in the gas-filled room.

The gas tap had been turned off and the key removed, Mrs. Punshon said, but Richard evidently awoke, reached the key on the cupboard by using a chair and turned on two jets. Police said he had turned on the tap once before that night.

NO INQUEST

No inquest will be held. Police and Coroner Dr. W. Easson Brown are satisfied that death was accidental.

Mrs. Punshon told police she had taken the precaution of turning off the gas tap leading to the old-fashioned stove and of removing the handle-like key.

Police say young Richard evidently woke up, got off the bed and pushed a chair against a low cupboard. They say he reached for the handle, hidden on top of the cupboard, fitted it to the stove and turned on the two gas jets.

Small Thief Robs Snack Bar

A small-sized thief crawled through a broken window early Sunday morning and stole $10 worth of cigarettes and candy from the Edgewater Snack Bar on Highway 7.

The snack bar was open till 2 a.m. Sunday for the robbery took place sometime between then and dawn. Window cleaners discovered the breakin later Sunday morning when they came across a shattered window on the west side of the building.

The thief gathered up a quantity of packaged cigarettes that were lying on a shelf and also helped himself to a box of candy bars. No money had been left in the snack bar and the thief didn't ransack the place looking for any.

Det.-Sgt. John Stevenson, investigating the breakin, said a youth or a man of unusually small stature was probably responsible. The window with some of the jagged pieces of glass still in it would not permit the entry of a normal-sized man.

The Edgewater Snack Bar is operated by Kenneth Anderson. It is located at the southwest corner of the Locks Bridge.

Can Beat Three Types

New Vaccine Promises Polio Protection

By WILLIAM MANCHESTER
(Copyright, Baltimore Evening Sun, 1952)

BALTIMORE (AP) — Working with little children, a Johns Hopkins scientist has developed and tested a vaccine which gives promise of being effective against all three types of polio.

"I am satisfied that it is possible to produce a satisfactory level of polio antibodies in human [illegible]ings," Dr. Howard A. Howe, adjunct professor of epidemiology at Hopkins, said today.

Antibodies are specific agents which can be developed in the blood to produce immunity against a disease.

Using a vaccine made of killed polio virus, Dr. Howe found that it made children develop antibodies against the virus. He presented his findings today at the annual meeting of the American viruses harmless but still capable Public Health Association in Cleveland.

PREPARATION DIFFICULT

Preparation of a triple vaccine made Dr. Howe's work especially difficult. Polio is really three diseases. Any one of its three types of virus—Lanzing, Brunhilde or Leon—can cripple. A preventative must be aimed at all of them.

Dr. Howe warned that the vaccine is not ready for use—that he is not even sure it will be the vaccine to be used in large trials. Further testing will be necessary to improve it.

The children, all two to five years old, were low-grade imbeciles at Rosewood State Training School. Their parents agreed to the experiment. No child was in danger at any time.

They were inoculated with a vaccine brewed from the spinal cords of monkeys stricken with polio and a chemical rendering the polio of producing antibodies.

In 1950, Dr. Howe had found that he could immunize chimpanzees.

11 CHILDREN TESTED

Blood tests showed only one of them had antibodies against more than one type of polio virus, before the vaccination.

Dr. Howe decided to give six of them the vaccine and nothing to the other five. If the vaccine took, the inoculated six would develop antibodies in their blood. The others woul not.

That is what happened.

Polio is as common as measles, but most persons don't know they've had it.

Antibodies for protection are manufactured in the blood of anyone who gets the polio virus.

FEW PARALYZED

Of every 1,000 infections, it is estimated, fewer than 10 result in paralysis, presumably because the person did not develop enough antibodies in time to halt the infection.

The rest became just as immune to attack, from that same type of virus, as if they had been paralyzed.

At least 90 per cent of all persons over 15 have been protected that way.

Gamma globulin, a blood factor from people who have become immune to one or more types of the virus, has been discovered to be useful in battling the illness.

Dr. David Bodian, a colleague of Dr. Howe's, has found that polio viruses stay in the blood of infected champanzees for several days before invading the nerves and causing paralysis. If the monkeys are given gamma globulin by or before then, the virus is disarmed.

Bancroft Court Dismisses Liquor Charges

BANCROFT (ENS) — In Bancroft magistrate's court on Wednesday, Magistrate R. C. Jackson dismissed charges of illegal possession of liquor and supplying liquor to minors, against two Bancroft men, Fred Switzer and Wilfred Bowers. His Worship ruled that accused persons must always have the benefit of any doubt which may be thrown on the evidence and he was not prepared to accept fully the evidence of a Crown witness, convicted of illegal sale of liquor and under sentence at the present time.

He warned that, due to the prevalence of these incidents and the fact that children who begin drinking at an early age usually become habitual drinkers, he was prepared to invoke the maximum penalty on conviction for these offences in the future. The maximum penalty is three months' imprisonment. The two men were defended by J. T. O'Flynn.

Charged with gross indecency as a result of allaged serious offences involving several juveniles, James A. Barrigar, 51, Bancroft, was remanded in custody to October 29, on Crown Attorney Robertson's recommendation of a psychiatric examination for the accused. Barrigar was arrested on October 12 by Cpl. A. F. Grayling and Constable J. Hutchinson, O.P.P. officers investigating the case.

Operating a used car lot without a licence and failing to notify the Department of Highways of his transactions resulted in fines totalling $27.00 for Frank Baldock, 23, Gilmour.

On a conviction of theft from a parked truck, Douglas Mau, Fort Stewart, was placed on one year's suspended sentence. He was assessed court costs of $32.50.

A Foxboro resident, Harry Fisher, charged with driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol and having liquor in an illegal place, pleaded guilty to both charges and was fined a total of $60 and costs.

Carl Goodwin, Hector Scott, Phil Levesque and Cecil Spence, Maynooth residents, paid fines of $10 and costs each when convicted of causing a disturbance. The charges were laid following a brawl in the village which was broken up by police.

Arthur Dionne, St. Ola, charged with keeping liquor for sale, was remanded to October 29 for judgment by the magistrate.

Thomas Gorgerat, Hillier, pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving laid after an accident on Highway 62 and was fined $20 and costs of $3.50.

Being drunk in a public place cost Milton Spence, Bancroft, $10 plus costs of $3.50 and six other persons paid like amounts for minor infractions of the Highway Traffic and Liquor Control Acts.

QUELLING FLAMES with a hand extinguisher, Constable Fred Cargin (left) and fireman Graydon Bell finally put out a fire that the Campbellford fire department had trouble finding in the early hours of Saturday morning. Driver of the car was Raymond Saltern, 451 Howden Ave., Peterborough, who injured his ankle as he jumped clear of the burning car.—(W. W. Reid Photo).

Good Credit In Court Man Given 2 Weeks

COBOURG (ENS)—Garfield Anderson, employed up at the ordnance depot construction job, has established a good credit rating in police court here. Appearing on a drunk charge he asked for two weeks' time to raise his fine.

"Give me two weeks like the last time," suggested Anderson.

"Well you showed up and paid your fine the previous time although I had been warned that I was an easy mark. So I guess we'll take another gamble. The warrant will be held for two weeks," said Magistrate R. B. Baxter.

Court Puzzled How To Handle Vagrant

COBOURG (ENS)—Armand Durette of Quebec City, the man apparently nobody wants, was given another week's remand in police court while enquiry is made in regard to seeing if he qualifies for a mental institution.

It took some weeks to find out his right name after he was picked up on a vagrancy charge. The court didn't want him if somebody else did, and Provincial Police contacted his father, who said he hadn't seen his son in ten years and was not particular about seeing him again. Durette sat in court on each appearance with a poker face. A French interpretator finally learned what his name was. His age is around 20. Now they know his name, age, place of birth, but that is all. The big question is what to do with him.

Jewish Council Studies Welfare In Communities

TORONTO—All democratic progress is slow and difficult, but it is the only true progrsse and worth all our efforts, the New York Ontario Regional Conference of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds was told Saturday.

"At no time in our history has the guarding of our western way of life been more necessary than at the present moment," Joseph Goldstein, chairman of the regional services committee, stated. "In all our efforts we must be guided by true democratic spirit."

The conference devoted its time to the study and examination of trends in organized Jewish communal life and discussion of social service problems common to most Jewish communities on this continent.

Peter Goldberg, assistant director of budget research, stressed the importance of planning in welfare work, particularly where it concerned the aged and chronically ill.

Morris Zelditch, director of the social planning departments, called for total community planning in these matters.

"It is no longer a question of the privileged doing something for the underprivileged," Dr. Benjamin B. Rosenberg, council field director, told the conference. "All of us share in the benefits of communal services, and only if we can create strong and representative community organizations will we be in a position to organize and deliver aid to the needy in Israel and overseas, as well as at home."

A resolution called for inevestigation of possibilities for further co-ordination of welfare organizations to eliminate the problem of multiple appeals, at the same time simplifying planning and distribution of benefits.

Joseph Goldstein, Rochester, was elected president of the region organization for the coming year. Other officers are: vice-presidents, Gurston S. Allen, Toronto; Sidney LaCholter, Albany; Lewis Lurie, Schenectady; and Howard T. Saperston, Buffalo; treasurer, Samuel Green, Syracuse; and secretary, Samuel Wolkind, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

The two-day session of the first conference held in Canada concluded with a report on educational programs in Jewish communities.

MISSING — Roy S. Durstine, Jr., an 18-year-old Harvard freshman, was reported missing from his dormitory in Cambridge, Mass., after four farewell notes were found. His father, an advertising executive in New York, flew to the campus to aid in the search.

Set $25,000 Loss As Lodge Burns

SUTTON—Fire Sunday night destroyed Parkside Lodge at Island Grove, eight miles east of here. Loss was estimated at $25,000.

Owner and operator of the two-storey frame lodge which could accommodate 40 guests, Carson Pollock said that only a few tables and some dishes were saved.

Volunteer firemen from Sutton prevented the fire from spreading to Hollywood Lodge, next door, which accommodates 80 to 100 guests in the summer.

Mr. Pollock said he had come to Lake Simcoe to close the lodge for the winter. There were no guests at the lodge. Cause of the fire was not known.

Grocery store operator Horace Payne noticed flames and smoke pouring from the building. Mr. Pollock was talking to a neighbor in Island Grove when the fire broke out. Five hose lines were put into operation by firemen under Chief Harold Snooks.

Strange Lights

TOKYO (AP) — Pacific Stars and Stripes reported today that U.S. troops saw a half-dozen mysterious, spark-throwing "Cartwheels" over the western Korean front Friday night. "I don't believe they were flares," the service newspaper quoted one observer, Cpl. John A. Lajoie. "What they did look like were those revolving cartwheels you see in the Fourth of July." They were described as 18 inches in diameter, moving in a 15-foot circle.

Peterborough Men Fill The Top Positions

Many of Canada's most important industries are American in origin, and are still offspring of parent American plants, under American directors. Peterborough industries show the Canadian pattern. The Canadian General Electric company is a part of the American G.E. system. The Quaker Oats Company has its headquarters in Chicago. The Western Clock Company is American—and was established in Canada and Peterborough only in the 'thirties, following the imposition of Imperial Preference tariffs.

* * *

Now as then Canada welcomed American capital and industry, and the executives who were sent up from the States to organize and direct the Canadian plants. However welcome as they were, there was a kind of uneasy acceptance of this American leadership in Canadian industry. Perhaps it amounted in local circles only to polite wonder, tinged with envy of the American capital, enterprise and manager and technicians. But all this has changed. Here in Peterborough the industries we have mentioned are as indigenous as a Peterborough canoe, and the Americans who came into our midst are as neighbourly and Canadian as the Mayor. There has been a significant shift, too, on the part of the industries' directorates.

* * *

Thirty years ago few Canadians and almost no Peterborough people born and bred, held executive positions in the major Peterborough factories of U.S. origin. Today these positions are nearly all filled by Canadians, many of them Peterborough men. They are not only the department managers, the sales managers, the foremen, the engineering heads; they are also the vice-presidents and presidents of the Canadian branches of the company, and indeed hold executive positions with the parent company as well. They have gone from executive positions in the Peterborough plants, to directorship of the company's whole organization.

* * *

The fact is—and this is flattering to our people as well as indicative of perspicacity in the companies' headquarters—that given the time and the opportunity, Canadians have shown that they can do the work, fill the executive positions, and take the responsibility which formerly devolved on Americans. Month after month, as the General Electric, the Quaker Oats, the Outboard Marine and the Western Clock companies expand and make staff changes, it has been announced that our own people who have come up through the plant, have been promoted to the highest offices. So these companies have become Canadian in their situation, their production and their direction—and judging from the money now available in Canada and the activity of the Toronto Stock Exchange, they are becoming Canadian in ownership, as Canadians buy shares in the companies.

* * *

The faces in, as well as the face of Canadian industry are now well and truly Canadian. This is a matter of self-congratulation, not for self-pride. And it is this sort of development which we see right here in Peterborough which gives the lie to those detractors of things American who in Canada, France and elsewhere, shout alarm about the colonialism which the U.S. is forcing on other.

Peterborough is an industrial city whose economy is based primarily on factories which are outcroppings of American industry, yet who in Peterborough feels he is colonial to the U.S.?

Surgical Feats

Research and practice in all branches of science in the last fifty years have been remarkable, and in none has the advance been more wonderful than in medicine and surgery. Three astonishing surgical performances were made public in the last week.

A Chicago surgeon transplanted the breastbone and parts of several ribs from a still-born baby to a living infant to correct its birth deformities. The tiny patient had been born with her heart on the outside of her body and about a quarter of the chest bone structure was missing. She has gained weight since the operation, but it will be more than a month before the success of the operation can be assured.

In Detroit a mechanical heart has been developed which will work in a human body. The artificial heart was used during an operation on a man's own heart, and for nearly an hour the replacement instrument faithfully did the work of the natural heart while surgeons repaired the patient's enlarged valve between his auricle and ventricle.

At Georgetown University an even more radical heart operation was performed. In the Detroit case, the man's blood system was merely hooked up with a machine performing the functions of a heart pump. In Georgetown a young woman with an ailing heart was successfully fitted with an artificial aortic valve. (The aorta is the great artery issuing from the left ventricle of the heart.) The valve is made of plastic glass and contains a float the size of a mothball which rises and slips into one of three sockets in the side of the valve sleeve on the heart's upbeat, when blood is forced into the aorta. The artificial valve is now part and parcel of the patient's body, and ticking as regularly as a watch.

Since the most wonderful thing in creation is man, it is not incredibly wonderful that men should be able to transform himself. But the time is still far away when man will be able to make a man in his own image, artificially.

What's In An Egyptian Name?

King Farouk of Egypt has been deposed, and General Naguib is now the strong man, making a clean sweep. First he said he would leave the politics of Egypt to the politicians. He approved a Prime Minister other than himself. General Naguib would concentrate on cleaning up the army, and watch that the new government cleaned house politically. But the strong man is impatient; the cleansing was not as rapid as he wanted, and in fact, wily Egyptian politicians were, he thought, getting ready to return Egypt to the old, unwashed politics of the Wafd, Egypt's largest and most graft-ridden party, and to the greed of the landowning pashas. General Naguib has removed Prime Minister Aly Maher, taken the office himself, and he still keeps his broom sweeping vigorously.

In the first nine weeks since the coup d'etat, the new regime has sent King Farouk into exile, legally abolished aristocracy, declared war on corruption, promised land reform to break up the great estates, raised the rich man's taxes on luxuries, lowered the poor man's prices for sugar and cotton cloth, abolished censorship, and relaxed restrictions on foreign investments. It has even made reasonable overtures to settle the dispute over the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, of which Farouk has been proclaimed King despite British objections. Naguib is working eighteen hours a day to bring about the reforms and stable government he has promised—and to ensure that Egypt has in substance as in name a new kind of government, and a new hope.

Last week, Prime Minister Naguib had the name of his fourteen-year-old son changed. The boy's new name is Salah; his old name was Farouk. General Naguib and Egypt have had enough of corruption and enough of Farouk.

Man Of Books And Good Will

The fire in the parliamentary library earlier this year caused untold damage to thousands of books. The damage was untold — and seemingly irreparable — until Mr. Alvin W. Kremer, an expert from the United States' Library of Congress, one of the world's greatest libraries, flew to Ottawa at the Government's request. Mr. Kremer set to work immediately—he arrived while the building was still smoking—and stayed at work with the Parliamentary Library's valuable books and its staff, until this month. His advice on ways and means has saved thousands of books, many of which could not have been replaced at any price. When he finished his work, he returned to Washington, and refused to tender a bill for his services.

The work of reclamation and restoring is by no means complete, but the method of dealing with the situation has been established. The American expert's good will and excellent work put Canada in his debt; Mr. Howe has fittingly written him of this country's gratitude.

a disaster and might permanently have left a scar on Canadian scholarship, history and parliamentary debate, through the loss of books, primarily Canadian. Thanks to many volunteer Ottawa helpers who rescued and dried the books at the time, to quick and expert work subsequently, and to the advice of Mr. Kremer, the nucleus of the proposed National Library collection is again secure.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

WHEN I WROTE last week about Ralph Vaughan Williams, who has just celebrated his eightieth birthday and in the words of the advertisement is "still going strong" I realized that I could not even begin to sum up his achievements in two or three short paragraphs. There is one particular phase of his activity worthy of note which I omitted from my rather brief resume of his career: I speak of his work in connection with better church music. During the latter half of the last century a disease had been creeping over church music. It became overrun with a weak and sloppy sentimentality. Hymn tunes and anthems of this period often erred on the side of a fruity chromaticism coupled with spineless part-writing. The general impression of this music is one of mustiness and cheapness of effect. There were of course notable exceptions, but even the work of notable men such as Stainer was by no means immune from the prevailing malaise. Vaughan Williams carried on vigorously the work initiated by Stanford and Parry, opening the windows to let the fresh air in and restoring to church music the virile and austere qualities that had been temporarily relegated to the background.

APART from his own compositions for church use Vaughan Williams' outstanding contribution to church music was without a doubt his editorship of the musical side of the English Hymnal. The publication of this hymnal in 1906 was a landmark in the history of hymnology, and the English Hymnal has had a strong influence on all subsequent publications. It was not universally popular for several years, and even now it has its critics, not so much on account of what was included as for what was omitted. Several "old favorites" composed in the period 1850-1900 were omitted. In some cases this was due to copyright difficulties, but several of them did not come up to the required standards of beauty and dignity. However in this year of grace 1952 many of the new tunes or new-old tunes that appeared in the English Hymnal have already become old favourites. Tunes such as the English folksong adapted for use with Bunyan's pilgrim song or the fine tune written by Vaughan Williams himself to the words "For all the Saints" have found a sure place in the affections of many a congregation.

CONTROVERSY still rages unabated amongst pianists on the subject of how to sit at the piano. This is no mere academic question, for if the pianist is uncomfortably or wrongly seated he will be unable to give of his best. Everybody is agreed on one thing, that the pianist should sit facing the middle of the keyboard and not shift from one position to another in the course of a piece. Yet how often is this eminently sensible rule broken, to the detriment of good playing? The height of the seat is a question that is more open to discussion. A low seat is helpful in promoting the legato style of playing, but if it is too low the thumbs are apt to be forced off the keyboard unless the fingers are curved in excessively. Perhaps the best height is that at which the forearm lies roughly horizontally when the hands are in the playing position. Some piano benches are adjustable for height, and older concert goers may perhaps remember Pachmann turning the knobs first one way, then the other and eventually taking the programme sheet and sitting on it in order to get the height just right. In any case, however, a bench or even an ordinary armless chair is preferable to the stools with circular twisting seats. It would be satisfactory if they could be locked in position, but they swing around while the pianist is playing, with devastating results to his accuracy.

BUT THE MAIN POINT of controversy is the distance that one should sit away from the piano. Tobias Matthay recommends, nay commands that one should sit a good way away from the instrument. This should be taken with a grain of salt. Admittedly if one sits too near the instrument there is the very real danger of the body getting in the way of the elbows, especially when the hands are crossed; but on the other hand the dangers of sitting too far away cannot be over-emphasized. An undue strain is placed on the muscles of the back and the upper arm, undermining the stamina of the performer in a lengthy or arduous piece. In order to overcome the distance the performer will tend to hunch himself forward. There is obviously a happy medium which will vary with the build of the individual. The average amateur pianist is apt to sit down on the first thing he sees and start playing, without taking thought about the matters which I have discussed. He would be well advised to experiment by trial and error the most comfortable and convenient height and distance, and there is little doubt that his playing will improve as a result.

THE OTHER EVENING I listened to a Barber Shop Quartet. I have never had the good fortune to hear anybody sing in a barber's shop; on the rare occasions when I am forced to visit these establishments by the jeers and innuendos of my friends and acquaintances I usually slump down in a seat in the corner and read a superannuated copy of Life or the [illegible] recent revival in this type of male quartet singing has much to commend it. In an age that is more and more relying on mass-produced entertainment anything that tends to revive amateur music-making, whether in the home or the barber shop is to be commended. Such convivial gatherings of carefree males had their counterpart in the glee clubs of the eighteenth century. These flourished especially in London. Many of the rounds and catches that they sang are still popular; some, we regret, are scarcely suitable for present day usage owing to the "unprintable" character of the words. The great composers did not scorn to write rounds and catches; as a matter of fact a good catch is quite a test of ingenuity as a composer. Amongst those who have written in this vein are Purcell, Mozart, Beethoven and Haydn (who wrote a very amusing little round about a dog named Turk).

IN THE EARLIER HALF of the nineteenth century male voice choirs blossomed all over Germany. They were composed mainly of patriotic elements who resisted first Napoleon and later the German princelings. A vast literature of male choruses sprang up, and there is little doubt that this element among the immigrants to America was a great force in the formation of the type of singing that afterwards came to be known as "barber shop". The super-sensitive may turn up their noses at the unassuming type of music sung by the barber-shoppers; I for my part feel that it is more for intimate gatherings than for concert appearances: but it is at any rate a live movement of men who would rather lift up their voices in song than be spoonfed all the time with radio, films, TV, yes, and concerts, too. We need more amateur music-making, not less. My only fear is that the Barber Shop movement itself may become too professionalized and thus lose its real meaning and purpose.

Truman's Unique Campaign

By ALASTAIR BUCHAN

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S fortnight of political campaigning across the breadth of the American Continent in support of Governor Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic candidate for the presidency was an unique occasion. It may be the first and last tour of its kind: the first, because history records no precedent for a President of the United States stumping the country so vigorously in support of his Party's candidate to succeed him; the last, because it is probable that the growing use of television and the aeroplane to reach voters may in future render obsolete the old-fashioned type of "whistle-stop" campaigning by special train at which Mr. Truman excels.

The Presiden's cross-country journey was originally undertaken in response to a widespread feeling among the Democratic Party leadership that Mr. Stevenson was making insufficient headway against the simple and well-known personal appeal of General Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican candidate. The President's original intention was primarily to rub some of the glamour off General Eisenhower by drawing attention to the inconsistencies of the Republican Party programme and in the President's own words, "to cut him down to size".

THE TOUR coincided, however, with General Eisenhower's big tour through the North Mid-West to the Pacific Coast, during which the General began to develop heavy criticisms of the Administration's foreign policy. This deeply offended the President who cares greatly for his place in history and feels that his foreign policy is his strongest claim to an enduring niche therein. Moreover, he let it be known that he felt that General Eisenhower had no personal right to criticise a policy with whose major decisions he was intimately connected. Consequently, by the time the President reached the Pacific Coast and began to return to the East, a note of real bitterness had crept into his criticism of General Eisenhower.

In three big prepared speeches at Oakland (California), Colorado Springs, and Buffalo he roundly condemned General Eisenhower for shifting his ground on foreign policy for political ends.

At Colorado Springs, Mr. Truman said that he had been mistaken in thinking that General Eisenhower was qualified to be President and he denounced the General in the most scathing terms for having shifted his ground on universal military training and the Korean war, and for advocating unrealistic budget cuts which would undermine defence foreign aid policies.

In Buffalo, which has a large population of Polish origin, he attacked General Eisenhower's "liberation" policy, saying, "We are not going to ask the unarmed people of the Iron Curtain countries to rise up against their aggressors and sacrifice themselves before the firing-squads of the Kremlin. That may be what the Republican candidate for President and his foreign policy advisers are urging in order to get votes in this country," and went on to castigate the Republicans for obstructing more liberal immigration measures.

It might be thought that the President is on dangerous ground in attacking a man to whom he had once offered an almost unlimited promise of support. But there has been little sense of bad taste in the audiences which I have heard Mr. Truman address. His hearers may not agree with the substance of the President's windmill attacks on General Eisenhower, as in fact some of them must have disagreed since Mr. Truman has spoken in many die-hard Republican areas, but the popularity of General Eisenhower has clearly not reached a point of uncritical hero-worship.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S TRIP was undertaken on a very small allotment of money from the Democratic National Committee, sufficient only to pay the cost of his special train. But, he has attracted as much attention as Governor Stevenson or General Eisenhower, not only in terms of headlines but also of audiences. In a succession of small towns in Ohio, Indiana and rural New York State, not necessarily friendly to the Democrats, crowds of four to five thousand people have waited to hear and see him.

At six-thirty on a cold October morning, fifteen hundred people in Indianapolis enthusiastically cheered his denunciation of the Republican record in Congress. At Muncie, Indiana, whose local paper is a violent supporter of Senator McCarthy, the President had a cheering crowd. At Marion, Ohio, there was a crowd, estimated as high as eight thousand, waiting for him on the railway tracks.

The remarkable thing is that a man no longer a candidate for office should draw crowds at all.

THE TRUMAN "whistle-stop" technique is the same in all except the big cities. The fourteen-carriage train grinds to a stop while the local high-school band, variously arrayed in uniforms of Bengal Lancers or Death's Head Hussars, grinds out the "Missouri Waltz" (Truman is from Missouri.) The Secret Service men cast an eagle-eye over the crowd, the local candidates for Senator and Congressman and Governor are introduced from the back platform of the rear coach and the President launches into a simple ten-minute speech.

Except in prepared addresses, he does not attack General Eisenhower personally. He reminds his audience that the Democrats are the Party of the people, and the Republicans the party of special interests. He casts general doubts on the ability of a military man to cope with the problems of civil government, and picks out one aspect of the Republican record—public health, education, housing, etc.,—for attack. Then he asks for permission to introduce his most valued helper, and out steps his daughter Margaret, whom privately one suspects most of the younger people have come to see, looking very pretty. The engine-driver blows his whistle, the reporters scramble for their carriage, and we are off to the next stop.

The weather is bland, the autumn colours are slowly ripening, the unharvested corn "stands as high as an elephant's eye" and the crowd waves farewell in the same light-hearted friendly manner as they have received Mr. Truman's lambasting of the Republicans.

Mr. Truman is not exactly a scrupulous campaigner. He knows exactly how to play on every instinct of fear, security and cupidity, but the easy detachment of the small-town crowds to his polemics leaves no doubt that American democracy, at least outside the more neurotic big cities, is very much alive.

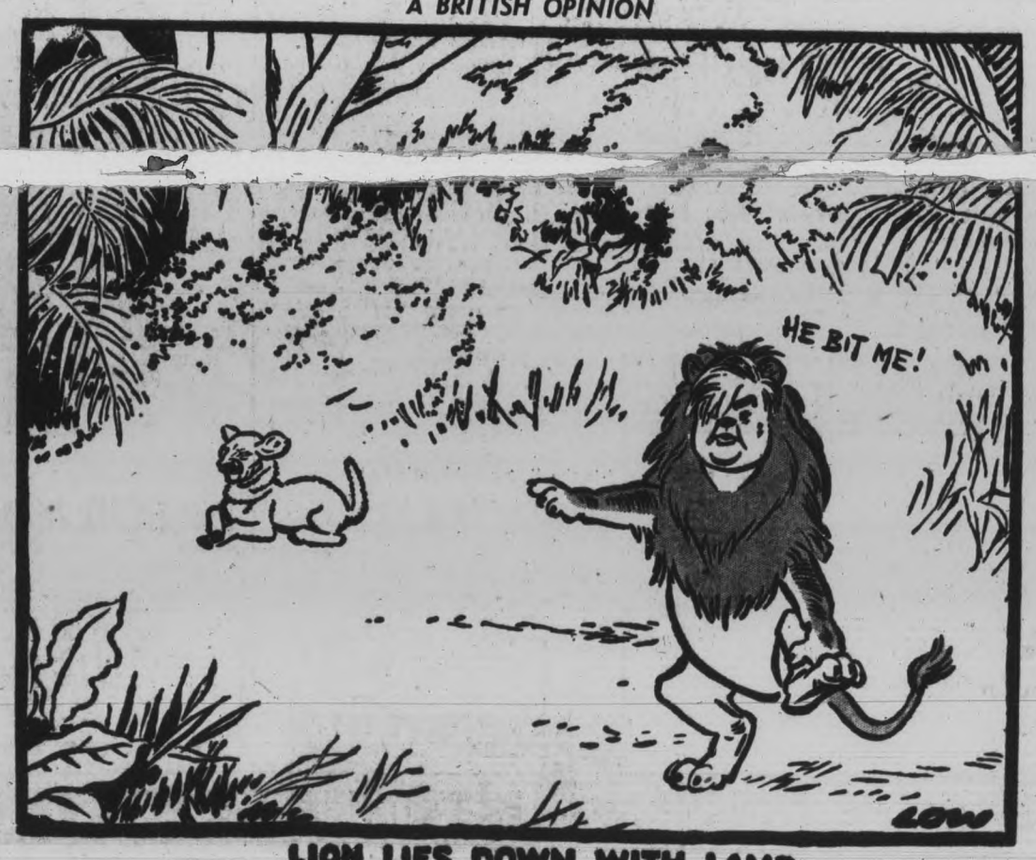
Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease. . . . These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not: but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand.

Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely ye have received, freely give. . . . Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves. . . . And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake: but he that endureth to the end shall be saved. . . .



And he that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me, is not worthy of me. (Matt. 10:1, 5-8, 16, 22, 38.)

And it came to pass also on another sabbath, that he entered into the synagogue and taught and there was a man whose right hand was withered. And the scribes and Pharisees watched him, whether he would heal on the sabbath day; that they might find an accusation against him.

But he knew their thoughts, and said to the man which had the withered hand, Rise up, and stand forth in the midst. And he arose and stood forth. . . And looking round about upon them all, he said unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand. And he did so: and his hand was restored whole as the other. And they were filled with madness; and communed one with another what they might do to Jesus. (Luke 6:6-8, 10, 11.)

Footloose Texan Keeps Hits On Broadway

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (AP) — Joshua Logan, a footlose Texan, early discovered he could not confine his movements to the "limited" area of his home state.

After he took the long trail to Broadway by way of Culver Military Academy, Princeton University and the Moscow Art Theatre he also discovered he couldn't restrict his theatrical horizon to the limited zone of Manhattan Island. In his stage productions he has wandered as far away from Broadway as Budapest, Greece and most of the Pacific Ocean to find material for smash hits.

In the musical comedy, "Wish You Were Here," however, he presents Broadway's current top selling musical hit in a setting no more than an overnight train trip from New York in the vacation resort area of lakes and mountains known as the "Borscht circuit."

CO-PRODUCER, CO-AUTHOR

Logan is co-producer of this miracle with music by Harold Rome and is co-author with Arthur Kober of the story. He also directed the production and its dance routines.

Contrary to rumor, Logan does not measure out the 30,000 gallons of water required in the swim pool which is one of the sets of "Wish You Were Here," but as co-producer with Leland Hayward, he does have to pay his 50 per-cent share of the cost of 30,000 gallons of water a week.

"I never knew that water cost so much," he said. "Perhaps we could have saved money if we had had a small champagne bath."

Logan has been director, and co-author in many cases, of such Broadway hits as "Mister Roberts," "South Pacific" and "On Borrowed Time." Says moving around the world with his theatrical productions has convinced him the theatre isn't necessarily a theatre confined to Broadway.

NO 'NEW YORK SHOW'

"There is no such thing as a 'New York show,'" Logan said. "For instance 'Mr. Roberts' is playing all over the U.S. and in Foreign climes and it is understood completely by all audiences.

Backtracking from his current "Wish You Were Here," Logan has moved the locales of his hit productions over a widespread circuit. After the Second World War, in which he served in army air intelligence, he staged the production and songs of "Annie Get Your Gun", an outstanding musical which had a combination of the robustness of western United States pioneer days.

His musical productions of "I Married An Angel" and "By Jupiter," both hits, went to Budapest and Greece for their respective locales.

The two children fly to Canada Oct. 29 on the first test flight.

Professor Predicts New Artificial Port

HAMILTON (CP)—After the St. Lawrence Seaway is built, the greatest port on the north shore of Lake Erie will be an artificial one, Dr. Edward G. Pleva, head of the department of geography at the University of Western Ontario, said Saturday.

He told the New York-Ontario division of the American Associa- [illegible] method as Mulberry harbor, built on the shores of Normandy during the Second World War.

Location of the new port, he said, will depend on "what happens in the next few years in development of the iron ore deposit in Norfolk county, one of the best-kept secrets in local history."

Peron Stressing New Farm Policy

By STAMFORD BRADSHAW

BUENOS AIRES, (AP)—President Juan D. Peron this year is trying to lead Argentina back to the farm, neglected during five years of industrialization.

His strong-man regime might depend upon the success of his economic plan for 1952, aimed at restoring prosperity to his country's drought-damaged agriculture.

On taking office in 1946, Peron inaugurated a five-year plan to build industry, and to prevent a recurrence of war-time scarcities that had plagued Argentina.

With the country's post-war reserves of gold—estimated at $1,500,000,000—he embarked upon an ambitious industrialization program.

FARMERS' STRIKE

He created a small steel industry, encouraged textiles sought to increase production in Argentina's oil industry, and prepared to utilize coal deposits in the remote south.

Other steps included expansion of a merchant shipping fleet, nationalization of the railways and the telephone system, both of which had been foreign-owned.

In all of this, the farmer was forgotten. In fact, he even was forced indirectly to foot some of the mounting bills. The government decreed that it would be the sole buyer and exporter of farm products.

The farmers went on a mild sit-down strike. Wheat plantings dropped from a pre-war high of more than 20,000,000 acres to a low of nearly 13,000,000 acres in 1951. Other crops showed similar declines.

The danger signs were disregarded.

But in 1950-51, and again in 1951-52, drought hit the rich pampas. The wheat, corn, linseed, barley and rye harvest were poor. Beef herds declined as growers slaughtered the stocks they could not afford to feed.

At the same time, war-time reserves of money vanished. At year's end, the Central Bank had reserves of $132,000,000. (At the official free rate of exchange of 14 pesos to the dollar). But only some $12,000,000 of this was in gold-backed currencies.

PERON HAS PLAN

So in February, Peron announced his economic plan, an austerity program designed to hold imports to the amount of exports available. These have been estimated at $600,000,000 for 1952. The normal exports total $1,500,000,000.

Government officials exhorted the farmers to comply with the government's program as a patriotic duty.

Planting weather was good. So the farmers, as much in need of cash as the government, responded. Winter wheat plantings, it is estimated, exceeded 15,000,000 acres.

Prospects for the harvest, due to arrive in December, are good indeed. Argentina will again have sizeable surpluses in most of its export crops.

But meanwhile, her economic position was growing steadily worse. By September, the country was in the grips of a serious economic recession.

A galloping inflation added 34 [illegible] living between August, 1951, and August, 1952.

Many businesses were dying. Retail trade in Buenos Aires was down 30 per cent over first-half 1951 totals.

The government is looking to the new harvests—and to the long neglected farmer—to produce a change.

Seize Opium Shipment

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Customs agents seized 111 pounds of opium, valued at more than $1,000,000 on the narcotics black market, in a raid aboard a British oil tanker when the vessel docked here yesterday. Scientist Tries To Live On Raft

LAS PALMAS, Canary Island (AP)—A 27-year-old French scientist left here yesterday on a frail raft in an attempt to reach the West Indies living entirely on what he can pull out of the sea.

Dr. Alain Bombard is trying to prove that a diet of raw fish, plankton—a small organism in the sea—and purified sea water is sufficient to maintain life for the 50 days he believes necessary for the Atlantic crossing.

Bombard drifted here aboard the tiny raft from Casablanca, Morocco. He was accompanied on the first leg of the venture, from Monte Carlo through the Mediterranean, by Jack Palmer, a British-born citizen of Panama who dropped out of the experiment at Tangiers. The raft is not equipped with radio.

U.S. Republican Senator Will Vote For Stevenson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Wayne Morse, Oregon Republican, said Saturday he will vote for Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic candidate for president.

Morse, who has often been at odds with others in his party, said: "Never have I been so completely disillusioned about any man as I am about Eisenhower."

He had first announced he would back Eisenhower, the Republican nominee, but later announced he would not actively campaign for him. He made the break complete Saturday.

Morse said his decision to repudiate Eisenhower had not been an easy one to make.

"The demagogery, doubletalk and dangerous desertion by Eisenhower in this campaign of his once professed political principles leaves me with no honorable course of action but dissociate myself completely for his candidacy.

"The Eisenhower I supported for the nomination is not the Eisenhower who is dangling and dancing from campaign platforms at the end of political puppet strings being jerked by some of the most evil and reactionary forces in American politics."

P.C.V.S. Seniors Take Game Against Banting High To Grab Red Feather Berth

Coach Bev Goulding's senior Garnet and Greys will again represent the C.O.S.S.A. in the Red Feather tournament for the all-Ontario secondary schools' football championship. The Collegians will be making their third bid thanks to a 28-6 Feather playoff victory over Alliston's Sir Frederick Banting Memorial High, the Georgian Bay representatives, Saturday in Alliston. The Garnet and Greys are the sixth team to qualify so far for the Feather tournament. Other teams who have qualified are: Scollard Hall, North Bay, N.O.S.S.A.; St. Patrick's College, Ottawa, E.O.S.S.A.; Woodstock C.I., W.O.S.S.A.; Hamilton Westdale, H.I.A.C.; Etobicoke Rams, T.D.I.A.A.

COACHES MUSKIES — Defenceman Al Burns is playing coach of Lindsay Muskies this season in the Lakeshore Hockey League. A Lindsay product, hard-hitting Al played for several seasons with the local Eagles before returning a year ago to perform for the Scugog intermediate "A" squad.

IN RED FEATHER — Coach Bev Goulding leads his P.C.V.S. senior gridders into the Red Feather tournament again this week, the Garnet and Greys playing Woodstock in Toronto on Friday night. They qualified for the big competition Saturday by trimming Banting High in Alliston to once more represent the C.O.S.S.A. district.

The Niagara district has yet to chose between Stamford and St. Catharines and the Toronto S.S.A.A. between North Toronto, Humberside and Oakwood.

MEET WOODSTOCK

Goulding's charges will meet Woodstock Collegiate this year in their one-game performance for the title won last year by Hamilton Cathedral. This game will open the tournament on Friday night at the C.N.E. Stadium. Westdale and St. Patrick's College will meet in the second game.

Alliston gave P.C.V.S. more trouble than they bargained for Saturday and only a third quarter which saw the Garnet and Grey score three times gave the Collegiate the victory. Alliston coped with the Garnet and Grey ground attack but fell prey to Dave Langhorne's quartering and the pass catching of fleet Bob Craw.

In fact the Langhorne-to-Craw combination started the P.C.V.S. off in the first quarter. Langhorne passed neatly to Craw over the line for the TD. Langhorne then converted the extra point.

GOT A POINT

With the wind facing them, the Garnet and Grey were in trouble in the second quarter. But they managed to stem any major Alliston marches with the exception of one which ended in a kick to deadline for a point.

With the score 6-1 Peterborough battled a desperate Banting crew in the second half. They pushed Alliston back until finally Alliston tried a desperation pass on the eight-yard line. There Jack Corbett intercepted. In three plays Spin Hope scored, making the score 11-1.

Minutes later, Langhorne attempted a quarter sneak on a second down along the centre strip. He broke through a large hole on the right side and went 55 yards for another major which he converted for a 17-1.

ONE MARCH

Then Alliston had its one major march which featured an interception by P.C.V.S., followed by a fumble two plays later. In five plays, mostly all wide pitch-outs, Banting scored.

From the kick-off, the Garnet and Grey marched again. They pushed from the 46-yard line to the 52 where Craw grabbed a 30-yard pass which placed him in the clear for a 22-6 score.

Craw in the fourth set the Garnet and Gray in scoring position when he grabbed a 17-yard pass and only a quick whistle prevented him from scoring again. Hollingworth plunged over. Langhorne converted for the 28th point.

St. Peter's Lose First One In Junior Loop

Four St. Peter's High junior football players played hookey last Thursday; the result was a one-game suspension, and that one was the season's most important game with Oshawa's Central Collegiate. A result of this was the abrupt end to the Saints' three-year 23 - game winning streak as Central pounded out a 27-6 victory in Morrow Park.

The players, all star performers, took Thursday afternoon off to see the senior Saints play Cobourg. That game was disastrous for both teams; the seniors lost the game and the juniors lost the players. They drew the one-game suspension.

But that game was more disastrous for the junior Saints. John Hickey, quarter who has led the team for several years, suffered a head concussion, ruining his chances for Saturday's league game. To say the least, he was missed badly.

MISSED HICKEY

Without Hickey the Saints didn't roll. First-year junior Paul Murphy tried to fill the gap but his inexperience on calls was evident. Then others, Don Chambers and Jim Feeley, tried their hand at quarter, but with little success.

The suspended players were also missed. The backfield lacked the spirit and drive of the previous victories this year. Only Gary Kearns was effective with Chambers and John Martin showing in spots.

The Saints' line prevented a greater disaster. Again Frank Gooley, star inside, shone, as he charged and blocked his heart out. Ray Allen, Bob Nolan, Paul Hurtubise and others tried to stem the Central tide, had some success in the first half but then tired, gradually weakening.

IN GOOD FORM

Meanwhile, the undefeated Central team, who expected tougher opposition, were in top form along the ground. . Star quarter John Ruskay, the man with the churning legs and solid straight arm, piloted his flying charges to the victory along with Fred Richardson, Gene Goodall and John Chase. Chaszewski (Chase for short) also enjoyed a fair punting game, despite rushes by Gooley and company.

A bad snap on a third down sailed over Chambers' head in the [illegible] line. Ruskay and Chase went to the one before Ruskay scored the first major.

Minutes later, Chambers punted from the Oshawa 45. The ball, helped slightly by the wind, went over Goodall's head; he managed to touch it but the ball rolled out of play for a single point.

In the second, Ruskay threw away Central's lead when he attempted to lateral when trapped deep inside his 25-yard line. The Saints' Paul Buckley pounced on the ball and went to Central's six before tackled. Kearns promptly romped around left end to score.

GOT IT BACK

The Saints one point lead was [illegible]. A roughing penalty placed the Central punter, Chase, in position for a kick to deadline.

Tying the score then, Central kept the Saints in trouble, finally forcing Chambers to kick. He kicked out of touch at the 15-yard line. Central were held and then elected to kick for another point, but the kick was poor. Lady Luck had Chase recover his own kick practically on the line of scrimmage, Richardson went straight through to score.

In the third, Ruskay again performed faultless blocking; he broke into the clear running 55 yards down the sidelines to score. Ruskay kept his work well up in the fourth, scoring another unconverted touchdown with some ease, followed up in the final minutes by a pass interception by Chase who dodged, darted and squeezed between the Saints, finally into the clear for the final TD.

Millbrook Bowlers Start 1952 Season

MILLBROOK— (ENS). — The Millbrook Bowling League is under way with 14 teams entered. An inter-township touch has been given to the league with new entries from Manvers and the village of Cavan. It took less than a week for some of last year's records to tumble when Margaret Guthrie toppled the timbers for a 745 triple which also includes the ladies' high single of 290. As yet this target has been a bit too high for the male bowlers topped by Joe Medd's 283 and George Smith's 638 for the triple.

P.C.V.S. Juniors Gain Win Against Oshawa

Allan MacQuarrie's P.C.V.S. juniors must have picked up a few tips from the Big Four Tiger-Cats during the past week, especially the tip on how to win games when faced with certain defeat.

The Garnet and Grey kids seemed to be headed for their fifth straight defeat Saturday durring their game with Oshawa's C.V.I. Down 10-0, the MacQuarrie lads came off the floor in the final four minutes to win 11-10 for their first victory of the 1952 season against four defeats and one tie.

After the game, Coach MacQuarrie said, "Why, the team seemed to explode; they've been carrying that ability all year but were afraid to show it to anyone. The boys just walked through that Oshawa team. Everything clicked."

COULD'T COUNT

The Garnet and Grey had more than their share of the first quarter play in the wide open passing game. But they couldn't cash in while in payoff territory.

The O.C.V.I. squadron took to the air in the second quarter as Courtney passed for 30 yards straight down the centre to Peacock in the clear. And that was the first major score; the convert point attempt failed.

Sporting that five-point lead, the Motor City crew kept the pace in the third quarter; again Courtney exercised his throwing arm. He flipped this time to Patton a long thrown down centre again. Patton easily romped the few yards to score. Again it went unconverted.

Oshawa, sensing the game in the bag, lagged in the last minutes of the game. Meanwhile the Garnet and Grey, with everything to gain and nothing to lose, exploded with such force that Oshawa was struck dumbfounded.

RECOVERED BALL

P.C.V.S.' lineman Don Lang blocked a kick on the P.C.V.S. 37 with four minutes to go and recovered the ball. The Garnet and Grey were held twice; then from kick formation, Roberts passed to Bob McKinney to start the ball rolling. A minute later Terry the Terror passed again to McKinney for the TD.

Practically from the kickoff, Lady Luck helped the Garnet and Grey. Oshawa deep in attempted to kick, again [illegible] over on the 30-yard line.

In that final minute Roberts again took to the air to McKinney, placing the ball on the 12-yard line. Then Dave Coit tore through the left side for the major, tying the score. With the placements not working, Roberts passed to McKinney for the winning point on the after touch point.

Roberts to McKinney passing was the game highlight for the Garnet and Grey; Dave Coit was their best ground gainer. Along the line Bob Roode, Don Findlay, Don Stewart and Don Lang were tops. Oshawa's best were Patton, Peacock and Courtney.

Scotland Defeats Wales 2-1 In Match

CARDIFF, Wales (Reuters)—A crowd of 60,000 filled Ninian Park Stadium yesterday to watch Scotland defeat Wales 2-1 in a thrill-packed international soccer match.

Scottish winger Billy Lidell scored the winning goal in the second half after the teams had fought to a 1-1 half-time deadlock.

Outstanding was the brilliant defence put up by Scotland, led by team captain George Young, against a determined Welsh attack.

Hal B., Toronto Star harness race scribe, was here last week for the sale of Hugh Stewart's standard-breds. He wrote: "The three days in Peterborough was a grand treat to a weary mind. The few hours spent at the Pig's Ear, where Buster and Art Johnston hold forth, was a relaxation from the day's grind. Every harness horse lover gathers at this life-saving station with all the horse lore in this neck of the woods. There have been good pacers reared around there and the folk all talk of Armadale and his sensational races when the Johnstons raced him. The first good two and three-year-old pacer that raced at the C.N.E. was Keendale, owned in Peterborough. If memory serves, it was 'Ole Man' Chapman who drove the filly and was the first winner of futurity pace."

Phil Stone, sports announcer at CHUM in Toronto, put himself smack on a hot spot the other day by saying: "I have been told, through an anonymous source, that a big-time gambler in Toronto is bragging that he has bought off a member of Toronto Argos, that he has this player fixed to lose games for the Argos so that the gambler can clean up betting against the Toronto team." The insinuation is a nasty one and naturally the Argos are furious—and brand the whole thing a vicious lie. We are amazed that a radio announcer would spread such stuff from "an anonymous source." Such an accusation, unsigned, reaching a newspaper would promptly hit the wastebasket.

That Old Waiver Clause

The case of Edgar Laprade in the N.H.L. is parallel to those of Bob Thorpe, Nip O'Hearn and Don Ashbee in the A.H.L. The waiver clause keeps 'em from dropping out of pro ranks to play amateur. Laprade had talked N. Y. Rangers into letting him retire to play amateur in Northern Ontario again, but the Hawks and Leafs promptly claimed him, refusing to waive him out of the loop. So, it looks like Edgar will have to return to New York—which won't let him go to Chicago or Toronto—or hang up his skates for good. Once you sign a pro puck contract you have only a snowball's chance of ever quitting pro company until you are no longer of any use in the moneyed ranks. So, we don't look for Ashbee, O'Hearn or Thorpe in the Petes' lineup this winter.

C. G. E. Shop Hockey League has re-organized with six teams in: Machine Shop, Switchgear-Tool Combines, Wire, Drafting, Diesels (who won last year), and Structural Steel. Bob Batley is back as prexy, after heading the City Softball League last summer, and Stan McCurrach is the capable secretary again. The loop this year has ruled that not more than three O.H.A. players in the shop may play for any one team, thus spreading around the top talent to make for a better-balanced circuit. Play commences right away and goes once a week till out in the spring when playoffs settle league honors.

Collegians Come Through

In local high school football play over the weekend, Bev Goulding's senior P.C.V.S. pack downed Banting High in Alliston 28-6 to go into the Red Feather tourney in Toronto this Friday against Woodstock. Langhorne, Craw, Hope and Hollingsworth supplied the main punch as the whole team clicked well against good opposition. Al MacQuarrie's P.C.V.S. juniors exploded late to eke out an 11-10 win o'er Oshawa C.V.I. — certainly a fighting finish. Roberts, McKinney and Coit starred for the victors. St. Peter's dropped a junior decision to Oshawa Central 27-6 to end a three-year wininng streak. They were without John Hickey, out with concussion, and several other stars in this encounter. The winners turned in a smart performance.

Cobourg Ghosts go to Kingston for what should be an easy grid win Tuesday—Oshawa won 57-0 last start 'gainst the Tanks—and Orfuns play in Oshawa on the morrow. They should win that one. Orfuns go to Cobourg on Saturday and end their group schedule with Oshawa here a week Wednesday. So, the big one appears to be on the lakeshore gridiron this weekend. A Cobourg win will tie it up and probably force a playoff for the right to enter "A" playdowns. According to the Port Hope paper, Ghosts' executives called the game here Friday "the dirtiest game of the year" and said Coon Medhurst was finished for the season with concussion. Huh, that was his third such injury this season. We didn't find the fray particularly rough.

Lawn Bowlers Winding Up A Long Season

When lawn bowlers gather at the Empress Hotel this evening to attend the annual banquet and meeting of the Lawn Bowling Club, it will mark the end of another successful season. Besides being a successful one, it was a busy one. Play began around May 24, and was continual until about 10 days ago.

Argos Make Grade Down Riders 25-6

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

All right, Toronto Argonauts are a 60-minute football team. And, you might add, they are great opportunists to boot.

It took the Double Blues four games to prove they can go both ways for the hour without squandering fat leads. They desperately needed victory Saturday at Ottawa and they shook off the jitters long enough to come out with a healthy 25-6 triumph over the Rough Riders to slide into second spot in the Big Four race.

Argonauts now are one point up on the Dominion champions and four behind the red-hot Hamilton Tiger-Cats who pawed with the futile Montreal Alouettes for 30 minutes and then smacked them down 21-1. The Bengals can walk into the playoffs with another victory over the Als at Montreal next Sunday.

KIDS LOOK GOOD

In the west, fans at Calgary and Edmonton had a good look at the kids who have been warming the benches most of the season and what they saw was pretty good. Nothing was at stake in the western conference, except probably a few contracts for next year, and the eager youngsters, backed by a few tried veterans, scampered all over the grounds.

The results in the end-of-schedule games: Winnipeg Blue Bombers 42, Calgary Stampeders 8; Saskatchewan Roughriders 31, Edmonton Eskimos 28.

The Blue Bombers, who got a bye into the best-of-three finals with their first-place finish, relied mostly on their bench strength and it proved much stronger than the Stampeders'. Indian Jack Jacobs and Tom Casey, their nifty one-two punch, combined for two early converted touchdowns and then parked on the bench to see what the kids could do.

Len Meltzer and Gerry James matched Casey's two-touchdown performance and Indian Jack kicked the six converts.

DOBBS STARS

Playing-coach Glenn Dobbs fired his Roughrider bench-warmers with a dazzling forward-passing display that saw him complete 18 of 31 tries for 391 yards.

The stage now is for the Oct. 22-25 home-and-home total-point semi-finals between the Eskimos and Stampeders.

The Toronto-Ottawa game was the key contest in Eastern Canada and the Double Blues, whose last-half lapses started in Ottawa a couple of weeks ago, proved to the 15,984 partisan fans that they'll be tough to replace in the second-and-final playoff spot when the Big Four schedule closes Nov. 8.

After a scoreless first quarter, Al Bruno and Ted Toogood went over for touchdowns, both converted by Red Ettinger, and that was the ball game. Joe Krol added a single in the third and Ulysses Curtis and Billy Bass added majors in the last 15 minutes.

Choo-Choo Roberts went over for Ottawa's lone major in the fourth.

ARGOS FAVORED

The schedule favors Argonauts to win a spot in the post-season series. They meet Ottawa at Toronto Saturday and close out the season with home-and-home games against the Als while the Riders tackle the powerful Tiger-Cats in a two-game set.

Shutout victories were recorded in the Ontario Rugby Football union. The league-leading Sarnia Imperials pulled a notch closer to their second straight union title with an easy 27-0 triumph over Brantford Redskins at Sarnia Saturday and Toronto Balmy Beach walloped Windsor Royals—who had only 15 men dressed—36-0 at Toronto Sunday.

It's Sarnia and Balmy Beach in the playoffs and these games were simply a matter of playing out the schedule which winds up in a couple of weeks.

TOUCHDOWNS HELP

The Imperials counted a converted touchdown in each quarter with Johnny Chorostecki, who led the union's scorers two years ago, pacing the attack. He scored one major, kicked four converts and added a single for a 10-point afternoon.

Jim Burr, Bill Weiss and the league's leading scorer, Corky Duchene, added touchdowns. Weiss also added two singles.

The Royals, who have managed only 60 points in nine games, at least is the pluckiest senior club in the country. The players who turned out at Toronto battled gamely all the way and they were a dead-tired bunch after 60 minutes.

The 300-crowd cheered the Royals at every opportunity and they responded with a fourth-quarter performance that held the Beaches off the score-sheet. Marty Carrington and Johnny Pont went over for two touchdowns each while Fred Street and Ken Wagner counted the others.

"COOL CONTROL"

TABLE TENNIS: THE SERVE

1 Ball should be hit to bounce on your side of the table first and then on opponent's side. Ball must be hit from behind the table, not from a position over the table surface. Serving hand must be open and flat as fingers hold the ball for serve.

2 Keep control of your serve by bouncing ball near the end of the table on your side. Bouncing ball too near the net will result in too many netted balls and lost points. Keep serve low.

3 Rules prohibit finger spins and rubbing ball against face of racket when serving. Use a forward stroke on a vertical plane for best control. Practise change of pace and positioning By getting your service under complete control.

Yes, it's control that counts in table tennis as in every sport — control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

Detroit Red Wings Hand Canadiens Decisive 6-1 Shellacking

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Maybe Montreal Canadiens will reconsider their decision to stand pat on last year's second-place National Hockey League club after what happened to them last night. The Canadiens, runners-up to Detroit Red Wings in the 1951-52 season, took a 6-1 shellacking from the league champions who now are clicking in high gear with a 13-goal barrage in their last two games. That should be plenty of warning that the Wings are the powerhouse of the league and that it won't do to depend on a last-season club.

The victory, most clear-cut of the five-game weekend schedule, sent the Wings into first place, one up on Canadiens and the so-far surprising Chicago Black Hawks. Canadiens edged Boston 2-1 at Montreal Saturday and Hawks dropped a 3-2 decision to Toronto Maple Leafs Sunday.

The Leafs started the weekend with a 4-3 victory over New Yor sweep and four points that moved them into fourth place, one up on Boston. The Bruins salvaged one point in the Saturday-Sunday goings-on with a 2-2 tie with the Rangers at home last night.

The Wings, who wipped the Hawks 7-0 Thursday night, were held to a scoreless first period by Canadiens and then took a 3-0 second-period lead on goals by Marty Pavelich, Metro Prystai and Gordie Howe.

LESWICK SCORES TWICE

Folyd Curry broke a 1-1 deadlock against the Bruins Saturday to give the Montrealers an even break in their two games. Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion scored early in the second session and Johnny Peirson tied it at 13:33. Curry's game-winning counter was notched at 6:02.

The Leafs came from behind in their double victory. They clicked for three goals in less than two minutes of the third period against Rangers to wipe out a 2-1 deficit. Leaf marksmen were Ted Kennedy, Sid Smith, Max Bentley and Rudy Migay. New York's scorers were Herb Dickenson, Harry Howell and Nick Mickoski.

They were behind 2-1 again in Chicago on Hawk goals by George Gee. Tim Horton, Harry Watson and Rookie Ron Stewart were the scorers. The rookie's goal was the tie-breaker with five minutes remaining of the game.

Hy Buller, New York defenceman, atoned for a penalty which aided Boston's two-goal surge when he passed to Paul Ronty at 17:46 of the third period and the winger clicked on the tying goal. Dave Creighton and Woody Dumart notched the Bruin goals while Buller was serving time for holding. Mickoski notched the other New York counter.

St. Catharines Beat Out Marlboros 1-0

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Deadlocks are the rule as the battle smoke clears over the rinks of the Ontario-Quebec junior A league.

In the Ontario section Barrie Flyers, who had to be satisfied with a 5-5 deadlock with St. Catharines Saturday, are four points in front. In second place are jammed five teams each with five points—Kitchener, St. Michael's, Galt, Guelph and St. Catharines.

Marlboros and Oshawa are in a seventh-place deadlock with three points each and winless Windsor Spitfires are in the cellar.

TIE IN QUEBEC

In Quebec two teams share top spot. Montreal Canadiens and Quebec Citadelles each have six points after taking Sunday games from Montreal Royals and Three Rivers Reds, 4-1 and 3-2, respectively. The Reds are third with four points with the winless Royals trailing.

In St. Catharines Saturday night the hungry TeePees took the lead four times, the last one in overtime, but couldn't hold the edge. Bill Haas put St. Kitts one up in the extra period but Fred Pletsch shot one past Marve Edwards to clinch the-tie. Other St. Catharines goals went to Ron Murphy, Brian Cullen, Al Kellogg and Joe Gastelic.

In Oshawa the Generals pasted St. Michael's 6-2 for their first victory of the season. Don McIntosh scored two quick ones in the third period for Oshawa that marked the turning point.

Galt Black Hawks looked improved Saturday as they downed Kitchener 5-3. Ken Wharram wearing a special shoulder brace, scored twice for Galt while others went to John Muckler, Neil McDonald and Ron Halstead. Kitchener marksmen were Len Croke, Ron Collins and Orv Tessier.

BILTS EDGE ROYALS

Sunday afternoon saw the defending champs, Guelph Biltmores squeeze a 3-2 win from Windsor. Windsor took a 1-0 lead in the second on Cummy Burton's goal. Bilts exploded for three in the third on shots by Dean Prentice, Chuck Henderson and Jim Connelly. Burton got his second of the night in the third.

The Sunday doubleheader in Toronto featured a win and a tie. St. Catharines downed Marlboros 1-0 after Galt and St. Michael's battled to a 3-3 draw.

Hugh McBurney scored the first for Galt early in the game, but Jack Caffery tied it up in the second period. Galt went ahead again a minute later as Jimmy Poeta scored.

St. Michael's scored two in the third, by Bill Lee and Ken Linesman, then Poeta fired his second with four minutes remaining.

There was no scoring in the St. Catharine-Toronto tilt until the third period when Brian Cullen scored unassisted to give St. Catharines the win. Nineteen penalties were assessed.

Redmen Upset Mustangs With 11-6 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

McGill Redmen took over as Cinderellas of the Senior Intercollegiate Football Union Saturday while the in - and - out Queen's Golden Gaels resumed their role of underdogs in the four-team circuit.

The Redmen upset unbeaten Western Mustangs 11-6 at Montreal for their first victory in three starts this season while the Tricolor bowed 13-1 before the defending champion University of Toronto Blues and a capacity homecoming week-end crowd at Varsity Stadium.

The Toronto victory gave the Blues an undisputed lead in the college loop with two wins and a tie to date. Western still holds second with one victory and a tie while McGill and Queen's are deadlocked in third with a single win.

TAKE LEAD

At Montreal, McGill took a 1-0 early-game lead, only to have the Mustangs bounce back with a converted touchdown for a 6-1 edge a few moments later. A Geoff Crain-to-Jim Miller passing play and Gerry Wilmot's conversion just before the quarter ended made it 7-6 for the Redmen and they were never headed after that.

It was all Blue and White at Varsity Stadium as Toronto put on its best show of the season to humble the upstart Tricolor from Queen's. Respecting the Gaels throughout a slow first half which ended in a 1-1 deadlock, Varsity pushed across a converted major in each of the closing quarters for the 13-1 final.

Bears, Hornets Tied For Last Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pittsburgh Hornets and Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League find themselves in a strange position today—chasing the rest of the field.

Last year, when the league was split into two divisions, the Hornets won the western crown and the Bears the eastern. This season the league is not split and the Hornets and Bears are tied for last place.

Both teams lost their second games in as many starts last night. The Bears bowed 5-3 to Providence's ace-setting Reds while the Hornets dropped a 5-4, overtime decision to St. Louis Flyers. In the only other game, Buffalo Bisons smeared Syracuse Warriors 7-2.

PROVIDENCE WINS

The Reds and Bears were tied 3-3 until shortly after the halfway mark of the final frame when Pete Kapusta and Barry Sullivan netted within less than two minutes to win for Providence.

Defenceman Joe Lund's 60-foot screen shot in sudden death overtime beat the Hornets at St.Louis. Harry Taylor of the Flyers sent the game into overtime by scoring during the final two minutes of play in the third period to snarl the count at 4-4.

Modern Heart Surgery Gives New Hope For 'Blue' Babies

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

Among the most remarkable advances in medicine in recent years are the developments in heart surgery. Thanks to the extraordinary ingenuity of many patient research workers and their experiments on dogs, it is now possible to save the lives of many children and adults who were formerly doomed to early graves.

Nearly everyone is familiar with the term "blue baby" which is given to pitiful infants who are born with a bluish color of the skin resulting from lack of oxygen in the blood.

In blue babies, the deficiency of oxygen is the result of a malformed heart, or malformation of the large blood vessels lying near it. Such defective structures allow the blood containing small amounts of oxygen to mix with the oxygen-laden blood from the lungs. The result, of course, is that the tissues do not receive enough life-giving oxygen.

Several kinds of malformations of the heart permit this mixing of oxygen - containing and non - oxygen-containing blood. For several of these inborn defects of structure, it is now possible to operate successfully.

In one treatable form, the passageway between the heart and one of the large blood vessels which should normally close before birth fails to do so. This is called a patent or open ductus arteriosus. This opening can now be closed by delicate heart surgery. The operation has already been done hundreds of times with great success.

Some of the other congenital malformations of the heart can also be treated successfully by surgery, but not all of them. For this reason, careful study of each case has to be conducted individually in order to make a diagnosis and to decide whether or not surgery would be useful.

RHEUMATIC FEVER IS CAUSE

But the possibilities of helpful heart surgery are no longer restricted to the diseases present at birth. One of the common causes of heart disease is rheumatic fever which so frequently affects the valves lying on the inside of the heart.

Although it seems almost unbelievable, the methods which have recently been devised now make it possible in many instances to repair such diseased valves and counter-effect many of the harmful and dangerous actions of such damage. Truly it can be said that the possibilities of modern heart surgery have brought new hope to thousands.

Gordon Bilodeau of Stratford.

It was the first time in 30 years that the ceremony has been held in Peterborough. First time was when the Grand Encampment met here and several men received the award.

Speakers of the evening remarked that the decoration is for service rendered "to their fellow man by the relief of their wants and sufferings of the common people". Only meritorious service merited the award.

Cam Rowatt Sec.-Treas. Of Sportsmen

OSHAWA (Special)—Campbell Rowatt, Peterborough, was elected for his third consecutive term as secretary-treasurer of zone 5, Federation of Anglers and Hunters at the annual meeting held Saturday and Sunday at Oshawa. Chairman of education for the Peterborough Fish and Game Association he won warm tribute from his colleagues for his fine work.

Professor Norman Radforth, M.A., Ph.D., of McMaster University was banquet speaker and was introduced by Harold R. Scott, M.P.P. More than 110 members of rod and gun clubs and their wives attended the banquet and business sessions.

Oshawa Fish and Game club was awarded the "Scotty Uren Memorial Trophy" for the finest conservation program during the year. The Bank of Commerce trophy to the individual doing the best single effort in the cause of conservation went to George Cook of West Toronto.

OPPOSE EXECUTVE

The delegates voted unanimously to oppose the recent suggestion of the parent executive setting the export limit of fish at one. Instead they urged that the possession limit on game fish for both residents and non-residents be set at one day's legal catch, and that the export limit, be the same.

Scarboro Rod and Gun Club charged that certain lock masters on the Trent Canal opened lock gates in the spring before the pickerel run, then closed them when shoals of fish had entered. Lacking sufficient food, the fish were easily taken by anglers when the season opened. They want all fishing inside lock gates prohibited.

Midland delegates claimed the drift fishing law in the Special Fisheries Regulations was a joke, and asked that if the Dept. of Lands and Forests could not enforce this law, it be scrapped.

Hugh Plowman, Peterborough, ranking officers in the order, Deputy Grand Master Fred G. Mann, who is acting Grand Master since the death of C. H. Minchin, and Provincial Prior of Toronto District Charles H. Evans of Toronto were present and spoke.

Dr. H. C. Leslie Pioneered Bovine T.B. Fight

Dr. Henry Charles Leslie of Hamilton, a retired veterinarian of the health of animals branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture, died of a heart attack in Port Hope hospital early Sunday morning. His age was 83 and he was born in Hope township.

Dr. Leslie was one of the group of Canadian veterinarians chosen by the government to study in Chicago in 1906 the methods developed in the United States for the control and eradication of tuberculosis in cattle. By that appointment he became one of the pioneers of the government's staff who engaged in the combatting of bovine T.B. in this country. It was effectually brought under control, and in that process of discovering the disease, many thousands of cattle which were found to be reactors to inoculation were slaughtered, in a plan of compensation to farmers by the government. Since then scrutiny of herds has been maintained, and it has been the desire of the cattle owners of counties to have their areas declared free of T.B. It was a costly but effective application of veterinary science in the cause of public health and also in the protection of the country's cattle.

VISITED IN PETERBOROUGH

Dr. Leslie was in Peterborough last week visiting his hon, Dr. John Leslie, whose home is west of the city on the Peterborough-Port Hope Highway. He left at noon Saturday for Hamilton, accompanied by his son, but called at his summer home near Canton, north of Port Hope, and at midnight was stricken by a heart attack. He died about 5 a.m., Sunday.

The body has been taken to Hamilton for funeral service Tuesday and will be brought back to Port Hope for burial Wednesday in St. John's Anglican cemetery. It will be resting at George's funeral home, Port Hope, on Wednesday until the funeral service there in the afternoon. Dr. Leslie's wife and one son are buried in St. John's cemetery.

Surviving members of his family are five daughters, Miss Florence Leslie of Hamilton; Mrs. A. V. Parkhill and Mrs. F. Jackson of Hamilton; Mrs. Glendon Swartz of Detroit, and Mrs. Kenneth Gates of Montreal; Dr. Fred Leslie of Ottawa and Dr. John Leslie of Peterborough.

TOKYO (Reuters) — United Nations soldiers in Korea are learning how to keep warm through the bitter winter ahead by studying drawings and cartoons. These form a large part of a booklet issued by the United States Army called "Cold Facts for Keeping Warm." The booklet sets out six ways to comfort in cold climates: wear clothes in layers; do not overheat; wear clothes loose; keep them clean; keep dry; keep active.

Serving Term Motor Thief Gets 12 Mos.

Sentenced In Lindsay Second Term To Run Concurrently

LINDSAY (ENS)—A man who had received an 18-month sentence for theft of outboard motors in the Peterborough area appeared in Lindsay police court this morning to face a further charge, laid by Constable John Williams of the Fenelon Falls O.P.P.

Lawrence Howell of Toronto, pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing an Evinrude motor, valued at $100 from Eric Thompson of Coboconk. The motor was recovered when Peterborough Provincial Police arrested Howell on ten other charges of theft.

Howell told Magistrate Gee that he understood he had pleaded guilty to the charge in Peterborough, but Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan Q.C., stated that he did not apologize for bringing the accused to Lindsay on a court order to face the trial.

He stated that the thousands of dollars invested in motors in Victoria and Haliburton counties made the act necessary. Thompson told the court of finding one of the boats from his livery at Coboconk, without the gas tank and motor, the day following the renting of it to Howell and another man. He reported to Constable Williams at Fenelon Falls, and in subsequent investigation a tip from the Peterborough provincial police led to the arrest and charging of Howell with the crime.

Constable Williams commented on the accused's willingness to co-operate with the police in providing information about four other motors he had stolen in the Trenton district, which were recovered and the help he had given in the present investigation. When asked what he had to say for himself, Howell remarked that "I've sure got myself in an awful mess."

Magistrate Gee agreed with Howell, and sentenced him to another year definite in reformatory, to run concurrently with the Peterborough sentence.

16,200 Apples Bring Scouts In City $1,432

More than 16,200 rosy red MacIntosh apples were sold by the Peterborough Boy Scout Association on its annual apple day Friday night and Saturday morning. The boys grossed $1,432 and will have approximately $1,000 net proceeds from the day. Last year the association's net was more, but the higher cost of apples this year lowered the net receipts.

About 400 Cubs, Scouts and Rover Scouts opened the annual apple day drive on Friday night. Each group was allotted a district similar to the Scout paper drives, and the boys covered that area, house by house.

On Saturday morning the boys weathered chilly blasts and sold apples on the downtown street corners. Many boys entered downtown offices and stores selling a large number of apples to the workers.

ALL-DAY COUNTING

One of the most difficult tasks was counting the receipts; this was an all-day job for eight members of the association. For the apple drive netted 18,000 coins including 6,800 coppers, more than 1,000 nickles, more than 5,000 dimes, and the remainder in quarters. There was only $23 in bills.

The counters started their job when the boys first went to the street corners Saturday morning; they worked throughout the afternoon finishing at 5 p.m. with all neatly rolled and deposited in the bank.

Apple Day this year is the major fund-raising project for the Scouts. Previously they derived funds from the paper collections which were abandoned this year when the price of waste paper decreased sharply. A scrap metal drive may be held in November.

Man Dies Of Injuries

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—Simeon Leduc, 37, of nearby Ramore died in hospital Saturday of injuries suffered when an automobile rolled over him in an accident 25 miles north of here.

Police said Leduc was thrown from a car in which he was a passenger when the car upset after skidding on the soft shoulder of a icy road.

Few Flakes

Peterborough ducked under the snow that swept across southern Ontario on Sunday. Big heavy clouds threatened, but apart from only a few flakes that were swirled through the air by a stiff breeze in the area at the northeast end of Stony Lake, there were no reports of snow. Most of the afternoon appeared to be cold enough for snow, especially when clouds blotted out the sun.

Prince Of Wales Wins Award School Grounds

Prince of Wales School, of which R. J. Bolton is principal, has been awarded the Board of Education trophy for beautification of school grounds as reported today by William C. Wilks, secretary of the Peterborough Horticultural Society.

The Joseph S. Bell trophy for improvement of home grounds goes to Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Henry, 604 Sherbrooke St. Mr. Wilks recalls that Queen Mary School won the Board of Education trophy last year, and also that Prince of Wales is regaining possession for the second time since this prize was presented to the society. It is for maintenance and improvement of grounds, plus lawn, flowers and borders.

The Henry place was chosen from all the properties on the Scenic Drive. The G. K. Fraser trophy for improvement of rural school grounds has been earned by union schools 10-9-14, Burleigh, Harvey and Smith, at Burleigh Falls. The teacher is Herbert T. Knox. As winner of the county competition, Burleigh School automatically passed into the provincial finals, placing third in that company. The rural schools are under the supervision of K. O. Birkin, Inspector, who, Mr. Wilks comments, "continues to maintain a good record for these contests".

Horticultural Society's trophies will be presented to their 1952 winners at the Y.W.C.A. Monday Oct. 27 at 8 p.m.

Music will be contributed to the program by the Triple Trio of the Collegiate Institute under the direction of Mr. M. J. Curtis. Refreshments will be served, and for the important meeting of the Society the public is invited.

Three Hurt In 2 Crashes At Lindsay

Car Leaves Road Smashes Into Tree North of Town

LINDSAY (ENS).—Two weekend accidents in the Lindsay area sent three persons to Ross Memorial Hospital on Saturday, one with serious injuries. Jack Quibell 22, of Fenelon Falls, sustained facial lacerations and a badly fractured knee when his car left the road south of the village and collided with a tree. Corporal Denniss, of the Lindsay detachment, O.P.P., investigated the mishap. At last report, Quibell was in satisfactory condition at Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay.

TWO IN HOSPITAL

A two-car collision north of the town on Saturday night resulted in two men being sent to the hospital with undetermined injuries. They were injured when a car driven by a Mr. Jackson of Lindsay, was in collision with another, driven by James Lyle, of Victoria Road.

Both Lyle and a passenger in the Jackson vehicle, Archie Brandon, of Lindsay, were injured in the accident and taken to the Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay. The extent of their injuries has not been revealed.

Traffic was fairly heavy in the area during the weekend, with cottagers closing up their summer homes for the season, and hunters added to the usual number using the highways. Provincial and local police had their hands full on Sunday night handling the traffic and a few minor accidents were reported.

Breckon Given Life Membership

NORWOOD (ENS).—At the annual district meeting of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation held in Oshawa on Saturday, ex-principal S. S. Breckon of Norwood high school was presented with an honorary life membership in the O.S.S.T.F.

Mr. Breckon in reply thanked the executive for their generous gift and hoped that the Federation would continue on its road to success.

Great Corruption Riddles Iron Curtain Lands

By RICHARD O'REGAN

VIENNA (AP)—In Romania more than $2,000,000 has been defrauded from the government treasury by 24 highly-placed officials.

Thirteen other government officials have used their positions to divert thousands of tons of first-class textiles to the black market.

Hunting and fishing rights and even diapers have been given away for services rendered

Newspaper reports from Romania and other lands in the Russian sphere indicate that Communist governments all over are having no end of trouble with corruption.

GROWING WORSE

Even the controlled newspapers behind the Iron Curtain indicate official malfeasance exceeds anything seen in the West. Only the newspapers don't call it corruption; they call it "sabotage."

But what it adds up to is that the Communist governments of Eastern Europe are shot through with dishonesty, irresponsibility and bribery.

Partly this is due to the transfer of state power to incompetents. Communist street laborers who find themselves heading important ministeries, shoemakers who find themselves running state factories, apparently find the temptations to office too strong.

Partly it is the past. All the nations of East Europe, including Russia, have centuries-old histories of bureaucratic corruption From the lowest officials up to the top it has always been accepted.

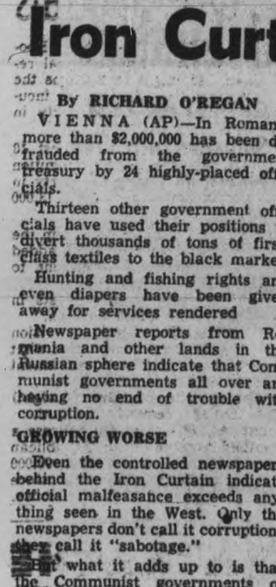
LITTLE OFFICIALS BAD

Little officials are as bad as the big. In Communist Estonia, for instance, the Talinn newspaper Rahva Haal reported that Director Krgulov, manager of a state industry, not only took off most of the day for hunting, but forced all empoyees to contribute 25 rubles for gifts for his birthday.

The next day, he dismissed all employees who had refused to cough up.

Police make a point of finding "irregularities" in papers in order to have their palms greased

Higher officials are not free from pilfering the "peoples' property." Newspapers have reported hundreds of cases of disappearance of construction materials, clothes and food. A new low was reached recently when a Budapest newspaper complained of watered wine and 22 instead of 25 cigarets in packages sold in state-owned tobacco stores.



NYLON DIAPERS

A Hungarian paper said the manager of a state department store saw to it that his lady friends were getting nylon diapers while "legitimate mothers" were told the store hadn't any.

Constant government shake-ups and removal of top ministers in all Iron Curtain countries are a symptom of misconduct.

Two brothers and a cousin of the purged Romanian Minister of Finance, Vasile Luca, misappropriated forests and rivers for their own private hunting and fishing.

Faulty reports often occur because officials must produce statistics for the government propaganda machine. They occur in industry, agriculture and even in medicine. Because bad health records are frowned on, state doctors reportedly list infectious diseases like diphtheria as "sore throat," or typhus as "influenza."

Present Development Something Of Record

NEEPAWA, Man. (CP)—Justice Minister Garson said here Saturday night that Canadians would have to go back a long way in their history to see a comparable period of economic development that has been carried on in Canada since the end of the Second World War.

In a speech at the Manitoba Young Liberal Association convention, Mr. Garson said that only the early days of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's administration begin to compare with what Canada has accomplished since the war.

"Which little piggie had Shirriff's Marmalade?"

SPARE PART FOR HEARTS—Nurse La Reine Spain, of the Georgetown University Medical Centre, in Washington, D.C., displays a plastic valve of a type which has been successfully used in heart surgery. The valve was placed in the aorta of the heart, to perform the duties of a defective exhaust valve leading from the chamber. The device stops any back-flow of blood, and relieves the heart of most of the strain of a leaking valve.

Canada Planning To Stick With Tariff Agreement

by HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Weaknesses in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade are becoming more apparent day by day, nevertheless the Canadian government plans to stand by it until something better comes along.

The General Agreement originally was forged by some 34 countries including Canada as an instrument to promote world trade through reduction in tariffs and elimination of import restrictions.

But the pact provided certain concessions, certain clauses, which could be used by member countries in economic difficulties to limit their obligations made under G.A.T.T.

SPIRIT VIOLATED

Now officials in Ottawa feel that some countries are using the clauses in a way which is against the spirit of the agreement.

The export-Subsidy clause is an example. This was designed to allow a country in extreme economic difficulty and with surpluses of home products to subsidize exports to dispose of these surpluses abroad.

However, the pact also provides that if such a practice harms the trade of another member country, consultations should follow to limit the practice and reduce the harm.

For instance, if the United States should subsidize cotton exports and this should harm Brazilian sales, the two should consult to limit the U.S. policy.

The complaint by Canada and some other pact members is that in the case of the U.S. nothing develops out of the consultations.

The problems of G.A.T.T. are expected to come up before the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' conference in London next month. Some United Kingdom reports indicate that Britain would like Canada to ditch some portions of the pact and give first place to Imperial tariff preferences to promote trade within the Commonwealth.

Under G.A.T.T. the effect of Imperial preferences actually are reduced. If Canada, for example, should give some tariff concession to a Commonwealth country, she is forced by G.A.T.T. to extend the same concession to all non-Commonwealth members, too.

However, Canadian officials feel Canada's future lies in promoting trade not only within the Commonwealth, but outside the Commonwealth as well.

Even with its weaknesses, G.A.T.T., they feel, is still the best thing for Canada, until a stronger, more concrete world trade program can be developed.

Moscow Love Scenes Put Business First

LONDON (Reuters) — Moscow radio last night took listeners to a music hall in the Soviet capital for a "boy meets girl" scene—a collective farmer and a woman tractor driver working together on night shift.

The girl broke the ice "How wonderful it is," she sighed, "to work on such a beautiful night under the full moon and do one's utmost to save gasoline."

Her companion declared fervently: "the night inspires me to overfulfill my quota by a higher and still higher percentage."

Soon he declared his love: "I fell in love with your working achievements from the very first moment."

King's Memorial Fund Reaches £350,000

LONDON (Reuters)—The fund for a memorial to King George VI has reached £350,000 in its first two weeks, Lord Mayor Sir Leslie Boyce announced last night

The sum is still far short of that needed to make the memorial "really worthy of our beloved king and to do the things that he would have wished us to do," he said.

Re-Elected President

TORONTO (CP) — Joseph Lowe of St. Catharines Saturday was re-elected to his second term as president of the Ontario command of the Canadian Corps Association. L.W. Burns of London was named first vice-president with Arthur McKinnon of Thorold second vice-president.

Teachers Want More Time Develop Children

TORONTO — Dr. R. C. Wallace, former principal of Queen's University, in a speech here Saturday, bemoaned the fact that teachers haven't time to develop the special talents they discover in pupils.

He told the Ontario Association for Curiculum Development that teachers feel helpless to develop children with specific abilities when there is so much on the curriculum which the whole class must do together. He questioned the wisdom of the present method.

"Many famous figures in history developed their special aptitudes and disregarded the general curriculum," he said. "Neither presidential candidate in the United States distinguished himself in school, yet each had special qualities which were developed later."

Despite the Declaration of Independence, he added, we are not all born equal and it is the individual differences in children which embarrass educators.

DESCRIBES EXPERIMENT

He told of an experiment in Saskatchewan, where teachers had tried to solve the problem by putting the gifted children in a class by themselves. The sevregation raised a new problem: The left gifted children were deprived of the influence of the better pupils.

Dr. Wallace said six basic things should be taught children —English, arithmetic, science, knowledge of themselves, a sense of beauty, and development of character.

"It is a very hard job to teach good English," he said. "Such expressions as 'to you and I' and 'to we Canadians' are very common, and it may be that some day they will be accepted. But they're not correct yet."

People who use such language go down in the estimation of the people who want to hear good language, he added.

He expressed the opinion that young people today can't write as well as did his generation 50 years ago, but they can speak better.

He felt too that children today have a better developed sense of beauty than did those of 30 years ago. Music was well taught in schools and symphonies were becoming more an dmore a part of life.

Engineers were making bridges and even factories beautiful, he added.

"One cannot live at one's best in the midst of ugliness," he said.

ARMY'S NEW GUNS SPEAK—Two of the Army's 280-mm. guns "sound off" at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, in Maryland, during a demonstration of the huge weapons. The guns will become the world's first "atomic artillery battery" when they are eventually tested with shells carrying a nuclear fision charge.

Blood Pressure Tends To Fall When You Lie On Left Side

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Your blood pressure tends to fall when you lie on your left side.

Dr. Paul Stein of New York found that blood pressure dropped in 63 per cent of 100 persons when they turned onto their left sides, compared with lying on their backs or on their right sides or sitting up.

The drop occurred in both healthy people and those with various forms of heart ailments. The drop was greater on the average in persons who usually had above-normal pressure.

This tendency can be important in some cases of heart troubles, and also during some surgery, Dr. Stein writes in the American Medical Association Archives of Internal Medicine.

The drop varies individually.

SOME NOT AFFECTED

It doesn't bother some people at all. They can lie or sleep on their left sides as comfortably as on the right.

But others get breathing trouble, tightness, a feeling of pressure or angina heart pains. The distress is most pronounced in people with certain lung ailments, lack of normal blood supply to the heart, high blood pressure and abnormal position of the heart.

The fall in blood pressure has been noted before in people laid on their left side for chest surgery. Sometimes their blood pressure falls so low it can't be detected and operations have had to be stopped.

A fall in blood pressure rarely seems to come from lying on the right side, Stein says.

The drop on the left position is apparently due to a combination of factors rather than one single cause, he says.

A shifting of the heart itself, certain kinds of obstructions in veins and in the heart, enlargement of the heart and nervous reflexes all may play a part in bringing about the fall in pressure.

Boyd Gang Publicity Bad For Children

TORONTO (CP)—A public school inspector told the Ontario Association for Curriculum Development Saturday that there is a real threat to the attitudes of children from the notoriety of the Boyd gang.

He said children had read and heard so much about the gang's exploits they would get the idea it was the smart thing to do. The inspector asked that his name not be used.

Farmer Dies of Burns

LEAMINGTON (CP) — Norman Iler, 81, a retired Kingsville farmer, died yesterday of burns suffered Friday when a shed at the rear of his farm home caught fire. Iler was carrying coal ashes through the shed when embers dropped from the container and started the fire.

Ask Investigation Of Nylon Stockings

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nylon stockings took the attention of the executive meeting of the British Columbia Young Progressive Conservative Association Saturday.

In a resolution, the association asked the federal government to investigate the hosiery and textile industries with respect to the manufacture of women's nylon stockings.

The resolution said that when nylon hosiery was first introduced on the market, it wore for a considerable period of time. Nylon hosiery now develops runs "within a matter of days," the resolution added.

The resolution suggested that hosiery manufacturers are deliberately making their product less durable to increase sales.

Ex-Chief Justice Sir J.M. Tellier Dies Suddenly

JOLIETTE, Que. (CP)—Sir Joseph Mathias Tellier, 91, distinguished French-Canadian who had a long political career before going to the bench, died from a heart attack Saturday.

Sir Mathias, who retired as Chief Justice of Quebec nearly 12 years ago, died in the postoffice of Joliette, the town he loved so well. He was stricken while opening his mail.

Sir Mathias entered politics a few years after he was called to the bar in 1895. He was long a Conservative member of the Quebec Legislature and served as leader of the Opposition from 1908 to 1915.

LEAVES POLITICS

Just prior to the 1916 provincial elections he stepped out of the political field. Shortly afterwards he was appointed to the Superior Court of Quebec and four years later to the Court of King's Bench. He became Chief Justice in 1932 and retired Jan. 1, 1942.

He declined the offer of a federal cabinet post in 1915 and some years later his name was prominently mentioned for the Lieutenant-Governorship of Quebec.

Recognition of his public service came Jan. 1, 1934, when King George V made him a knight bachelor.

As recently as 1950 Sir Mathias was again called to public service. He was appointed by Premier Duplessis as special adviser to the Quebec government on constitutional questions.

Waging Battle To Save Primitive Carvings

By R. A. KENNER

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuters)—A battle is being waged here to save from destruction a series of primitive stone carvings which may throw as much light on primitive man as similar ones found in southern France and northern Spain.

The drawings are located in a group of rock shelters on the banks of the Waikato River, 100 miles southeast of here, at a site near where engineers are planning to operate a huge hydro-electric project, now nearing completion at a cost of more than $30,000,000.

Two rare finds are threatened with destruction. A series of decorative rock drawings by early unknown craftsmen would be obliterated by the full flooding of the main dam.

The other, an even more previous discovery—a possible missing link between virtually uncharted cave drawings of the North Island and others found in limestone shelters along routes of the Moa-hunters in the South Island—is menaced by test blasting at the site of a future dam, a few miles away.

On a one-man expedition in the South Island, he picked up the trails of hardy nomadic neolithic wanderers who roamed in search of fish, game and greenstone (jade), scrawling with charcoal and red ochre on the walls of rock shelters as they travelled.

FILED PROTEST

For five years, with slender financial aid, Schoon retraced the steps of the country's first artists.

News of his finds travelled overseas, and recently in England the noted art authorities, Herbert Read and Christopher Hawkes of the Pre-historic Society, filed a formal protest with the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization over the impending destruction of the finds.

It is suggested that a plaster coat might still be made of the drawings, if begun at once, and that from it a permanent concrete replica could be formed for placing in a museum or for use as a monument to its Maori-Polynesian creators.

The mystery of the extinction of the Moa bird—believed to have died out in the North Island some 500 to 700 years ago—may be solved in part by a Schoon find made earlier near Duntroon, Otago. Drawings had been made there of Moas as well as of an eagle also extinct.

On a cliff face near the Duntroon find was a large human figure with big spirals on its body and a triangular bag suspended from its [illegible] figure were the remains of an old fire. Round [illegible] were found Moa egg shells.

Hoover Says Reds Flourish Under Democrats

NEW YORK (AP)—Herbert Hoover came out of brief political retirement last night to describe the Democratic New Deal as an incubator of the Communist party in America.

He charged that in the first 10 years after New Deal recognition of Russia the Communist party in the United States grew from 13,000 members to 80,000.

"And they were employed in the high levels of government," added the last Republican President to sit in the White House.

"There were no communists in the Republican administration."

Hoover's country-wide television and radio address interrupted what he called his "final retirement from political activities."

"I have done so at Gen. (Dwight) Eisenhower's request," he said.

Hoover, 78, called his address a detailed defence of the Republican record for the benefit of 40,000,000 new voters who came of age since he stepped out of the White House.

British Car Makers Shoot At Market In Own Land

By SIDNEY WEILAND

LONDON (Reuters) — For the first time since the war, British automobile manufacturers are planning a high-pressure campaign to "sell" the British motorist on the idea of trading in the family jalopy on a new model.

But they still are concentrating their appeal on well-heeled families ready to spend upwards of £1,350 for a new car.

During the war, the only cars made were reserved for people with priorities of one kind and another. Since 1945, the need to boost exports and the claims of the rearmament program have kept the assembly lines more than busy.

IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

At the International Motor Show, opening here Wednesday, Britons will have their first post-war opportunity of ordering a brand-new exhibition car for immediately delivery.

Since the war salesmen have virtually ignored British buyers. They concentrated on foreign customers, mainly those with dollars in their pockets.

The home buyers had their name taken and were told that they would get cars eventually, perhaps in a year, perhaps in three years, perhaps longer.

Low-priced cars are still in great demand, and the waiting lists are still long. But manufacturers have found "sales resistance" in their efforts to push the more luxurious models.

The new unrestricted market, built around greater horse-power and luxury fittings, will be exclusively a rich-man's haunt.

About 20 types are now available in this class. But the manufacturers realize that they will find it difficult to sell. Even the Canadian-United States market for this kind of car is small.

CUT PRICES

The motor show sales drive follows a series of spectacular price cuts. While the price of the Austin A40 is still the equivalent of $2,043, the Austin Sheerline is now down to $5,695 instead of $6,347. the Armstrong-Siddeley Company has slashed nearly $500 off three models, bringing the price down to $2,800, though British buyers have to pay almost $1,500 extra in purchase tax.

The price of the luxury Daimler consort sedan has been reduced by $370 and now costs $5,800 including purchase tax.

In the immediate post-war years, British automobile companies succeeded in establishing Britain as the world's biggest car exporter, beating even the United States, and earning valuable foreign currency.

Recently the big car firms have felt a chill in their overseas trading. Australia cancelled many import orders to save sterling, and German competition has had a serious effect on British sales in Europe.

Family Has To Use 100-Year-Old Shack

HAGERSVILLE (CP) — Stanley Secord, a 32-year-old Mississauga Indian, and two young sons yesterday started cleaning out a 100-year old shack in tall weeds near the reservation.

Secord, his wife and seven sons and daughters, who lost their home in a weekend fire, plan to use the shack for emergency accommodation.

Hagersville is 18 miles southeast of Brantford.

Acquit Principal Of Assault

BRANTFORD (CP) — Kenneth Crabb, 44, principal of the Scotland public school, was acquitted Saturday of assaulting the mother of one of his pupils.

The complainant, Mrs. Edith Isenor, was convicted on a countercharge of assault laid by the principal and ordered to sign a bond to keep the peace.

On Oct. 9, the court was told, Mrs. Isenor went to the school to protest a strapping administered her son. She slapped the principal and was ejected by Mr. Crabb after being told to leave the building, testimony showed.

Stones Damage Stained Window

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Stones believed thrown by boys damaged and perhaps ruined a new, stained glass window at St. James (Westminster) Anglican Church Saturday before it had been dedicated to the memory of a former member of the church.

Estimated value of the window was $1,000.

Three boys have been charged by police. They will appear in juvenile court.

Rev. H.E. Merifield, rector of St. James, said the damaged window was a "sad greeting" for relatives of the late Mrs. Pearl Ellen Dauncey, in whose memory it was given, when they arrived for the ceremony Sunday morning.

Every section of the window was damaged, Mr. Merifield said.

Drew Wants Canada To Assert Herself

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said Saturday it is time for Canada to assert herself on the basis that the United States needs what this country has more than Canada needs what the U.S. has.

In the final speech of a six-day Northern Ontario tour, he said the United States, as the world's major buyer of gold, in effect set the price at $35 an ounce in U.S. funds. "I see no reason why Canadians should be told from Washington what we should do in this country of ours," he said.

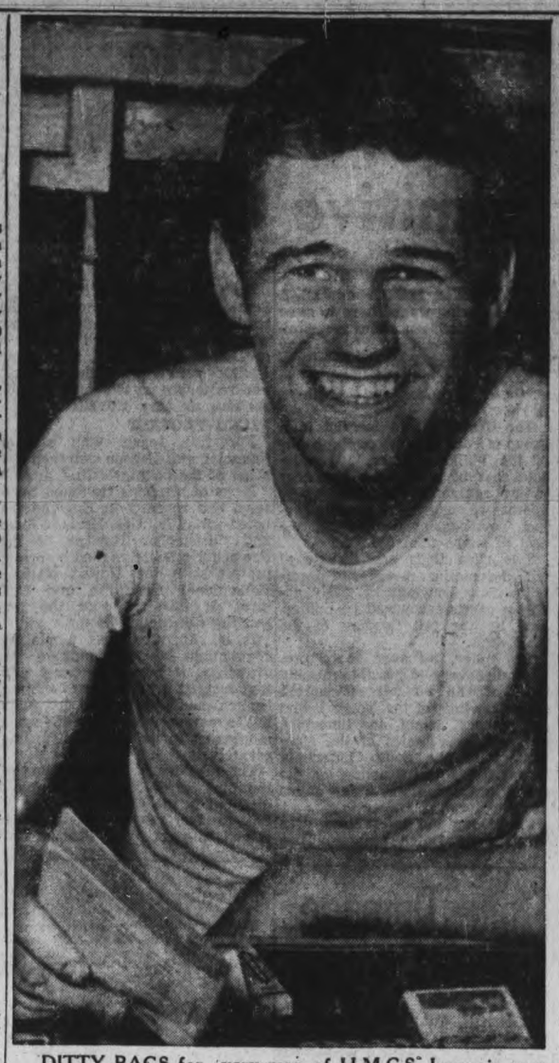
Toronto Police Seize $3,870 In Bogus Money

TORONTO—Toronto detectives Saturday seized nearly $4,000 in Canadian counterfeit bills from an Ossington Ave. apartment. They found the fake money when they smashed open a locked vanity case. Nestled amid the crisp $10 bills was a shiny automatic pistol —fully loaded.



Red-headed Gloria Martell, 27, has been charged with having $3,870 in counterfeit money in her possession as well as having two automatics. Detectives found the second loaded pistol elsewhere in the apartment.

The woman was picked up by Constable Kenneth Halsall, of the Traffic Division, at about 5:30 p.m., Saturday, near St. Clair Ave. W. and Avenue Rd. The constable stopped the car the woman was driving and ordered her and a man next to her to follow him to No. 5 police station.

The man however, jumped from the car, when it was moving at considerable speed. He disappeared. Not until he reached the station, did Constable Halsall notice that the man had escaped.

The woman refused to tell detectives where she obtained the counterfeit money.

Miss Martell was taken to the Don Jail early yesterday and will appear in court today.

Institute Says Fluoridation Safe Measure

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Institute of Municipal Law Officers published yesterday a study concluding that "fluoridation of public water supplies is an effective, safe, economical and constitutional health measure" to combat tooth decay.

The report as prepared primarily for lawyers of U.S. towns and cities involved in lawsuits growing out of the practice of adding small quantities of fluorine to public water supplies.

The report was prepared for the institute by its general ounsel, Charles S. Rhyne and Eugene F. Mullin Jr.

HAVE LESS DECOY

It concluded that children who consume fluoridated water from birth onward will have up to two-thirds less tooth decay than children who consume flourine-free water. The report examined and dismissed as without foundation arguments that the practice of fluoridation is unconstitutional.

The National Institute of Municipal Law Officers is an organization of cities acting through their municipal attorneys. Some 700 cities are members.

St. George, the first settlement on Bermuda, still has many of the original 17th century buildings.

B.C. Conservative Party Elects New Officer Slate

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Progressive Conservative party, its Legislature strength decimated in last summer's provincial general election, elected a new slate of officers Saturday.

Herbert Anscomb, co-chief in B.C.'s old coalition government, resigned as leader of the party. He had said earlier he would resign at the party's full-dress convention in December but changed his plans under the threat of a want-of-confidence motion.

At the same time, a new executive was elected to the provincial Progressive Conservative association, the group which convened here Saturday.

E.D. Fulton, Member of Parliament for Kamloops, replaced Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., M.P. for Nanaimo, as president.

The outgoing executive brought in a resolution which would have doubled provincial representation on the B.C. executive at the expense of federal representation. The resolution was defeated

A spokesman for the new executive said the resolution, in effect, would have meant subordination of the federal to the provincial party. There have been published reports during the last few years of a tug-of-war between federal and provincial progressive conservatives for control of the B.C. party.

In the June 12 provincial election, Progressive Conservative strength in the Legislature dropped from 11 to four seats Mr. Anscomb was beaten personally in Oak Bay riding.

The meeting was broken into small groups. No formal decisions were made but any teacher was free to use ideas picked up. The conference dealt with 10 topics. Each delegate chose one group and stayed with it.

9,000 Commonwealth Dead Lie Buried At El Alamein

By HAIG NICHOLSON

EL ALAMEIN (Reuters)—All is quiet today in the little town of El Alamein, lying between the blue Mediterranean to the north and the impassable Quattara Depression to the south.

Main activity now is in a large cemetery where some 9,000 British Commonwealth dead are buried.

But 10 years ago on the night of October 23, the thunder of guns in the darkness heralded the opening of the Battle of El Alamein.

Behind one of the heaviest barrages then known in warfare, Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery launched his Eighth Army in one of the decisive engagements of the war—a drive which was the beginning of the end for the Axis armies in North Africa.

Within 24 hours, Gen. Stumme, commander of the mixed German and Italian force, was dead of a heart attack. Gen. Rommel, then in Germany, a sick man, hastened back to the battle raging at the gateway to Alexandria.

He arrived by air Oct. 25 to find, according to Gen. Cramer, that "Alamein was lost before it was fought" because "we had not the gasoline."

LASTED FOR DAYS

The battle continued fiercely for days. Then came the breakthrough, and the 2,000-mile advance of the Eighth Army to Tunis, with more battles on the way.

The majority of the dead who lie in El Alamein's quiet cemetery, fell in that battle. Others have been brought into the large sandy resting place from small temporary cemeteries in the vicinity, and from isolated graves near where they died.

Two hundred Egyptian workmen living in special barracks are engaged in completing the cemetery. The task should be completed early in 1954, after 2½ years work.

Already the great wall surrounding the cemetery has been finished. One-third of the temporary crosses have been replaced by permanent head-stones.

CAN INSCRIBE TONES

Next-of-kin of those buried at Alamein are allowed to put a three-line inscription on the headstone which bears the unit badge, name, rank and date of death.

Work now is about to start on the main feature of the cemetery: a series of cloisters at the entrance as memorials to the thousands listed as missing in the western desert.

The rear or southern end of the cemetery will be dominated by a 70-foot cross, visible for many miles.

About 1,000 persons, many of them relatives of the dead, visit the Alamein cemetery each year.

Responsibility for the construction and care of the cemetery at Alamein is vested in the eastern district of the British Imperial War Graves Commission. The district looks after 275 cemeteries in North and East Africa, in Turkey, Cyprus, Palestine and the Middle East.

Expect Eisenhower Guns To Be Turned On Truman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower whistlestops into New England today with campaign guns expected to be trained on President Truman again rather than Governor Adlai E. Stevenson — both primed for whistle-stops of their own tomorrow.

President Truman returned to the White House Sunday from a three-day jaunt through New England and New York. He boards his special campaign train late tonight for another three-day whirl through New Jersey, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland.

Stevenson and his aides put the finishing touches at Springfield, Ill., to preparations for a 12-state tour, including 30 appearances in New York State, which begins tomorrow.

Eisenhower's headquarters indicated he may reply, during the New England tour, to President Truman's criticism of the general on immigration policies.

The criticism was in a speech read by Truman Friday in which he said Eisenhower, by endorsing some Republican senators who had voted for the McCarran immigration bill, showed he was willing to embrace Nazi practices to become president. The bill specifies varying immigration quotas for various countries.

This touched off a swelling controversy over racial and religious issues. On Eisenhower's side were some Republican party leaders, a leading Jewish rabbi and financier Bernard Baruch. A Democratic congressman and another Jewish leader spoke out for Truman.

DEPLORE USING CASE

Supporters of Stevenson, meanwhile, deplored the use of the Alger Hiss case in the campaign. They said Eisenhower is "more vulnerable" on the issue than Stevenson but added: "Criticism in neither case is fair nor warranted."

Their statement referred to Republican criticism that Stevenson had signed a deposition saying that as far as he knew, Hiss' reputation was good. Hiss, a former State Department employee, was convicted of lying when he said he did not pass State Department secrets to a Communist agent.

They said Eisenhower was a member of the board of trustees of the Carnegie endowment for international peace in 1948 when the board declined Hiss' proferred resignation as its president. They said the board voted Hiss three months leave with full pay while he defended himself against charges questioning his loyalty.

The statement said Eisenhower never publicly expressed disapproval of that action. The general's backers have said he did not participate in it.

Family Goes To Picnic Before Taking Poison

TOKYO (AP) — Mrs. Yoshi Nakajima and her four children put on their best clothes yesterday and went on a picnic.

Police found the bodies of the mother and the four children prone on the ground. Nearby was a bottle containing syrup and poison. In Mrs. Nakajima's purse police found 50 yen (15 cents) and a dozen pawn tickets.

Police deduced that Mrs. Nakajima, separated from her husband and facing overwhelming economic odds, had wanted her children to have a happy holiday before taking their lives—and her own.

Most Of Western Europe Staging Business Comeback

LONDON (AP) — Business in most of Western Europe is staging a quiet comeback after slight slumps earlier this year, an Associated Press survey indicates.

Only in France are there real signs of a possible depression. Elsewhere, economic experts say business activity levelled off or turned upward in recent months.

Huge spending for rearmament in Western Europe, with the United States picking up much of the bill, is a chief factor in the better business outlook. If and when it stops, however, a reassessment of the situation may be in order.

The AP survey reached both private business and government sources in each country. They reported production and employment have been bolstered by American orders for $683,000,000 worth of arms and other military equipment.

The country-by-country survey turned up these other conomic signs in Western Europe:

1. Most business trends still follow those of the U.S. As long as American business continues good, Europe will be founded.

2. Government anti-inflation measures in Britain and some other countries have checked any inflationary business "booms."

3. In many countries output of many goods has reached the level of demand for the first time since the war.

As for the future outlook, most European business experts believe business will remain good or even get better. But they're not overly optimistic.

Daniel D. Buck

resident of Asphodel township, was held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. from the McConnell-Warner funeral home, Peterboro Street, Norwood, with the Rev. W. J. Bingham of Norwood Baptist Church assisted by Rev. E. Johnston of Norwood Pentecostal Assembly officiating. Burial was in Norwod cemetery.

Mr. Buck died Thursday following a lingering illness. He was born in Asphodel township 77 years ago, a son of the late Thomas Buck and Esther McMillan. He is survived by two brothers, George and Edgar both of Norwood.

Pallbearers were Erlin Buck, William Cowell, Bert Buck, Bert McNeely, N. S. Rogers and Roy Nevins.

HOBART, Tasmania (Reuters)—The next president of the United States should be invited as an observer to the Commonwealth economic conference in London, Tasmanian Premier Robert Cosgrove said last night. The London conference is due to begin about three weeks after the U.S. presidential elections. "As senior partner in the free world, America ranks as a member of the British Commonwealth in everything but name," Cosgrove said in a radio broadcast in this Australian state."

Cram Too Many Facts Into Curriculum Pupils Don't Think, Teacher

TORONTO.—After a searching look at what they teach and how they teach it, a group of Ontario educators agreed Saturday there is room for considerable improvement.

In a group discussion at the Ontario Association for Curriculum Development, they came to the conclusion that they may be throwing too many bare facts at their pupils without making them think enough.

"I have felt for some time," said J. S. Calvert of Forest Hill Collegiate, "that there has been an attempt to turn students into walking encyclopedias. There are many things a child should be learning which are not in the course. He's faced with an enormous body of facts he must store upstairs."

Other teachers agreed there is deadwood in the curriculum, and other material should be there which isn't.

A Grade 4 teacher said he had discussed the curriculum with members of his class and he interpreted their views as meaning they had to spend too much time memorizing facts and not enough time learning to think.

"I'm afraid we're stressing quantity rather than quality," said Phyllis Morgan of North Bay. "We're concerned with the amount of ground covered, rather than how we cover it."

THINGS PREDIGESTED

Lauretta Leveque of Ottawa said much of the trouble is that everything is predigested for the students.

"All they have to do is swallow it," she said. "They don't have to know where to go to get information for themselves. Everything is handed to them by the teachers."

Another teacher wondered if teachers were forced to adopt such methods because their rating as teachers depended on examination results.

The teachers criticized the recognized tendency to turn to the methods of the United States, which, they agreed, were too materialistic. They thought Canadian teachers should stand on their own feet, although one said the United Kingdom still had a lot to teach them.

A university professor said there is a feeling among teenagers that they shouldn't excel at anything, except perhaps athletics. There is a feeling that they should just get by.

"The presence of N.H.L. scouts and football coaches around high schools doesn't help combat that idea," a teacher said.

As a start on remedying the ills, the teachers decided it was necessary to develop a sense of responsibility on the part of the pupils. One method suggested was patterned after the Forest Hill project, in which pupils frankly discussed problems with each other.

The teachers agreed too, that there should be strict checking of English on their part, particularly in the lower grades. They concluded every teacher should be a teacher of good English.

NEED COMPETITION

R. P. McDonald, North Toronto Collegiate teacher, said the idea of no competition among pupils was obnoxious.

"If the pupil doesn't get any in class, he'll come down with a big bump in the cold, hard world where everything is competitive."

Mr. Beattie countered that competition was important but it should be kept in its proper perspective, and should not become a hindrance. Even if a child was not told where he stood in relation to his classmates, he usually knew.

The Department of Education favors the idea of children taking part in lessons and class work, Mr. Beattie said. In the first place it was good teaching technique—the children learned better—and it might be a factor in influencing some of them to become teachers.

The panel discussed different methods with which they were familiar of bringing about this participation. W. D. E. Matthews, of London, said when there are new Canadians in the class, other pupils help them with their lessons, especially English. The children doing this informal teaching have to know the lesson well themselves.

Mr. MacDonald said when a teacher wants to ask a difficult question, he asks it of a bright pupil who, by his answer, interprets a difficult point to the class.

Isaac Cutler, of Barrie, said he has pupils answer questions in mathematics and when one makes a mistake the others correct it. Several teachers mentioned that they have students teach short lessons, after warning them in advance and giving them time to bone up on the subject.

U.K. Playwright John Allen Will Adjudicate

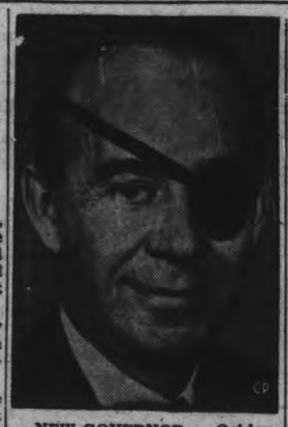
OTTAWA (CP). — John Allen, United Kingdom actor, stage manager, and playwright, will adjudicate Canada's 13 regional drama festivals to be held next winter.

This was announced Saturday by Richard MacDonald, Dominion Drama Festival executive secretary-treasurer.

The 40-year-old London stage veteran, who began his career at the famous Old Vic, will open the strenuous 10-week adjudication tour in Ottawa January 12, then swing east to Quebec and the Maritimes, west to the Prairies and Pacific Coast, and finally end the tour at St. John's, Nfld., on March 26.

Currently with the B.B.C., Mr. Allen has gained international theatre experience through the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. However, this will be his first visit to Canada and his first opportunity to study the stature of Canada's amateur theatre movement.

His only break with the theatre was during the Second World War when, for five years, he served as engineer lieutenant with the Royal Navy.



His particular interest is in young actors. Son of a one-time British drama critic for the Christian Science Monitor newspaper, he has acted and managed in scores of British theatre companies and even organized a company of his own for stage fledglings.

NEW GOVERNOR — Oakley Hedley Dalgleish editor-in-chief and assistant publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail, has been appointed to the board of governors of the University of Toronto. Born in New Liskeard in 1910 he worked with newspapers in Vancouver, Edmonton and Regina before going to England in 1930. There he was roving correspondent for the Sifton group of newspapers and worked with several English papers. He joined staff of the old Toronto Globe in 1935. He was with the Dominion Bureau of Information shortly after the outbreak of the Second World War, later rejoining The Globe and Mail. He was made editor-in-chief in 1948 and was appointed assistant publisher following death of publisher George McCullagh in 1952.

Jury Decides Meek Is Sane

CORNWALL (CP)—The trial of Elias Meek, charged with the murder of Mrs. Dollie Alguire at her farm home a year ago, resumes today following a special jury's decision that Meek is mentally fit to stand trial.

Chief Justice J.C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court halted Meek's second trial on the charge late Friday. He ordered a special jury to decide whether Meek, 21, is fit to stand trial.

The jury decided late Saturday after a 40-minute hearing that Meek is sane. Three doctors testified that the young farmhand suffers from a split personality while two others said he is sane.

Meek previously was convicted of the fatal stabbing of the 28-year-old wife of his employer Sept. 29, 1951. His appeal that the trial jury was misdirected was upheld and a new trial ordered.

Dean Doesn't Believe In Testing Children

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. E. T. McSwain, dean of the school of education, Northwestern University, Chicago, said Saturday that to test, report on and divide children into ability groups is to damage them for life.

He told the Canadian Association for Childhood Education that children know when they are in a slow group.

"They know what the D on a report card means. And the knowledge does irreparable damage to their personality and ego.

"A test measures the teacher, not the pupil. It shows what the teacher thinks is important and your mark is only your opinion of the pupil," he said.

Film Industry Opens Case For TV Service

WASHINGTON (AP)—The motion picture industry, kept waiting in an ante-room for three years, today opens its case for a separate and distinct theatre television service.

The proposed service is designed to add new entertainment to local movie-house fare, and perhaps woo some TV-stay-at-homes back into the theatres.

The project was first presented to the Federal communications Commission in 1949 but the F.C.C. put it on the shelf until it could complete its program of allotting additional channels for home television, and start home video on the expansion which now is well under way.

THEATRE AIM

The theatre-TV hearing opening today before the commission has its objective a specific reservation of about 400 megacycles of broadcasting spectrum space, located outside the range of home receivers and dedicated solely to the use of the motion picture industry.

The industry has never fully disclosed its plans for use of its requested exclusive channels. However, some hints have been dropped as to the projected operations. These would include such things as Broadway first-nights, viewed by a paid audience of millions, instead of just a few hundred, and Hollywood premieres.

The specific plan of operations is being saved for presentation at a second phase of the hearings, now scheduled for next January.

Cardinal Criticizes British Newspapers

LONDON (Reuters) — Bernard Cardinal Griffin, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster, yesterday criticized some British Sunday newspapers for what he termed their disregard for public morality and decency.

Most newspapers devote less than a quarter of their space to news and sport, Cardinal Griffin said in a sermon.

"The rest of the space is frequently devoted to items of such sordid and unpleasant nature that no decent man or woman should wish to have this material in his home," he said.

Avoid Errors Of 'Rookie' Home Owners

Readers who have recently purchased new homes, and to whom such a move is a new experience, know by now some of the pitfalls and headaches that accompany home ownership. They know the joys, too, but the problems are what interest us here.

So we'll pass along some of the knowledge they have gained to other rookie home owners in a general round-up of a few of the most common pitfalls, both major and minor.

Asphalt tile floors can be a problem if the following directions aren't followed to the letter.

Don't use excessive amounts of water or wax on asphalt tile until the tile is thoroughly sealed and until the adhesive is set. This takes about two weeks after installation.

Don't clean asphalt tile with gasoline, benzine, naphtha, turpentine or organic solvents. Organic solvents may soften the material and cause discoloration.

Don't expose asphalt tile to oils, greases and solvent waxes, such as paste wax. Don't use oily soaps or cleaners on asphalt tile floors. Don't use waxes containing turpentine, naphtha or similar solvents. Don't use sweeping compounds containing oils, sand or chemicals.

Don't apply wax over a dirty floor. Don't apply varnish, lacquer or shellac—they contain ingredients injurious to asphalt tile and will eventually cause unsightly traffic lanes. Be sure to use only a water base wax.

The roof of a new home should last for many years, though it may develop leaks at first. Have the builder attend to leaks promptly.

A common mistake owners make is in failing to clear gutters and downspouts of tree limbs and leaves before winter. These stop the downspouts from functioning, cause water to back up and flood the roof, and necessitate costly repairs.

Careless installation of television antennae will often cause roof leaks. Exercise care not to damage the roof while walking on it.

As the earth around a new home settles it may result in depressions where there has been a trench near the foundation. These places must be kept filled with dirt so that water won't colect in them and cause dampness in the basement.

IMPROPER MAINTENANCE of asphalt tile floors and gutters or downspouts are two common pitfalls of inexperienced home owners.

The walls, woodwork and floors of new homes are decorated with good paint products, and should give long service if properly cared for.

Before washing walls or woodwork and other painted surfaces, consult a recognized paint, hardware or department store dealer for correct cleaning compounds. It is best not to use water to clean hardwood floors.

The best advice would seem to be: when in doubt about any problem, consult an authority or your builder.

Helping With Homework Education For Parents

TORONTO — A teacher from North Toronto Collegiate said Saturday he doesn't mind if parents help his pupils with their homework.

R. P. McDonald told a group meeting of the Ontario Association for Curriculum Development that it was one way of educating the parents and it gives them better insight and understanding into the problems of their child.

Another teacher had commented previously that most teachers know that half the time the students didn't do the homework themselves. Some came in a few minutes early in the morning to copy from other students and others got help from their parents.

"Whatever way they do it, they try to pass it off as their own," he said. "They feel they're putting it over on the teacher.

He agreed it was no worse than parents who write a note saying Johnny was absent because he was sick when the child was away for some other reason.

A secondary school principal agreed that parents do help out with homework. He said if a teacher is in one place long enough he finds that parents still make the same mistakes as they did when they were pupils.

DOROTHY DIX

Trial Separations Foolish Experiments

DEAR MISS DIX: Bill and I have gone with each other for two years. During the past six months, we have talked of marriage and have decided to wait until we are both 21, which will be in two years. Our parents approve—or did, until my Dad suddenly asked me to measure my love for Bill.

I told him a thing like that couldn't be measured. He said it could, by a year's separation during which we would have no communication with each other. I pointed out the fact that since we live in the same neighborhood—2 miles apart, in fact—it would be rather difficult. Dad said we could manage to keep apart, nevertheless.

I'm not afraid of Bill's love, or mine, fading, but am worried because this seems such a difficult thing to be forced to do. V.B.

ANSWER: Your father is very foolish, to put it mildly, to force this "test" separation. Since you and Bill were planning to forego marriage for another two years, and have quite evidently matured beyond the impetuosity of adolescence, you seem quite capable of managing your own affairs. The two-year waiting period should be sufficient test of your affections.

PROJECT MAY BACKFIRE

Experimenting with love is a dangerous thing, and has an unhappy faculty of backfiring with results that are ofttimes tragic. Your Dad's efforts to manoeuvre your lives into the grooves he selects may be well intentioned but they are woefully ill directed. The emotional strain of being held incommunicado from someone you are bound to see in the normal course of a day's events, and being forced to meet new men just to satisfy your father's theories, would be enough to break any spirit.

Bill, of course, being male and possessed of less patience than you, is more vulnerable. Regardless of how much he loves you, loneliness is a most difficult condition to fight.

You are both placed in a position where, lacking the security of a loved one's presence, you are open to the temptation of other dates, with a consequent, and unjustified, mutual loss of confidence.

Of course, it is highly probable that since you are both young people of high principle, sincerely in love and determined to do the right thing, you will get through the year without undue stress. After all, a year is a relatively short period.

To prove something that apparently is already well established, namely, the fact that you and Bill love each other, Dad is taking rather an unnecessary risk with his theories.

A strong-minded parent is a most difficult person to convince, but I do hope that some persuasion can be used to convince your father that he is wrong.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: About two months ago my husband stopped giving me his pay check. He doesn't like my folks and says that until I give them up completely he won't give ma any more money. We have three children.

S. T. R.

ANSWER: See the Family Court in your city. Your husband cannot stop supporting his family simply because he doesn't care for his in-laws.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: After going with me for two years, my boy friend has suddenly decided he wants to go with a variety of girls—some nice, and some not so nice. Are these ideals normal for a boy of 16, or do you think it is an excuse to ged rid of me?

J. M.

ANSWER: What constitutes normalcy in an adolescent boy? Volumes would probably be required to cover all the facts of such a question. In your friend's case, he has probably acquired some older and bolder friends who have given him ideas too advanced for his years. I'll warrant if his family hears of them, speedy measures will be taken to quell the young man's independence. Don't be hesitant to let him see your disapproval of his friends, and let him know that, if he keeps questionable company, you will have nothing more to do with him.

Student Nurses Receive Caps On Enrolment

TORONTO (CP)—Students ow enrolling in the 1955 class at Toronto General Hospital's school of nursing will miss the traditional capping service.

Under a new plan they receive their caps on enrolment. Formerly nurses were given their caps only on completion of pre-clinical training, several months from the start.

Mary Macfarland, superintendent of nurses, said the school regards the change as a progressive step.

"Formerly a great deal of effort was put into the first few months with an inclination on the part of some to let down a bit after they received their caps," she said.

"From now on the students will be expected to progress steadily from the start of the course until graduation."

Nor has he travelled far,
He has entered God's lovely garden
And left the gates ajar.

Oh, Golden Anniversary;
A golden chance Divine
To praise and thank our Saviour
For the blessings He made thine.

He knew your every problem;
He hears you when you pray,
And all His love and mercy
He shares in His own way.

He loves His Blessed Mother;
He asks you love Her too;
This Mother love is Heaven sent
From God to all of you.

Oh Golden Anniversary,
A work of God's own hand;
Unite us in His Holy Name
To live as He has planned.

European Army Dispute Delays Approval

By PRESTON GROVER

PARIS (AP) — A new and blazing controversy over the European Army plan has increased the prospect of a long ratification battle in the French National Assembly.

Foreign observers also consider it likely that the ruckus will improve France's bargaining position for the kind of guarantees she long has wanted from Britain and the United States against a resurgent Germany.

Premier Antoine Pinay told newspapermen last night in his home town of St. Chamond that the government "will maintain its initial position firmly" in support of ratification of the treaty.

That was an expected declaration since he was the premier when France signed the treaty last May. The signing committed his government, along with the other five, to try to get it ratified by parliament.

Besides France, other countries in the European Army plan are Belgium, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, West Germany and Italy.

However, Pinay last night added: attentively to all counsels of care and producence."

SUDDEN STORM

The sudden storm over the treaty was touched off last week by Edouard Herriot, president of the National Assembly and one of France's senior statesmen.

Herriot said he was worried particularly about treaty provisions he said permitted Germany to build up a police force of army calibre without the same limitations that were imposed on the German Army itself, and restraints placed on movement of French troops that might be needed to defend France's empire.

Pinay sought to silence at least the worries over creation of a German fighting force too large for France to match.

"The government stands in favor of the European Defence Community and will defend this position. I have nothing to change in that. This position, just as that taken later by the Parliament, excluded all ideas of reconstruction of a German Wehrmacht such as we have known."

Herriot and many other Frenchmen want Britain to be in the defence community to help France offset any German menace. An editorial in the London Daily Mail said if ratification "cannot be achieved without direct participation (of Britain), is there not a call for a revision of the British attitude?"

INSISTED ON PACT

At French insistence, both Britain and the United States signed a joint pact with the six members of the defence community committing themselves to look upon any wayward action by Germany as a threat to themselves.

The rising resistance to ratification might force the government to demand new and stronger guarantees from Britain and the U.S.

Despite Herriot's attack on the treaty, the convention of the Radical Socialist party he heads voted in favor of ratification with some possible modifications.

The Union of Democratic and Socialist Resistants, headed by War Minister Rene Pleven, original sponsor of the European Army plan, also urged ratification.

Red Maples Don't Stay Red, Says Gardener

TORONTO—City officials and tree fanciers who are looking for a red maple with leaves which stay red are barking up the wrong tree according to F. Every of Roseleaf Gardens. Mr. Every, quick to emphasize that he isn't an expert, has been planting and caring for red maples on his street for 20 years.

"There isn't a maple with a leaf that stays red," he said. "The leaves on our trees are red for as long as six weeks in the spring just after they bud but they turn copper green and stay that way until they wither and die."

He said the trees he has planted as a hobby are red maples budded onto Norway maple roots and are the type best suited to Toronto. They are obtained through a Beamsville firm. Mr. Every also asserted that the suggestion that red maples could be obtained from Ontario farmers was wrong since red maples don't grow wild in this province.

Depending on size, his red maple trees are relatively expensive, an eight-foot trees costing $7.

Mrs. W H. Connell

OMEMEE (ENS).—The funeral of Mrs. William H. Connell, formerly Margaret Emmaline Balfour, was held today at 2.30 p.m. in Omemee Trinity United Church following a private service at the home of her son Irvine of Emily township. Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt conducted both services.

Mrs. CcConell, 85, was born in South Emily, a daughter of the late William and Margaret Balfour.

After her marriage in 1901, she and her late husband farmed where their son now lives, until their retirement in 1929. Soon after her husband's death in 1951, Mrs. Connell received an injury from a fall, from which she never fully recovered. She was nursed in the home of her daughter Mrs. Orril Grandy of Manvers township until recently, when she was removed to St. Joseph's hospital where she died Saturday.

She was a member of Omemee United Church where she was active in the Woman's Missionary

She leaves one son Irvine and one daughter Mrs. Grandy (Marjorie), five grandchildren: Donald and Ruth Grandy of Peterborough, Morley and Dorothy Connell of Peterborough and Elven Connell at home; and a grandson Bobby Grandy. Also she is survived by one sister Mrs. Richard Poast (Elizabeth), of Omemee. Two sisters, Mrs. James Seymour and Mrs. Robert Bannon, and three brothers, David, William and Robert predeceased her.

The pallbearers were William, Carman and Robert Seymour, Melville Lathangue, Donald Grandy and Morley Connell. Burial was in Emily cemetery.

Scientific Study Of Human Behavior

Guest speaker at the Y.M.C.A. Friday Night Club last meeting was Mr. Norman Howe. He told 25 members in the Y.M.C.A. Friday that "understanding, predicting and controlling human behavior is one of the greatest assets any man can have." In his address titled "Psychology and the Behavior of Man," Mr. Rowe outlined the scientific study of human behavior and emotions. He was introduced by Alan Northcott and thanked by Bill King.

List US Communist Party As Soviet Union Puppet

WASHINGTON (AP) — A two-member panel of the United States subversive activities control board, which listened to more than 14 months of testimony, today called the American Communist party "a puppet of the Soviet Union."

"Nurtured by the Soviet Union," the panel report said, the party "strives incessantly to make the United States a Soviet America."

The panel recommended that the party be required to register with the attorney-general as Moscow-dominated, list its officers and members, and give a financial accounting.

MUST REGISTER

This marked the first step in a "you-must-register" drive directed against the American Communist party. It was taken under the Internal Security Act of 1950, which requires that all "Communist front" and "Communist action" organizations register with the U.S. government.

The Communists claim the party is not subversive; the Justice Department says it is. Party lawyers challenged the constitutionality of the act.

The two-members panel made up of board chairman Peter Campbell and Dr. Kathryn McHale, listened to pro-and-con testimony before issuing their report and recommendations today to the full board, which has four members.

The act provides severe penalties. Failure to comply with a registration order carries a $10,000 fine for the organization and the same fine plus five years' imprisonment for individuals.

Urge Commission Approve Power Plant Application

WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Joint Commission was urged today to give prompt approval to applications by the United States and Canada that would pave the way for construction of a big St. Lawrence River power plant.

Speedy, favorable action was asked by the Great Lakes - St. Lawrence Association in a statement submitted to the commission at the last of six hearings it is holding on the applications, filed jointly by the two countries.

N.R. Danielian, executive vice-president of the association, said in his prepared statement:

"In view of the years and years that have been devoted to study of the St. Lawrence River development, both navigation and power, no one can successfully argue now that the approval of the applications before the commission would be hasty or ill-considered."

The commission, which regulates the use of boundary waters between Canada and the United States, must give its permission before actual construction can be authorized.

NEED F.P.C. APPROVAL

Such later approval must come from the appropriate government agency — which in the United States is the Federal Power Commission.

New York State, on the assumption that the international commission will act favorably on the application referred to it by the two governments, has applied to the power commission for a licence to construct the American half of the estimated $400,000,000 project.

If New York is designated as the U.S. partner in the venture, it will join with the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario in the construction. The Ontario commission, an agency of the provincial government, has already been named as the Canadian partner.

Engineers estimate that the project, favored by President Truman, will yield more than 13,000,000,000 kilowatt-hours of energy a year. The output would be divided equally between the two countries.

The dam is proposed to be built between Massena, N.Y., and Cornwall, Ont.

Bolton Named Vice-President

R. J. Bolton, principal at the Prince of Wales Public School, was elected Saturday vice-president of the Ontario Association for Curriculum Development.

Miss Eileen McGonigle of Humberside Collegiate was returned as president at the meeting in Toronto. Others elected were Miss Gertrude Bergey of London, secretary, and Miss Nora Hodgins of Toronto, treasurer.

L. S. Beattie, superintendent of secondary education for Ontario, told the association that from 30 to 40 per cent of the pupils in elementary school should be able to finish the course in seven years. He added that it was a waste of the taxpayers' money to keep pupils in elementary school for eight years if they can do it in seven.

AGE 13 TO COLLEGIATE

Mr. Beattie said that the elementary course should never be less than seven years and no child should go to secondary scohol before he reaches the age of 13. He revealed that 40 per cent of the students in Grade 13 are 19 years or older.

Under the Porter Plan scheme of grouping now being adopted gradually, it is much simpler to "skip" a grade than under the traditional eight-grade system.

The first three grades are lumped into one integrated division, with rigid barriers abolished, and the next three grades are handled similarly. The children proceed at their own rate of learning, and a child who learns rapidly can complete a division in two years.

Church Observes Rowland Day

"Rowland Day" was observed in the George St. United Church on Sunday and a high tribute to the assistant minister, the Rev. E. W. Rowland, was in the very large attendance at morning and evening services. Mr. Rowland preached in the morning on the subject "Triumphant Living."

At the evening service, with the church again filled, there was shown a new Protestant film, "Wings to the Word" which pictures the Bible being delivered by plane in Brazil.

Mr. Rowland was the guest of honor at the fireside meeting afterward when the Rev. N. Cole, of Hastings, chairman of the Presbytery, extended greetings and good wishes, and Mr. E. L. Sackville spoke on behalf of the official board and congregation of George St. Church. The Rev. C. G. Boyd brought felicitations from the Ministerial Association.

A sing-song of the less familiar hymns in the hymnary was led by Mr. Quirt McKinney. Mrs. James Goldie sang two delightful solos.

Refreshments were served by the Women's Association.

Oil Slick Samples Analyzed By Gov't

TORONTO (CP) — Oil slick samples found in the French River district of Northern Ontario will be analyzed here by government chemists, Mines Minister Kelly said today.

The seven samples, taken from the property of Col. Roy Nelson, were said by some Mines Department officials to indicate "a good possibility" of an oil bonanza for Northern Ontario.

Mr. Kelly, however, was noncommittal.

"It would be premature to say that oil has been found on Col. Nelson's property, but samples have been taken and will be analyzed," he said.

An official said geologists contend the "oil belt" runs from the Arctic Circle to Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Northern Ontario.

Farmers in the area claim they have seen oil slicks on swampy land.

Crocodiles Posing New Threat To Herds

DARWIN, Australia (reuters) — Seeking escape from the worst drought in Northern Australian history, thousands of crocodiles are crawling south from coastal areas in search of fresh waterholes.

They pose a new threat to ranchers whose herds are dying off from lack of water. Posses have been sent out to hunt down and kill them before they get at the cattle and buffalo roaming the plains.

The crocodiles found in Northern Australia are the largest type known. They sometimes reach 30 feet in length.

The drought is affecting about 750,000 square miles — about one-fifth of the continent. Approximately 4,000,000 cattle graze in this area and some cattle stations have lost as much as 50 per cent of their herds.

Former Worker Plans To Sue City Of Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—G. P. Gordon, Ottawa's retired finance commissioner, plans to sue the city for $6,362, claiming the amount is due him from the handling of land sales and tax certificates while in office.

A writ on Mr. Gordon's behalf has been prepared and it was reported that it will be issued today.

Mr. Gordon claims that some years ago the city solicitor was of the opinion that the city's finance commissioner had the right to retain the proceeds from charges for tax certificates and land sales.

For some time before he retired in 1951, Mr. Gordon said he had allowed his charges to accumulate so that they would be available to him on retirement.

The board of control at the direction of Mayor Charlotte Whitton refused Mr. Gordon's claim for payment.

ARTHRITIC PAIN
Almost Unbearable

"My husband is a carpenter on the railway," writes Mrs. Jack Taylor, St. Catharines, Ont. "One morning he went to work and found he could not climb the ladder to do his work. Women In French Spotlight In Seven Major Crimes

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS (NEA)—Lovers of sensation who haunt the courts have a marathon of crime in store for them in Paris this fall.

At least seven "causes celebre" are scheduled for hearing in the High Court of Justices. All involve women — five of them charged with murder—and all involve motives which run the scale of human emotions from love and hate to jealousy and greed.

Most sinister and unattractive of the defendants, as well as the most famous, is Marie (Arsenic & Old Lace) Besnard, a woman in her late 50's who looks like so many obscure provincial Frenchwomen you can see any day in the shadowy aisles of a parish church.

She will be making her second appearance in court to explain the death of 12 persons from arsenic and poisoning. Among these victims were her two husbands, a father-in-law, sisters-in-law, a few friends and persons to whom she had rented houses.

At her first trial last February, the prosecuter charged that love of money was Marie's motive, since she had benefited by each of the deaths. But the defense counsel deadlocked the case by proving the laboratory tests to determine the presence of arsenic in the assorted corpses had been conducted haphazardly.

"CRIME PASSIONNEL"

Pauline Debuisson is a "crime passionnel" heroine. At the Lille medical school she fell in love with a fellow student, Felix Bailly. They lived as man and wife until Felix came to Paris to complete his studies. Paris is a big city where pretty girls abound. Felix soon forgot Pauline.

Not Pauline. When her letters remained unanswered she came to Paris, and found her lover engaged to another girl. When he refused to break the engagement Pauline pulled out a revolver, fired three shots and killed Felix. When she tried to kill herself, the revolver jammed.

Shy and retiring Yvonne Chevallier killed her husband because she was jealous of his political career. When Pierre Chevallier was appointed secretary of state to the Ministry of Youth and Sports, a big step up from deputy mayor of Orleans, Yvonne staged a violent scene and begged him not to accept. He refused, so she shot him.

Forty-two-year-old Renee Garreau's story is that of a woman who couldn't bear to lose her young lover.

Married to a major on the military headquarters staff in Paris, she fell in love with Jean Deleu, who was just about half her age and her husband's chauffeur. After several stormy years Jean Deleu tired of his mistress and tried to break away. She killed him.

Marie Poupard, another middle-aged woman, is a Parisian socialite whose name appeared often on the social pages. Now it appears in court reports, all because of a mysterious will.

CHARGE FORGERY

The wife of a prominent lawyer, Marie came up with a will naming her sole heir to the $11,000 fortune of an elderly uncle. Her brother and sister promptly charged the will was forged.

The case took a sensational turn when two of the examining magistratest suddenly resigned. Then an ex-president of the "Court of Accounts," a close friend of Marie's was suspended until the date of his retirement. Arrested by the new judge, she managed to obtain provisional liberty.

The saga of Sylvie Paul is a more violent one, dating back to 1940 when she met an older woman, Jeanne Perron, in prison.

Jeanne owned a shady hotel in a low quarter of Paris, catering mostly to North Africans. When Sylvie finished her prison term she went to the hotel to live and became the mistress of a certain Abdallah.

Find that Sylvie was about to have a child, Jeanne flew into a violent rage. There were frequent quarrels. During one of them Sylvie killed her friend and, with

BIRTH IN JAIL

She then flew to North Africa where she was eventually located and arrested. Now in prison, she has given birth to a baby girl of whom she is said to be passionately fond.

✧ ✧ ✧

The case of Irene Recyo-Portas is an aftermath of the German occupation. When liberation came, "gorgeous Irene" was charged by several Jewish friends with selling objects of art which they had left in her safekeeping.

Granted provisional liberty, the glamorous adventuress escaped to Cuba. From there she went to Texas and Mexico, where she was able to spend the remainder of her spoils sent to her although they had been placed under seal.

Last September, an extradition order was obtained and Irene was arrested at Orly airfield after a flight from Mexico. Jailed under sentences of one to four years imprisonment and five years hard labor, she has filed an appeal.

Stoker Missing Sewage Disposal Plant Closed

LINDSAY — Lindsay's sewage disposal plant has now been shut down for more than two weeks, halted by the lack of an oil stoker for the burner.

Originally the plant stopped operations Oct. 3 when a boiler broke down for the second time this year. Probable cause of this was a power failure, which automatically shuts off pumps feeding the boiler.

Another cause of trouble, originally laid at the door of a blanket mill, has been the amount of solids skimmed off the surface of the liquid in the digester tank. This was first said to be mostly wool from the blanket firm.

Recently it was discovered to be only about six or seven per cent fibres that would partly come from the blanket company. Remainder of it is such sheddings as human hair, cattle hair, sheep's wool and wool fibres, hog bristles and so on.

The percentage that would have come partly from the blanket firm would have been augmented by fibres from other textile plants; there are three in the town.

Gen. Dwight Eisenhower is the Republican nominee.

Canada's Road Expansion Said Lagging Too Much

QUEBEC (CP) — The Canadian Good Roads Convention was told today that in spite of current highway-building programs, expansion of highway facilities in Canada is lagging and is menacing continued development of the country's economy and defence.

President William A. Wecker of General Motors of Canada said that because of Canada's dependence on automotive transport, roads and highways should no longer be purely the concern of municipal and municipal councils.

"Try to imagine how many of the fatal accidents which crowd the front page of our Monday morning papers resulted from outdated highways with their level intersections and concealed approaches. Add to the cost of such highway mishaps the price we pay for delays due to congestion. The cost of our inadequate roads then becomes almost beyond calculation. . .

"At the end of the war we felt that any prediction of 3,000,000 vehicles in Canada by 1955 would not

He suggested a voluntary form of co-operation between these bodies and the federal government. A rational highway-building policy should be framed on national, not regional, needs.

He said:

"We are looking ahead to 1960 and later, and there is danger of being wrong, as we were before. Some economists believe there will be 4,500,000 motor vehicles registered in Canada by 1960. I think the estimate is conservative. . ."

English Horse Wilwyn Wins Exciting Laurel Park Race

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Wilwyn, a strapping brown invader from England, won his 11th consecutive and most important victory Saturday as he defeated six rivals from four countries in the inaugural running of the $50,000 Washington International at Laurel Park race course.

In last place was Indian Hemp, an Irish-bred owned by Max Bell, Calgary publisher.

It was one of the most exciting races ever seen in Maryland and a history-making event that assures a continuance of such international affairs in years to come. In addition, the British horse set a course record on the turf.

Wilwyn, ridden by Manny Mercer of England, drew tremendous cheers from a record Laurel crowd of 26,014 as he drove home under a lashing effort in the final eighth of a mile to defeat the American Ruhe by 1¾ lengths.

GETS SECOND MONEY

Ruhe, from the Hasty House Farms of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Reuben, Toledo, O., got second money by half a length over George Rolls' Zucchero from England. Zucchero was a neck in front of the German entry, Baron Henry Thyssen's Niederlander, in the field of seven.

The Brookmeade Stable's Greek Ship, the American horse that was made a 6-to-5 favorite with Eddie Arcaro riding, ran a poor race and finished sixth after leading part of the way. Pilaster, owned by Mrs. H.L. Straus of Maryland, was fifth.

"It was a good trip all the way," said jockey Mercer to owner Robert Boucher, prosperous 50-year-old fruit and hop farmer from Kent, England.

The time for the 1½-mile race was 2:30 4-5, compared with the course record of 2:36 made last October by Thiercelin.

The winner, netting $32,500, returned $15, $7.20 and $5.20. Ruhe was $6.20 and $5.40 to place, and Zucchero $5.80 to show.

Canada Invests Two Billions In Building Up Air Arm

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada is investing about $2,000,000,000 between 1951 and 1954 to make airpower the cornerstone of her defence.

The emphasis of rearmament is being placed on the fighter arm of the R.C.A.F. in a way not matched by any other country.

Fighters will be Canada's No. 1 contribution to Atlantic Pact strength in western Europe. They will also be primarily responsible for home defence.

This trend began to emerge four or five years ago but it was not until war started in Korea that it took form.

VARIETY OF CAUSES

Behind it is a web of causes, going back to the fighting record of Billy Bishop and his Canadian flying mates in the First World War and their successors — the Beurlings, McNairs and Chadburns —in the second.

Canada's space with its invitation to aviation, her air-training background, her inability to finance bomber fleets, the aptitude for flying in her youth—all these things have helped produce the emphasis on fighters.

The R.C.A.F. is only partly trained for major war, particularly at home, but it is getting stronger daily. For several years the government has been spending as much on the air force as on the other two services combined.

By late 1953, air officials say, air defence will be as good as possible under the present scale of mobilization—41 regular and reserve squadrons by 1954.

RADAR NETWORK

The key to Canadian defence will be a chain of radar stations, fighter squadrons, anti-aircraft units, volunteer ground observers and communications. The main link is the radar network being built in semi-northern sections to guard vital defence and industrial areas. The locations are secret, but it can be said there is no all-embracing Arctic radar chain.

The radar stations will spot enemy planes and direct the fight against them under over-all control of an Air Defence Command headquarters. A few stations are in opertion and more are being built. The first United States radar men are expected soon in Canada.

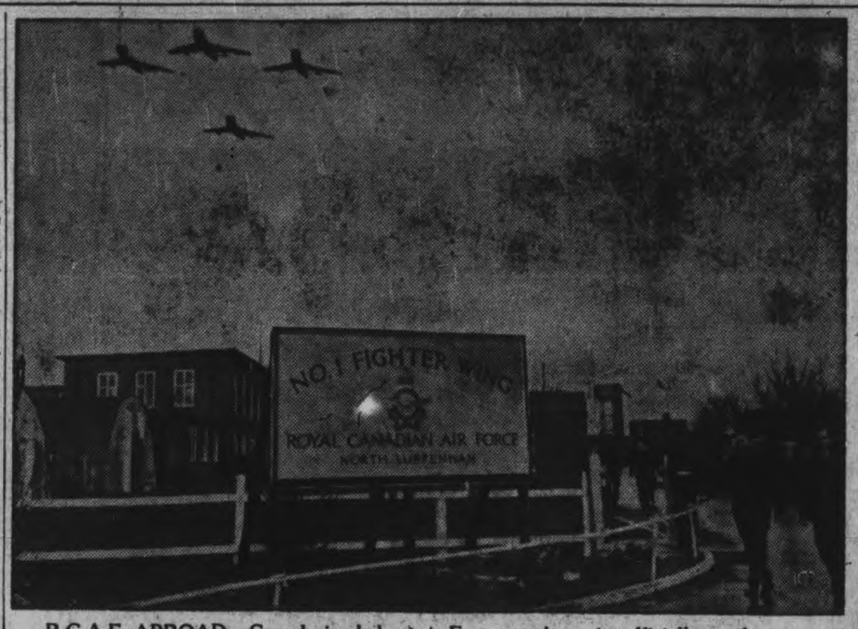
The jet fighter specifically designed for defence of Canada—the CF-100 Canuck—is behind schedule and the first squadrons won't be available until early 1953, about a year late. Meantime, Canada is guarded by F-86E Sabres and older Vampires and Mustangs.

There will be holes in the home-defence network, even when it is completed. There will be substantially more regular R.C.A.F. squadrons on duty in Europe than in Canada. The home front will be bolstered by reserve or part-time squadrons.

DIVISION FOR EUROPE

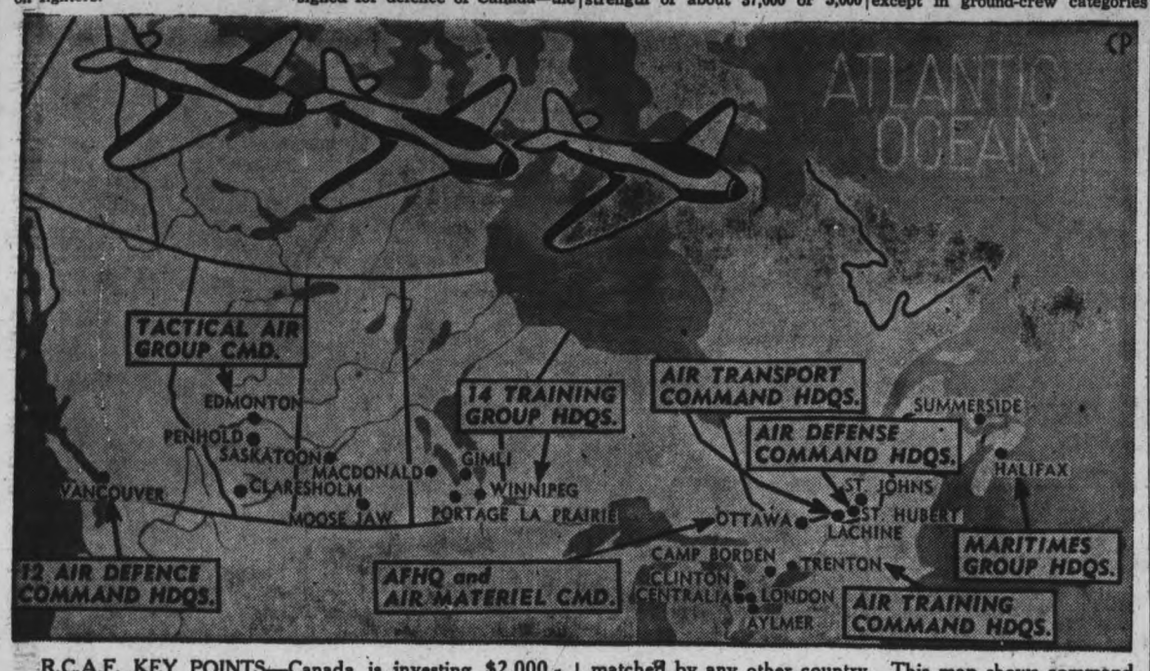
For Europe, Canada has pledged a 12-squadron, four-wing air division by 1954. Half the division was overseas by mid-October, three-quarters by next June. If the target isn't met, it will be because of a shortage of airfields in Europe. The R.C.A.F. has been forming a new Sabre squadron about every two months.

For the first time, the R.C.A.F. is getting its fighters from Canadian factories. The A.V. Roe of Canada firm at Malton is turning out the Canuck and its Orenda engine. The big Canadair plant at Montreal is manufacturing the Sabre.



The air force currently has a strength of about 37,000 or 5,000 short of its goal of 42,000. The strength has more than doubled in the last two years. Air force officials say recruiting is "not too bad" except in ground-crew categories where the service is "just holding its own." There has been a growing interest among applicants to fly jet fighters.

The R.C.A.F. has a number of major functions apart from the build-up of fighter strength.



Mainly on the prairies, it is running a miniature version of the wartime British Commonwealth Air Training plan which produced 131,000 fliers. Roughly 3,000 Canadian and Atlantic Pact airmen a year are expected to graduate from the new schools.

A three-squadron maritime or coastal wing is sharing the navy's vigil and preparing for anti-submarine warfare.

R.C.A.F. ABROAD—Canada is pledged to have a 12-squadron air division—divided into four wings—in Europe by 1954. The headquarters of the first wing is at North Luffenham in England. A second wing earlier this month flew to Gros-Tenquin, France, where it officially took over an operational role in the air defence of Western Europe under N.A.T.O. A third wing is due to go within the first six months of 1953.

R.C.A.F. KEY POINTS—Canada is investing $2,000,000,000 between 1951 and 1954 to make air power the cornerstone of her defence. The emphasis of rearmament is being placed on the fighter arm of the R.C.A.F. in a way not matched by any other country. This map shows command and group headquarters of the R.C.A.F. and 16 major training stations of the regular force. On January 1, 1951, R.C.A.F. manpower totalled 18,000; the present total is 37,000 and the target 42,000.

Expect Voters To Set Record

WASHINGTON (AP)—A rising tide of registrations has prompted state officials and other qualified sources to predict a turnout of 55,669,850 voters in the United States election Nov. 4.

This would exceed by 5,850,000 the record established in the Roosevelt-Willkie contest of 1940.

The same sources estimated for The Associated Press a national registration or eligible vote of 74,810,561, also the highest in history.

In addition, defence headquarters says there are another 2,500,000 eligible voters in the armed forces at home and abroad Based on a 30-per-cent military vote in 1944, officials figure 750,000 may return ballots next month.

A vigorous registration drive has been conducted on a country-wide basis by the American Heritage Foundation in co-operation with more than 50 nationally-known organizations.

WEYBURN, Sask. (CP)—More than 1,500 of the 19,000 blind people in Canada are completely self-supporting, a meeting here was told by Field Secretary R. V. Rudolph of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

MORE AIRWOMEN—In line with the emphasis on airpower as the mainstay of Canada's defence, the R.C.A.F. was the first of the three services to begin recruiting women for its regular forces, beginning its campaign June 1, 1951. By the year's end the R.C.A.F. had signed up 1,833 airwomen. There now are 2,761. The airwomen train for 26 different trades. Then there are nursing sisters, such as FO. Marion Neily, of Middleton, N.S., who undergo training in parachuting and wilderness rescue work.

Czech Craftsmen Not Producing For Reds Now

By HUBERT HARRISON

VIENNA (Reuters)—Dilligent Czech craftsmen, whose skill and industriousness have won them world-wide recognition, are not "producing" for their Communist bosses.

This is indicated by mounting reports from Czechoslovakia of absenteeism and carelessness" "to the point of sabotage."

The Communists now frequently accuse Czech workers of being "irresponsible, lazy, slack, always wanting to change their jobs, often absent without leave, often shamming sickness to escape work."

Individuals in Prague say the Soviet "sweating systems," which drive the workers by "factory competitions" and Stakhanovite movements to try to "produce more today than yesterday," have largely destroyed the one-time Czech enthusiasm.

MANY HOURS LOST

Recently the trade union organ, "Prace," said that because of absenteeism and fluctuation of workers from job to job, no less than 52,000,000 man-hours were lost in 1950. This would correspond to the work of 25,000 workers during the whole year.

Fatigue is also beginning to show as a result of long hours of intensive work, followed by hours of conferences and Communist indoctrination.

"Prace" reports that workers are often found asleep at their jobs. In one case, a foreman in charge of explosives in the Ostrava "Zarubek" mine, was found asleep with two bags of explosives lying unguarded by his side.

DRAFT WORKERS

Many of the workers in heavy industry, building and the mines are no longer volunteers but "pressed men." Every firm doing lighter work has been ordered to release all employees who can be spared and who are physically fit for heavy work.

Once the man has been "released," he is directed by the Labor Exchange to report for work at a mine, foundry, or building site.

As a result, work discipline among these forced laborers is at a low ebb. The building director at the East Slovakian Mining Combine recently reported that sabotage was common.

He Was Ready

PRINCETON, England (CP)—The oldest resident of this Devonshire town, 91-year-old Charles Cornish, became ill on a Sunday and told relatives he would die on the following Wednesday. His prediction was correct.

Former Treasurer Of United Counties Jailed 15 Days

COBOURG (ENS)—Walter E. Barr, former clerk-treasurer of the united counties of Durham and Northumberland pleaded guilty in county court today to a charge of theft by converting money to his own use. It was charged that from January 1, 1947, to Dec. 10, 1951, he stole $3,647.70 from the counties. Judge J. C. Anderson, Belleville, presided and Alex Hall, Oshawa, was crown attorney. Barr was defended by R. S. Ryan of Port Hope. Warden Harry Campbell of the counties said that certain irregularities were brought to his attention and he reported them to the council. The council engaged a Toronto firm of auditors to inspect the clerk-treasurer's books.

Walter E. Barr was sentenced to 15 days in jail by Judge Anderson this afternoon. "I wish I could think all the discrepancies were the result of overwork and the inherited lax system," said the judge.

Final restitution of the missing money was made May 1, 1952.

Warden Campbell said Barr's work was very heavy and until April, 1950, the clerk had had no assistant. He added that about half a million dollars passed through his hands each year.

The warden said since Barr's resignation, a new audit system had been put into effect to replace the old one that had been used many years.

"I personally liked Mr. Barr very much," said the warden.

KEPT IT QUIET

Warden Campbell said he had called a special meeting of the council and it was decided by vote at that time, not to make the findings public. This was July 29 this year.

The Port Hope Guide learned of the irregularities in a roundabout way and the day before the paper published the report, the warden said he would seek the advice of the council about whether to withhold the report. However, the newspaper reported the story before the council met.

R. E. A. Jarrett, auditor with the firm that made the special investigation, was next called as a witness.

He said his investigation had covered 1950 and 1951 and where discrepancies appeared, he went back to 1947 when Barr started to work.

When he made his audit, Barr had already repaid $1,483.68. He said that the counties had only a very loose system of bookkeeping.

Grand Jury Brings True Bill Against Condon

After hearing only four of 16 Crown witnesses, a Peterborough County grand jury late Monday afternoon brought in a "true bill" against 22-year-old Leonard Condon, of R.R. 4 Peterborough, who is charged with manslaughter.

Condon was arrested after the death of Michael Heffernan, 37, of Stewart St., shortly after midnight on September 3. Heffernan, a married man with two young daughters, died after being beaten up behind a downtown beverage room.

Justice W. F. Schroeder is presiding at the fall assizes. The manslaughter charge against Condon is the only criminal case listed but there are two civil actions—both motor accident suits—to be heard at the Supreme Court jury sittings.

CRITICIZED BY JUSTICE

Though the grand jury returned their "true bill" Monday afternoon, the manslaughter trial of Condon cannot go ahead until Wednesday morning at the earliest. And this caused some criticism of the Attorney General's department by Justice Schroeder.

The delay has been caused by the absence of an expert Crown witness, Dr. Ward Smith, director of the medico-legal department of the Attorney-General's office. He is giving expert testimony at criminal trials elsewhere in Ontario and cannot come to Peterborough until Wednesday.

After Crown Attorney John Bradshaw, Q.C., had apologized to the court for the delay, Justice Schroeder commented:

"Some arrangement should be made at the Attorney General's department to have enough expert witnesses available to allow these trials to proceed."

Justice Schroeder said that the department knew in advance the dates of the trials throughout the province and the witnesses should be ready. He pointed out that he has only a week in Peterborough and unless the trial could be completed by Friday it could not go on.

This could work a hardship on the accused, said Justice Schroeder, particularly if he were being held in custody.

Another Crown witness, Dr. C. B. Waite, local provincial pathologist, is also not available at the Tower Of London Buys Collection

LONDON (Reuters)—Part of the extensive collection of ancient armor which the late William Randolph Hearst kept in his Welsh castle has been purchased for £30,000 by the Tower of London, a government spokesman announced last night.

The spokesman said the government put up £7,000 towards the total cost.

Fifty-two pieces have been bought from Hearst's castle to fill gaps in the Tower's collection, England since William the Conqueror, who began building the Tower in 1078.

Some of the Hearst armor was originally used in Britain, but most of it came from European countries.

Sir James Mann, master of armories at the Tower, described the Tower's purchase as "the most important acquisition of modern times."

Pistol Vanishes From City Hall

TORONTO (CP) — An air pistol exhibit from the murder trial of Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson has disappeared from the Toronto city hall, it was disclosed today.

Earlier reports said the missing exhibit was one of the guns involved in the fatal shooting of Toronto detective, Edmund Tong, last March. Suchan and Jackson were convicted of murder in Tong's death and sentenced to be hanged. They have appealed the conviction.

Officials said the air pistol was kept under lock and key with other exhibits from the trial.

The crown introduced it into the case with the claim that it was used by Suchan and Jackson for target practice in the basement of the Toronto home of Ann Camero, a friend of Suchan's.

Harris Denies Best Youth Going To U.S.

BARRIE (CP) — Immigration Minister Harris said last night facts do not support the belief that the "cream of our young Canadians" emigrate to the United States.

Canada's net loss to the United States, he said, has been at a rate of about 1,000 a month, and of these, only about 50 per cent are workers.

Mr. Harris gave the figures in a speech at ceremonies marking the Canadian Legion's "citizenship night" in Barrie.

Mr. Harris said:

About 25,000 persons a year emigrate to the United States from Canada and this includes those who go to attend U. S. universities, who leave Canada after retirement to spend that retirement in a climate less rigorous than our own.

"I do not want to minimize this loss. It is a regrettable one—but far less serious than some would have us believe. And to off-set it, over the last seven years, our intake from the United States has been at an average rate of about 8,500 a year or a total of almost 60,000.

"Returning Canadians have added nearly another 25,000 to this total so that the traffic north across the border has been at the rate of about 12,000 a year. . ."

Ready To Discuss Wrangle Over Korea

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United Nations General Assembly set the stage today for the crucial east-west diplomatic wrangle over Korea — the question casting the gloomiest shadow over the future of the world organization.

The Assembly yesterday put off the rest of its opening general debate, in which delegates of member countries usually present a broad outline of their government's policies, until after the United States presidential elections Nov. 4. The way was thus paved for the Assembly committees to get down to detailed work on Korea and the rest of the loaded agenda confronting the 60-country body.

The U.S. also has announced it will ask the U.N. Assembly, presided over by L.B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs Minister, to unit the U.S. has launched germ warfare in Korea.

Soviet delegate Jacob A. Malik vetoed a similar U.S. request in the Security Council last summer. The Americans decided to bring it up again in the Assembly — where there is no veto — after hearing the old charges repeated this year by Poland, Russia and Czechoslovakia.

To Try Farouk For Treason

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Former King Farouk will be ordered to trial for high treason and perhaps for other charges, Cairo's newspapers again reported today.

The pro-Wafdist Al Misri said the authorities "have decided to prosecute Farouk for high treason prosecution may also cover other crimes is still under consideration."

Al Misri said a summons to Farouk to appear for trial would be served at the Egyptian consulate nearest to the point where Farouk is now living. The former monarch recently moved from the Isle of Capri to a small resort hotel at Santa Marinella, Italy.

It Takes Old Hands

Non-Active Colonel Leads Demoralized Battle Squad

CENTRAL FRONT, Korea (CP) —A grey-haired "old colonel" who held a non-active job in the U.S. army was killed last Tuesday after he took charge of a demoralized company and led it into battle against the Communists.

The army today announced that the "old colonel" was Lt.-Col. William Isbell, Jr., 45, whose regular job was inspector general for the U.S. 7th division.

The army said Isbell happened along at a time when the leaders of the company had been wounded. As one captain said, the colonel "didn't have any damn business up there."

Sgt. John Hansen, who described the action as "the most remarkable example of courage I have seen in my life," said the company had orders to take a trench on the crest of Triangle Hill.

The colonel, Hansen said, walked to the top of the hill, "looked in the trench and waved his pistol for us to come up.

"He yelled back for grenades. We threw him one and started up ourselves. He threw it in the trench and stepped back.

"After the grenade exploded, the colonel looked again. Just as he stuck his head over, they set off a satchel charge.

"He just doubled up and topped over in the trench."

The Americans finally took the trench.

Chinese Renew Ridge Attack

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—About 1,500 Chinese Communists attacked in a blinding rainstorm tonight in a renewed assault on mud-coated Sniper Ridge. The Communists struck under cover of an intense artillery and mortar barrage. But South Koreans held them at bay with heavy rifle and artillery fire. An officer predicted the Red attack would build up during the night. It was aimed at Pinpoint Hill, highest peak on the ridge. The night was so dark the South Koreans couldn't see the Chinese until the attacking troops were almost upon them. An ominous quiet hung over nearby Triangle Hill, where United States 7th Division troops awaited an expected Chinese onslaught.

Some 20 miles to the east, South Korean troops battled to within 40 yards of the crest of Iron Horse Mountain at noon today. They pulled back; however, because their supporting tanks could not find their targets through the heavy fog.

AIRCRAFT GROUNDED

Overcast skies grounded United Nations planes. Only the sporadic fire of Allied and Chinese artillery broke the quiet on Triangle and Sniper Ridge last night and early today.

Reports from the front said the Reds lost more than 7,500 men killed or wounded in the first week of fighting on the two peaks.

U.S. 7th division officers said the Reds suffered 4,640 casualties on Triangle alone. On Sniper Ridge, officers of the Republic of Korea 2nd division estimated the Red toll at 3,000 killed or wounded.

These figures do not include casualties inflicted by Allied planes which have swarmed around the two peaks in almost continuous attack.

U.S. CASUALTIES HIGH

These estimates brought reported Communist casualties for October to more than 25,000. The U.N. casualty figure for the same period was not announced but was expected to be high.

All-weather B-26 Invader bombers last night attacked two Red supply concentrations in North Korea. Pilots reported 20 explosions, the Red Korean capital.

The navy said carrier-based planes yesterday attacked Communist supply and transportation targets on North Korea's east coast for the second straight day. Sky raiders, Corsairs and Panther jets from the fast carriers Bon Homme Richard and Essex pounded the Reds from Kosong to north of Tanchon.

Throttles Bomb Fuse With Bare Hand On Plane

TOKYO (AP)—The United States Air Force today said a young aerial gunner on a B-26 bomber throttled the fuse of a "hot" bomb with his bare hands to keep it from exploding, then literally "threw" it at the enemy. It credited airman Jackie A. Jamerson of Asheboro, N.C., with saving the lives of his fellow crew-members during a mission over North Korea several nights ago.

REALLY ON SPOT

"That was really a spot to be in," his pilot later said. "If the bomb couldn't be rehung, we'd have to salvo (drop) the load. To do this, the bomb bay door would have to be opened. The air blast would have started the bomb's fuse spinning and might blow us up. The only alternative was to head for the sea and bail out."

Jamerson crawled into the bomb bay to the bomb. He unfastened the fused bomb and pushed it back to his compartment. There he straddle it, holding his hand over the fuse to keep it from arming itself.

The B-26 continued toward its target in the Wonsan area on the east coast of North Korea. When the "bombs away" signal was given, the gunner lifted the bomb and threw it out of the compartment.

May Soon Begin Talks On Sudan

CAIRO (AP) — Maj.-Gen. Mohammed Naguib, Egypt's premier, said today Britain has asked him whether he is ready to begin formal talks on the disputed Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Naguib made the announcement after a conference with Sir Ralph Stevenson, the British ambassador. Naguib said he would give his answer after he discusses the matter with Sudanese representatives now in Cairo.

Settlement of the controversy would go a long way toward patching up differences between Egypt and Britain. The exiled Farouk had proclaimed himself king of both Egypt and the Sudan. Naguib's army - supported regime forced Farouk to abdicate last July and since then Britain has renewed its efforts to reach an agreement.

COMMITTEE LIKELY

Informed Sudanese sources said Naguib is advocating the appointment of a Briton, an Egyptian and two Sudanese to supervise progress toward self-government in the almost 1,000,000-square-mile Sudan.

El Sayed Abdel Rahman el Mahdi, leader of the pro-independence Umma party which dominated the Sudanese Assembly, arrived yesterday from London after talks with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Open Highway In Two Weeks

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Highways Department said yesterday its four-lane extension of highway 2A from Oshawa east to Newcastle will be open for traffic within two weeks.

The extension will enable motorists to avoid the right-angle turn at the approach to the Bowmanville bridge and provide a total of about 50 miles of four-lane highway east of Toronto.

Criticize Drinking At Rugby Games

TORONTO (CP) — Liquor flasks were a common sight at a recent intercollegiate rugby game here, Toronto Centre presbytery of the United Church was told today.

"Two men had to guide a woman companion through the crowd, a youth openly walked up and down with a half-filled beer bottle displayed in his hand while policemen clustered together at the exits," said a report of the committee on [illegible] of Leaside Church.

Movie Plans Approved For June Coronation

LONDON (Reuters)—The Cabinet has approved plans for black-and-white and color movies of the coronation next June in Westminster Abbey, it was announced yesterday.

The Earl Marshal, in charge of coronation arrangements, said live television would be barred, but a movie of the ceremony would be available for televising later.

Bad Typhoon Leaves Wrecked Villages

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP) — A typhoon which swept over southern Indo-China yesterday caused 50 casualties in Plantheit, a fishing village 60 miles northeast of Saigon. How many were killed was not determined.

The typhoon caused three deaths in Saigon but the worst blows were felt in the area north of here. Many villages were wrecked.

The typhoon was last reported heading inland toward Cambodia at about 10 miles an hour.

Firm Forced To Ask For Protection For 22 Vehicles

TORONTO (CP)—Provincial Police cruisers have been escorting 22 McKinley Transport Company vehicles for the last week following reported attempts to sabotage the company's fleet. Murray McKinley, general manager, said that sugar was poured into the gas tanks of six transports at the Dixie terminal of the company on Thanksgiving Day. The firm's head office is at Watford. Mr. McKinley said pins holding the "fifth wheel" which joins tractors to the main freight-carrier have been pulled, causing trailers to fall to the ground. In all cases, these occurrences have happened when drivers were indoors having a meal or stopped for unloading freight.

Mysterious black cars have been reported following transports to lonely sections of highways, cutting in front, thus forcing the driver to stop suddenly.

ASKED FOR PROTECTION

Mr. McKinley said the firm was forced to call for Provincial Police protection to protect the safety not only of the firm's drivers but also of other motorists on the highway the trucks travel.

The company laid off 15 drivers Oct. 4 during a labor dispute which has been taken to the Ontario Conciliation Board. Twenty-two drivers are employed in the firm's province-wide operations.

In the company - employee dispute the drivers took a "holiday" last Sept. 27. A letter was sent to them by the company advising that unless they returned to work by Oct. 4 they would no longer be employees of the firm. Fifteen did not return and were dismissed.

Mr. McKinley said the sugar incident was discovered when a driver took a transport on the road Thanksgiving Day but returned when the motor developed trouble. Investigation disclosed that six tractors in the terminal yard had sugar in their gas tanks. Mr. McKinley said that, if the vehicles had been used, it could have caused damage to the motors exceeding $9,000.

2 Boats Sink Report 7 Lost

MIAMI, Ia. (AP) — Two boats have been sunk — one reported with seven men on board — and seven other craft are in distress off the Florida coast as heavy winds raked the shore line.

The 69-foot fishing vessel Sea Farer sank off False Cape, near Cape Canaveral, with seven men on board. No survivors were reported.

The Grouper, a 32-foot pleasure boat, was blown on the north jetty at Fort Pierce and destroyed. Two men swam ashore.

More Passengers Die Than Drivers In Ont.

TORONTO (CP) — Traffic accidents in Ontario last month killed more passengers than drivers or Figures show that 34 passengers died, 29 drivers, 26 pedestrians, four cyclists and one motorcyclist were killed in traffic accidents. Two tractor deaths, plus others caused by injuries suffered the previous month, brought the total to 98 for September, one more than in August.

There was a decrease in child fatalities to 10 from 15 in August.

86 Arrested As Suspects Of Mau Mau

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Kenya authorities arrested at least 86 natives today in a roundup of suspected members of the secret anti-white Mau Mau society that has been terrorizing this British East African colony for months. Among then was Jomo Kenyatta, president of the Kenya African Union.

(In London, the Colonial Office said more than 130 suspected Mau Maus had been taken into custody.)

The roundup was carried out under a state of emergency declared last night by the Kenya government. A battalion of British troops, the Lancashire Fusiliers, was landed here by air to add steel to the government's drive.

NO RESISTANCE

Police began the arrests just after midnight. By noon, there had been no resistance and no sign of any native reaction. The majority of those picked up, including two women, were members of the Kikuyu tribe and several were prominent leaders in the Kenya African Union.

Kenyatta, who has a white wife and son in Britain, was flown immediately to a remote northern frontier province where he will be held pending further decision by the colony's governor.

Henry S. Potter, chief secretary of the colonial government, said today that "the situation now is under control."

12 PLANES IN AIRLIFT

An airlift of 12 planes made a night landing on a clockwork basis at the Nairobi airport.

At the same time the Colonial Office announced in London that the cruiser Kenya would go to Mombasa, 400 miles from Nairobi, to support troops in the Kenya capital.

It was the first major show of force Britain has made in East Africa in years. Britain fears Kenya could become another area of guerrilla warfare like Malaya.

Two thousand European volunteers joined reinforced police and British soldiers last night in patrolling Nairobi after a new wave of Mau Mau atrocities.

Thirty Kikuyu tribesmen were arrested in connection with the discovery in Laikipia, North Kenya, of the body of an African police witness. His hands had been cut off and his clothing buried. The man disappeared in mid-September.

Two Men Uninjured As Car Rolls Over

ORVILLE (CP) — Two Toronto [illegible] from their demolished auto after missing a turn, rolling over four times and coming to rest across a double-line railway track, one of the busiest in Canada.

Arthur Brooks, 35, of Port Credit and Gordon Adamson, 40, of Streetsville climbed through the windows of the car as it lay on its side. They were uninjured. Police halted east and westbound trains until the track was cleared.

Council Blushes Again

Finds Red Maples Won't Grow On Avenue

TORONTO (CP)—Already red-faced over the University Avenue maples that won't turn red, city council today had a new idea to consider. A landscape architect said maples won't grow on the wide, downtown street anyhow.

Morever, Edwin Kay of Toronto said council didn't order the right kind of maples in the first place. Mr. Kay designed the Alexander Muir Gardens here, a memorial to the man who wrote "The Maple Leaf Forever," Canadian patriotic song.

WANTED COLOR

Council wanted glorious autumn colors down the avenue, running from Queen's Park to Front Street. They ordered 145 red maples (acer rubrum) from a Dutch firm here, later learning to their dismay that the trees were bought in Holland.

A long debate preceded the order because native trees were demanded. Lime and other trees were scoffed down.

But when the maples down University unanimously turned a dirty yellow brown this fall, a howl went up. Alderman Roy Belyea charged council had been bilked, sold Norway maples instead of red. Experts examined the trees. Yesterday Mayor Allan Lamport said if the trees aren't the red variety, back they go to Holland.

Mr. Kay said in an interview that what council had in mind was not the red but the sugar maple (acer saccharum). He said the red maple is not native to Canada.

"WON'T GROW"

"But the point is that none of these varieties will grow and thrive on University Avenue," he said. "They won't stand the smog and gas fumes." The sugar maple is a swamp tree.

As for the lime that council wouldn't consider because they thought it a German tree, it would be the most satisfactory "because it is hardy, has a sweet scent and retains its green foliage until nearly Christmas."

"And," added Mr. Kay, "it is also a native of Canada. The sweet-scented lime was transplanted from Ontario to Germany to line Unter Den Linden in Berlin."

Sees Atomic War As Short Conflict

LONDON (Reuters)—An atomic war would probably be over in a few weeks with an "over-whelming victory" for one side, says Brassey's annual, unofficial but authoritative Armed Forces Yearbook. The 1952 edition of this standard collection of up-to-date facts and statistics about the world's armed forces was published yesterday. The article on atomic warfare was written by Brig. C. N. Barclay, who said one side likely would be much better equipped in an atomic war and would win quickly. A knock-out blow might be delivered against atomic plants, seats of governments and vital industrial and military targets, making it "difficult to see how the weaker side could continue the struggle."

Even if neither side knocked out the other immediately, Barclay said an atomic war could not last long.

SLAUGHTER TERRIFIC

With both sides using nuclear arms, the slaughter would be so great that "at a comparatively early stage both groups of belligerents might be prepared to discuss armistice terms." This, he said, might give the United Nations—"or what remains of it"—a chance to sponsor the negotiations.

He also pointed out the possibilities of shattering morale by dropping A-bombs on crowded cities and of cutting off food supplies by "destroying crops or sterilizing the earth."

But Barclay said he thought the existence of atomic weapons might reduce the chances of a third world war—both sides being too afraid to bring on atomic devastation.

U.S. Coal Miners Continue Wage Walkout

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The number of idle workers in the United States soft-coal fields continued to grow today even as the industry appealed to President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers to get his men back to work.

Harry M. Moses, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association, made public a letter asking Lewis to "strongly urge" the miners to return to the pits.

Lewis has remained silent since the Wage Stabilization Board cut 40 cents from the $1.90-a-day pay increase won recently in a new contract with soft-coal operators. The miners now earn a daily basic pay of $16.35, and would make $17.85 with the government-approved rise.

West Virginia and Pennslyvania, the two top coal-producing states, were hardest hit by the strike. In West Virginia all 115,000 of the U.M.W. members were out. Pennsylvania has 86,500 of its 92,500 miners idle.

SHOTS FIRED

The only violence reported thus far was at Grundy, Va., where Sheriff Ishmael Fletcher reported shots were fired into a cabin which housed seven non-union miners. No one was injured.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad notified 1,200 maintenance workers that they will have no work after tomorrow. The Norfolk and Western Railway in West Virginia said it is laying off 300 employees immediately.

There are reports that Lewis has called the union's 200-man policy committee to Washington for a meeting tomorrow. Lewis' office would neither confirm nor deny this.

So far, Lewis has not ordered a strike. From all outward appearances, the miners simply are staying away from work to show their disapproval of the W.S.B. action. But orders or not, only 6,000 of the union's 375,000 soft-coal diggers reported for work yesterday.

WALKOUT WIDESPREAD

Other states hit by the strike are Illinois, where 17,000 U.M.W members are out; Kentucky 33,000 idle, Indiana 8,500, Alabama 15,000, Ohio 12,000, Virginia 9,000 and Tennessee 2,000. Smaller numbers were reported out in other coal-producing states.

Most strip (surface) and non-union mines are operating.

JUGGLE FUNDS

Mr. Jarrett said that it appeared that money from one department was often used to pay bills contracted by another department when funds were not readily available.

Fox bounty money, for instance, might be used to pay witness fees in court cases. He added that Barr hod on occasion paid out money for the counties from his own account.

He added that it was impossible for one man to do all the work alone.

Judge Anderson asked Mr. Jarrett whether "some of the discrepancies were due to the bad bookkeeping system or due to design?"

Mr. Jarrett answered, "Some are possibly due to the system and others are such that I would not say they were due to the system."

"SLOPPY WORK"

He said there was considerable "sloppy work" in the keeping of the accounts.

He added that he didn't know whether it was for him to say if the discrepancies were due to design or otherwise.

In answer to further questioning by the judge Mr. Jarrett said trust funds were not closed but on the death of the pensioner.

"How much are due to overwork and the bad system and how much are due to some other reason?" the judge asked.

Mr. Jarrett made a non-committal reply and the judge said, "Can you help me?"

"To give Mr. Barr the benefit of the doubt, he had no idea of the amount until we told him," said Mr. Jarrett.

Crown Attorney Hall asked "Whether it would be fair to say the system was so lax that it would offer temptation and give him a false sense of security."

Mr. Jarrett said it was possible that the looseness of the system could give a man a sense of security.

Baby Show Funds Ordered Seized

OTTAWA (CP) — Deputy Magistrate Sauve today fined two employees of a Hollywood, Calif., firm $100 and costs each for conducting a lottery and ordered seizure of $2,213 collected in a better baby show staged here for the Canadian Legion.

The lottery charge against Mrs. Helen Boyd, 33, and her husband, 40-year-old Gene Boyd of Hollywood, arose out of sale of tickets of chance on a $100 Canada savings bond in connection with the baby show. The couple, employees of Robb Associates Company, pleaded guilty.

The court was told that in addition to the $2,213 found in the Boyd's hotel room at the time of their arrest, an additional $11,000 in baby show receipts had been deposited in a bank by them.

Robb Associates operated the month-long show on behalf of the Montgomery branch of the Canadian Legion. The show wound up with a coronation pageant last Saturday night at which baby winners were crowned and the winner of a $100 savings bond door prize was announced.

Prices Continue Drop On Toronto Exchange

Base metals lost about a point on the exchange's index to reach a new low for 1952.

Volume for the first three hours totalled 793,000 shares.

Base metals moved downward led by higher-priced issues, but losses were generally small. Ascot traded 24,000 shares for a loss of pennies. Other losers were Chibougami Exploration and United Keno.

Foods, banks and refining oils held firm in the industrials list as most groups slipped. Papers, steels and miscellaneous issues lost strength.

McCullough Trial Likely To Go To Jury

WINNIPEG (CP) — The second McCullough murder trial is expected to go to the jury today, drawing to a conclusion one of the most bizarre cases in Canadian crime.

On trial is Mrs. Lillian McCullough, 53-year-old Winnipeg housewife charged with the murder of her seven-year-old foster daughter, Martha Louise. The case, dubbed the "Prayer-Session Slaying," has followed the same pattern as the first.

Then, Gavin McCullough, jointly charged with his wife, but tried separately, was acquitted of murder on grounds of insanity following testimony by six psychiatrists. He now is serving an indeterminate sentence in the Manitoba penitentiary.

Mr. Justice Schroeder, Manitoba Governor.

Mrs. McCullough's trial opened yesterday in assize court where first witnesses told of seeing the McCulloughs praying and embracing in a vacant lot Jan. 25. Police officers described the couple's suburban Elmwood home where the child's strangled and bludgeoned body was found.

3rd Battalion Of Pats Reaches Jap Port

TOKYO (AP)—The main body of the 3rd Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry arrived at a Japanese port yesterday, a Canadian public relations officer said today.

The troops will replace the 1st Battalion of the Princess Patricias in Korea. Date of the change-over was not announced.

The 3rd Battalion was met by their commander, Lieut.-Col. Herbert Wood. He arrived by air about a week ago and visited the Canadian Brigade in Korea, then returned to Tokyo.

The third will undergo a brief indoctrination training period before replacing the 1st Battalion.

Prior to sailing for Japan, the 3rd Battalion trained at Wainwright military camp near Edmonton.

Suchan, Jackson Not Likely Asked To Testify

TORONTO (CP) — Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson, convicted murderers, are not likely to be called to testify in the inquiry into the administration of the Don jail here, officials conducting the probe said today.

A report yesterday that the two men had been considered as possible witnessesses was denied today by George Walsh, senior counsel at the inquiry and Judge Ian Macdonell, who is hearing evidence.

Yesterday the possibility was raised that Edwin Alonzo Boyd, sentenced last week to life imprisonment for bank robberies, might be called to testify. Today the two officials said nothing of this.

HAD GOOD RECORD

Col. Hedley Basher, deputy minister of reform institutions, said T.W. Brand, who was suspended as Don jail governor after the Boyd gang's escape Sept. 8, came to his job with a good record.

Yesterday Col. G. Hedley Basher deputy Minister of Reform Institutions for Ontario, said it would be difficult to tell an escaped convict from an ordinary working man. He himself had stopped citizens on the highway while looking for escaped prisoners from Guelph reformatory because they were similarly dressed.

George T. Walsh, chief counsel for the Crown, asked Col. Basher to go into details on prison garb "because something may be asked later about clothing."

WENT OUT IN 1927

Col. Basher said striped clothing for prisoners went out 25 years ago because "it was thought to be too much the mark of a convict, and at that time was not in keeping with public sentiment."

Judge Macdonell: "You say striped clothing went out 25 years ago. What regulations were those? This is a very important matter."

Col. Basher: "As far as I know it was not a question of regulations but the policy adopted by the department."

Mr. Walsh said he could not see anything in the jail regulations outlining the exact type of prison garb. Col. Basher said this was left to individual jailers, but clothing was similar in most jails throughout the province.

Earlier he said he thought Edwin Boyd, William Jackson, Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson were wearing jail clothing at the time of their escape. When Mr. Walsh asked if it would be difficult to distinguish an escaped prisoner on the street he answered: "It definitely would."

WEAR BLUE JEANS

The clothing consisted of blue jeans, a blue shirt and lace-up ankle boots, a type worn by "laborers and factory workers."

During discussion of jail regulations Judge Macdonnell said that one dealing with exercising prisoners daily "tied the hands of a jail governor."

The regulation said that every prisoner unless under sentence of death, attempting to escape, found plotting to escape or misbehaving, shall be allowed to have daily exercise in the open air.

Judge MacDonnell said this section did not give the jailer any authority to decide which prisoner was a risk. He might be a well-known escape artist and yet not come under the four provisions of the section.

Mr. Walsh said the wording of the regulations was perhaps somewhat too legal.

Police Search For Saboteurs

ELAN VALLEY, Wales (Reuters)—Police today searched for evidence that Welsh nationalists were responsible for an amateur attempt to blow up a water pipeline connecting new dam here with the industrial city of Birmingham.

The blast tore an eight-foot hole in an aqueduct but left undamaged its two pipes capable of carrying 75,000,000 gallons of water a day.

One theory is that the nationalists—a small but hot-headed group seeking home rule for Wales—set off the explosion in protest over the visit of the Queen here Thursday to open the £16,000,000 Claerwen dam.

The remote farming area in the Welsh hills 15 miles from here, where the blast took place, was searched for proof of sabotage. Additional precautions are being taken at the dam and guards are being posted at vulnerable points along the aqueduct.

The Welsh nationalists have never been as active as the nationalists in Scotland, who also demand home rule. The last reported outbreak of violence they have been held responsible for was in 1937 when three men set fire to an R.A.F. station.

In his charge to the grand jury Justice Schroeder outlined the crime of manslaughter.

It is an unlawful but unintentional killing, he said. The unlawful element in this case would have to be assault: the "unjustified use of force by one person on another.

In the meantime a civil case is proceeding.

Thomas R. Sheridan of Hamilton St., is suing Walter Snelgrove, a Cavan township farmer, for $10,500 and cost of the action. Sheridan was a passenger in a car operated by Earl O'Toole when O'Toole and Snelgrove were in a two-car crash near Fraserville on Nov. 24, 1950.

Finances Prove Problem For Parks Board

LINDSAY (ENS).—Acting secretary T. R. Price, of the Lindsay Parks Board reported last night on the matter of removing trees from the much-maligned gas station site at Kent St. and Albert near the centre of the town. Mr. Price explained that a committee from the board had met with representatives of the Trinidad Leaseholds Ltd., with a view to setting a price for the parks board's removal of the trees, of which there were 14. The committee asked for a "donation" of $1,000 or $8 per tree from the company, in return for ridding the property of the large trees.

The company, however, was not receptive to such an offer, and offered to take the trees down themselves. They offered $500 for the job to be done by the parks board workers. The company's offer was finally accepted and the trees are now down. The work of cutting them was helped considerably by the purchase by the board of a chain saw, at over $100, cutting the profit on the job to some extent. The committee had then, according to Price, tried to sell the wood to various local coal and wood dealers, but none of them would buy, the cost of taking the wood away being too great. Finally one offer of $5 per cord, with the board being responsible for cutting the wood into proper length, was accepted and $45 realized for its sale.

Lindsay's board of parks management, despite the fact it was refused an additional grant paid out its budget for the balance, at last week's meeting of town council, now thinks it can make it to the end of the year without too much trouble. Finances, a big issue at recent meetings of the board, were brought up again last night by Hank Nebois, who asked what state the board's economy was in at the present time.

Acting Secretary Price and Chairman Carl Brown put their heads together over the bills and credits of the evening's business and found that the credits of $700 were to be added to the funds. These were balanced by bills of $200, the price of a chain saw over $400, the total taking the budget for the remainder of the year down to $1,237. Out of that sum, pointed out Chairman Brown, had to come the salaries of the board's two employees for the last three months of the year the bills for October, November and December, with the prospective income from grass-cutting for the board of education amounting to $400.

Inquiring as to the ways and means of keeping expenditures down, Mr. Debois aksed whether the helper now employed with Superintendent Miner could be laid off. It was felt however that his assistance was needed for the balance of the tree-cutting operation. As a parting shot Mr. Debois asked "What happens if we go in the red?" Answered Chairman Brown jestingly "We all get fired".

Chairman Brown reported earlier on his trip to council to ask for extra funds. He reported that council had turned down his request for a $700 grant, but he felt that more consideration would be given to the needs of the parks board next year, after the publicity their finances received to date.

The matter of the fill coming from the widening operations on Lindsay Street south was brought up at last night's meeting of the parks board. Chairman Carl Brown reported to the board that some of the fill, which was under the control of the board, was not going to the town dump, where it is being used to cover the dump for future use, but out of town. Mayor Lamb was concerned over the disappearance of the fill, a valuable substance at present, and promised to look into the matter personally.

The parks board intends to use the fill for a new park at the end of Durham Street, near the river in the east ward. The land for the park is still the property of the C.N.R. until complications in the title are cleared up and until that time, the fill for the widening is going to the dump. Mayor Lamb commenting on the latter fact told the board that the fill "is doing a good job at the dump. Maybe in the future, when another park land for the park is obtained." Supt. Walter Miner advocated taking the loam to the end of Durham Street and dumping it, so that it would be ready for use in the future. Since the board did not know when the clear title to the projected park land would be available however, it was decided, on motion of Mayor Lamb, to have the loam continue to be dumped at the town dump for the present.

Parks Superintendent Walter Miner complained last night at a meeting of the Parks Board about the marking of the lawn in Kawartha Park with lime for high school football practices. The work was done on the authority of one of the Lindsay Collegiate teachers, according to Mr. Miner, and the lime had eaten into the grass already. In addition, he charged, the cleats used by the players were cutting the grass and flower beds and hedges up. He explained that the Collegiate athletic field had become badly cut up during fair week, when cars were parked on it. The school still uses the field for their games since the goal-posts are standing there. "The park land is apparently used for P.T. sessions and practices for the teams.

Chairman Brown recommended that the School Board be approached on the subject since he felt the county should pay if the Collegiate students were to use the park land. Mayor Lamb finally moved Mr. Price and Chairman Brown a committee to investigate the matter and report to the next meeting of the board.

3 Schoolgirls On £100 Spree

LONDON (AP) — Three little maids from school went out on a weekend spree with £100 in their pockets and an itch to see the bright lights of Southend, London's Coney Island.

The trio — Ann 13, Christine 11, and Kay 10 — were back home in tears today. And all because they forgot to wash their faces.

A reception clerk noticed their dirty visages and lack of luggage when they tried to check in at a Southend hotel. He told police. The police returned them to their worried parents.

The spree began Saturday when the youngsters set out with the £100 Kay had taken from her parents' house.

Donald W. Kingdon, assistant secretary of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, was presented today with a certificate of merit by R. B. Perrault, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Kingdon was one of eight graduates of the Canadian Institute for Board and Chamber Secretaries who received the certificate during presentations at the 23rd annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber in Toronto.

Graduates from the Institute, held each spring at McMaster University, Hamilton, now number 71. They become trained secretaries and community leaders.

Board and Chamber secretaries who take the institute course, said Mr. Perrault, find themselves better equipped to carry out their part of voluntary efforts of citizens in communities throughout Canada.

Other secretaries receiving certificates were from Montreal, Belleville, St. John, N. B., Brantford, Sudbury, Moncton, N. B. and Simcoe.

Armed Cordon Traps Trio Without Shot

SAULT STE. MARIE (CP) —Twenty heavily-armed city and provincial police converged on a private home late yesterday and captured three young men sought since a police cruiser was fired on early Saturday.

Delmar Lund, 21, Roland Rivard, 20, and Robert Souliere, 23, were crouched with rifles at the windows when two police constables crashed through the front door. Not a shot was fired.

The trio will appear in police court today on charges of breaking and entering, firing on police and theft of an automobile.

ROADBLOCKS MANNED

Roadblocks were manned along all highways leading out of the city. The capture was made, however, in the heart of the city.

Lund and Rivard had been at liberty on $800 bail in connection with a recent $1,000 safe robbery from the Memorial Gardens here.

Police recovered several rifles stolen from the Esquire Sporting Goods Store. Others are still missing.

The raid Monday night was the result of an anonymous tip.

Castleton Man Charged With Burning House

COBOURG (ENS — Judgment was reserved by Judge M. A. Miller Monday in connection with a charge of arson against Elgie Palmateer, Castleton man. He was charged with setting fire to a home owned by Elwood Dawson in Cramahe township on March 26, 1949. The laying of the charge did not occur until last month when authorities suspected that the Dawson fire was linked with the one which destroyed a house owned by Mrs. Palmateer last September, who was separated from her husband. The charge of setting fire to his wife's house, laid against Palmateer was dismissed.

William Harrington of Windsor, former resident of Peterborough, said that on March 26, 1947, he and Clare Palmateer, son of the accused, had driven from Peterborough, where they worked and on arriving at Castleton encountered Elgie Palmateer.

GOING TO BURN HOUSE

"He got in the car with a small hatchet in his hand and a baking powder tin which he said was filled with coal oil. He said that he was going to burn the house and he was being paid for the job. He didn't say who was going to pay him. He asked us to drive him to the place and when we got there he told us to go up the road and turn around and come back and wait for him. He went up to the house and we turned around and came back. He came out the gate, jumped in the car and said 'let's get the hell out of here.' I didn't know it was Dawson's home until a week later when Clare told me. When we left there was no sign of fire. The next time I came down I heard Elgie say that he didn't get any money for burning it as the insurance had run out before it was burned," testified Harrington.

Dawson testified that Elgie Palmateer came to him a few days after the fire and said "what is that job worth that I did for you?" Dawson's reply had been, "what job? He considered it a "shakedown" attempt.

Witness revealed that the policy of $500 had been renewed when it expired. The small house was totally destroyed.

SON TESTIFIES

Clare Palmateer, 26, son of the accused, said that he and his father did not get along very well. In the spring of 1949 he was working in Peterborough and used to drive back and forth on weekends to his home near Morganston, with William Harrington. In the spring of 1949 his father had been living near Morganston, some six or seven miles from Dawson's home. Dawson was working in Oshawa at the time of the fire and had not lived in the house for several years.

"We came upon my father in Castleton around seven in the evening on March 26. He asked us to drive him home. On the way he asked Bill to take him up north as he had a job to do. Bill said he would and we stopped at Dawson's place. My father got out with a hatchet in his hand and a little can, about the size of a baking powder can. He said to go up the road, turn and then return and pick him up. I guess we were gone about 15 minutes.

When we came back he hurried up to the car. He was pale and shaking and said 'let's get the hell out of here.' We drove off. Before he left the car he said something about getting $200 to burn the place. I learned of the fire the next time I was home, the following Tuesday. It might have been I heard about it the Sunday after we drove him up. I don't know for sure. When I was down Tuesday my father said he wouldn't pay me the $200 for burning down the place because his insurance ran out and he didn't get any money," testified Clare Palmateer.

The Crown closed its case at this point and no witnesses were called by the defence.

Food Analysis Major Problem Of Department

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Major William Graydon, M.C., district food and drug inspector with the department of health and welfare told Rotarians here of the work of the department with respect to the control of food and drugs in Canada. He was the Monday luncheon meeting speaker of the Campbelliford Rotary Club.

Mr. Graydon was introduced by Vern Lockwood.

A VERY OLD CRIME

Major Graydon said that his department works in the background as a constant vigilant on food and drugs. He explained how the food and drug act came into beng and said that adulteration of food was the main reason. The art of food aduleration is as old as commerce itself. The speaker quoted instances taken from the Bible where food was adulterated and told of bakers in France adding white earth to the flour from which bread was made. In Rome and Athens, adulteration of wine was a problem, and the convicted persons were forced to drink their own product, often with disastrous results.

In England, the offence was pnishable by making the guilty party march throuhg the streets with the product hanging about his neck.

Modern food anlysis started about 1850, when it was found that candy and cake was being colored by paris green and chocolate contained brick dust. Coffee was mainly chicory.

FIRST CONTROL IN AMERICA

The food and drug act was introduced in Canada in 1874 which was the first time on the North American continent that a government made an effort to control the quality of food. When the act was introduced and analysis made, it was found that about 51 p.c. of foods on the market were adulterated. This figure dropped to 5 per cent a few years later, and it now runs about two per cent.

Food imported into Canada is tested and inspected, and one of the main items the department has trouble with is dates. Cheese is another problem. Cheese should not be eaten before it is 90 days old, otherwise the consumer runs a chance of contracting typhoid germs. These are dormant after 90 days.

TESTING OF DRUGS

Drugs imported into Canada are also tested. These are mainly antibiotics and must conform to strict regulations..

The act is a piece of social legislation, and prevents fraud, protects the honest traders.

Major Graydon was thanked by Rotarian Dr. Arnold Bright.

Little Helpers Hold Service At Millbrook

MILLBROOK (ENS)—The annual service and party of the St. Thomas' branch of the Little Helpers was held Saturday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. A. A. Chote, who told the children the story of the little boy's part in the feeding of the five thousand. Four of the older boys, Bradford and Barton Medd and Allen and Roger Gillis, collected the mite boxes in white baskets. These were received by the rector in the sanctuary, who then presented and placed them on the altar.

After the service, the Little Helpers and their mothers were entertained with games and refreshments in the parish hall. Lena-Marie Lowery and June Anderson were in charge of games and Miss Ellen Kent of the serving of refreshments supplied by St. Thomas' W.A.

After refreshments the flannelgraph story of "How Little Helpers Came Into Being" was shown by Mrs. Arthur Stephenson, of Omemee. The afternoon had been planned by Mrs. W. E. Massey-Cooke, secretary.

Suggests Canada Double Population In 25 Years

By FORBES RHUDE

TORONTO (CP)—Canada should aim at doubling its population within the next 25 years and attain a population of at least 30,000,000 by 1975, Rene B. Perrault of Montreal, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said today.

Addressing the chamber's annual meeting, attended by more than 600 delegates from across Canada, Mr. Perrault added:

"With a wealth of virtually every vital resource, Canada is short of the most important resources — people. The answer is immigration, more immigrants — many more.

"GREATER POPULATION"

"Need for greater population is based on primary requisites such as defence, production and economic well-being. At the same time, any study of immigration reveals that it makes more jobs, creates more homes and raises the standard of living.

"We should be aware of the danger of trying to keep so rich a land all to ourselves. Our moral sense urges us to provide sanctuary and opportunity.

REHAB WORK BEGINS

"At the beginning of the century agriculture set the immigration pace. Then it was the opening of the west, the first great wave of immigration, the start of industrialization. The results have been fabulous. Two and one-half times as many people are producing five times the volume of wealth in three-quarters of the working time.

"Now it is our industrial growth which will be the determining factor in our population capacity. Results of today's beginnings should be much greater in proportion than those of two generations ago.

"This time, by contrast, we are getting off to a head start. We have developed processes and products, systems and solutions to problems thought insoluble a generation ago.

"The advisability of continued immigration has been challenged in recent months; and the government, a few months ago, tightened up its selection program. But I believe, and the Canadian Chamber believes, that the needs outweigh the difficulties foresen in immigration at the rate at least of the last year.

"MUST HAVE IMMIGRATION"

"It is the people of Canada who will lose if short-sighted opposition to immigration impares the country's future development. As a nation with the greatest potential development of any country in the world, we believe that Canada must be prepared to face up to the problem of immigration."

Mr. Perrault said there are signs that the flow of people from Canada to the United States is diminishing.

"About 10,000 Americans a year are moving into Canada, and about 5,000 former Canadians are moving back each year. The trek of Canadian university graduates to the U.S. has apparently also been arrested."

Council Orders Zoning Bylaw

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — A short meeting was held by the council on Monday evening, to discuss the proposed zoning bylaw, a draft of which was presented at the last council meeting.

It was decided to instruct the solicitor to draw up the final bylaw, which will be presented at the next meeting.

The bylaw re-appointing J. C. Birmingham as tax collector came up but when time came to vote it was turned down. There were four against the appointment and three for it. One councillor who had previously voted for the re-appointment of Birmingham, Douglas R. Maybee, was absent from Monday's meeting. No further action in the matter of tax collector was taken immediately.

Bethany United Church Celebrates 87th Year

BETHANY (ENS). — Eighty-seventh anniversary services of Bethany United Church were well attended Sunday.

In the morning, the Rev. Henry Cotton of St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, was the guest speaker with his subject "What Are Our Deeper Resources?" "Material resources often do not yield what we expect, but God's promises never fail. We see the power and wisdom of the universe in every way of life; the principle of growth supplied by Him in nature and in human life."

At the evening service, Rev. A. W. Harding of Welcome, a former minister on the Bethany circuit spoke on the Biblical story of the blind beggar who asked that his sight might be restored. "In this incident Jesus replied 'Receive thy sight; thy faith hath saved thee.'" Continuing, Mr. Harding said "We of today should ask to have our sight restored. We need a renewal of faith and of spiritual vision and if we pray with faith in our hearts we shall see with opened eyes the true meaning of Christ's teaching."

Miss Gladys Bigelow played the organ. Anthems by the choir were "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes," "Thou Visitest the Earth," "I Will Give Thanks" and "Oh Praise the Lord All Ye Nations."

Mr. Fraser Carr of Cavan was guest soloist in the evening, singing "Prayer Perfect."

The Sunday school has been completely redecorated and a special dedication service was led by A. H. Monk. Miss Gladys Bigelow sang a lovely solo, "Bless This House." In his remarks, Mr. Monk paid special tribute to the members of the Women's Association, who by voluntary labor had painted the woodwork, floors, etc. to the Young People's Union, who had donated the varnish and to others who had donated new window drapes and linoleum for the

Some Matters Of Education

Some lively discussions took place when the Ontario Association for Curriculum Development met in Toronto last week. What interested us particularly about them was that there seemed to be more than the usual acknowledgement on the part of the teachers present that all was not well in the field of Ontario education. There were indications of the usual humorous attitude toward the public which is expected when experts are gathered together; one teacher, for instance, said that he did not mind if parents helped pupils with their homework, as this served to educate the parents. But there were healthy and uncommon suggestions that it might not be amiss if teachers had a little more education themselves; one school principal was quoted as saying that applications for jobs from aspiring teachers grew worse every year. Discontent with Ontario education as it exists was expressed in a variety of ways.

* * *

This discontent does not stop short in the ranks of the teachers; parents and employers feel it as well. There is a feeling abroad that young people do not emerge from our schools as well educated as their parents were. Discounting the inevitable discontent and disapproval between generations, we think that there are grounds for this belief, and that the parents were educated more deeply, in a narrower range of subjects, than are children today. But the parents appear to be better spellers, better at figures, and better at geography than are the school children now.

* * *

What is the aim of elementary education? Surely it is to give children certain necessary skills—reading, writing, spelling, grammar, some knowledge of geography and history, and skill in simple arithmetic. Some of these skills can only be acquired by prolonged drill and memory work, and while a good teacher does everything possible to lighten the burden of this drudgery, it remains drudgery at bottom. There is no virtue in drudgery for its own sake, but drudgery to achieve a worthy aim is entirely defensible.

* * *

If parents are guilty—and we think that they must share some of the guilt for the drop in the standard of elementary education—it is because the old respect for education has been lost. Too many people believe themselves, and allow their children to believe, that it is better to be rich than wise; or perhaps it is more correct to say, in an age when wealth is more difficult than ever to attain, that they believe that no social or economic penalty follows in the wake of stupidity and illiteracy. And in this they are right; the trend of our age is to make things as snug as possible for the stupid, the shallow, the idle and the disgruntled.

* * *

General education is still in its infancy. It has had less than a century in which to struggle against long ages of widespread illiteracy, and it is not surprising if it sometimes falters. The miracle is that it has done so well in so short a time. But at present we are in an age when education appears to be free (though in reality very expensive) and is therefore little valued. We wonder sometimes if it would not be a good thing if high school education in Canada were charged for at the price it actually costs, each parent paying monthly for provision of scholarships for poor children, which were held as long as the holder deserved them, desert being measured by results. If education were provided on this basis parents, and probably many teachers, would take it more seriously.

Unter Den Maple

We hate being mean to Toronto, and it is with tears streaming down our face that we record our opinion that the Toronto City Council of 1951 made a collective boob of itself when it allowed Norway Maples to be planted on University Avenue, instead of Red Maples. We would try to stifle this opinion if it were not that Toronto has been so boastful about University Avenue, even referring to it as Canada's Main Street. And as the Ontario Government is putting up some of the money for the beautification of the Avenue, we feel a taxpayer's interest in the matter. Toronto has made a mess of the plan, and it will have to be done again.

It was a fine idea to plant red maples along the Avenue. It is our national tree, and in autumn it is as glorious as any tree in the world. Let Berlin boast its Unter den Linden—a noble avenue of linden trees—and let Paris have its romantic avenues of flowering chestnut; we were to have a fine long avenue of red maples, and we ask nothing better. But Toronto made a mess of it; it planted Norway Maple, which has no colour in autumn, and is a poor tree in comparison with our native maple.

We are not surprised that the trees had to be imported. Trees from woodlots might not have thrived when transplanted, for nursery trees are specially hardened for such transplantings and can bear the shock of it. But surely the time has come when some of our Canadian nurseries are ready to offer red maples for sale? Trees in private and public grounds are in constant need of replacement, and the Red Maple is fine enough to be considered a "specimen tree." It should not be necessary to send to Holland for them where, it appears, they do not know a Red from a Norway Maple.

The shame of the Toronto fiasco lies in the fact that it would have been so easy to get an expert to approve the trees before they were planted. Alderman Belyea—to whom be all honour—had no trouble in getting a learned man to tell him why the trees were a disappointment. It appears that a majority of the Toronto City Council share the too prevalent Ontario opinion that learning is of no value. Their foolishness has reaped its reward in the dull foliage of the Norway Maple.

Terrible News, Chief!

We share the Ottawa Journal's astonishment and sense of Canadian injury in Bruce Hutchison's account of 'Revolt' of the Canadian army. It appears in the current issue of Maclean's Magazine, and is a chapter of Mr. Hutchison's book on Mackenzie King, soon to be issued. In the chapter which Maclean's carries (and into which the Ottawa Journal digs it nails) Mr. Hutchison deals with the conscription issue in 1944, a crisis which he explodes—or, judging from the article, which explodes Mr. Hutchison.

The Journal's comment, which we reprint on this page today, has adequate excerpts of Mr. Hutchison's revelations—we can call them no less—to give the article's tenor to our readers who have not seen the magazine, and we need not cite or rephrase them here.

The story is fantastic, the details lurid, and the whole incident, as related by Mr. Hutchison, is so bizarre as to be incredible—even allowing for the late Prime Minister King's interest in spirits. The Journal is properly reluctant to accept Mr. King as:

"(1) An unscrupulous politician betraying Col. Ralston his old colleague and friend (this is another part of Mr. Hutchison's picture), (2) or as a figure of comic opera seeing troops marching on Parliament Hill to seize power, (3) or as a charlatan trying cunningly to frighten his Minister of Justice to support him, or (4) as one so dishonest or so stupid, or both (a further "revelation" by Mr. Hutchison) as to suggest a member in his Cabinet (Power) who would be in direct disagreement with the Cabinet and yet help enforce the vitally important policies with which he disagreed. Nor will we believe, short of Mr. St. Laurent's personal confirmation, that the man who is Prime Minister of Canada today was, in 1944, the seemingly naive, gullible and frightened figure that Mr. Hutchison suggests as being possible."

Mr. King's lately-revealed fascination with the spirit world did not make this very shrewd politician and deft party disciplinarian a prey to hob-goblins in generals' uniforms. And neither he nor Mr. St. Laurent should be made a prey of author Bruce Hutchison's weird fantasy—for such it seems, unless Mr. Hutchison supports his story by more than figments of imagined dialogue and references to shadow authorities. The article and the book—if it mines the same veins—can do a shocking disservice to Canadian history through their apparent distortion, a mockery all the more serious because from the pen of as able a writer and usually well-informed, well-balanced viewer of the Canadian scene as Mr. Bruce Hutchison.

'I have terrible news for you, Chief,' General McNaughton was supposed to have told Mr. King. Mr. Hutchison has

Young Windsor

Plans are now being discussed in Windsor to celebrate two years hence the centenary of its incorporation as a municipality. Windsor did not become a place until 1854—Peterborough people may be surprised to note. Peterborough celebrated its centenary as an incorporated municipality in 1950. By Peterborough measurement of time, Windsor is just a big baby. The Windsor Star notes that Windsor's 1954 celebration will be a double centenary, for it was in 1854 that the railroad came to Windsor. We shall not claim precedence over Windsor on that count—the railway came to Peterborough in 1854 too—but point out that Peterborough, always an independent sort of place, did not have to wait for rails to hoist itself to corporate identity.

THE AMERICAN SCENE

Peek-A-Boo Lace Of Wild West

By KENNETH HARRIS

THIS TIME last week I stood in a bus station on the edge of the dark, grim, undulating plains of South Dakota, which sweep gradually upwards to the rocky badlands, to the craggy mountains of the Black Hills. In my mind's eye I saw the Cheyenne (Red Indian Tribe) ride again through the vast plain, heard their screams and smelt their war-paint, heard the crackle of the Winchesters as the tiny group of white men fired at the bareback-riding host circling around the knot of covered waggons.

On a nearby bookstall my eye fell on a paper-backed book of Wild Western stories, its cover portraying a big, strong, clean-looking cowboy holding smoking guns and regarding a dead Indian at his feet. I thought it would be fun to read a few of these stories in the very land about which they were written.

TURNING THE COVER, I found the first page taken up with a full-page advertisement. There was a drawing of a young lady wearing a diaphanous nightie with her initials on her hip, and of another wearing black panties inscribed with a large heart in which were the words "I Love You." "There's sheer magic in the breathtaking loveliness of this Chantilly style black lace panties," said the advertisement. "Fetching and fascinating, you wear your heart on your hip with a daring, darling motto, or your personalised initials. The glorious nightie is an inspiring creation that beautifully combines clinging multi-filament rayon with delicate peek-a-boo black lace. The accent is on lovely, lovely you in these glamorous 'personally yours' garments."

Below was a coupon which the reader could use to say whether she wanted nightie or panties; and if she wanted panties, which of the following mottos she wanted: "I Love You," "Forever Yours," "No Trespassing," or "Languorous Curves."

A FRIEND of mine was sitting at a football game being played by one of America's best football teams, the University of Ohio. Suddenly he saw that, from the window of a building beyond the opposite side of the field, a white bedsheet was flapping and heaving in a manner that suggested that somebody was manipulating it. Several people around him also caught sight of it. There was a stir of activity, and in a second or so two young men left their seats and hurried to the exit.

My friend's companion, a professor at the University, explained what was happening. The building was the University hospital, which has a large maternity ward. The house doctors, most of whom are keen footballers, are allowed to watch the games provided they leave their name with the staff.

If there is an emergency, the staff calls them by means of this sheet-waving. Each doctor going to the game receives in advance a special call-sign — two sheets hung out of the third window being a call for Smith, and so on.

The doctors get a double advantage out of it. Not only do they see their football match; in order to see the sheets, they must sit in a special section of the ground, which happens to provide about the best view of the game.

HOWEVER EXCITED people may be getting about, let us say, the prospect of a great scrap in the United Nations this month, the possibility of the atomic bomb being used in Korea, or the election of the wrong people to power in the United States, there are always plenty of others who have their minds on other things.

While many of the inhabitants of the Pacific islands are, for instance, wondering what is going to happen when Japan recovers her pre-war military power, Mr. James Rikuo Hara, of Honolulu, has been perfecting his new mechanical golf stance positioner.

Mr. Hara says that all previous devices invented to teach the proper swing have indicated the positions of the head and feet, but nothing more. Therefore, he has invented a gadget looking like an electric chair—except that it makes you stand up—which as well as controlling the head and feet with octopoid-looking arms, puts a padded belt around your waist and a padded shoulder blade brace around your shoulders.

The body's movements are therefore guided from head to toe, and a bar shows the swing arc that the club should make as it approaches the ball. The attachments are adjustable for size, and the machine is comparatively cheap. If, after using it, you still cannot play golf, then you never will.

EVEN WHEN the outside temperature is down to thirty degrees below zero, it is easy to keep warm in an American motor car, since any popular make can be fitted with an electric heater. Now, Americans are going to be able to keep cool when the outside temperature is one hundred and five degrees—that is, if they can afford the five hundred dollars or so which it will cost to have an air-cooling plant fitted to their car, and if they remember not to open the windows.

Three of the makers of the more expensive types of car have announced that they can supply air-coolers with their 1953 De Luxe [illegible] as much room as a weekend suitcase, being fitted into the luggage boot of the car. Control will be by a button on the dashboard; power will come from a six-volt battery; temperature will be governed by a thermostat.

Tests in Arizona and South Texas, where the weather can be as hot as Hades, have shown that the conditioner can make the temperature of a car pleasantly cool after five hundred yards of driving, even when the car has been parked in sun hot enough to make the metal steering wheel too hot to grasp with an ungloved hand.

GENERAL EISENHOWER has just completed fifty short television films with which his campaign managers plan to saturate the national T. V. programmes during the last three weeks of the campaign. His bald head gave the producers some difficulty, since, apparently, it shines with unusual brilliance: whenever he looks down at his notes it sends powerful rays back into the camera. Now, on television shows, therefore, he wears pancake make-up on the top of his head as well as on his face.

SAME ACT—NEW FRONT

History Into Comic Opera

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

MR. BRUCE HUTCHISON, a journalist and author of note, has written a biography of Mr. Mackenzie King which he calls "The Incredible Canadian", and Maclean's Magazine reprints a chapter from it entitled "'Revolt' of the Army".

In this chapter Mr. Hutchison tells of the so-called Crisis over conscription in 1944, of how Mr. King, fighting against conscription, dismissed Col. Ralston and replaced him with General McNaughton, how General McNaughton failed to get the volunteers he had promised, and of how, at the 11th hour, Mr. King, facing resignations from his cabinet, right-about-faced to bring conscription.

Mr. Hutchison, who can make words come alive, tells part of his story vividly and factually (though with some inaccuracy in detail), but when he comes to giving Mr. King's real reason for his sudden, dramatic reversal, he resorts to "revelations" which seem utterly fantastic, reduces history to the level of mystery magazine fantasy. Briefly his story is that Mr. King reversed himself because General McNaughton had warned him of a military putsch, of a plot or plan by the military to seize control of the Government. Thus:

"A telephone call to King's office had changed the nation's history in the space of a few moments. The great coup was under way.

"According to King's account, McNaughton telephoned him about noon and, in a voice hoarse with shock, exclaimed: 'I have terrible news for you, Chief! What I must tell you will come as a body blow.'

"The military commanders of Canada, said McNaughton, no longer would accept the responsibility of directing the army unless conscription were applied immediately.

"A body blow. Perhaps a death sentence on the Government. So thought McNaughton.

"Even King (according to his own version) could see no hope of survival. He hung up the telephone knowing, he said, that he no longer faced a political crisis, or even a racial schism, but the disintegration of the army, a military uprising which might seize the civil power, a state of national anarchy, nothing less.

"The secret was too terrible for communication to the Cabinet. Only St. Laurent could be told, for now St. Laurent had become the key to everything. Standing together, King and St. Laurent might still fend off anarchy —provided St. Laurent would accept conscription, to which anarchy now seemed the certain alternative."

Before continuing with Mr. Hutchison's lurid prose, sounding all the world like Sabatini, a few questions. Mr. Hutchison writes of "Mr. King's own account" and of Mr. King's "own version". To whom did Mr. King give the account? To whom commit the "version"? In other words, from what record, public or private, is Mr. Hutchison quoting or does he believe he has the right or the licence to put Mr. King in a fantastic, ridiculous light without quoting from anything—without a single witness?

◇ ◇ ◇

AND WHY should Mr. King, in the agony of despair which Mr. Hutchison attributes to him, turn to Mr. St. Laurent as "the key to everything", as the one man who might "still fend off anarchy" providing he "accepted conscription?" Mr. St. Laurent, on Mr. Hutchison's own say-so, had already accepted conscription—had said he would support it if, after a trial, General McNaughton could not get volunteers! It was King, not St. Laurent, who was resisting conscription.

Mr. King turned to St. Laurent, anyway. Thus:

"Called to King's office and told McNaughton's news, or King's version of it, St. Laurent replied bluntly that the military must be resisted. Otherwise, he said, Canada was reduced to the status of some South American banana republic where the officer class could alter governments at will. The Cabinet must fight the uprising.

"'Fight?' King retorted. 'Fight with what? Our bare hands?'

"The calm man from Quebec was incredulous. Civil government threatened by a military putsch? It was impossible. Yes, said King, but true. There could be no doubt about it. He had McNaughton's word. And if the army now seized actual control of the Government St. Laurent must ask himself whether the civil power could ever recover. There was only one possible thing to do, said King—the Government, by yielding to the demand for conscription, could maintain its outward direction of events and, when The Crisis passed, could master them again.

"As St. Laurent listened in silence, King felt himself standing, with his secret, on the lip of bottomless chasm and black night. Whether St. Laurent believed King only St. Laurent knows. Whether King believed himself, forced himself to believe or was acting a part unbelievable or grotesque only King knew."

What we ourselves would like to know is how Mr. Hutchison knows that this meeting between Mr. King and Mr. St. Laurent, with its alleged nightmarish nonsense, actually took place? Only two men were present. Did Mr. King tell Mr. Hutchison what he said to Mr. St. Laurent, make himself out to be a figure of comic opera? Or did Mr. St. Laurent tell it to Mr. Hutchison, represent himself as the gullible victim of Mr. King's fantasies?

For this tale is actually harder on Mr. St. Laurent than on Mr. King. Mr. King is made out merely as frightened by hobgoblins or as a cunning actor; Mr. St. Laurent is depicted as hopelessly naive and gullible and (by suggestion at any rate) craven—as the man who was so naive or so easily frightened he could be got to go along for conscription by Mr. King's dark visions of the mild General "Ken" Stuart, with his headquarters "brass", and General Pearkes with his Zombies (what other troops were in the country?) marching upon Parliament Hill to put Mr. King and Mr. St. Laurent in the tower and taking over the Government!

Of sterner stuff we imagined Mr. St. Laurent.

PROCEEDS MR. HUTCHISON:

"Never before, except perhaps on the September dawn of 1759, when Montcalm faced Wolfe on the river bluff, had two men so held the fortunes of Canada in their hands. King and St. Laurent parted, only half aware of their power and with no assurance that it would outlast the day. By agreement neither of them repeated McNaughton's secret.'

We should like to hear Mr. St. Laurent's own version of this—preferably perhaps at a Press Gallery dinner. For it seems to us that sort of nonsense suited only for such nocturnal mirth.

And what, in the end, came of all Mr. Hutchison's high drama—or comic opera? After Mr. King had saved himself from barehanded battle at the barricades and came meekly to Parliament with conscription, the thing that was going to "split the nation irreparably" and bring all sorts of unspeakable evil, what happened? Nothing except that Quebec accepted conscription without a murmur. What had come through all of Mr. Hutchison's weeks of agony and threatened cataclysm and of politicians betraying and being betrayed, plus alleged unbelievable melodrama, was the quiet consequence which would have come in any event, and which certainly would have come if Mr. King in the first place had accepted Col. Ralston's proposed time-limit on voluntary recruiting.

Mr. King, plus a few timid politicians, had been wrong all along. There had never been a Great Crisis, and Mr. St. Laurent reasonable man that he is, was always willing, and clearly felt Quebec would be willing, to accept conscription with proof that the voluntary system must fail. There was no "political catastrophe," much less a national one—not a sign at any time of Mr. Hutchison's "chaos".

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. . . . In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him. Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins. (I John 4:7, 9, 10.)

◇ ◇ ◇

For when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly. For scarcely for a righteous man will one die: yet peradventure for a good man some would even dare to die. But God commandeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

Much more then, being now justified by his blood we shall be saved from wrath through him. For if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life. And not only so, but we also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement. (Rom. 5:8-11.)

Tough Freight Rate Battle Coming On New Charge Basis

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the toughest of Canada's freight-rate fights is brewing up over a railway proposal to set a new basis for figuring rail charges.

The railways' move, which could spring a big freight-rate increase, will be fought by the governments of eight provinces.

The railways have asked the Board of Transport Commissioners which regulates the carriers, to lay down a new concept for the setting of rates. It would be based on giving the Canadian Pacific Railway a return on its investment. It also could result in a jump of about 30 per cent in freight tolls.

That would add about $150,000,000 a year to the national freight bill.

The eight provincial governments that have been opposing the sucession of freight-rate increases since the war—all except Ontario and Quebec—have served notice officially that they are going to battle the change.

COMPLEX FIELD

In the complex field of freight rates, it boils down to the question of whether the Transport Board should set up a new "yardstick" for the creation of freight rates.

The board uses the financial requirements of the C.P.R. on a current basis. Now, the C.P.R., with the concurrence of the other railways, asks that the board take into account the money invested in the Canadian Pacific's railway enterprise and set a rate of return that the company should have on this investment.

The company's suggested investment base is about $1,140,000,000. It proposes a return on that of 6½ per cent, or about $68,000,000 a year. That compares with a return of $37,700,000, estimated by the company as what it will now have left yearly under current conditions to meet fixed charges, dividends and surplus.

"COOL CONTROL"

TABLE TENNIS SHOTS

1 The Smash: Usually taken on the forehand, close to the table. Intercept ball at top of its bounce and hit forward and downward with hard, flat swing. Follow-through brings arm across body. Always keep eyes on the ball.

3 The Drop Shot: Played close to the table. Intercept ball forehand or backhand, just after it bounces on table, taking it with blade of bat slightly laid back. Stroke ball easily, laying it just over net in opponent's court. This shot must be controlled for effectiveness.

Yes, it's control that counts in table tennis as in every sport — control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every move and moment, lies the answer to better results.

Ontario Production Down On Almost All 1952 Fruits

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's $50,000,000 fruit-growing industry hit some rough weather in Ontario and some of the other provinces this year, cutting into production of apples, pears and grapes

Ontario's production was down on almost all fruit fronts, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday. British Columbia, recovering from the 1949-50 frost damage, showed the biggest increases.

With production in Ontario and Quebec sharply down, Canada's apple crop declined by more than 800,000 bushels to 12,785.000 from 13.610,000 a year ago, the bureau said.

This decline, agricultural officials added, virtually eliminates any problem of unsaleable surpluses which has hit the apple industry in the past.

Because of a dollar shortage, the United Kingdom, one-time Canadian apple buyer, will buy no apples from Canada this year. But sales of some 2,250,000 bushels to the United States, 225,000 bushels to other countries, plus domestic consumption and processing requirements will take up almost all output, officials said.

Ontario and Quebec, which together produced about 50 per cent of the 1951 Canadian apple crop, harvested less than 30 per cent this year. Ontario's production slipped to 2,256,000 bushels from 3,511,000 last year; Quebec's dropped to 1,400,000 from 3,100.000.

Output in British Columbia climbed to 7,104,000 bushels from 5,100,000 and Nova Scotia's to 1,695,000 from 1,539,000.

Ontario, by far the country's largest grape producer, turned out 80,316,000 pounds this year, down from 86,708,000 a year ago, cutting Canada's total output to 82,633,000 from 88,602,000. B.C. production climbed to 2,315,000 from 1,894,000.

Canada's pear production slipped to 1,067,000 bushels from 1,225,000 with Ontario's harvest slipping to 524,000 bushels from 563.000 and B.C.'s to 487,000 from 624.000.

Other fruit crops in Canada were up. Production for 1952 with 1951 output in brackets:

Plums and prunes, 699,000 bushels (693,000); peaches, 2,066,000 (1,792,000) apricots, 246,000 (38,000) cherries, 433,000 (419,000) strawberries, 26,307,000 quarts (25,293,000); raspberries, 11,039,000 (10,979,000); Togan berries, 1,430,000 pounds (883,000).

Telegram Writer W. Kendall Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Newton Kendall, member of the editorial staff of the Telegram, died yesterday while having lunch in a downtown restaurant. It was the first day back at work from his vacation.

Born at Rockland, near Ottawa, Mr. Kendall for many years was writer of the "Sideliner," a column on the Telegram's editorial page. He also wrote the feature "Ups and Downs."

He worked in newspapers in Montreal, Toronto and at Ottawa where he once was a member of the Parliamentary Press Gallery.

Ontario Labor Board Rejects 2 Applications

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Labor Relations Board yesterday rejected applications by the United Mine Workers (C.C.L.) and the Ontario Hydro Construction Allied Council, made up of 17 A.F.L.-T.L.C. unions, to act as bargaining agents for Hydro workers.

The council sought to expand its jurisdiction on the basis of an agreement between Hydro and the council covering workers at the new Niagara Falls project.

The double action resulted from an application by the C.C.L. construction workers for bargaining rights at six of Hydro's 34-odd line camps falling within the jurisdiction of a third employees' group—the Employees Association of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario—which appeared as intervener in the hearing.

Fatherly Advice From Magistrate

BROADSTARS, Eng. (Reuters)—A magistrate yesterday gave some "fatherly advice" to an 83-year-old man and his 70-year-old wife whose four-month marriage appeared to be on the rocks

To the wife he added: "Don't nag at him."

Pending a final make-up or break-up, the magistrated awarded Mrs. Agnes Martell 10 shillings a week maintenance from Martell.

She charged her husband—whose two previous marriages had lasted a total of 62 years—with neglect. He counter-charged that she failed to keep their bargain to pool their money.

REVOLUTIONARY NEW SNOW AND ICE TIRE!

"Goodyear's Suburbanite best ever — bar none!" — say taximen, salesmen, private owners.

Here's an entirely new idea in tires for winter driving . . . Goodyear's remarkable new Suburbanite!

This new tire has a radical new design with 1,856 gripping edges. The tire rides through snow, doesn't "saw in". And on ice the gripping edges give more traction than any other tire made. Suburbanite backs up as smartly as it pulls ahead. The flexible cleats clean out snow, prevent packing the treads. Tread-noise is virtually eliminated.

Tests prove that Suburbanite is best in every respect in loose and packed snow, on ice . . . the driving hazards you run into most often in city and suburban driving.

Read what these users† (who tested the Suburbanite during the snowy winter of 1951-52) have to say:

Salesman (Ont.): "During February, when driving in a heavy storm of wet snow, I came upon a taxi equipped with ordinary snow tires. He could not get up a small grade covered with about 4 inches of wet snow. I was able to push him with my car, equipped with Suburbanites, without skidding or wheel slip."

Taxi Manager (B.C.): "I have put about 8,000 miles on these tires in all kinds of going over packed snow, sheer ice and fresh snow. I have no hesitation in recommending Suburbanite for any driver who requires traction over winter roads. Important in taxi work, they are practically noiseless over paved roads."

Police Dept.: "Suburbanites are doing a very good job. All the officers want to drive the Suburbanite-equipped car."

Canadian Business Faces Some Knotty Problems

TORONTO (CP) — Times are good, but some knotty problems are showing up, according to a survey of the Canadian business scene by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

The survey is given in the report of D.L. Morrell, general manager, prepared for the chamber's annual meeting, which starts today with more than 600 delegates attending from across Canada.

On the favorable side, says the report, a 16-per-cent increase in exports this year is indicated; capital expenditures are expected to be 13 per cent above 1951; retail trade "has surged forward after being restricted by credit controls"; and "the current year should extend the upward trend of these basic forces."

NEW PROBLEMS

Nevertheless, the report adds, key problems persist, and others have been developing.

Sales to the United States are below last year and improvement in the total of exports comes from larger exports to the sterling area, it notes.

Against these larger exports to the sterling area, the United Kingdom "is finding it more difficult to increase sales in Canada; and the consequent rise in the sterling area's trade deficit with Canada has evoked warnings.

"The throttling of international trade by world-wide import restrictions and embargoes continues as currency problems mirror balance of payments difficulties.

"Canada's bumper wheat crop brings into still sharper relief the stark challenge which must be faced if we are to hold the vital British and other overseas markets."

Winter outdoor sports are looming, plus chest and head colds. A few hints on how to avoid colds come in an insurance folder. Avoid overheating or sudden chilling; dress for the weather and get wet clothes off as soon as possible. Wash hands well ere eating, don't share drinking glasses, eating utensils or towels. Make sure everything you use is clean. Keep a distance from folks having colds, especially those who don't cover up on coughs and sneezes. Check with your doc from time to time, particularly when a nasty one is coming on. Relax with some recreation, get lots of rest and sleep, and eat a balanced diet. Build up your resistance and you won't have to fight cold through the long winter. You're welcome.

Coach G. B. (Bev) Goulding takes his senior P.C.V.S. grid squad again into the Red Feather tournament in Toronto on Friday. The Collegians clash with Woodstock to open this important rugby competition for provincial high schools. Hamilton Westdale plays Ottawa St. Pat's in the nightcap Friday. T.S.S.S.A. crew plays North Bay in the night opener Saturday, followed by the Niagara victor vs. Etobicoke at the C.N.E. stadium. Bands, cheer-leaders, cream of the grid crop and plenty of color and keen football combine to make it quite a show. P.C.V.S. have been coming fast lately and might well take it all. That remains to be seen.

Lining Up the Minors

Entries will be taken at the re-organization meeting of the Peterborough Minor Hockey Association this Thursday p.m. at eight in the Y.M.C.A. Clubs interested should be represented for these teen-age entries. A nominating committee of Al Watkins, Alex Sinclair, Pat Doherty and Anghs Bradley will bring in a suggested slate of officers to be voted upon at this time. The P.M.H.A. is a very well organized minor puck setup with teams playing a long season at Civic Arena and winners going into O.M.H.A. playdowns. Coaching, ice and discipline are good, as is the equipment used. A far cry from the hit-and-miss hockey played outdoors by kids here years ago. When (and if) our Memorial Centre is built, the kids will have even more time in Civic.

* * * * * *

Along those lines, an exhibition hockey tilt has been lined up for this Friday at Civic betwixt the junior Oddfellows and senior Petes, proceeds going to the P.M.H.A. to encourage the kid puckists. Ray Tanner and George Bennett have been bustling around and came up with a TV set to be drawn for by fans at the joust. Other good draw prizes, as well, including boots and skates for girls and boys. It shows that the seniors realize that young talent must be developed to keep the game going, and that the youngsters need help, since they don't draw the crowds O.H.A. teams do. Such interest is a healthy sign for hockey here.

Oshawa Squad Building

Coach Ab Barnes and Manager Wren Blair of the Oshawa Transporters in our O.H.A. senior "B" setup are busy building for the hockey season shaping up shortly. We note where they have signed seven former junior "A" players so far: Ron Nelson, Frank Hooper, Bob Holden, Jerry Scott, Gord Boniface, Jack Thaler and George Samolenko, the latter playing part of last season for the Eagles here. They're also after Ernie Dickens, who saw N.H.L. service on defence with Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Leafs. The Motor Citizens should ice a strong squad, despite the fact they have two senior "B" teams, one playing in a Toronto district loop.

Local lawn bowlers wound it up in style at a dinner-meeting last e'en in the Empress. A fine turnout of men and women bowlers, and the latter were given full credit by President J. D. Fitzpatrick for their part in a successful season. Reports were presented by Secretary F. H. Dearborn, showing the club is in good financial health. Bill Jeffries was in charge of the out-of-town entertainment, and the singsong was conducted by Bob Hendry and Mrs. W. Hepburn, with Mrs. W. Greenslade at the piano. This club attracts a great many top Ontario bowlers to its bigger tournaments. Main business, apart from reports and presentation of trophies and prizes, was the election of these men to two-year terms on the executive: J. D. Fitzpatrick, Harry Beatty, Fred Martin and Laurie Mitchell.

Four Members Selected For Executve Board Of Local Lawn Bowlers

Harry Beatty, Fred Martin, Laurie Mitchell and J. D. Fitzpatrick were voted two-year terms to the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club executive board last night at their annual dinner meeting in the Empress Hotel. About 150 of the 250 members of the club attended the windup session, presided over by club president J. D. Fitzpatrick. It was an enjoyable affair, with the dinner followed by entertainment, speeches, reports, election and the presentation of trophies for the season's play.

Following the dinner, a singsong was conducted by Bob Hendry and Mrs. W. Hepburn, with Mrs. W. Greenslade at the piano. Bill Jeffries introduced the out-of-town talent for the entertainment part of the program, and a lively series of numbers drew rounds of applause from the women and men members of the club.

MINUTE'S SILENCE

President Fitzpatrick called for a minute's silence in memory of members who died in the past year. He then reviewed extensively the season's activities—a most successful one—and praised the ladies' section for its contribution.

Secretary-treasurer F. H. Dearborn made his own report and read the reports of the various committees, and he received a vote of thanks for his efforts during the current season.

Mr. Dearborn was applauded heartily when he reported that popular club official Bob Gamble, unable to be present, was well on the road to recovery after suffering a heart attack at the greens during a summer tournament.

A visiting member from Port Perry spoke, also, and praised the facilities and the organization of the local lawn bowling club highly, saying it was generally regarded as one of the best in the province. He added the note that the greens in Canada did not compare favorably with those in England, Ireland and Scotland, where he had bowled last summer.

CHAIRMEN PRAISED

The various chairmen of committees and those in charge of the tournaments here—with emphasis placed on the bigger competitions like the Liftlock Gold Trophy and the Black Memorial Trophy—received considerable praise for their efforts in attracting capacity entries of top Ontario bowlers to the local greens.

The election of four members for two-year terms to the Board of Directors followed, with Ken Sloan listing the 11 candidates, two veteran members and two newcomers being elected. The board will elect its own officers for the 1953 season.

THE WINNERS

Presentations then followed to the 1952 winners, who were: Club champions—Z. Levine, G. Braund, I. Black and A. Black, skip; No. 1 group winners—C. McIntyre, H. Girven, Dr. Fulford and T. Snowden, R. Whalon and R. Dyer, skip; second, H. Girven, H. J. Wood and F. Oxley, skip. Tournament trophies were also presented.

mings, F. Worsencroft and W. Saunders, skip.

Club singles—G. Wilshaw, first, A. Black, second; novice singles—first for Examiner Trophy, Z. Levine, second W. R. Weese, third S. Ginrod, fourth J. W. Carroll; Review trebles, main event, first J. Bruce, E. Martin and F. Martin, skip; second, C. Benson, F. Reed and T. Ryan, skip; consolation—first A. Jackson, C. Williamson and M. Fletcher, skp|; second, S. Jones, W. Jones and R. Knox, skip.

Oshawa Senior B's May Sign Ernie Dickens As Defenceman

OSHAWA. — The newly-organized Oshawa Smith Truckmen preparing for their opening game in the O.H.A. Senior B Eastern Ontario group, have signed seven former Junior A players and expect to add an ex-N.H.L. defenceman to their line-up soon.

Manager Wren Blair today announced the signing of centres Ron Nelson and Gerry Scott, rightwingers Jack Thaler, George Samolenko, Gord Boniface and Bob Holden and leftwinger Frank Hooper. All are former Oshawa General's players.

Blair also announced that he expects to sign former Toronto and Chicago defenceman Ernie Dickens. Dickens has agreed to the club's terms but has not been reinstated as an amateur.

The team, coached by ex-Oshawa and T.H.L. player Ab Barnes, who will also play defence, will open at home Thursday, Nov. 6, against Kingston Frontenacs, one of five other teams in the group. That game will be the first senior hockey in Oshawa in six years.

Thursday night home games have been scheduled but the team hopes to be able to shift to Sunday afternoons before the end of the season. The O.H.A. has granted permission to do this if Oshawa legalizes Sunday sport this season. A petition requesting a plebiscite is being circulated.

Dodgers, Cincinnati Take League Fielding Honors

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds in the National League and New York Yankees and Washington Senators in the American came away with the 1952 individual fielding honors.

Final fielding averages compiled by The Associated Press show that the Dodgers contributed third baseman Billy Cox, catcher Roy Campanella and outfielder Duke Snider to the list of National League defensive leaders while the Redlegs' top men were first baseman Kluszwski, second baseman Grady Hatton and outfielder Bob Borkowski.

Gil McDougald, third baseman, and outfielder Gene Woodling represented the world champion Yankees in the junior circuit Washington also placed two men, first baseman Mickey Vernon and outfielder Jim Busby.

Cox posted a .972 mark, committing only eight errors in 286 chances.

ONLY FOUR ERRORS

Campanella made only four miscues of 726 for a .994 slate. Snider's .992 average was second only to Boston's Sid Gordon's .996. The Duke had only three errors chalked up against him all year.

Kluszewski now has topped the league two years running. At .993 he was one point under his average of last season. His '52 record shows 1,190 chances with only eight boots.

Hatton, a converted third baseman, flubbed six opportunities to head the second sackers with an impressive .990 mark.

Obtained from Chicago Cubs last year, Borkowski had a fine year on defence with 267 chances and only three errors for .989.

Woodling, the A's leading outfielder with .996, was charged with only one bobble of 251. In 1951, he had two errors and finished in a triple tie for the No. 1 spot.

Vernon, the only other American Leaguer to repeat, had 1,416 chances for a .993 slate. He fielded .994 last year.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

This is the story of the little girl who slept.

Her name is Gladys Jeannie Priestly, a swimmer from the suburbs of Montreal, youngest athlete ever to make a Canadian Olympic team, for Gladys was only 14 years old when she was named to carry Canada's colors into the Helsinki tank.

She didn't win anything there, but Olympic officials will recall for a long time the calm approach of this pretty miss to the Olympic selections.

It was the night the Canadian Olympic selection committee was making the final choices for the Olympic teams. The swimmers and track field athletes paced their hotel corridors

Shortly after three o'clock in the morning, results of the swimming committees meeting were announced, with Jeannie winning a berth on the four member girls team. Coach Malcolm Ross thought she would be overjoyed to hear the news. He awakened her, but Jeannie merely murmured sleepily: "Izzat so?" and fell back into slumber.

One of the youngest swimmers ever to compete in the Olympic was Jeannie. Though she had turned 14 only a few days before the three-day title meet at Toronto from which Olympic selections emerged, she splashed to four junior Canadian records in three free-style events. In the 200-yard free style she set a new National mark in the afternoon heats and then broke that record again in the finals at night.

Her time in the 100-yards free style and 300-yards free style were faster than the Senior records. Since returning, she has smashed several Quebec provincial tank marks, and won the Canadian National Exhibition 100-yards free style, defeating Joan Campbell who was right up with the leaders of the women's 3-mile professional swim shortly before.

The youngest daughter of Verdun police captain Ray Priestly is a swim natural since she was paddling in the water by herself at one year old and while competing in a tots meet at the age of ten she was spotted by Malcolm Ross who asked her parents if he could train her.

Train her he did, but aquatic students will tell you that 10 years is a ripe old age to start on a swimming career. By then, say experts, the swimmer has missed the championship boat. A little girl from India named Saha, competed at the Olympics and she was only 12. Barbara Stark of Berkeley, Cal., was the youngest American at the Olympics and she had reached the ripe old age of 15.

Things Back To Normal With Wings Heading List

MONTREAL (CP)—Things seem to be getting back to normal in National Hockey League team standings with Detroit Red Wings, league champions for the last four years, heading the list with eight points, made up of three wins and two ties. Normal, too, is the fact that Montreal Canadiens are hot on Detroit's heels with seven points from three victories and one tie.

Not quite so normal, perhaps, is the fact that Chicago Black Hawks, pace-setters a week ago, and in the doldrums last year, are also in second place with three wins and one tie for seven points.

Toronto Maple Leafs follow closely with five points—two wins and a tie—with Boston Bruins one point behind with one victory, two ties recorded.

KENNEDY TOPS SCORERS

Ted Kennedy, Toronto's spark-plug centre, leads the individual scoring race with nine points, made up of a pace-setting five goals and four assists.

Ted Lindsay and Metro Prystai, both of Detroit, follow with eight points each, Lindsay with four goals and four assists and Prystai with three counters and five assists.

Gordie Howe, scoring leader the last two seasons, follows with four goals and three assists for seven points.

Sugar Jim Henry, Boston net minder, has the best record among goalies, allowing only six pucks past him in four games for a 1.50 average.

Terry Sawchuk of Detroit and Al Rollins of Chicago have one shutout each.

League badman is still Ted Lindsay with 30 minutes—half of one game—in the cooler in only six games played.

Propose Cut In Players From 64 To 16

DETROIT (AP)—Match play in the Professional Golfers' Association tournament would be cut from 64 to 16 players in changes proposed to the P.G.A. by the club that will be host to its 1953 tournament from July 1 through July 7.

The Birmingham Country Club voted yesterday to ask the P.G.A. for a new tournament set-up. It got support from the Michigan P.G.A. chapter.

It proposes that the defending champion and the 15 low scorers in four days of medal play covering 72 holes compete in four rounds of match play in the final three days.

Now the defending champion and 63 low scorers in two days of medal play over 6 holes compete in five days of match play for the championship.

A major reason advanced for the change is to guarantee the appearance of top-flight stars for four days and thus increase the tournament box office take.

18 Tournaments For Pro-Golfers

CHICAGO (AP)—A schedule of 18 tournaments has been lined up for the annual winter tour of professional golfers.

The 1953 tour is the longest ever mapped. It starts with the Los Angeles Open Jan. 2-5 and continues through the Charlotte Open April 16-19.

The Professional Golfers' Association of America yesterday announced the following schedule:

Jan. 2-5—Los Angeles Open; 9-12—Bing Crosby pro-amateur, Pebble Beach, Calif.; 13-18—San Diego Open; 22-25—Phoenix Open; Jan. 29-Feb. 1—Tucson Open; Feb. 5-8—El Paso Open; 12-15—Texas Open, San Antonio.

Feb. 19-22—Rio Grande Valley Open, Harlingen, Tex.; Feb. 26-March 1—Houston Open; March 5-8—Baton Rouge open; 12-15—St. Petersburg Open; 16—La Gorce pro-amateur, Miami, Fla.; 17-18—Seminole pro-amateur, Palm Beach, Fla.; 20-23 — Jacksonville Open; 25—Aiken pro-amateur, Aiken, S.C.

March 27-29—Greensboro Open; April 2-5—Wilmington Open; 9-12—the Masters, Augusta, Ga.; 16-19—Charlotte Open.

Rangers Call Up Fourth Guelph Man

NEW YORK (CP) — New York Rangers, still looking for their first National Hockey League victory this season, yesterday called up a fourth man from Guelph Biltmores, their farm team in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series.

Dean Prentice is the latest acquisition in the attempt to bolster the sagging Rangers who open their home season against Boston Bruins tomorrow night.

Prentice, 20-year-old forward, joins Harry Howell, a defenceman, and Andy Bathgate and Ron Murphy, forwards, who came up during the weekend.

Addition of this quqartette gives the Rangers the youngest squad in team history with an average age of 23. The team now has 11 rookies or second-year men.

L.W.S. Players Split Total Of $43,611

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Players who participated in the Little World Series split $43,611, the American Association announced today.

Rochester club, representing the International League, collected $1,219. Twenty-three players shared in the division.

Kansas City of the American Association awarded shares to 25 players, each receiving $748.

Rochester won the playoff, four games to three.

Total receipts for the Series were $108,757. Attendance totalled 67,892.

Central Victorious

Central blanked Grove 3-0 yesterday in senior school soccer at Morrow Park. Play was pretty even till late in the first half when Dinsdale passed to Lustic to bang one in. Grills counted in the second, despite pressure by Grove with Lamers on the jump in goal. Late in the fray, Paul Hum fired one from clear on which the Grove goalie had no chance. Davy, Griffin, and Copping stood out for Grove; Armstrong, Lamers and Hum were best for the winners.

Grove: Davy, Bailey, Keene, Casey, Merritt, Griffin, R. Wood, Hargreaves, Simmons, Patterson, Copping, Heard, Ellwood.

Central: Lamers, Barclay, Aulbrook, Sorrie, Armstrong, Downer, MacNaughton, Tunnicliffe, Simpson, Hum, Mac, Grills, Ross, Lustic, Dinsdale, Gray, Mills, Robbins.

SEE THE WORLD—Canadian sailors get around. In a typical summer they show the flag in the north and south Pacific, north and south Atlantic, off Korea and in the Mediterranean. Submarine Defence Been Allotted To Canadian Navy

Canada's senior service, the navy, is being rebuilt into a powerful anti-submarine force—the role it played in the Second World War. But building modern ships of war is a slow, costly job, and the navy's share of Canada's $5,000,000,000 rearmament program is behind schedule. Navy expansion plans are described in this story, one of a series on defence.

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Royal Canadian Navy has set itself a tough target: To be the anti-submarine expert of the Atlantic Pact powers.

Its ambition is backed by a $250,000,000 shipbuilding program and a gradual increase in manpower.

The pendulum swung heavily in favor of the submarine at the end of the Second World War when "schnorkel" apparatus came into service, permitting submarines to "breathe" indefinitely underwater. The western powers have been seking new anti-submarine devics ever since—aware that Russia is plunging heavily on modern submarines.

Canada is staking her aspirations on a new type of ship, a $15 000,000 escort vessel, low-slung and of destroyer size, supposed to be more effective against the submarine than any other warship.

CONSTRUCTION DELAYS

The trouble is that the 14 escort vessels on order still are under construction in seven Canadian shipyards, that they have been considerably delayed, and that the first won't be in service until late 1953 or later. Meantime the navy is relying on modernized destroyers and other ships.

It once hoped to have seven of the escort vessels in service by the end of the three-year defence program in April, 1954. That now is a lost hope.

Even the destroyer Algonquin, being rebuilt as a prototype of the escort vessel, won't be ready until 1953 to give the navy a chance to try out this spearhead of its 100-ship "fleet of tomorrow."

The delays reflect the growing complexity of modern arms, the advances in electronic devices which make ships, planes and guns more difficult to construct, more costly, harder to handle.

NO COMPARISON

A senior official of the Defence Production Department said recently:

"They think this new CF-100 jet fighter plane is involved and loaded with radar and other electronic devices. It's chicken feed compared to one of these new escort vessels."

The development of electronic apparatus to search out and destroy submarines and guide and fight a ship is one of the major naval phenomena of the last 10 or 12 years. Before the war the navy had no electrical branch. Today it absorbs nearly 10 per cent of naval manpower.

More and more specialists must be trained. It takes 15 months to train an ordinary sailor now, and three years to train a technician.

The navy's training falls into two broad categories—recruit and operational. Right now the training generally is in what senior officers call a fairly elementary stage. There are operational units but it will be months before the fleet is trained and ready for anti-submarine functions.

NEED TECHNICIANS

Its manpower, 10,487 at Jan. 1, 1951, now is approaching 15,000—the number considered necessary to allow a modern navy to strike a balance between the two types of training. Navy officials say they are satisfied with type of recruits coming in, but there are shortages of some types of technicians and in naval aviation. It is hoped to overcome the deficits during the winter. A recruiting drive is planned, with teams operating coast to coast.

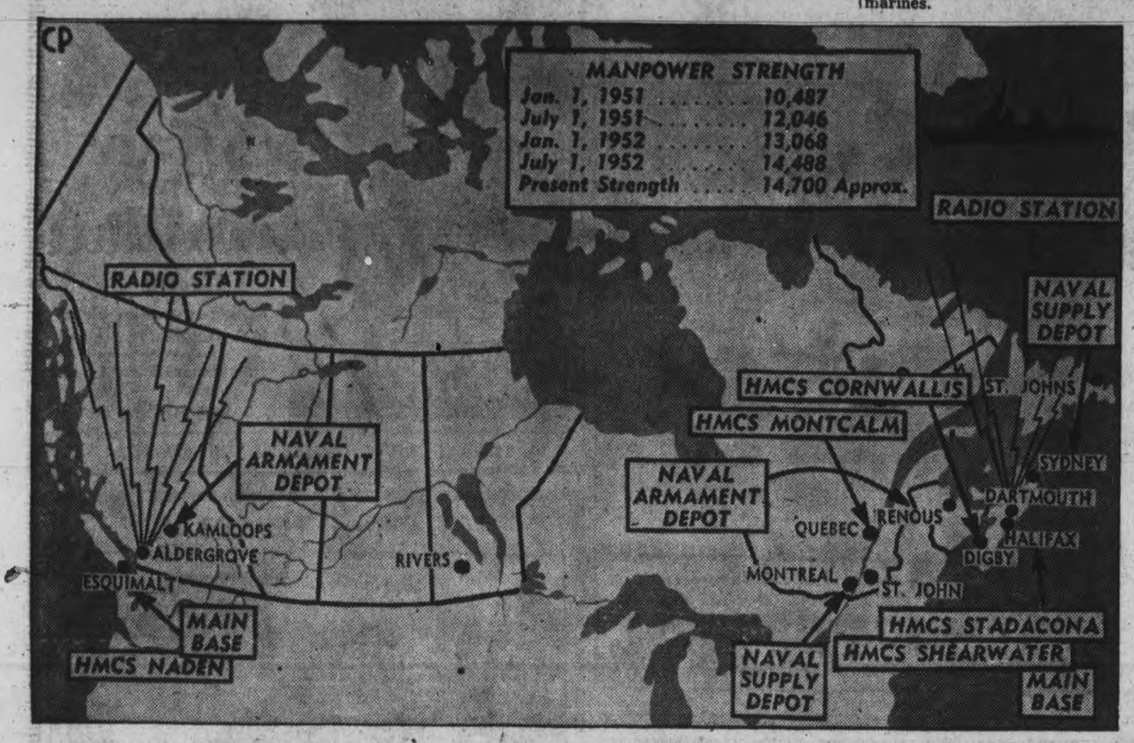
Korea hangs on to disturb the training balance.

Five destroyers—the bulk of those in active service—have been rotating on the Korea commitment, three overseas, one coming home, one preparing to go over. At fighting strength, they absorb enough men to run eight training ships.

This is another blow to Canada's anti-submarine plans. Korea gives good operational training but not in the field in which Canada wants to specialize.

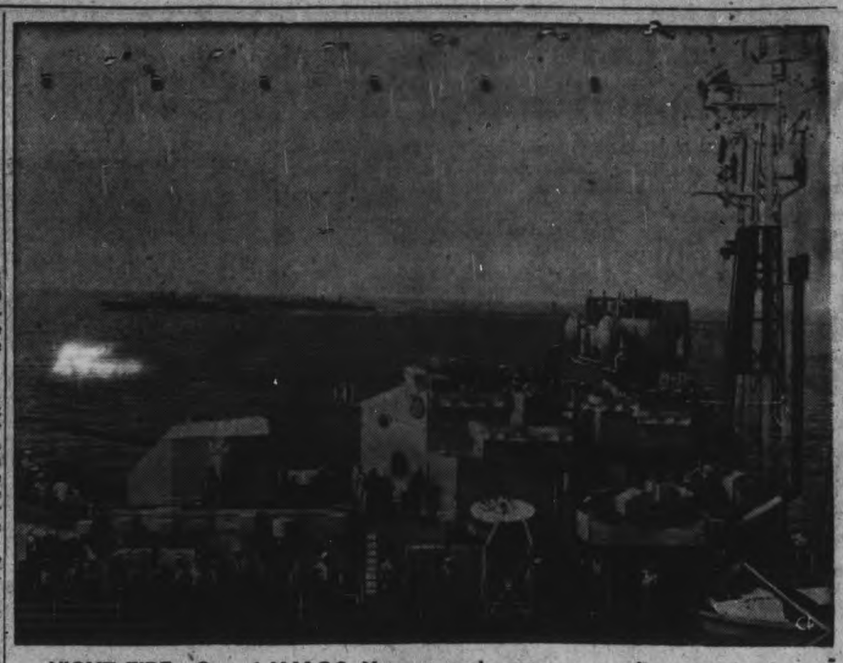
Korea also explains why Canada was able to spare only the aircraft carrier Magnificent, and, for a time, the cruiser Quebec, for Atlantic Pact training abroad this year—although most ships on the Atlantic coast are nominally under N.A.T.O.

N.A.T.O. SUB-COMMAND



Halifax has become a N.A.T.O. sub-command. If war came it would be operational headquarters for defence of a huge area of the northwest Atlantic. That would be Canada's sea.

War plans don't call for major functions in the Pacific.



At present the navy has the Magnificent and a four-squadron air arm; two cruisers, the Quebec and Ontario; 11 destroyers, some in reserve; and a variety of frigates and minesweepers. The 100-ship navy of 1954 envisages the carrier —a new one is on order from Britain but not due for service until 1955—the two cruisers, the destroyers, the anti-submarine vessels and more minesweepers and frigates.

By this time next year, new and revamped ships should be coming into naval service in fair numbers.

The navy has also just placed orders for another new type of craft: A small, fast vessel capable of taking on submarines in and around Canadian harbors. And it is taking steps to find out whether the helicopter may be a valuable new ally in the endless battle against the submarine.

NAVY EXPANDS—The Royal Canadian Navy has a $350,000,000 ship-building program and a manpower increase under way as part of its target: to be the anti-submarine expert of the Atlantic Pact nations. Training establishments in its extensive programs are indicated on the above map. Manpower strength has increased to 14,700 from 10,487 on January 1, 1951. With emphasis on electronic devices aboard ships more and more specialists must be trained. It now takes 15 months to train an ordinary sailor and three years to train a technician.

NIGHT FIRE—One of H.M.C.S. Nootka's twin 44mm. guns fires at an enemy truck convoy proceeding at night along a coastal road on the east coast of Korea.

Wet Leaves Trap Train To Kinmount

LINDSAY.—The train for Kinmount huffed and puffed, but couldn't make the grade out of the Lindsay station.

It happens every year. Leaves fall on the tracks and when wet, make a slippery surface that the steel train wheels cannot grip.

Monday, two engines, one pulling and one pushing from the rear were needed to haul the coaches over the hump.

While it was pushing, the rear engine shot steam over the tracks behind it, to clear them of leaves. It worked fine, but a newly-washed car parked near the tracks was plastered with mud and leaves.

Lost Its Head

LINDSAY (ENS)—The two halves of a war-time house, which are being transported by truck to North Bay after being sold in Peterborough last week, are not faring too well on their trip. P.C. Percy Mark of the Lindsay police who escorted the trucks bearing the house part of the way through the town and its outskirts, reported today that the roof of one of the sections had blown off before noon today and was replaced as quickly as possible. He commented, however, that the house was taking a bad beating from the bumping of the truck over the highway.

City Industries Reassessed During Winter

Re-assessment of city industries for the 1953 tax roll was started today by two fieldmen from the Charles Warnock Co., Toronto.

Between now and early in the spring, these two men will assess values of the city's plants and report their findings to city assessor J. E. Davis. The firm's contract with the city has an April 30 deadline on it.

COMMERCIAL BUILDINGS

Besides their work on the manufacturing facet of the city, they will re-assess several downtown commercial buildings. From values set by them, Mr. Davis and his staff will be able to re-assess the remainder of the business section.

The two fieldmen, Arthur Webster and Douglas Balleine, both of Toronto, started their first job, the C. G. E., this afternoon. They estimate it will take them two or three weeks to complete their assessment of the city's largest firm.

Council To Lay Cinder Paths On 3 Streets

As temporary walks of safety for school children in the western section of Claraday Ward, city council decided Monday night to spend $2,000 for the laying of cinder paths on three streets.

The material will be crushed gravel if City Engineer Chalmers cannot obtain a supply of cinders. This work is to be done on the west side of Park St. south, from Brioux Ave. to Erskine Ave., and on the east side of Erskine from McKellar St. to Grove School.

Mr. Chalmers, replying to a question of one of the members in finance committee, said he had laid only one other cinder path since he succeeded R. H. Parsons as city engineer.

It was understood that similar paths would be laid on Rose and O'Connell Avenues, from the present ends of concrete sidewalks to Park St.

This accommodation for children in the new south end of the city was discussed in finance committee, following the session of the council. Ald. T. D. Miller was chairman and all the members were present.

CONCRETE ALTERNATIVE

The $2,000 expenditure will come out of the general treasury, and is to be debited to the board of works. The alternative would be concrete sidewalks which would be undertaken only by petition, with part of the cost a frontage charge on property.

Residents of that area petitioned recently for cinder paths in one of the most largely signed petitions to come to the council this year.

Estimates of cost of the cinder path method, quoted by Mr. Chalmers, were: Erskine Ave., $600; Cameron St., $700; and $700 on Park St. and the two stubs on Rose and O'Connell.

A motion by Ald. Burrows, seconded by Ald. Young, recommended that the Park St. walk be laid this season. Its chief purpose is to direct school children of Confederation and St. John's Schools directly to the west side of Park St., and at one crossing, enabling them to disperse from that side to their homes on the streets extending westerly from Park St. It was proposed by Constable Don S. Mackay who is in charge of the new school safety patrols for children.

Ald. Young said the Erskine and Cameron St. walks could be left to next year, after observation of how the Park St. walk

GROUND NOT SETTLED

Someone commented that it would probably have disappeared by then into the ground over the new Park St. drain, that is not yet fully settled.

Ald. Harold Rehill said the Erskine-Cameron walks had been asked of the council before the Park St. petition was received, and should "be done as soon as possible."

"And there is just as much mud over there as on Park St." Ald. J. E. Gillespie commented.

Ald. Dewart said it would be a little easier financing, if only the Park St. work, and the two adjoining streets were done this fall. It meant the difference between $700 and $2,000.

"What I am thinking," said Ald. Miller, "is what we'll use for money. It may have to be a deficit."

The Rehill-Gillespie motion carried, authorizing the entire job.

Another by Ald. Gillespie, chairman of the board of works, and Ald. P. J. Anglesey, proposed that the board be given a credit of $2,000 from the miscellaneous account.

Ald. Miller said the council was going to spend money that was not considered in the estimates. "It will have to come from some place."

Ald. Gillespie emphasized that no committee was authorized to spend more than its budget provided, without permission of the council.

COST OF HYDRANTS

Ald. Burrows said he was thinking of the $6,000 estimate for placing extra hydrants at Civic Hospital, "and I'd like to see that done."

The committee split evenly on the Gillespie-Anglesey motion to credit the board of works with $2,000 for the cinder paths, leaving the decision to Ald. Miller as chairman.

"This cost will have to be shown, if necessary, as an overdraft of the board of works," Ald. Miller said. "I am voting nay." The motion was thereby defeated.

"If we have an over-expenditure in the board of works someone looking into the financial statement might say we have a poor engineer because we might show a deficit at the end of the year," Ald. Gillespie said, "because we didn't keep within our estimates and budget."

"I don't think anyone would say that," Ald. Miller remarked.

Assessor Team Puts Value On Provincial Buildings

Provincial assessors making property evaluations under a new act of the legislature arrived in the city today to start estimating values of provincially-owned property in the county. One of the group of four government assessors is T. Reg. Hunter, formerly assessor for North Monaghan township.

Under the new act, the province will make payments to a municipality for government-owned buildings in the city, town, village or township. Previous method was to pay taxes.

FINISH IN NOVEMBER

Averaging a week to a county, three such teams have been touring the province since the beginning of April. They hope to have their work finished by November 15.

The team that is in Peterborough is made up of Mr. Hunter, John Scott, William Kray, Arthur Wheelock, and J. A. Paquet. All are attached to the Department of Municipal Affairs.

Payment to the various municipalities will be made on the basis of the assessment in each municipality. For this reason, spot assessments must be made by these touring assessors' teams.

Smith township is first on the list for this week, since it has the largest concentration of province-owned property—the O.P.P. radio tower, and H.E.P.C. buildings and equipment.

Mr. Hunter said the team expects to be in the county and city for about a week; then they will go on to Victoria county, then back to Toronto.

TORONTO BUILDINGS

Biggest job Mr. Hunter's team has had to date was in York county, which includes Toronto. There, all government buildings—including those at Queen's Park—had to be evaluated, and the job took from April 1 to the middle of July.

The same team also got the tough job of estimating the value of all H.E.P.C. buildings at Niagara Falls; that job took two weeks.

North of Peterborough, in Haliburton county, another assessment team is cleaning up its work. It has just finished Renfrew county, and will return to Toronto about the same time as Mr. Hunter's team.

Britain Almost Free Of F-M Disease

Lord Carrington, joint parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Agriculture, told the House of Lords today that after midnight tonight, if all goes well, there will be only one area still affected by the disease.

Radio In Plows To Help Clear Highways

A two-way radio-telephone connection with snowplows and sanding trucks will be inaugurated in six Ontario highway din November, the Hon. George H. Doucett, Minister of Highways, announced today. The highway network is designed to make winter travelling safer on Southern Ontario's highways.

The system has been used in the Toronto division since January, 1948, and in November will be extended to Port Hope, London, Stratford, Hamilton, Kingston and Ottawa divisions. The two-year program will be rounded out in 1953 by including Chatham and Owen Sound areas.

Peterborough is included in the Port Hope district. Highways and secondary roads as far north as Apsley will receive the new service.

The widened system connecting officials and crews is expected to increase efficiency, reduce winter driving hazards, and add new speed and timeliness to the department's winter road condition reporting service to the public. This daily report on road conditions will also begin November 1.

A total of 108 snowplows, as well as an equal number of sanding and other maintenance vehicles, will be equipped with the radio-telephones in the seven divisions. Connected with Bell telephone exchanges throughout regular wired circuits, highway workers in trucks and plows can be called anytime, no matter where vehicles may be.

Mr. Doucett explained that through widened radio-telephone communication the sanding of highways where menacing glare ice develops will be speeded up. Also during heavy snow storms massing of snow removal machinery at worst points will be possible in minutes rather than hours.

Coming To City

Widespread interest has been raised in the Peterborough area by the announcement that Canon Bryan Green, famed missioner of Birmingham, England, will conduct a Service of Witness at the Brock Arena Thursday night.

The Rev. M. P. Poole, of All Saints' Anglican Church, Peterborough, which is sponsoring the meeting, is expecting that the arena will be filled for the meeting.

Tickets have already been distributed to churches in the archdeaconry outside the city. The archdeaconry extends from Port Hope to Haliburton and Norwood to Port Perry.

Canon Green is well known in England as rector of St. Martin's, the parish church of Birmingham. But his fame throughout the English-speaking world is as a missioner. He paid his first visit to Canada in 1939. And since 1945 he has been a popular missioner in England, Canada and the United States.

He is coming to Canada to lead the Diocesan Mission to be held in the Coliseum, Toronto, October 26 to November 4.

First Of Barbers Arrive For Convention

More than 200 Ontario barbers will invade Peterborough Wednesday when the Ontario Barbers' Association holds its annual convention in the Empress Hotel. Early today the first of the barbers began to trickle into the city. An advance party of 25 is expected to arrive for tonight's opening proceedings at the hotel.

Barbers from Ottawa on the east, the Lakeshore on the south, Windsor on the west, and Sault Ste. Marie on the north will attend. Provincial delegates from British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Quebec will also be present.

The executive, headed by Dan T. Borne of Kitchener, Ontario president, along with Edward Wark of Toronto, secretary, Larry Drain of Toronto, organizer, and Booth Wilson of Toronto, in charge of training barbers, will meet after an informal dinner tonight.

Registration will be Wednesday morning, followed by the opening ceremonies. A lengthy business session including discussions on public relations, training methods, new procedures for barbers already in business and a business course will take most of the morning and afternoon. The annual election of officers will be held in the afternoon.

The convention will wind up with a dinner at which the Hon. Harold R. Scott, minister without portfolio, and Mayor Hugh Waddell will be guest speakers.

Bed Fire Causes $350 Damage

Fire that started in some bedclothing at the home of Claire Stuart of 583 George Street North Monday afternoon caused about $350 damage. Cause of the fire is not known.

The mattress, blankets, pillows and sheets on the bed were all destroyed. The wooden frame bed itself was badly damaged and so was a small table nearby. Rugs on the floor of the upstairs bedroom were ruined and the floor was scorched in a couple of places.

The fire was discovered by Mr. Stuart who entered the house and smelled smoke. Smoke was he noticed some downstairs right away.

Mr. Stuart dashed a couple of pails of water on the smouldering bedding and the fireman finally extinguished the outbreak with a booster line and a five-gallon water pump.

The room will have to be redecorated.

United Nations Day To Be Observed Friday

"The hope of the world centres around the United Nations," said Ald. J. A. Dewart Monday night in presenting a motion authorizing Mayor Waddell to direct attention to United Nations Day, Friday, October 24. The motion was seconded by Ald. H. T. Rehill.

This was the action of the finance committee in response to a letter from William L. Graff, president of the Peterborough branch of the United Nations Association of Canada. Their request to the council proposed the proclamation of United Nations Day to focus the public mind on the importance of the world body in trying to bring the nations to peaceful relations. October 24 is the seventh anniversary of the founding of the U.N.

Auditor Predicts Population To 43,000 In 5 Years Normal Growth; Taxes Up

Tax Debt Expected To Decline By 1958
Special Report Prepared For Mayor
No Attempt To Predict Effect of Annexation

City Auditor Edward Humpage presented to the finance committee of the council Monday night a statement tabulating estimates of Peterborough's population, assessment, capital expenditure, tax rate, aspects of debt and some other details during the next four to six years. Obviously it was a difficult assignment which he carried out at the request of Mayor Waddell, compounded mostly of probabilities as an index of what may be expected in Peterborough's municipal financing during that period to 1958.

Generally, it was intended to be a guide to the councils beginning in 1953. In his brief introduction, Mr. Humpage wrote:

"It is understood that no consideration can be given to abnormal factors such as annexations and exceptional expansions. Therefore, the figures which are given in summary form are based upon normal growth and conditions, and, of course, are prepared from the available facts."

Important words in his horoscope are: "estimates" associated with "normal growth" and "normal conditions". Unpredictable circumstances might substantially alter the Humpage scanning from the present point of view. Essentially, however, it is contemplated on such normalities as the annual increase in population, which he assumed at 800 persons a year.

CAPITAL EXPENDITURES

Capital expenditures in the authority of the council, the Board of Education and the Utilities Commission for the years 1953-4-5 amount to $1,925,000.

City's general debt: incinerator improvements, etc., $200,000 in 1953; plus machinery and equipment $25,000; plus another $25,000 in 1954, for machinery and equipment, totalling $250,000.

Ald. Harold Rehill, chairman of the sanitation committee, commented that, as a probability, expenditure of $10,000 in two years on the interior of the kilns at the incinerator "should give us use up to five years or more."

Assuming that hopeful prospect at the incinerator, and the council is facing the need of increasing capacity for those fire boxes, Mr. Humpage said that capital expenditure might have to be made in building an auxiliary fire department station, or two.

THREE SCHOOLS

Three items of $150,000 for schools were: Western Ave. $150,000 next year; $150,000 in 1954 for a school in the north end; and for Kenner Collegiate $150,000 in 1955. They amount to $450,000.

For the capital account of the Utilities Commission, Mr. Humpage set down $100,000 next year for the waterworks department, and a like amount in 1954; and for the electric department $100,000 a year for 1953-54, totalling $400,000.

Local improvements, chiefly in the board of works, total is $825,000; sewers, pavements, etc., costing $275,000 a year for the three years to the end of 1955. Of that o[illegible] city share of the cost is $150,000 a year, and the frontage charges $125,000 a year.

In those capital expenditures there is no major project. They visualize, in the main, the costs entailed by "general growth and conditions" for such essential services as light, water, streets, schools, and so on.

The next paragraph deals with gross debt, population, etc., for the years from 1952 to 1958 inclusive.

DEBENTURE DEBTS

"Based upon the preceding facts," Mr. Humpage continued, "our debenture debt as of Dec. 31 of each of the following years will be approximately as given below. Any debenture for works in addition to those specified in (1), that is capital expenditures above, or any debentures issued after 1955 would increase the debt. Also an estimate has been made of the population for the same period in order to arrive at the per capita debt."

These are annual figures beginning with 1952:

Gross Debt	Popul.	Per Cap Debt
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
$7,659,500	39,500	$193
$7,580,500	40,300	$188
$7,324,500	41,000	$180
$6,782,000	42,000	$161
$6,254,500	43,000	$145

"Some of the above debt is, of course, self-sustaining."

Mr. Humpage remarked that the gross debt and the per capita debt were important factors in the sale of debentures. And, by that, he meant the price they may be expected to sell at in the money market. He stressed the $194 per capita debt in 1953, saying that it was approaching fairly close to the $200 level, and at that point it was "close to saturation point."

However, there are no prospective large capital undertakings, and presumably the population will continue to increase at the Humpage gain of around 800 a year. In that case, the prospect is for a comforting drop in the per capita debt by 1958.

The next table, No. 3, deals with assessments. Mr. Humpage prefaced it as follows:

"The following amounts have been estimated upon certain facts and assumptions. It is estimated that certain revisions in assessments will probably be made in 1953 affecting the 1954 tax rates, particularly in reference to industrial and commercial assessments, and also allowing for the normal growth in both residential and business assessments."

These annual sums are for the years, again, from 1952 to 1958 inclusive.

Assessment	Per Capita Assess.
$40,000,000	$1,053
$41,500,000	$1,070
$48,000,000	$1,215
$49,500,000	$1,228
$51,000,000	$1,244
$52,500,000	$1,250
$54,000,000	$1,225

Mr. Humpage said Peterborough's per capita assesment for the last

GRID LEADERS UNCHANGED

TORONTO (CP) — Leading positions remained unchanged in the Big Four and Ontario Rugby Football Union scoring parade after weekend games although Canadian-born Tip Logan's third-place spot in the Interprovincial is threatened by import Al Bruno.

Ulysses (Crazy Legs) Curtis of Toronto Argonauts scored a touchdown in the club's 25-6 victory at Ottawa and second-place Hal Waggoner kept pace with a major in Hamilton Tiger-Cats' 21-1 triumph over Montreal Alouettes. Logan, Tiger-Cat kicker, made good on two converts to hold a one-point edge over the Argonauts' Bruno who scored a major.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show Curtis with 55 points on 11 touchdowns and Waggoner with 45 on nine majors. Logan, with three touchdowns, a single and 25 converts, has 41, just one more than Bruno.

Johnny Pont, import with Balmy Beach in the O.R.F.U. gained ground on leader Corky Duchene of Sarnia Imperials. The American went over for two touchdowns in Beaches' 36-0 triumph over Windsor Royals and Duchene scored one major as Imps whipped Brantford Redskins 27-0.

Bill Bewley of Toronto Varsity replaced Ray Truant of University of Western Ontario Mustangs as leader in the Intercollegiate Union. Bewley scored a touchdown and two converts as the Blues whipped Queen's 13-1 while Truant was held scoreless as McGill defeated Mustangs 11-6.

Tax Agreement Lays Groundwork For Better Deal

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost said last night that the federal-provincial tax agreement now before the Ontario Legislature lays the groundwork for study of a "more satisfactory" distribution of taxation fields among federal, provincial and municipal governments.

He urged establishment of a federal-provincial committee to study the Canadian tax structure.

The present five-year agreement was "far from" a solution to provincial and municipal problems, he said in a speech in the CBC's free-time political series "Provincial Affairs."

GREAT IMPROVEMENT

Under the agreement, the province will turn over its personal income and corporation tax fields to the federal government in return for a specified annual payment for a five-year period ending March 31, 1957. It was signed Aug. 29 and came before the Ontario Legislature yesterday for ratification.

Mr. Frost said it was "a great improvement over anything we have previously considered," but added he was sure a better agreement could be reached when present international tensions lessen.

KIMBERLEY, South Africa (AP) Baton-wielding police today dispersed an angry crowd of 300 natives demonstrating outside a Kimberley magistrate's court.

Meanwhile, Justice Minister Charles R. Swart and Police Commissioner Maj.-Gen. J.A. Brink flew to Port Elizaeth to investigate week-end riots there that took a toll of 11 lives.

New Charges Of Falsehood Fly As Election Pressure Grows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Governor Adlai Stevenson launches his final whistle-stop drive today as President Truman takes off on his second-last tour — the governor critizing Republican party policies, the president centring his fire on Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

With election only two weeks away and the pressure of time weighing heavily on tempers frayed by months of intense campaigning, charges and counter-charges of lies, slander and "outrageous flasehoods" flew freely.

Eisenhower, the Republican presidential candidate, travelled through Massachusetts and New Hampshire accusing the Truman administration of "corruption, deceit and shame" and "a mess in Washington."

Stevenson, the Democratic nominee, leaves his Springfield, Ill., headquarters for a last 12-state drive aimed primarily at winning New York's vital 45 electoral votes. He said last night he was having trouble getting Eisenhower to "talk sense about the issues."

Also pressing hard on last-lap drives were Senator Richard Nixon, Republican vice-presidential nominee, campaigning through Missouri, and his Democratic opponent, Senator John Sparkman, speaking tonight at Rocky Mount, N.C.

Eisenhower, reported to be bitter when he toured the area last week, used such words as "lies," "flasehoods" and "distortions."

"HATE" CAMPAIGN

Eisenhower promised an administration that would prevent another depression, an administration that would make the United States strong economically, spiritually and militarily. He referred with increasing bitterness to charges he said the opposition was peddling against him and his party —a "hate and fear campaign", he called it, in which he said he was being accused of being anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic.

The President said yesterday in a statement that he did not call Eisenhower "anti-Catholic and anti-Jewish." He said some Republican leaders are "deliberately distorting" his words.

At the same time, Truman said he was standing by his statement of last Friday that the general's endorsement of some senators who had voted for the McCarran immigration bill showed he was willing to embrace Nazi practices to become president.

Today the President, in a speech prepared for delivery at Jersey City, N.J., said that while the government has een taking "concrete measures" to fight Communism, Eisenhower and the Republicans have been "trying to sow false seeds of suspicion."

Strike Delays Work On Ships

MONTREAL (CP) — A company spokesman said today work on eight ships — six of them being built under government defence contract — will be held up all winter by the strike of 1,500 shipyard workers at Canadian Vickers Limited.

A ninth vessel, destined for commercial use, could be completed if strikers return to work shortly.

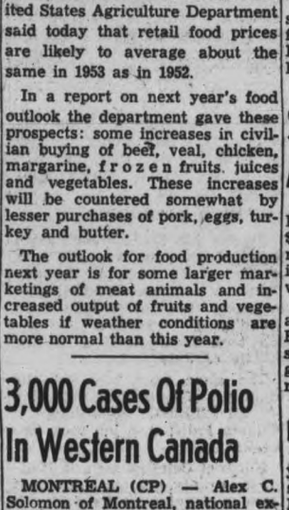
Negotiations between representatives of National Metal Trade Workers Union (C.C.C.L.) and the company will continue today.

See Food Prices Same In 1953

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Agriculture Department said today that retail food prices are likely to average about the same in 1953 as in 1952.



In a report on next year's food outlook the department gave these prospects: some increases in civilian buying of beef, veal, chicken, margarine, frozen fruits, juices and vegetables. These increases will be countered somewhat by lesser purchases of pork, eggs, turkey and butter.

The outlook for food production next year is for some larger marketings of meat animals and increased output of fruits and vegetables if weather conditions are more normal than this year.

Rival Papers In Policy Owned By 1 Man

By MALCOLM PATTERSON

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—It's not at all uncommon for rival newspapers to sit on opposite sides of the fence.

But it is unusual in Lexington, third largest city in Kentucky, where the same man owns both daily papers—The Leader and The Herald.

Rabid political partisans find it difficult to understand the peaceful atmosphere in the building from which both papers are published; especially this year.

The Herald's editor is a United States Senator; the Leader is opposing his bid for re-election.

ALTERNATE PRAISE

Six days a week the Herald beats the drum for the Democratic Party. Six days a week the Leader does the same for the Republicans.

On Sunday, the papers merge into the sunday Herald-Leader. That day they are neutral.

Fred B. Wachs, general manager of both newspapers, is county campaign treasurer for General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican nominee for president, and John Sherman Cooper, Republican candidate for senator.

But Wachs doesn't interfere with the Herald's support of its editor, U.S. Senator Thomas R. Underwood, Democrat.

Onwer is John G. Stoll, an old-line Republican. He is editor and publisher of the Leader and publisher of the Sunday Herald-Leader. Wachs is editor of the Sunday paper.

Lashes Iranian For Speech

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — The Canadian delegate to the International Labor Organization petroleum committee came to Britain's aid today with an attack on Cazem Hassibi, head of Iran's delegation, for bringing politics into the meeting.

Hassibi had charged the British Anglo-Iranian Oil Company and the British government with "continual intrigues," "Intimidation" and "unlawful declarations" in the oil dispute between the two countries.

Canadian delegate R.H. Hooper said that as he listened to Hassibi's speech "there were times when I felt he was skating on thin ice.

"I do not think he broke through the ice but there were times when he got his feet wet.

"If that kind of speech with a political tinge to it is to be injected into these meetings I'm afraid the usefulness of the committee is going to be very seriously hampered," Hooper said.

Exonerate Doctor Of Giving Sleeping Pills

HANNOVER, Germany (AP)—Dr. Martin Brustmann, former physician of the West German Olympic crew, was exonerated yesterday of an accusation that he deliberately dispensed sleeping pills instead of energy tablets to the rowing team.

The charge had been made by the Floersheim-Ruesselsheim club whose eight-oar crew was beaten in a championship race at Duisburg last summer. The men alleged that they took pills from Dr. Brustmann designed to make them peppy but which produced extreme fatigue after they had rowed only 500 yards.

The German Rowing Federation ordered Dr. Brustmann replaced as team doctor for the Helsinki games and conducted an investigation.

The federation announced yesterday that the three-month investigation gave "no cause for reprimand" of Dr. Brustmann.

The Floersheim - Ruesselsheim club was ordered banned from competition for three months for "falsely accusing Dr. Brustmann of unfair practices."

Faces Charge Of Steel Theft

LINDSAY (ENS) — A month-long investigation into the theft from Chatco Steel Company yard of $6 worth of sheet steel led Monday to the charging in Lindsay police court of a 23-year-old Victoria County man with theft. William Begley, the accused, pleaded guilty to the charge, and explained that he thought the steel was in the scrap pile and was expendable.

Constable John Hunter, of the town police, told of finding the steel at a Downeyville garage, where the operator was installing it as a roof on his tow-truck, ignorant of the source of the metal. Begley had apparently brought the steel to the garage with the intention of using it for a roof for his car. Begley admitted as evidence a statement he had made to Constable Hunter when advised that he was charged with the theft. In it he stated that he had thought the steel was in the scrap pile, and had taken it. William Wheatley, plant engineer at the Chatco firm, testified that the steel was not scrap, although it would need reprocessing to make it usable. He commented that "that steel should, however, have been in the scrap pile." He told the court that Begley had been employed by the company until he came under suspicion for the theft, when he was dismissed.

Crown counsel Lorne Jordan pointed out that Begley was the only able-bodied worker on his father's farm, and indicated that he had not been in court on a criminal charge before.

Magistrate Gee warned the accused that he could be sentenced to the penitentiary for the offence of which he was accused, but placed him on a year's suspended sentence, and assessed him court costs of $15.50.

Farmers Own More Cars

QUEBEC (CP)—Canada's farmers own proportionately more automobiles than do urban residents, the Canadian Good Roads Association was told yesterday.

Facts and figures about cars, based on a study made for the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce, were given by Fred B. Lautzenhiser, a Chicago consulting engineer.

The car-ownership ratio showed 70 for each 100 Canadian rural households compared with 46 for city households.

The all-Canada average is 54. About 65 in each 100 Ontario households have one or more cars, highest of any province.

Pleasure driving accounts for only nine per cent of all Canadian motorists' mileage in a year. The average car in Canada is driven 6,200 miles a year, compared with 7,500 miles in the United States.

Reverse Decision

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—City council last night by a 5-to-3 vote reversed its decision to put the city manager question to a vote of electors in December. A change of heart by Mayor Allan Rush and absence of Ald. Gordon Gilbride, proponent of the plan, quashed the proposed bylaw on its second reading.

Declare U.S. Soldiers Have Most Antiquated Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two former intelligence officers asserted yesterday the U.S. soldier in Korea "carries the most antiquated collection of arms" in the United States arsenal and that this is resulting in needless death.

Garrett Underhill, formerly of the army's G-2 section, and Ronald Schiller, a naval air intelligence officer in the Second World War, said this situation prevails although the army has in existence or on the drawing boards weapons designed to replace "the relics" with which the infantry now has to fight.

Writing in the current edition of Look Magazine, Underhill and Schiller said of the U.S. soldier's weapons:

"He fires a 1906 cartridge from a rifle first built in 1928.

"He hurls the same type of hand grenade his forebears used in the First World War.

"His machine-guns were all developed between 1917-19. . .

"Even the so-called 'new' infantry weapon developments, like bazookas and recoilless rifles, date back to the days of the Flying Fortress, which was discarded as a combat bomber seven years ago."

They said Washington is "aroused because our Sabre jet (aircraft) is outclassed, in some respects, by the Russian MiG, but no one seems disturbed by the fact that the Communist 120-mm mortar fires a mile farther than our own heaviest mortar and has inflicted many times more casualties on our own troops than all the Red aircraft put together."

The United States has been lucky thus far in Korea, they wrote, because Red infantry weapons, on the whole, have been no better than U.S. weapons—but "we do not know what unpleasant surprises the Russians may have in store."

The army last night replied that the U.S. soldier "carries a more modern collection of arms than any other foot soldier in the world."

Maj.-Gen. Ward Maris, deputy chief of staff for research and development, said:

"Conjectures regarding the loss of uncounted lives due to obsolescence and failure is extremely destructive criticism unless the authors show that any more reliable weapons exist and can be now produced."

Cannot Send Liquor In Mail

OTTAWA (CP) — The Post Office Department emphasized in a statement Monday that liquor cannot be sent through the mails.

The statement referred to a story based on an Army press release last week which said that the duty-free concession on cigarettes, tobacco and spirits sent to Canadian servicemen in the United Kingdom had been lifted. The Post Office Department said, of the reference to spirits:

"In order to dispel any misunderstanding, it should be noted that liquor is prohibited transmission in the Canadian mails and therefore cannot be included in parcels for any destination, in Canada or abroad. Parcels containing liquor are intercepted and the prohibited contents removed."

THE REV. W. E. KIBBLEWHITE ROVER SCOUT CREW

The first part of the night on Tuesday was spent working on the Den. Then, at about 10:30, the meeting adjourned to the home of Skipper Art Rose for a business meeting.

A large part of the business meeting was spent in making plans for our annual Rover banquet, which is to be held this year on Saturday, November 8, at 7:00 p.m. So, come on all you Citizen Rovers, get that uniform dusted off, and ready for the gala event. Kelvin Johnson is in charge of the food this year. Ken White in charge of decorating, and Dave planned, we will have an excellent speaker. Watch for more news in this column, as our plans are finalized.

Last Sunday and Monday saw Ron Hatton, accompanied by brother Dave, and Ken White, on Ron's eighteen mile hike. The two Rovers tell me that they were very pleased to discover that Ron is going in for light weight camping. From all reports the meals were pretty good. (At least that is what Ron tells us—he was the cook.) It looks like the Crew will soon be having a new Rover.

Harry Wooden is handing out cigars these days. He and his wife have just had a brand new Girl Guide at their house. Congratulations, Harry.

I would like to remind the crew of our service project on Thursday, October 23. We have been asked to collect, set up, and return, the chairs for the mission which is being conducted by Canon Brian Green at the Brock Street Arena on that night. See you all at 6:00 p.m. Thursday night at the Brock. You can leave your girls at home because we won't have time for dancing.

Truman Denies Being Soft In Crackdown On Reds

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)—President Truman today described Republican claims that his administration has been soft toward communism as an "outrageous falsehood."

Truman said the Republican high command has used "every propaganda technique and huge sums of money" to try to put over this "big lie."

He said the government has been taking "concrete measures to fight communism an home and abroad" while Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and his party have been "trying to sow false seeds of suspicion."

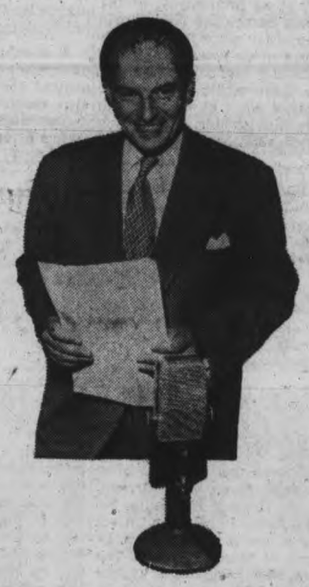
CIVIL RIGHTS ISSUE

Truman made these statements in an address prepared for delivery at Jersey City during a day of campaigning by train and automobile in the industrial east.

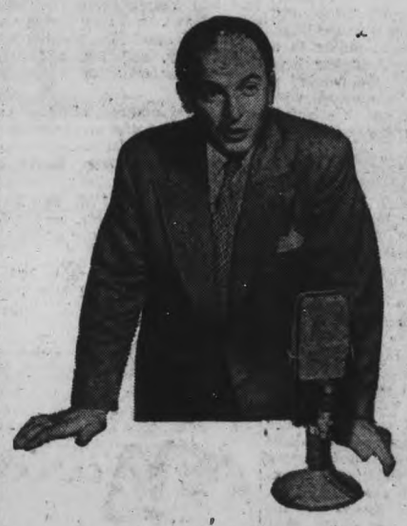
In a subsequent automobile stop at Newark, Truman attacked Eisenhower on the civil-rights issue.

He said in his second prepared address of the day that the Republican nominee does not know "the hard facts of life about this subject."

Truman said Eisenhower promised to end segregation in the District of Columbia (Washington) but "I ought to warn him that the president can't get things done in the District of Columbia simply by waving a wand."



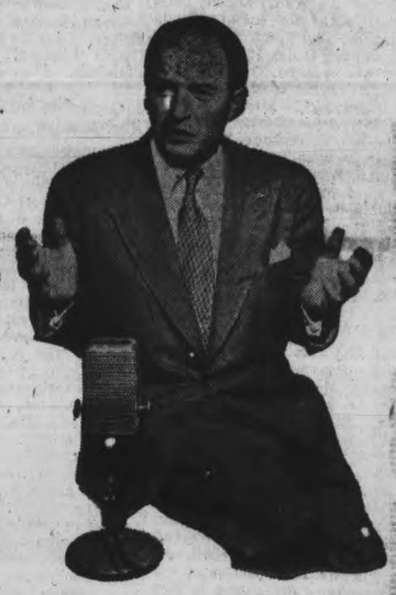
...in my opinion



says John Fisher

... distinguished broadcaster and lecturer

... noted for his deep and inspiring Canadianism



Canadians are fortunate people. We eat better, dress better, live better than most other humans on this old globe. We are developing at an unprecedented pace, and we are only getting started.

It isn't all just luck, either. Canadians don't scare at a hard day's work. We are ready to use our muscles and brains. We know enough to get ready for the greater things to come — to save today to be prepared for tomorrow.

What's more, we are determined believers in freedom — personal freedom as well as national — personal progress as well as national progress — and that, my friends, puts a load of responsibility on each one of us.

It means that we must be ready for opportunities as well as emergencies — be ready to help ourselves individually as well as nationally. Canada calls on us as citizens to show faith in our future — to invest in her. She even shows us how to help by helping ourselves — Canada is selling nest eggs.

Canada has a painless, profitable plan for producing nest eggs. We call them CANADA SAVINGS BONDS. These bonds stretch like a bridge between country and citizen. They demonstrate the democratic way. We can buy them like groceries when we want to, or ignore them. Behind these bonds are people — not policemen.

Canada Savings Bonds are safer than money in the pocket. We are more likely to keep a $100 bond than a $100 bill. And the longer we keep it, the more it pays. Everyday it works for Canada. Later it will work for us — as earnings or education, gadgets or garages, investment or invention, plans or piggy bank. A wise nation is a thrifty nation.

IN MY OPINION there is no better way to [illegible] CANADA SAVINGS BONDS.

If we need the cash we can cash them at a moment's notice at full value plus interest. This is about as close to having your cake and eating it, too, as I know of. It's patriotism with a privilege. And a Canada Savings Bond is your investment in your freedom.

Everyone has something to save for — buy the new

Old Fashioned Tea A "Hit" Many Features To Interest

A thoroughly entertaining event was the Old Fashioned Tea held by the Peterborough Business and Professional Women's Club on Monday evening in the Y.W.C.A. Green Room. It is an annual custom of the club to hold a fall tea but this year's decision to make it an evening tea proved a happy choice.

Guests crowded the tea room throughout the evening, seeming reluctant to leave the very pleasant and friendly atmosphere which prevailed. Too there was an almost unending source of interest for them in the old style gowns and hats which the club members were wearing and in the antique display and decorations around the rooms.

From attics and old trunks of members and friends came these costumes of 50 years ago and some others, just as interesting, of the period just before the first World War. The latter were just at ankle length and more loose fitting but still featuring elaborate stitching and lace trim, while most of the older gowns were at floor length and with slight trains. Hats which completed each costume varied from the Empress Eugenie style with sweeping ostrich plumes to the tiny bonnets trimmed with flowers and lace frills.

Among the antiques was a valuable glass comport which is more than 200 years old, other glass pieces of varying age and china mugs, pitchers, tiny honey plates, etc.

One of the exhibits that usually provoked a ripple of laughter was a nightshirt that was made in 1828 as the bride's gift to her groom. The bride had woven the cloth and also made the garment. Another garment of interest was a waist-pincher corset, said to be 100 years old but looking like the modern strapless brassieres. This corset was worn with the strapless evening gowns of the 1850's. A Swiss lace trimmed camisole was displayed by the lady who made it for her wedding 50 years ago.

A number of priceless antique ornaments were to be found around the tea room. There was also much interest in a modern made clock which contains the figure of an old fashioned lady in her chair, rocking as the clock ticks.

Privet branches made colorful decorations and there were snowberries and haws among them in places. Silk covers on the mantel and piano were very old and formed the background for more decorations and old fashioned candlesticks.

The tea table was laid in the old fashioned way with a plain white damask cloth and the centrepiece was an interesting china ornament filled wtih yellow, bronze and white chrysanthemums. Antique china candalabra on either side held lighted yellow tapers.

Catching the spirit of the evening Miss Anne Deyell went to the piano and began to play old time songs that soon brought singers around her to harmonize on such numbers as "Seeing Nellie Home."

Door prizes were a drawing card of the evening. Each was a pair of nylon hose and the winners were Mrs. E. T. Lush, 190 London St., and Mrs. B. Thompson of the Peterborough Clinic.

A three-layer cake, the old fashioned kind completely iced, was donated for a raffle by Miss Jane Saunders and tickets were sold by Miss Margaret Battersby. The winner was Mr. W. J. Clark. There was also a draw on a tray with tickets in charge of Miss Mary Dawson and Miss Helen Lytle. This has not been claimed yet but the winning ticket is number 132.

Tea pourers were the leaders of the four groups, and members of the same groups were servers for the same period. North and east group had charge for the first hour with Miss Agnes Horsfield and Miss Louella Knapp presiding at the table. South and west groups took the second hour and Miss Elsie Bennett and Mrs. H. Dunford presided.

The refreshments were in old-fashioned style consisting of currant bread, cookies and doughnut "twisters," lozenges and peppermints. Antique plates and candy dishes completed the effect.

Having a tea cup reading was indulged in by most guests and they found the tea cup reader with an old fashioned coal oil lamp centering her table.

A lace cap held her long veil in place, and she carried a lace-covered Bible crested with Sweetheart roses and bouvardia, the cascading streamers knotted with rosebuds.

DOROTHY DIX

Flimsy Excuses For Infrequent Visits

DEAR MISS DIX: My ailing sister lives with me; she pays her own way and is quite a help to me in household chores. My son and daughter also live with us.

The problem concerns my five married sons, who say that, as long as their aunt is with me they will not visit us. I love my children and don't know what to do Should I tell my sister to get a home of her own? When I visit my children, they never make me very welcome. I have been on my own for twenty-eight years, brought up my children alone and now, though I have been sick for the last ten years, they give me very little attention. I don't ask any support from them, though they are well off and could easily spare money for the doctor and medicine bills I find it so hard to meet. N. T.

✣ ✣ ✣

ANSWER: Obviously, your sons are offering a very flimsy excuse by claiming that it is the presence of their aunt that keeps them away from your home. Since they appear little interested in your welfare otherwise, they are very unlikely to become devoted if you put your sister out. Having her with you is a comfort and help; don't give up something you are sure of for a possibility of more attention from your sons. Your chances of getting it are mighty slim.

THEY ARE INGRATES

You certainly have a prize collection of ungrateful offspring. About all you can do is pray that God will open their eyes to the great wrong they are doing.

✣ ✣ ✣

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married for six years, and have a child of 4. I am four years older than my husband, who is 23. He thinks he is too young to settle down and has been going out every night alone, coming in at all hours with no explanation. He says a wife's place is in the home while she has every right to do as he pleases. We have been quarelling so much that my child is becoming nervous. MRS. B. B.

✣ ✣ ✣

ANSWER: The mathematics of your case appalls me. At 21, you married a boy of 17, and expected him to assume the responsibilities and obligations of married life! Surely you were old enough to know better! He was irresponsible then, and is now; there's little likelihood of improvement.

✣ ✣ ✣

DEAR MISS DIX: We are a group of 14-year-old boys and girls. A few months ago the brother of one of us opened an ice-cream parlor. At first, we all went in and there were no complaints from anyone. Then a group of kids from all over town began trooping in. That's where trouble began. They were rowdies, roughnecks and wise guys (boys and girls). Then we weren't allowed to go there any more. We all live in apartments and we can't gather togther in each other's houses since the neighbors complain of the least little noise. Our neighborhood centre is also overrun with the same sort of kids who took over the ice-cream parlor. The question is, where can we go to dance and have a little fun without running into the wrong sort of people? A. S.

✣ ✣ ✣

ANSWER: Unforunately, objectionable groups such as you mention do have the unpleasant habit of taking over any gathering centre started by nice boys and girls. I have seen many fine community dances ruined the same way. Why not try taking your problem to the pastor of your church or, if you belong to different churches, approach each one. Ask him if he wouldn't sponsor weekly dances for you youngsters, and you will promise to keep the hall clean and tidy. I do hope you can find an agreeable centre for your activities.

Port Hop Minister Speaks At Lakefield

LAKEFIELD (ENS). — The Rev. Louis H. Fowler, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Port Hope, was guest speaker at both services of St. Andrew's Church on Sunday, on the occasion of their anniversary.

The morning address was based on the text found in the book of Proverbs, "Where no oxen are, the crib is clean." The choir's contribution to the service was the anthem "Be Still My Soul." Mrs. Harold Trude was at the organ.

The evening's sermon was built on three texts, the first from Matt., "Come Unto Me," the second from John, "Abide in Me" and the third from Matt., "And, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

"These are the three steps you must take as Christians," said Mr. Fowler, "and if you haven't done so, there is something wrong. A religion of words is only a mockery. Maybe with you it is a personal hobby, something to dress up in once in a while to make you feel better, if so it's time for a change."

"Our faith," continued Mr. Fowler, "is like a tool. If it is not used it is useless." It is the task of the church to carry out the will of God. It may be a hard task, but if the Christian doesn't do the hard jobs in the world, who is going to do them? Don't you think, as a church, it is time we took Jesus Christ seriously?" asked Mr. Fowler in conclusion.

Mrs. Jessie Spencley of Peterborough was guest soloist.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Angel Jelly Sparkling Ruby-Clear

Being the daughter of a farmer's daughter has been a source of pride to me always, and my cousin Pearl is one person in my mother's farm family with whom we keep in touch.

One night last week we found ourselves within 30 miles of her home, and we were hungry. Naturally we knew good food and fun waited for us if we called on her, so we did.

She just oozes personality and the whole house teems with nostalgic memories of our mother. She is one of those gals who can't let you leave without loading you down with goodies. This time it was three handmade tatted handkerchiefs in three different delicate shades and an armload of quinces.

It is the fate of those quinces that I am describing today.

We are going to try to inveigle Pearl into visiting us by telling her if she wants to taste the quince jelly she has to "come and get it". I could mail her a jar but she could make it herself with her eyes closed and her hands tied behind her back.

All of the exotic adjectives belong to these jars of jelly — beautiful food, sparkling, ruby-clear, delectable, delightful, quiveringly delicious . . .

. . . and what a name! Angel Jelly. Have you made it?

ANGEL JELLY

Eight quinces, 6 tart red apples, 1 lb. cranberries. Wash all fruits well and quarter the quinces and apples and almost cover with water, and boil until quite tender. Strain through jelly bag but do not press bag. Measure the juice and boil 20 minutes. Add equal quantities of warmed sugar and boil 5 minutes. Pour into sterile jelly glasses and seal with coat of new hot paraffin while still hot, adding a second coat, high on the sides when cold. The finished jelly is a delicate rosy shade and will add another cubit to your cooking stature.

GINGER-PEAR JELLY

Four cups extracted pear juice (see below), 7 cups sugar, juice of 1 lemon and 4 teaspoons powdered ginger, 1 cup bottled liquid pectin. Cut up about 4 lbs. fully ripened pears but do not pare or core them. Add 2 cups water, lemon juice and ginger and stir over heat until mixture boils, then cover and simmer 15 minutes. Strain through jelly bag—this time you can squeeze the bag for ginger makes it cloudy anyway. Measure sugar and mix with juice in large saucepan. Bring to boil over high heat and when boiling add liquid pectin all at once. Bring to the dear old full rolling boil and boil hard for one-half minute. Remove from heat, skim, pour quickly into sterile jelly glasses. Paraffin the hot jelly once, adding a second coating when cold. This makes about 11 8-oz. glasses.

SPICED GRAPE JELLY

Four and one-half cups grape juice (see below), 8 cups sugar, ½ cup bottled liquid pectin. Stem and mash about 3 lbs. washed grapes that are fully ripe. Add ½ cup vinegar or one-third cup lemon juice, 1 teaspoon cloves, and 2 teaspoons cinnamon. Stir until mixture boils, cover and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly bag and strain out juice and press bag. Measure sugar and juice and mix. Bring to boil over hot fire and at once add liquid pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to hard boil and boil ½ minute. Remove from heat, skim and pour into sterile jelly glasses. Paraffin hot jelly at once, adding second coating when cold.

MINT JELLY

(from fresh mint leaves)

Two tightly packed cups fresh washed mint leaves, 1 cup cider vinegar, 7 cups white sugar, 1 bottle commercial liquid pectin, green vegetable coloring. Mash the mint leaves with potato masher in kettle, add vinegar and sugar, and bring to boil, then add 2 cups boiling water, and bring to hard boil. Color a bright green with food coloring. While boiling hard add the liquid pectin, boil ½ minute, remove from heat and quickly strain. Pour into sterile jelly glasses and seal with 2 coatings of paraffin.

Tomorrow I shall give you mint jelly made with apples.

Auditor Predicts

two years has been about on par with other cities "in our class."

ASSESSMENT INCREASE

It will be noticed that a large increase in assessment, about $7,000,000 between 1953 and 1954 is indicated. That again is an estimate, and is related to effects of the revision of assesment which is still continuing in the assessment department. It is more than possible, that the revision will result in some shift from the residential total assessment of commercial and industrial properties. However, that is in the future, whatever materializes.

Section (4) discusses mill rates and taxation. Mr. Humpage's observations are: "I have discussed the factors entering into this with the various bodies, and while no person can estimate with too much degree of certainty, I have taken what under ordinary conditions would be reasonable costs.

The main difficulty is to estimate the requirements for general purposes which include such items as board of works, fire department, police department, parks, etc., all of which items make estimates difficult to determine.

The followwing do not include special assessments for frontage local improvements, etc."

TAXES GO UP

The three columns indicate, from left to right, total taxes, the tax rate in mills and the per capita tax. They are for the years 1952 to 1958 inclusive:

Total Taxes	Mill Rate	Per Cap. Tax
$2,235,290	64.8	$66.40
$2,656,442	66.0	$67.95
$2,774,198	59.4	$70.20
$2,855,661	59.3	$70 86
52,944,086	59.3	$71.80
$2,985,937	58.3	$71.09
2,991,352	56.8	$69.57

Note: The years 1957-58 (the last two in the list) could be increased by additional debt charges for projects not mentioned above."

That concludes the City Auditor's presentment as Mr. Humpage reviewed it, with the comment that it held out certain probabilities tending to sustain the prospect of Peterborough continuing on a sound financial basis.

In his last table (No. 4) it will be noticed that the prospective increase in assessment as in table No. 3 effective in 1954, results in quite a sharp decline in the tax rate, but not in the per capita tax. That follows the axiom of taxation: the higher the assessment the lower the rate. Mr. Humpage's figures suggest that the average ratepayer will await with interest whatever switch develops in the assessment's incidence.

If Peterborough can hold to a normal course of spending in the next six years, the approximate prospects are, quoting from the tables:

Decline in the gross debt from $7,120,597 to $6,254,500; increase in population from 38,000 to 43,000; drop in per capita debt from $187 to $145.

Advance in total assesment from $40,000,000 to $54,000,000, but also in the per capita assessment from $1,053 to $1,255.

Finally, increase in taxation from $2,523,290; decline in tax-rate from 64.8 mills to 56.8; while the per capita tax moves up from $66.40 to $71.80, followed by a recession to $69.57.

On the other hand, he wrote at the outset the notation excluding "abnormal factors such as annexations, etc." and the council is confronted with a bulge in its northern boundary in 1953, and urgings here and there on the west side for the services only the city can provide.

Had Rubbing Alcohol

Leo Grisdale, 40, no fixed address, pleaded guilty today to obtaining rubbing alcohol for beverage purposes. He was fined $100 and $2.50 costs or three months in county jail.

POISED TO STRIKE—Library, Pa., miners register feelings of disgust as they read a newspaper headline which tells of the wage stabilization board's slashing of the mineworkers' recently-won pay boost. With more than 100,000 workers already out because of the W.S.B. ruling, a general strike throughout the nation's soft coal industry appears probable.

Ice In Drinks Dangerous Often Dirty Scientist Says

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

CLEVELAND (AP) — The ice in your drinks may not be so nice, a scientist warned today.

It can be unsanitary, and may even be loaded with germs. Or it may be contaminated with anything from dirt to pieces of hair and bits of finger nail polish.

This finding on much of the ice served in public places was reported today to the American Public Health Association by V.D. Foltz of the Kansas agricultural experiment station.

Ice in ice water or drinks or on foods may actually sometimes be the cause of food poisoning, diarrhoea, and other illnesses, he said.

Foltz said ice usually is pure when it's made in ice machines, because of pure water supplies and health standards.

But no one, he says, seems to have studied what can happen between the time pure ice is made and served.

Foltz studied 114 samples from hotels, restaurants, soda fountains, hospitals, and soft drink parlors in central Kansas. Only one-quarter of them were free of germs and of acceptable quality for drinking water, he said.

Another scientist said it would have to be a pretty strong alcoholic drink that could kill the bacteria found in carelessly-handled ice.

But a third said: "I'd be willing to take a chance — if you furnish the bourbon."

Plan To Move 120,000 People

— The inter-governmental committee for European migrants plans to move 120,000 people next year, it was revealed in its 1953 budget adopted today.

Ending its fourth session, the committee approved a budget totalling $38,902,475, more than $2,000,000 less than the 1952 budget.

The committee, to which 20 countries including Canada belong, was set up in December, 1951, to resettle refugees and move surplus population from Italy, Greece, Germany, The Netherlands, Austria and Trieste, to areas where their manpower and skill are needed.

Head of the Canadian delegation is T.W. Bird of Vancouver, former head of the Canadian immigration mission at Karlsruhe, Germany. Bruce Williams, secretary of Canada's permanent delegation to the United Nations at Geneva, is the alternate delegate.

2 AWL Soldiers Jailed For Theft

Two soldiers, both more than 70 days absent without leave who pleaded guilty to theft charges a week ago were sentenced to reformatory today.

Mel Gordon Thompson, 32, was given four months in reformatory for his part in the theft of a quantity of auto parts from Ken Reid of Lakefield on October 11.

Thompson had previous convictions for shopbreaking and theft in Lindsay in 1946, and here, in 1949.

John Burfield, 20, who was arrested with Thompson, had no previous record and received three months.

Polish Immigrant Blamed For Death

YAMASKA, Que. (CP) — Provincial Police said today Maksymilian Ciesla, Polish immigrant who will face a murder charge, twice attempted to commit suicide yesterday.

First, they said, Ciesla tried to hang himself and then charged, head down, into a steel door. He was not seriously hurt in either attempt.

The suicide attempts were made shortly before the 21-year-old Pole was brought before a coroner's jury and held criminally responsible for the shot-gun slaying Sept. 25 of Aurelien Houle, restaurant-garage owner, during an attempted holdup.

Police said Ciesla used the cord from swimming trunks, which he wore under his clothes, in the attempt to hang himself. Then he "charged like a bull" into the steel door. It took several policemen to subdue him.

Ciesla was captured by Quebec Provincial Police last Friday on a St. Lawrence River island near Maskinonge after a three-week search of nearby islands.

Mrs. Houle identified Ciesla at the inquest as the man who shot her husband with a sawed-off shotgun.

Diplomat's Wife Refuses To Comment

GENEVA (Reuters) — Mrs. Donald MacLean, wife of the British diplomat who vanished in Europe 18 months ago, refused to comment today on fresh reports that he has been seen behind the Iron Curtain.

A London newspaper quoted "dependable" sources for the report yesterday that he had been seen in Warsaw, Poland.

"I have absolutely no news of my husband being in Warsaw," she said. She did not say whether she had heard from him recently.

Mrs. MacLean has been living here with her mother.

MacLean and another British Foreign Office employee, Guy Burgess, disappeared together in May, 1951.

Drunks Fined

Dave Peters, 27, of Armour Rd., on a charge of being drunk for the second time in a year. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

On other pleas of guilty: Anthony Bencze, 22, of Rubidge St., fined $12.50 for swearing and causing a disturbance; Garnet Davy, 31, of Monaghan Rd., fined $17.50 for being drunk and disorderly in a downtown hotel; Patrick Blodgett, 37, of Gilchrist St., fined $42.50 for twice consuming liquor while being on the interdicted list.

FORT MACLEOD, Alta. (CP)—The provincial government is dredging a new channel for the Old Man River north of its present course. The river changes course from year to year and the new channel is expected to prevent further encroachment near the town.

Charges Communists Common Criminals

TOKYO (AP) — Lieut.-Gen. William K. Harrison, top United Nations Command delegate at the Korean armistice talks, today said "I don't believe that any man can be a thorough-going Communist without being a common criminal."

He said in an interview that he would include the Red truce team at Panmunjom in that class, and you would with an honorable man."

The Reds, he said, repeatedly came up with "falsehoods, half-truths and insinuations" in the Panmunjom meetings, now in indefinite recess.

Whether there will be an armistice in Korea, he said, "depends on decisions on a very high level in all countries concerned."

Broke Into Creamery Youth Jailed 1 Month

Victor Mullins, 17, Norwood, was sentenced to one month in jail today for breaking into the Norwood Creamery on September 8. Mullins pleaded guilty to the offence on September 23, when evidence was heard.

Biggest Harvest Over

WINNIPEG (CP)—The biggest harvest in Western Canada's history is practically over after what grain men term a "miracle season."

Officials of the Canadian Wheat Board said yesterday that only a small part of the 1,300,000,000-bushel grain crop remains un-harvested in scattered parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan. It is a far cry from last year when a cold, wet fall forced farmers to leave 250,000,000 bushels of grain lying in the fields through the winter.

"Without a doubt this has been the best harvest in history," said H.E. Wood of the Manitoba Agriculture Department.

Two Youths Sent To Reformatory

Two youths who pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering a week ago were given reformatory sentences today.

Gerald Stinson, 19 and Benjamin Logan, 20, were each sentenced to four months definite and three months indefinite for breaking into the home of Sherman Preston on the River Road August 30. The clothing and other articles they stole were valued at more than $200.

Logan will also be serving an additional month unless he is able to pay fines and costs amounting to $57.50 on three traffic charges to which he pleaded guilty today.

He was charged with careless driving, leaving the scene of an accident and driving without a licence on the Buckhorn road October 10.

Crown Attorney Bradshaw explained that Logan was the driver of a jalopy which only had one headlight and it was not working. He said the car did not even have a gas tank, but only a bottle, connected with the carburetor by a hose.

DRIVER FLED

Mr. Bradshaw said the car was stopped on the wrong side of the road late at night with no lights and that another car came over the knoll and ran into it. He said Logan fled from the scene and was not arrested until some 36 hours later.

For leaving the scene of the accident, Logan was fined $25 and $2.50 costs or one month. On the careless driving charge the fine was $15 and $2.50 costs or 15 days and on the charge of driving without a permit, $10 and $2.50 costs or ten days.

Magistrate W. R. Philp said that if the fines were not paid, the sentences on the traffic charges would run concurrently but consecutively to the reformatory term.

Canada's Textile Industry Had Its Beginning In Quebec

MONTREAL (CP)—Three hundred years ago a newcomer to Canada boasted, in a letter to his old home in France, that he could dress himself from head to foot with materials made in Canada.

Today Quebec's Department of Trade and Commerce views that incident as showing that Canada's textile industry had its beginning in this province.

The industry, indeed, has become such a part of Quebec's industrial expansion that the provincial government has established a textile school at St. Hyacinthe. There young Quebecers are taught the art of designing and the craft of weaving textiles on an industrial basis.

FOUNDED IN 1945

The school was founded in 1945 by the Department of Youth and Social Welfare. It teaches mechanics, mechanical drawing and artistic design, chemistry, techniques of the manufacture of fabrics, processing of fibres and other subjects.

The department says in a booklet that the industry, which makes use of "a vast quantity of delicate machinery, is strongly influenced by the weather, the income of the consumer and conditions on world markets for raw materials and textile fabrics. . ."

"In this country the textile industry is confronted with many problems, one of which is the purchase of a portion of its raw materials on foreign markets. It has, moreover, to compete with other countries, whose products are often sold on the Canadian market at a lower price than those of our own manufacturers.

PAID INFERIOR WAGES

"This lower price results mostly from the inferior wages paid for labor. A comparison. . . shows that to earn as much as the Canadian textile worker earns in 10 days, the worker in England must work 23 days, in France 30 days, in Germany 35 days, in Mexico 40 and in Japan 135 days."

The fellow who could dress himself from Canadian materials could do so because "the women of New France had brought with them from the old country high standards of craftsmanship and taste and they lost no time in putting their knowledge to the best possible use with materials they found on hand."

"They left us fabrics whose originality of design still delights the eye. One of the most typical creations of these early artisans is the ceinture flechee (arrow sash) in variegated design, which our forefathers wore so proudly."

THE SMALL BLACK BOX with glass tubes in the centre of this picture is the machine which recently took over the "complete function of maintaining blood supply to the body" of a 41-year-old patient for 50 minutes at Harper Hospital, Detroit, while the patient's heart was opened and worked on by surgeons. The mechanical device empties the heart of blood and enables doctors to use direct vision rather than "blind" sense of touch in heart surgery. Medical researchers say this is believed to be the first known instance of a patient's survival through use of an artificial heart.

Meek Sentenced 2nd Time To Be Hanged For Slaying

CORNWALL (CP) — Elias Meek has been sentenced for the second time to be hanged for slaying his employer's wife.

The 21-year-old farmhand was convicted of murder last night by a supreme court jury and sentenced to die next Jan. 27 for the stabbing of Mrs. Dollie Alguire, 28, Sept. 29, 1951.

When the verdict was read Meek flushed slightly but remained impassive. He had nothing to say when Chief Justice J.C. McRuer passed sentence.

Last spring Meek was found guilty on the same charge and sentenced to be hanged during the summer. He won an appeal for a new trial on the basis that the jury was misdirected.

HAD SANITY HEARING

His second trial was interrupted to allow a special jury hearing to judge whether he was fit to stand trial. The jury decided Saturday he was sane.

Meek was arrested the day after Mrs. Alguire's body was found at her farm home near Harrison Corners, 11 miles northwest of here. Meek's employer, Allan Alguire, was away at the time.

A statement signed by Meek and admitted at the second trial said "I don't know what made me do it but I grabbed Mrs. Alguire by the throat and started to choke her." It added that Meek hit her once or twice over the head with a hammer and later stabbed her twice with a butcher knife.

FLED TO WOODS

The statement said Meek then fled to the woods taking Alguire's shotgun and shells. When it was dark he went to his father's farm where he was arrested.

Medical testimony as to Meek's sanity was split in the second trial. Two doctors said he was sane while three others claimed he had a split personality.

Dr. Victoria Voyer, an Ottawa psychiatrist, said Meek told him he had an impulse to beat the victim three weeks before her death. Dr. Voyer said he thought Meek was mentally ill at the time of the crime.

Drs. Gordon Lugsden and C.H. McCuaig concurred with Voyer's diagnosis of split personality. Dr. C.S. Tenant, consulting psychiatrist to the Ontario Health Department, and Dr. J.N. Senn of Hamilton said Meek is sane.

Youth Fatally Shot

BARRIE (CP) — A shooting accident yesterday claimed the life of Harold Lorne Swann, 21, of Flos township, in his home, 12 miles northwest of here. Police said the youth was shooting birds from his bedroom window with a .22-calibre rifle when a bullet passed through his arm, entering his heart.

Agree On City Hall Site

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa's proposed new City Hall will be erected just south of Confederation Square on the site of the old one, razed by fire some 20 years ago. Agreement between the federal district commission and the city on the location was reached yesterday.

Accused 'Lied' Girl Friends Tells Murder Hearing

BALTIMORE (AP).—Mathilda Mizibrocky, an attractive Canadian, told a packed courtroom Monday she loved Edward Grammer and was planinng to marry him before his wife was killed.

The 28-year-old U. N. secretary from Hamilton said she didn't know Grammer was already married and had three children.

"Ed lied to me," she said.

Grammer, 35-year-old New York officer manager, is accused by the state of beating his wife to death the night of Aug. 1 and trying to make it appear the result of an auto mishap so that he could be free to marry Miss Mizibrocky.

Dorothy May Grammer's body was found in her car by two policemen who saw the automobile plunge down a sloping street in a Baltimore suburb. They testified they found a pebble stuck under the accelerator, holding the gas pedal down.

Miss Mizibrocky said she didn't know anything about Grammer's other life until after Mrs. Grammer's death. She said she thought the only matter preventing their marriage was the question of religion. She is a Roman Catholic. Grammer is a Protestant.

She said she had gone home to Hamilton in August—a week after she and Grammer had spent a week together in Chicago—to get her father's consent for the marriage.

NOT CERTAIN

Judge Herman Moser, hearing the case without a jury at Grammer's request, asked her:

"Do you still love him?"

"It's difficult to say," she said slowly. "You love a person for what you think they are."

Miss Mizibrocky appeared confident and in complete control of herself during the hour she testified.

She said they became acquainted last November in a bowling alley in New York. They saw each other occasionally⅛, usuallyfora occasionally, usually for a dinner date, until Christmas, when she received from him a small Christmas stocking containing a compact and cosmetics.

After that, she said, they dated at least a couple times a week until about February, when they began meeting more often. By summer, she added, they were seeing each other five to six times a week.

State's Attorney Anslem Sodaro asked her:

"Did he tell you anything about himself?"

"As far as family, I knew he had a father and mother in Baltimore, that they were divorced, and he mentioned two brothers and a sister."

"Did he mention anything about any other family?"

"I didn't know then there was any other family," Miss Mizibrocky replied. "I saw so much of him I didn't believe he could have a family. But he convinced me later he didn't."

RELIGIOUS DIFFICULTY

She said she didn't consider there was anything serious to their acquaintanceship until on St. Valentine's Day he brought her some red camelias and took her to dinner.

"Did you ever discuss marriage?" Sodaro asked.

"Most of our discussions on marriage related to religion. That was the only thing holding back marriage."

Sodaro asked her if she had been on a trip out of the city with Grammer.

"Yest sir, in Chicago."

"What brought about this trip?" the prosecutor inquired.

"Ed was going on a business trip. He thought it would be a good idea if I went along. I did too, for there were a lot of things we had to get settled."

She said they flew on the same plane to Chicago, and remained there until August 4, when she went home to Canada and he flew on to Denver.

While home, she said, she asked her father to get out her certificate of baptism and "keep it handy so I could have it if I needed it."

Judge Moser asked her:

"You say you discussed marriage—did he ever propose to you?"

"Not in so many words . . ."

"Then what was your relationship?" Moser asked.

"There was no question I was his girl," Miss Mizibrocky replied. "He knew I didn't go out with anyone else and I assumed he didn't either."

Judge Moser asked if she could give any more details on their conversations concerning marriage.

"Well, for instance," she began, "here are a couple of remarks. Tommy Dorsey's band was playing at the Edgewater Beach Hotel while we were there, and Ed said 'We'll have to have Tommy Dorsey play at our wedding.'

"Another time he said 'We'll have to have my roommate stay with us'—" she broke off and started giggling, "—I mean as our maid, not a roommate, because it wouldn't be the same without her."

Underprivileged Look To Canada And U.S.

BOSTON (CP) — Canada and the United States must provide a "sincere and substantial answer to the universal craving of underprivileged peoples," Gladstone Murray, Toronto business consultant and former director-general of broadcasting for Canada, said here today.

Addressing the 24th Annual Conference on Distribution — a national forum of business leaders — Mr. Murray said the continuing investment of United States capital in Canadian resources can create an "impregnable base" for free civilization. He said it is within the power of both countries to begin to remove the misery and ignorance of Asiatic peoples by equipping them with skills and tools to achieve progress on their own.

Speaking particularly of Canada's future, he predicted Canada would be the pivot of the British Commonwealth by the end of the century.

Popular Wedding

HAMBURG, Germany (Reuters) A crowd of 3,000 ringed the Roman Catholic church at Hersedorf suburb of Hamburg Monday to see the great-grand daughter of Germany's "Iron Chancellor," to Egbart von Oswald, son of a wealthy Hamburg builder. The bride wore the veil which adorned her great-grandmother's head at her wedding 105 years ago to the first chancellor of the Hohenzollern Empire.

Reporter Gets Himself Arrested To Get Inside Story On Jail

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (AP)—Newsday said yesterday one of its reporters had himself arrested as a burglar "to get a behind-the-scenes story from inside Suffolk county jail, where he was a prisoner for seven weeks.

He is Don Kellerman, 25, a police reporter on the newspaper.

The newspaper added that Kellerman "dared to become a criminal in all aspects of the law. . . save intent to commit a crime."

Kellerman told in the first of six article how he broke into a bar and grill Feb. 14.

Indicted, Kellerman stayed in jail for seven weeks by failing to post $1,000 bond. he has since posted the bond and is free, although still under indictment.

Said Newsday of the assignment:

"After the prison breaks of last years and nation-wide stories of juvenile delinquency and youthful offenders, the reporters wanted to find out what made these men and caused their errors and what they found and became when the iron doors swung shut behind them. . .

"Kellerman found things that a sociologist on the other side of the iron prisoners' grill could never learn.

"He found conditions of communication, of transmission of contraband that would have been impossible for anyone to learn who had gone into a correctional institution with the knowledge of the authorities."

Rotary Members To "Adopt" Young Cripples

An adoption plan is being organized as a new feature in the Peterborough Rotary Club's work with crippled children.

Dr. Ralph B. Smyth, chairman of the crippled children's committee of the club, outlined the plan at the club's luncheon meeting on Monday. He explained that its purpose was to establish more contact between Rotarians and the children.

The 50 crippled children now being helped by the club will receive extra benefits by this plan. But its main purpose is to make it possible for club members to become better acquainted with the work that is being done and the children that are being helped.

ASSIGNED TO CHILD

Each Rotarian who volunteers will be assigned to a child. What these volunteers do for the children is left entirely up to them. Dr. Smyth suggested visits to the children in their homes or in hospital, taking them for drives, and small gifts at Christmas as a few ideas for this volunteer work.

A second project that will be introduced this year is a Christmas party to be held for the crippled children December 15.

Dr. Smyth also reported that the estimated expenditure for the club's crippled children's work this year was $6,000.

Miss Margaret McEwen, district nurse for the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, was introduced by Dr. Smyth. Miss McEwen explained the benefits received by seven children from the Peterborough district who attended Merrywood, the society's camp, during the past summer.

She expressed the appreciation of both the parents' children and the society to the club for making it possible for the children to attend the camp.

A film, Merrywood-on-the-Rideau, was the final item of the meeting's program. It showed the activities at this camp which are specially planned to help the children gain confidence in themselves.

Miss McEwen and Dr. Smyth were thanked by Charles Cummer and President Bob Maybee.

Presbyterian Church Marks 64th Birthday

HAVELOCK (ENS).—Anniversary services were held in Knox Presbyterian Church on Sunday, commemorating the 64th anniversary of the building of the church. The Rev. James McAvoy of Burnbrae was the guest speaker at both services.

Mr. McAvoy's subject in the morning was "The Unseen Experiences of Life," based on the text "And Elisha prayed and said, Lord I pray thee, open his eyes that he may see." The choir numbers were an anthem "The Awakening Chorus" and a duet by Miss Shirley Bennett and Mr. Fred Bennett "Raise Me Jesus."

In the evening Mr. McAvoy spoke on the subject "The Divine Carpenter — Mender of Broken Lives." A carpenter's work, Mr. McAvoy said, was to repair things and bring them back to their former condition and value, but the Divine Carpenter, son of Mary, mends broken homes, broken lives and broken hearts.

A girls' quintette comprising the Misses Shirley Seabrooke, Shirley Bennett, Beverley Bennett, Elaine Graham, Joan Graham, sang "God Is Waiting." Two anthems were sung by the choir, "Onward Soldiers of the Cross" and "When Jesus Comes Into Your Heart." The choir was directed by the organist, Mrs. Lottie Burt.

Hoping Find Answer

NEW YORK (AP) — Science hopes to come up with an answer in the next few years to the question of whether smoking and lung cancer have any connection. The American Cancer Society disclosed yesterday that a current survey should give the answer by May, 1954, if there is a great correlation, and within five years if there is any at all.

Gilbert Operas Popular In New York

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (AP)—The Gilbert and Sullivan operas are one of those elements in the theatre which usually respond to tradition, despite efforts sometimes to give them a new face.

Producer S.M. Chartock did not even try to defy tradition last night when he began at the Mark Hellinger Theatre a new season of Gilbert and Sullivan operettas with a beautiful production of "The Mikado."

He presented its truly in the Gilbert and Sullivan tradition, and only now and then injected a note of modern levity or modern dance to make it seem not too old-fashioned to younger audiences.

GOOD SINGERS

He offered a lyrical troupe of singers, led by Martyn Green, who was the lead for the British d'Oyly Carte Company, as Ko-Ko, the Lord High Executioner.

Green has his usual wit, is amazing ability to speak the intricate speeches of Gilbert and Sullivan vocabulary without a flaw in pronunciation or nuance, and his flexibility in doing some steps which approaches the ease with which Fred Astaire dances.

This is an elaborate, imaginative and well-staged production, and with Green, Robert Rouseville, Ella Halman, Joseph MacAuly and Lillian Murphy in leading roles it appears to be a company of Gilbert and Sullivan which will not disappoint the elders, and will be an attraction to the youngsters.

Manslaughter Verdict

CHICAGO (AP) — A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of manslaughter against a young father whose child died after he beat her. Thomas Parker, 27, admitted he beat the child, Barbara, 3, last Friday, because she failed to tie her shoes and because her mother had complained of the little girl's misbehavior.

Lost Husband In Korea Adopts 3 Korean Children

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SEOUL, Korea (CP)—A blonde Canadian widow of the Korean war is playing "mother" temporarily to three Korean children.

"Momma-wan" to the three is 29-year-old Marjorie Heath of Donalda, Alta. She is the widow of Capt. John Heath of the 2nd regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, killed in action Sept. 4, 1951.

Determined to do what she could in the cause for which her husband died, Mrs. Heath went to New York in March this year to work for the United Nations' Korea Rehabilitation Agency.

She arrived in Korea in August and her "mothering" assignment came in September, when she came to Seoul as secretary to a film unit doing a film on Korea for U.N.K.R.A.

SHOWS WAR'S RAVAGES

Called "Hava-No"—pidgin English over here for "have not" or "out of stock"—the script was written by Pat Frank, author of "Mr. Adam."

Its aim is to dramatize the plight of today's Korean family, to show how every family has been touched by the war, has suffered damage and injury, lost some member. The picture also will be an indirect appeal for support for U.N.K.R.A.

Main stars are Mrs. Heath's three charges—two girls, aged 15 and 10, and a boy aged 14. There is a supporting cast of United States army officers and other ranks.

The families of all three children were formerly well-to-do. Fourteen-year-old Shim Dong Chul, the boy star, worked more than one year as house-boy with an army unit to save up enough money to return to school.

Mrs. Heath, whose husband was a former professor at the University of Alberta, is a graduate of the same university.

LUXURIOUS QUARTERS

In the luxurious, Japanese-built house in Seoul she now shares with other members of the film unit, she says the war might be a million miles away. She says:

"We are walled off as it were. You are served on chinaware, sleep between sheets. It makes you feel uncomfortable to be so comfortable."

She is amazed at the Koreans' will to learn. The girl who looks after her in the U.N.K.R.A. compound here is a high-school girl who only the other day finished reading in English Tolstoy's "War and Peace."

The three child actors had their entire script memorized in three days—despite their inferior English—and were able to act it out intelligently.

The children are not being paid for their parts. Instead, U.N.K.R.A. hopes to set up a scholarship fund for each of them. Producer-director Alfred Wagg also hopes to take them to New York for "Hava-no's" premiere.

End Hearings On Applications For Power Plant

WASHINGTON (AP)—The International Joint Commission yesterday ended a series of hearings on applications by the Canadian and United States governments for preliminary authority to proceed with construction of a St. lawrence hydro-electric plant.

The six-member commission, which regulates use of boundary waters, arranged to meet in executive session beginning today to decide on the applications.

One of the commission members, who asked that his name not be used, told reporters he expected a decision would be forthcoming "perhaps within three days."

HINTS DECISION

A.O. Stanley, chairman of the American section of the commission, indicated the probable action of the group when, at one point during yesterday's hearing, he said favors the project.

The project, generally favored by witnesses testifying before the commission, calls for construction of a hydro-electric plant on the St. Lawrence River between Massena, N.Y., and Cornwall, Ont., with an annual generating capacity of more than 3,000,000,000 kilowatt hours.

The Canadian partner in the estimated $400,000,000 venture will be the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario. The American agency will be designated either by Congress or by the Federal Power Commission.

INDIANS AT LICHENS

Tripe de Roche, a species of lichen growing on rocks in northern Canada, was often used by starving Indians and fur-traders.

MOTOR FAILED—When one of the motors of this giant C-46 U.S. Air Force plane failed during take-off from the airfield at Memphis, Tenn., the pilot took the plane to the end of the runway, ploughed through the fence and smashed into the car. The four occupants of the car, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. E. Edmondson and their two daughters, were injured while the 24 airmen and crew on the plane were unhurt.

300 Korean Orphans Have Christmas Early

SEOUL, Korea (CP)—Christmas came early this year for 300 Korean orphans. Their Santa Claus wore a Canadian army uniform.

The soldiers of the 25th infantry brigade recently presented $3,700 to three welfare organizations who help the homeless and hapless of the Korean war.

Exporters Make Protest Over Delays

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian exporters yesterday protested United States action holding up transshipment of Canadian strategic metals at U.S. points because the shippers had not obtained clearance from Washington.

The American action took Canadian exporters by surprise, and government trade officials said they are consulting with the U.S. government.

Previously, Canadian shippers could move strategic goods across American territory in bond, using an export permit obtained from the Canadian government.

However, in a sudden move, apparently without consultation with the Canadian Government, U.S. authorities decided to block further trans-shipments of such metals as copper and brass until an American export permit was obtained from Washington.

BEING HELD UP

As a result several consignments of Canadian brass and copper shipments are being held up in New York while the Canadian shippers apply to Washington for a permit.

This, said the exporters, will force Canadian shippers to undergo extra costs and hardships in moving goods, say, from Montreal to London, via New York.

The protest was lodged by S. A. MacKay-Smith, vice-president of the Canadian Exporters' Association, in a letter to F.W. Bull, deputy Trade Minister.

Mr. Campbell in commenting on the addresses was much impressed by the amount of work and the good quality and said each boy or girl had excellent delivery, good speed, and good material.

While the judges had retired to another room to make their decision, community singing was enjoyed, led by Holly Tucker with Miss Marie Tucker at the piano.

Members of the Women's Institutes served afternoon tea to Mrs. Moore and friend, the judges, M. Whinney, principal of Apsley Central School, the teachers of the other three rooms in school and all visitors, at Mrs. W. Lean's home.

Boy, 10, Suffers Cuts

LINDSAY (ENS).—A 10-year-old boy suffered minor injuries Monday when the car his mother was driving struck a parked car.

The boy, Brian Harding of Burnt River, was driving with his mother along Adelaide Street when he drew his mother's attention to a house being built. Mrs. Robinette Harding, looked and lost control of the car.

It hit a parked car owned by Clarence Fisher, William Street, doing $300 damage to each auto.

The boy suffered abrasions and cuts on his forehead. Police Chief Arthur Webster investigated.

Dismiss Charge Against Constable

KENORA (CP)—An assize court jury yesterday dismissed a manslaughter case against constable Jack Terrell of Kenora, charged with firing shots which fatally wounded the driver of a stolen car.

The jury, after deliberating three hours and hearing testimony of about a dozen witnesses, returned a written verdict of "no bill."

William Kemball of Pine Falls, Man., died Sept. 24 after two bullets fired by Terrell punctured his lungs and heart. Kemball was fired on as he tried to ram his way [illegible] Terrell, a Kenora police officer, said he stepped into the path of the oncoming car to flag it down, but the vehicle speeded up and headed toward him. Lewis Insists Miners Get Full Raise

Long Coal Strike Seems In Store For U.S. Industry

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A long coal strike semed in store for the United States today with John L. Lewis insisting that his miners get the whole of a pay increase limited by the government.

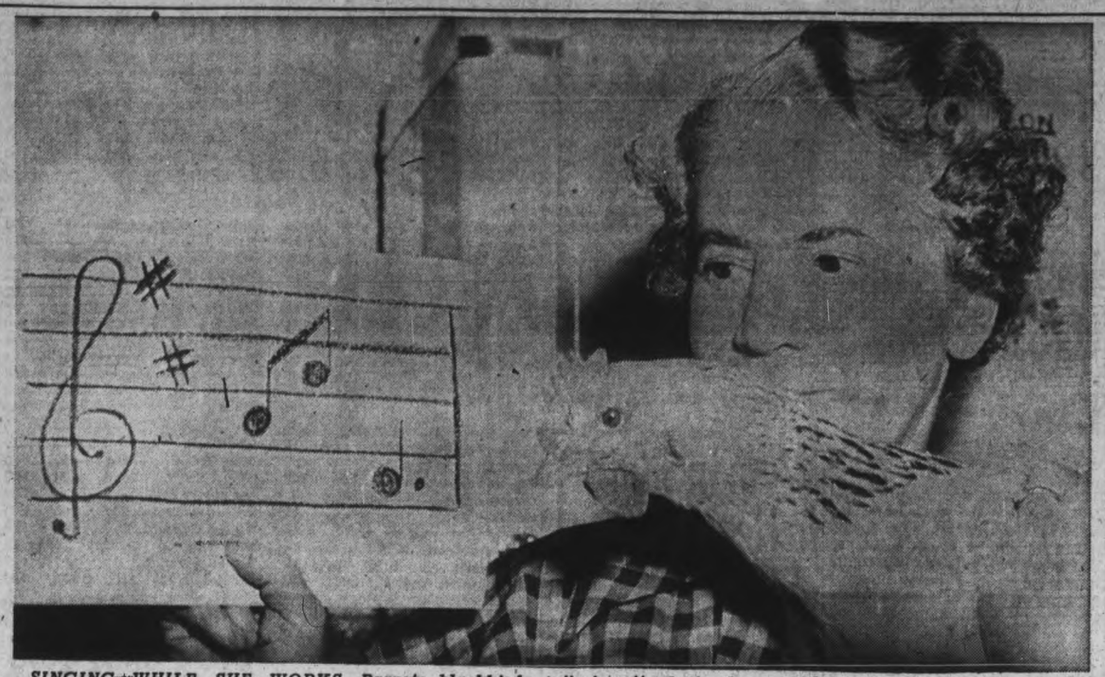
Lewis appears to have turned down a dead-end street by saying that striking soft coal miners will return to work only when they get the full $1.90-daily hike his United Mine Workers' union had negotiated with the industry.

The government's Wage Stabilization Board shaved 40 cents from this total, saying only $1 50 was allowable under inflation-control policy.

Reduction of negotiated pay increases by the W.S.B. has happened many times in the past, with the unions always accepting the decisions.

CHARGES 'THIEVERY'

But Lewis, in a letter to a chief industry negotiator yesterday, fired a verbal barrage at W.S.B. members and other stabilization officials and wound up by saying the miners will return to their jobs when they get the full $1 90. He termed the W.S.B. action an "attempted thievery" of milk money from miners' babies.



There seemed no way out of the impasse. Either Lewis must yield, something he clearly is in no mood to do, or the government must back down.

All this posed a problem for the Democratic administration in the home-stretch of the presidential campaign. It is generally considered bad politics to have a big strike in progress at election time. But any yielding to Lewis would have wide repercussions.

Coal operators were being egged on both publicly and privately by Lewis to try to persuade the government to reverse the W.S.B. decision. There is no precedent for such an appeal. It was widely predicted that if the W.S.B. should be reversed, its members would quit.

WANTS FULL HIKE

Some mine owners entertained hopes for a while that they could get around the ruling by negotiating the 40 cents into a different form, such as vacation pay. But Lewis seemed to veto this idea by insisting on the full increase. This would boost miners' basic pay to $18.25 a day.

SINGING WHILE SHE WORKS—Parrots, blackbirds, crows and budgie birds have been known to talk; but a White Sussex pullet hen, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Curtin, Maniece Ave., goes one better—she sings. The six-month-old bird has become a family pet since Mrs. Curtin first noticed the hen cackled more than usual. Paying special attention to "Biddy," Mrs. Curtin has taught the bird to cackle away whenever she says "Sing." Biddy obeys orders to sing loudly or softly. Maybe Biddy is smarter than one thinks. As long as she "sings" and produces eggs, she delays the drop of the axe.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Two Athletes Die At Games; Tests Urged

Physical Examination For Players Coroner's Suggestion

TORONTO (CP)—John F. Hoey, a 28-year-old amateur hockey player died of a heart attack late last night after collapsing during a game at East York Memorial Arena.

A right winger with Latimer Brokers in the East York Major League, Hoey fell to the ice shortly after the start of the second period.

Hoey, an employee of the Toronto fire department, had been playing hockey for many years and had never shown any bad effects.

He is survived by his widow and three daughters.

Last Sunday 33-year-old Russell Wilson suffered a fatal heart attack while acting as linesman in a Galt-Toronto St. Michael's junior game here.

Today chief coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson warned athletes to have a thorough medical examination and cardiagram before playing competitive sport.

"I can't stress too much the need of medical examination for older athletes."

Oliver Demands Municipalities Get Any Saving

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's five-year tax-rental agreement with the federal government received nearly unanimous support in the legislature yesterday. Liberal and C.C.F. spokesmen said their groups will vote for a bill ratifying the agreement signed last Aug. 29 under which Ontario will turn over, until March 31, 1957, its personal income and corporation tax fields to Ottawa in return for an annual payment. Liberal house leader Farquhar Oliver, however, demanded that the government recognize a "moral obligation" to give municipalities any savings under the agreement. He said it was reported the government will save $25,000,000 in the 1952-53 fiscal year by taking the federal payments rather than collecting its own corporation taxes.

(Ontario collects no personal income tax, but has the right to collect five per cent of the federal tax.)

WILL MAKE MONEY

Premier Frost told reporters the province will gain about $20,000,000 this fiscal year by the agreement. He told the assembly the federal payment in the year would be $117,000,000, based on the value of the tax fields adjusted to reflect changes in Canada's gross national production and Ontario's population since 1948.

The only opposition to the agreement came from the legislature's one Communist member, J.B Salsberg (Lab.-Pro.-Toronto St. Andrew). He said corporations would get a "plum" of up to $200.000,000 during the five years of the agreement through a reduction of two per cent in the corporation tax.

Debate on second reading of the bill concludes today, and the legislature is also expected to give second reading to the two other pieces of government legislation in this special session. Mr. Frost said the house will sit tonight, if necessary, to complete the second readings.

TAX ISSUE DEBATE

Mr. Frost and Mr. Oliver took issue over whether Ontario should have entered a five-year tax agreement proposed at a 1945-46 federal-provincial conference. Ontario and Quebec were the only provinces abstaining from the agreement which expired last March 31.

The premier noted the post-war offer contained a comprehensive

Howe Predicts Sharp Drop In Cost-Of-Living

TORONTO (CP) — Trade Minister Howe last night predicted a "further sharp drop" in the next monthly cost-of-living index—third decline in a row—and said that while Canadian living costs are declining, those in the United States remain at an all-time high.

A "turning point" in Canada's progress, he said in a speech before the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, was when the Canadian government decided to relax controls after the Second World War, despite protests and opposition.

"It clearly marked the course that Canada was prepared to follow—towards a vigorous, flexible economy and away from a bureaucratic economy."

After the Korea war started, pressure again was exerted to reimpose controls, which "fortunately," said Mr. Howe, the government resisted. Controls were imposed in the U.S.

At Ottawa, officials said the next index likely will come out Nov. 4, covering price changes during September. During August the index declined 1.1 points to 186.5 from 187.6 in July and 187.6 in June. The index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, reached a peak of 191.5 last December.

South Koreans Retake Ridge

SEOUL (AP)—South Korean soldiers today recaptured the bloody crest of Sniper Ridge in a fierce battle with Chinese Communists.

They battled back to the top of the central-front hill nine hours after being chased off by about 1,500 Chinese.

The Reds seized the peak just after daybreak. At 8 a.m. they attacked the remnants of the South Korean defenders dug in on the south slope. The South Koreans held, and at 9 a.m. began their counter-attack.

For more than six hours they battled slowly up the shell-scarred slopes. The Reds pounded them with barrages of mortar and artillery fire, but still they inched forward.

Then, in a final charge, the South Koreans poured over the top and drove the Chinese back with hand grenades.

Little action was reported elsewhere along the 155-mile-long battle front. Allied planes hampered by clouds, fog and rain, made comparatively few strikes against Red front lines.

E.C. Carson, MPP Dies Suddenly At B.C. Home

VICTORIA (CP) — Progressive Conservative strength in the British Columbia legislature was reduced to three members yesterday with the death of the man who might well have become the party's next provincial leader—E.C. Carson.

Conservative leader in the house, the 58-year-old rancher and merchant died of a heart attack in the garden of his home in neighboring Oak Bay.

Mr. Carson, member for Lillooet since 1941 and one of four Conservatives to survive the June 12 provincial election, became Minister of Mines and Trade and Industry in 1942.

In 1946 he took the job he really liked, Minister of Public Works, and remained in that capacity until the break-up of the Liberal-Progressive Conservative coalition in January.

WAS LIKELY LEADER

Political sources felt Mr. Carson was the man most likely to succeed Herbert Anscomb as B.C. leader of the party. Mr. Anscomb, personally defeated in June, has announced he is resigning. A new leader will be chosen before Dec. 15.

Conservative fortunes are at a low ebb. Before the election, by contrast, they held 11 seats in the 48-seat legislature.

Premier W.A.C. Bennett described Mr. Carson's death as a "great loss to the legislature and to the public life of B.C."

"It was always recognized that he was one of the ablest administrators and one of the best public works ministers that B.C. has ever had," the Premier said.

Mr. Carson's one-time boss, former Premier Byron Johnson, said: "During the period when I was premier, Mr. Carson was minister of public works. The tremendous highway development in that time is a fitting tribute to his energy, foresight and leadership in his department."

BORN IN CARIBOO COUNTRY

Orders Disobeyed At Jail

TORONTO (CP)—Special instructions on treatment and security of the four members of the Boyd gang were disobeyed at the Don jail, Col. G. H. Basher, Deputy Minister of Reform Institutions, told a royal commission yesterday. The commission was appointed following the escape of Edwin Alonzo Boyd and three members of his gang Sept. 8. The City of Toronto owns the old jail in the east-central section of the city but it is administered by the province. Col. Basher said that when he was governor of the jail, more than 30 years ago, he had the window used in the escape bricked up after the murderer of a detective escaped through it and along the same wall which helped the Boyd gang gain their freedom. The bricks were removed and bars substituted in 1934.

SPECIAL PRECAUTIONS

He testified that when Boyd was taken back to the Don after a previous escape March 15 last he had discussed with Governor T. W. Brand, now under suspension. the special precautions which would have to be taken.

Among the instructions was one from Reform Institutions Minister Foote that Boyd must be kept under constant observation — day and night — and that the solid door leading to the vestibule on the outside of the cell block was to be kept open.

Other instructions included: The men to be locked in their individual cells except for exercise purposes and the exercising was to take place in the corridor outside the cells; All furniture removed from the corridor; They should not leave their cell block for any reason; Visitors such as lawyers and clergymen visit them at the grill leading into the cell block.

Col. Basher told Judge Ian Macdonell, the commissioner, that his instructions, to the best of his knowledge, had been carried out for some time. "But I don't know for how long."

CRITICIZES SALARIES

Col. Basher also said he did not think salaries paid to jail employees were adequate. Police recruits received a starting yearly salary of $3,200 compared to the starting salary at the Don Jail of $2,240 a year.

"I would say that salaries in jails are not what they should be and they are not attracting the type of man who would be more

First Successful Step, Preventing Polio Paralysis

CLEVELAND (AP)—The first practical way to prevent paralysis from polio was disclosed today. A magical material from human blood, gamma globulin, gives protection. The scientific proof came from tests on 55,000 U.S. children this summer and last. There are drawbacks to this preventative. It is not a vaccine. It protects about five weeks, maybe more. By no means is it the final or best answer to halt polio.

But it could be a fireman to stop localized polio epidemics, saving many children, even adults, from paralysis.

This great stride was announced by Dr. William Hammon of the University of Pittsburgh to the American Public Health Association.

The shots gave significant protection against all three types of polio virus that can cause human paralysis, Dr. Hammon said

CREATES ANTIBODIES

Gamma globulin is a protein in the blood that carries antibodies against diseases. If polio virus invades the body, antibodies are created to fight it. Most of us have had mild polio we never even knew about, and the G.G. in our blood contains antibodies against one or more of the three types of polio virus.

G.G. from human blood was given to half of the 55,000 children. The other half got harmless, useless shots of gelatin, which looked exactly like the straw-colored g.g. liquid.

Ninety of the 44,772 children later developed paralytic polio. Of them, 64 were those who had received the useless gelatin.

Twenty-six had the G.G shots, a really significant difference. It means that G.G. kept some youngsters from getting polio.

Queen To Sit Alone On Dais

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen will sit alone on a raised dais in the House of Lords when she opens Parliament Nov. 4 for the first time in her reign, with full state pageantry and ceremonial

The Duke of Edinburgh will lead her to the ornate throne which the monarch uses in Parliament, then will take his place on a less elaborate chair a few feet away to her left, on a lower platform.

The Duke's part in this year's ceremony was outlined last night by the office of the Lord Chancellor.

The precedent set by Queen Victoria and her consort Prince Albert has been followed exactly. He sat in the place now assigned to the Duke.

Mysterious Explosion Kills Family Of Five

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — A mysterious blast which levelled a two-storey home two miles north of here wiped out a family of five last night.

One of the victims was a 19-year-old expectant mother, Mrs. Hazel Rogosky. A caesarian operation failed to save her child and Mrs. Rogosky died soon after-they could not determine the cause of the blast. Some of the victims were burned beyond recognition.

In addition to Mrs. Rogosky, the dead are: her husband, Joseph Rogosky Jr., about 25; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rogosky Sr. between 65 and 70, and their 18-year-old son, John.

Young Hunter, 15 Found Dead

STONEY POINT (CP) — A hunting accident yesterday claimed the life of 15-year-old Leo Lecomte of Stoney Point.

Young Lecomte's body was found floating near shore in Lake St. Clair early today, after a brother and a neighbor spent the night searching the duck-hunting area near Stoney Point.

Police theorized that Lecomte was struck by the accidental discharge of a shotgun as he was about to step out of the boat in which he had set out to hunt ducks earlier. He was struck in the right chest by the shotgun pellets and probably died instantly.

Lamport Ready Take On Houde

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's Mayor Allan Lamport, fresh from his plowing triumph over Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa, is ready to take on rotund Camillien Houde, Montreal's chief magistrate — in speed skating.

Mayor Lamport received a challenge last night from an unidentified Montreal business man attending the annual banquet of the Packaging Association of Canada.

"All right, fine," the mayor said. "If they're issuing the challenge to skate — I won't have the city outdone."

Mayor Houde is often seen on Montreal rinks and skating long has been his favorite sport. Toronto's mayor, once captain of Upper Canada College's hockey team, hasn't been on skates for years except for taking part last year in a college old boys' game.

Plan Stamp Series Of New Queen

OTTAWA (CP) — A full-faced photograph of the Queen by Ottawa's world-famous photographer, Yousuf Karsh, has been officially approved for use in a new series of Canadian stamps, it was learned today.

A master die of the portrait now is being prepared and the new issues, to be printed by the millions, likely will go on sale some time next March, well before the coronation ceremonies next June.

At the same time it was learned that the Post Office Department also plans to print a special coronation stamp but no decision has yet been taken on design possibilities.

The new stamps bearing the Queen's portrait will be in one, two, three, four and five-cent denominations.

Mayhew Will Try Break Deadlock

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's first ambassador in Tokyo will make a new attempt to break a deadlock between Japan and the Commonwealth countries that has dragged through months of negotiations.

Hon. Ralph Mayhew, 72-year-old former cabinet minister who goes to Tokyo next month, is expected informally to make the latest attempt to find agreement in the argument concerning the legal status of 5,000 Commonwealth troops, including roughly 2,000 Canadians, in Japan.

But right now there is no optimism here that the impasse is going to crack.

In Canada, this situation stirs

bornly to their stands on the pivotal point of a complex issue—criminal jurisdiction or who has the right to try Commonwealth troops for various crimes.

Given agreement on that point, it is felt here, the dilemma would swiftly evaporate.

Queen Mother Takes Possession Of Castle

JOHN O'GROATS, Scotland (Reuters)—Queen Mother Elizabeth took formal possession yesterday of remote and primitive Barrogill Castle, seven miles from this northernmost town of the British mainland. But it will have no royal visits until this spring.

The Queen Mother purchased the 40-room castle, an imposing grey structure without electricity or central heating, last August.

She will use it as her summer residence now that Balmoral Castle, about 100 miles farther south, has passed to the present Queen.

The Queen Mother's first move to restore the great turreted and battlemented castle to the grandeur it knew centuries ago has been to rename it Castle of Mey—the name given when it was built 400 years ago.

Protests To Truman

U.S. Soldiers Threaten Kill U.K. Farmer On Own Land

CHICKSANDS, England (Reuters)—Farmer Wilfred Cobb said last night he will protest to President Truman because armed U.S. Air Force personnel arrested him on his own land and threatened to shoot him.

Cobb claimed he was stopped earlier in the day by two rifle-toting air force men on his farm in this Bedfordshire village, which is near an American air base. They said they were on manoeuvres and ordered him to halt.

He told reporters: "I was told to put my hands above my head and was marched to a barn and told to face the building. I was searched from head to foot at rifle point.

"They searched my other buildings, making me lead the way. They said that if they found anyone I would be shot."

The farmer was then ordered to sit on the grass, guarded by one airman who "was told to shoot me if I moved." Later his captors, reinforced by two other armed airmen, marched him half a mile to see an officer.

"The officer only jeered and remarked: 'If he doesn't do as I tell him I'll bash his head in with a rifle butt,'" said Cobb.

An R.A.F. officer came along then and Cobb was released.

A U.S.A.F. spokesman at the base said an official apology is being sent to the 48-year-old farmer.

"Apology?" snorted Cobb. "What's the good of that? My character has been damaged."

Hundreds Killed During Typhoon

MANILA (AP) — The season's worst tropical storm veered from its plotted course today and swung into the South China Sea.

This capital city was spared, but the typhoon left death and destruction in its wake.

The storm, with winds up to 100 miles an hour, rolled up the southeast coast of Luzon, lashed the Tayabas Bay area, then swung due west.

Violent weather struck another savage blow 80 miles southeast across the South China Sea. Radio reports to Saigon said a storm-generated tidal wave smashed into the Indo-China port city of Phantiet Monday night.

Several hundred persons were reported killed or injured. The airfield was cut off from the town and the railway station was destroyed. Three French landing craft brought help.

First reports said the wall of water cut the town in two, burying one-half of it in six feet of water and mud. Several thousand huts were reported destroyed.

Pearson Tackles Big Problem

Trying To Make U.N. More Efficient

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—L.B. Pearson is sticking his neck out in efforts to make the United Nations Assembly more efficient.

An assembly president, Canada's external affairs minister has been having some procedural difficulties and he expects lots more.

Pearson has always been critical of useless debate in the U.N. and now that he is President he is doing what he can to keep discussion to the point and as short as possible.

His method of doing this is to set down his opinion as president to bring matters to a head quickly. He figures if the assembly doesn't like his rulings they have the opportunity to vote him down. At the same time the question at hand is handled speedily.

So far, Pearson has been overruled by the assembly once and another time came within three votes of having his opinion turned back.

OPPOSE DECISION

Yesterday, the United States delegate, Ernest Gross, opposed a Pearson decision and was upheld by the rules of procedure without a vote.

Pearson is not upset when he is overruled. He reasons that the only way to get on with the business of the assembly, which has a target date of Dec. 29, is to keep things moving and to cut out all unnecessary debate.

The first day of the assembly, Oct. 14, a few hours after he was elected president, there was a procedural hassle and Pearson was sustained by a vote of only 27 to 25 with eight countries abstaining.

The vote was on whether to reconsider a proposal already accepted by the assembly, Pearson earlier had suggested — and no one had objected — that the chairman of the special political committee be allowed a vote in the Assembly steering committee, something that had not been done before.

After a break, Russian delegate Andrei Gromyko brought the question up again, charging that Pearson's proposal had been pushed through without delegates having a chance to speak about it. The small margin in favor of not reconsidering the proposal was considered by some observers as something of a moral victory for Gromyko.

OVERRULED 43-10

Last Friday, Pearson was overruled by the assembly, the first time it has happened on a major issue in U.N. history. This was on the question whether to consider immediately South Africa's demand that the assembly rule it was not competent to deal with the question of racial conflict in south Africa.

Pearson put forward the opinion that the assembly should immediately take up the South African demand. U.N. legal experts had told Pearson he had a right to do this.

But after representatives of Mexico, Chile and Russia hit at Pearson's ruling, the assembly voted 43 to 10 with seven abstentions to upset the Canadian's opinion.

The general committee with Pearson as chairman, was talking yesterday about Russia's demand that Chinese Communists and North Koreans be invited to take part in discussions of the U.S. call for an investigation of Soviet germ-war charges. Just when Russia was about to make a formal proposal for the invitation, Gross called for adjournment of debate on the question. Pearson started to call for a vote on Gromyko's suggestion but Gross drew to the Canadian's attention the rule that any motion for adjournment should be considered first.

So the adjournment motion was considered and won by a vote of 11 to 2 (Russia and Czechoslovakia).

Mother Guilty Of Slaying While Insane

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Crown closed its books yesterday on the bizarre slaying of seven-year-old Martha Louise McCullough, the tiny blonde girl who died because "she refused to pray."

The "prayer-session" slaying, as it was called, ended abruptly before an assize court jury with the acquittal, by reason of insanity, of Mrs. Lillian McCullough, charged with murder.

Her foster daughter's bludgeoned and strangled body was found last Jan. 25 in a bedroom of the McCullough home in suburban Elmwood.

The jury took 82 minutes to return its verdict of innocent because of insanity, one of three possible conclusions. Mr. Justice Ralph Maybank ordered the woman held at the Manitoba Home for Women at Portage la Prairie, awaiting the "pleasure" of the lieutenant-governor.

HUSBAND GETS SAME

A similar verdict was returned last May in the murder trial of Gavin McCullough, 3, charged jointly with his wife. He is detained in Headingley Jail.

Mrs. McCullough first was committed to a mental hospital and then declared fit to stand trial. A gray-haired housewife of 53, she sobbed yesterday as Defence counsel A.J. Stringer described a happy McCullough home and the parent's love for their foster daughter.

Crash-Lands Plane In Field

OTTAWA (CP)—FO. J. J. C. Richardson, a native of Chelmsford yesterday escaped unhurt when he was forced to crash-land his Sabre jet fighter on a farm near Sarsfield, about 20 miles east of Ottawa.

Richardson, whose mother, Mrs. A. Richardson, lives near Sudbury, was on a training flight when his engine stalled.

He kept his wheels up and belly-flopped the speedy fighter in a farm field.

Mrs. Romeo Raymond of Sarsfield, an eye-witness, said the plane "just seemed to arrive out of nowhere and settle down on a little hill."

An official R.C.A.F. statement said the plane was "somewhat damaged."

Volume for the first three hours totalled 1,104,000 shares — the highest third-hour volume in a week.

Gains were few and small in the base metals list as the decline extended to most stocks traded. Cobalt Lode and International Nickel made small gains while Barvue, Con. Smelters, Nesbitt-Labine and United Abestos slipped.

Western oils showed a similar picture of declines. Canadian Atlantic, Central Explorers and Federated dropped between 25 and 50 cents each while Cons. Cordasun made a small gain.

Canada Extending Credit To Yugoslavia

almost $10,000,000 worth of credit to help Yugoslavia buy wheat from Canada, federal officials disclosed yesterday.

The credit will be in the form of a guarantee of payment under the Export Credits Insurance Corporation and will run about one year, officials said. If Yugoslavia defaults, payment will come out of the federal treasury.

Yugoslavia, badly hit by a domestic wheat crop failure, has agreed to purchase 150,000 tons of Canadian class II No. 5 wheat, paying 20 per cent cash. The federal credit will cover the remaining 80 per cent.

Total cost is expected to run to about $12,000,000, with the federal credit totalling about $9,600,000.

Iran Breaks Off U.K. Relations

TEHRAN, Iran (Reuters)—Iran today delivered a formal note breaking diplomatic relations with Britain.

The British envoy here was summoned to the Foreign Office to receive it.

Foreign Minister Hussein Fatemi told reporters the contents of the note will be released later today.

The diplomatic break comes as the latest move in the 18-month-long oil dispute. Premier Mohammed Mossadegh said in a radio address last week that Britain had "forced" Iran to break off relations.

plan involving federal grants for capital works, old-age pensions and a health insurance scheme. The health insurance program had not been established only because of a shortage of hospital accommodation.

The province had saved $13,000,000 during the last five years by collecting its own taxes rather than renting the tax fields to Ottawa.

Mr. Oliver said that despite this saving, the province had lost unemployment relief, capital grants and a health insurance program offered in 1945-46 by the federal government.

WON'T SURRENDER RIGHTS

The premier said Ontario will surrender none of its constitutional powers under the new agreement. In 1957 it could re-enter the rented tax fields on terms more favorable than the 1945-46 federal offer.

The new agreement provided "substantial improvements" over the former offer. It would provide about $20,000,000 more a year than the previous offer. The payment formula had been altered to reflect more closely rapid increases in economic growth. The federal government had also dropped taxes on gasoline, amusements, electricit and race-track betting claimed by the provinces in 1945.

Court Martial Hearing Begins for 4 Troopers

HOHNE, Germany (Reuters)—Court martial of three Ontario soldiers and one from Montreal, charged with being the ring-leaders of a group which wrecked a German hotel Sept. 30, opened today.

The four are Tprs. Evan Ernest Bryans of Lindsay, who today pleaded innocent, B.A. McPhee of Sudbury, C.H. Dobson of Elk Lake and J.J.R. Rindeau of Montreal.

They are members of C Squadron, Royal Canadian Dragoons, stationed with the Canadian 27th Infantry Brigade. Another 19 Canadians are under open arrest pending result of the court martial, which is expected to last three or four days.

The prosecutor, Capt. E.C. Hipwell of Creston, B.C., said the attack had been a "premeditated plot carried out in accordance with a predetermined plan."

Defence counsel Capt. N. Mann of Camp Petawawa, suggested to the hotel owner that German youth groups often used the hotel but this was denied.

WRECKING ROOM

Hotel owner Willi Hogrefe said he had noticed two groups of Canadian soldiers outside the hotel,but took little notice. He then heard glasses being broken and found the oldiers wrecking the "GUEST ROOM." His father-in-law was bleeding, he said.

The chandeliers were ripped from the walls, he said, all the windows broken, and all the furniture overturned.

A young carpenter, Henry Kote, said he had been playing cards when the Canadians entered the hotel and "started throwing glasses in our direction."

He tried to hide behind a curtain but was caught and beaten.

"Then the lights went out and I tried to leave, but I was again hit on the neck and fell. . .I crawled underneath a bench in the corner, but somebody saw me and I was beaten with chairs and tables."

He couldn't identify any of the soldiers, he said.

Another prosecution witness said he had seen a soldier addressing a group of others outside the hotel, apparently giving them instructions.

"The soldiers then went inside the hotel and soon afterwards I heard some crashes and noises and the lights went out," he said. He said two Canadians guarded the windows so none of the German civilians could escape.

Fire Destroys Pigeon L. Home

DOWNEYVILLE (ENS)—A fire of undetermined origin totally destroyed the farm home of John McLaughlin of King's Wharf on Pigeon Lake at 2 a.m. today.

Occupants of the house, Mr. McLaughlin, his daughter, Lillian, and son, Leo, were awakened by the excessive heat from the blazing roof above them. They got away from the burning building after grabbing a few clothes; Mr. McLaughlin managed to get his best suit out of the clothes closet; it contained some money. They had no telephone.

No neighbors knew of the disaster until this morning the McLaughlins walked over to the next farm, a summer resort called Lakeview Inn owned and operated by Mrs. T. J. O'Neill.

They were given immediate shelter and relatives in Toronto were immediately notified. These were two daughters, Rita and Shirley McLaughlin, and a son Frank.

Flames quickly ate up the eight-room two storey wooden house which destroyed all attached buildings.

Some chicken houses in the yard were not touched. There was no barn on the place. Mr. McLaughlin leases his 100-acre farm for pasturage. It was learned today from the owner that there was some insurance on the house but not enough to cover the total loss. He could not understand the cause of the blaze.

Woman Shot In Head By Gun

Found lying in a pool of blood in the basement workshop of her home at 554 Bolivar Street at noon today, Mrs. Helen Colmer, 42, was rushed to Civic Hospital. At press time, she was still in the emergency ward in critical condition, with a wound from a 32-calibre bullet in her head.

When he returned home for lunch at noon, her husband, Clifford Colmer, was unable to locate his wife. He inquired from his sister-in-law who lives upstairs if she had seen her and she told him she had not.

HEARD SHOT

Thinking his wife might be in the basement, Mr. Colmer went downstairs. The door of his basement workshop was closed. Just as he reached the bottom of the steps he heard a shot fired.

Mrs. Colmer was found lying on her back, with the gun, a 32-calibre revolver, lying under her knees.

An ambulance and police were summoned and Constable Grant Gillespie accompanied the injured woman to hospital.

There was no suggestion of foul play, said Detective Sergeant John Stevenson who is investigating with Constable Gillespie.

Phone Operator Saves Village From Flames

MONO MILLS (CP) — A quick-thinking telephone operator early today saved this community from possible destruction when fire destroyed a village barn and threatened to spread to other buildings.

Mono Mills is 35 miles northwest of Toronto.

Notified that a barn was afire, Mrs. Mary Winchester called out 200 persons to form a bucket brigade. Then she put in calls for help to Orangeville and Caledon East fire departments.

For five miles around people sped to the scene and dammed a small creek near the barn to form a ready supply of water.

Give Stiff Sentences On Assault Charge

PEMBROKE (CP) — Harold St. Amour, 20, was sentenced to 15 years and Keith O'Brien, 21, to 10 years today on their conviction on a charge of indecent assault.

The two Pembroke men assaulted Mrs. Lois Logan of Dunnville, near Pembroke on the night of July 18. Testimony brought out that the two, posing as police officers, came upon a car where Mr. and Mrs. Logan were sleeping.

The husband was left on the roadway and his wife later assaulted.

Mr. Justice Treleaven said there were certain extenuating circumstances in the case of O'Brien but he could not overlook the grave nature of the crime.

Baby Badly Burned In Trailer Home Fire

BEAMSVILLE (CP) — Seven-month-old Wayne Smith suffered severe burns early today when fire destroyed the trailer home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Smith.

A two-year-old brother Kenneth suffered face burns and is reported in "fairly good" condition.

Neighbors said Mrs. Smith left her home, about 12 miles west of St. Catharines, to shop at a groceteria about 100 feet away. When she returned a few minutes later the trailer was filled with smoke.

The children were rescued by Clifford Hall, a nearby garage operator. Cause of the blaze was not determined.

SWALLOW VIRUS

Apparently, humans swallow polio virus. Within about a week, it goes from the intestines to the bloodstream, staying there four or five days before it starts invading nerves to cause paralysis.

In monkeys, G.G. given early enough hits and neutralizes the virus while it is still in the blood, before there are any signs of sickness. Results announced today show that the same protection can occur in humans. G.G. cannot do any good if it is given too late—after or about the time the virus starts attacking nerves.

The 99 paralytic polio cases means children who showed some signs of paralysis, at any time. Some recovered completely.

The G.G. shots had some spar- who did get paralysis. Within 30 days, half of the G.G. children had recovered completely. In that same period, none of those getting gelatin had recovered completely.

Springville Church Marks 119th Birthday

SPRINGVILLE (ENS) — The 119th anniversary of continuous ministry at Springville was celebrated by special services in Springville Church on Sunday.

The choir under the leadership of A. B. Preston and Mrs. Harry Bothwell, organist, provided special music at both services. Mrs. G. A. Spicer, choir director of Millbrook church was guest soloist at the morning service and a ladies' trio from Cobourg were guests at the evening service. Miss Lois Paddock provided flowers for decorating the church for the occasion.

The Rev. A. E. Larke, minister at Springville Church, preached the morning service at his own church.

Paul warned Christian Corinthians not to be puffed up because a gift from God made them different from others. He warned that Christ's ministers must be faithful stewards and that the apostles were appointed by God unto hunger, thirst, suffering and death "to be made a spectacle to the world, to angels and to men."

Referring to Mrs. Spicer's solo, Mr. Larke said he wanted to bring forth the fact that rejoicing is a characteristic of the Christian—rejoicing because he has been redeemed. Personal discipline, he said, was another Christian characteristic. To get on top of the pressure of the little irritations of the daily round and common tasks shows a real relationship to God.

"We are living in exceptionally favored times," said Mr. Larke. We are not called upon to risk life and limb for Jesus Christ but in the past many have been brought to death for such witnessing.

Paul's personal discipline made him keep on going forward for the purpose Christ had taken hold of him. He said "I press forward to the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

The greatest danger to men and women today, said Mr. Larke, is prosperity. Paul said he knew how to live when things were bad and when things were good.

At the evening services the Rev. Ivan Morgan of Murray Street Baptist Church, Peterborough, brought a missionary message to the congregation.

In opening, he said, "A salesman must be sure that his customers need such a product. When a minister has been gripped by the message he proclaims then he can relay it to make it a part of his congregation's lives." It is a turning point in the life of any person when he comes to know God, to really pray and to have personal salvation.

Continuing Series

NEW YORK (CP) — Bishop Fulton Sheen's television series, "Life is Worth Living," which competed last year against Milton Berle's comedy show, will begin a 26-week series on the same Tuesday night spot Oct. 18. Admiral Corp. announced yesterday it will pay $1,000,000 for the TV series. The Roman Catholic bishop's talks last year were unsponsored.

CENTENNIAL OF WARKWORTH United Church is being celebrated this week. The Rev. H. G. Tuttle (left) was guest preacher last Sunday. Centre is the Rev. A. L. Sisco, who recently accepted a call to the church; formerly he was minister at Tweed. Right is Benjamin Buchanan, one of the oldest members of the church and also one of its most active. Although he is in his 80's, Mr. Buchanan takes an interest in church work as strong as ever.—(McCormick Photo).

Three Crises In Africa Plague Britain

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Commonwealth faced three crises in Africa today in the wake of mounting black-white bitterness and blood-shed.

Race hatred, labor unrest and a political upheaval flared anew in independent South Africa and the British East African colonies of Northern Rhodesia and Kenya.

In South Africa, for the first time in recent history a Negro mob over the weekend unleashed its simmering hate against white men, women and children, killing, looting and burning as they went.

In Northern Rhodesia's vital copper mines, 37,000 out of 39,000 Negro workers downed tools for more money and the right to do more skilled work.

In Kenya, on the East African seaboard, British troops flew in as a state of emergency was declared by the Nairobi government to help root out the Mau Mau secret society of tribesmen piedged to drive the whites into the sea.

SITUATIONS DIFFER

The situations in the three countries which have produced the turbulence are not the same.

As far as is known, the Negro peoples in southern, central and eastern Africa are in no way linked with each other. They have no organized political movement. Their one common denominator is resentment against white rule and a deepening dissatisfaction with their own lot.

The outburst in Port Elizabeth, South Africa, in which four whites and seven non-whites were killed and many more hurt, seemed spontaneous. Reports from the union stressed that the incident had no connection with the non-white campaign of defiance against race laws — a campaign that has led to the arrest of nearly 6,000 since it was launched last June.

Nevertheless, racial tensions in South Africa have been rising steadily since the war. Moderates among white and black alike are scared of what the morrow may bring.

HALT COPPER MINING

Production of copper has been halted by the North Rhodesian strike in four main mines. A similar stoppage before the Second World War led to big-scale clashes, and South Africa sent men and guns to help the colonial authorities crush the miners' resistance.

Some government officials here speculated the new stoppage in part expresses the Negroes' opposition to Britain's project for a new central African state. It would ultimately weld Southern and Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland into a new dominion.

The Mau Mau of Kenya is a movement whose exact strength is unknown to the authorities. Its terrorist actions in rural areas since September have been marked by an anti-white fanaticism. The secret society — originating from the intelligent Kikuyu tribe — has been blamed for 41 murders, 12 attempted murders, 12 assaults and 24 hut burnings in the last few weeks.

DRAW ON SYMPATHIES

The mystery men of the Mau Mau draw their strength mainly from the sympathies they have been able to invoke among their fellow Negroes in Kenya. Tens of thousands of them are landless. Those who have farms often have gone hungry because of drought and pests. In the towns, workers' wages have not kept pace with rising living costs.

British officials here have always asserted that there is no strong, organized Communist movement in Central or East Africa. In South Africa Prime Minister Daniel Malan's government has banned Communism.

Man Fined $100 On Liquor Charge Says Will Appeal

John Neil, 62, of Burleigh Falls was convicted of having possession of liquor not obtained on his own permit and was fined $100 and $7.50 costs or three months in jail Monday afternoon.

Neil was not present, but was represented by W. J. Arthur Fair who urged Magistrate W. R. Philp to dismiss the charge, because Neil's son Eldon testified the beer belonged to him.

Eldon Neil told the court the 66 bottles of beer seized by O.P.P. Corporal Aimy Gaudry and Constable Douglas Ross belonged to him. A deed was produced by Mr. Fair establishing that the three-room building where the beer was found, belonged to Eldon Neil and not his father.

Neil said his father and mother were just looking after the store which is in part of the building for him. He said he left the beer there August 18, the day the provincial police seized the beer.

After Magistrate Philp said he was finding John Neil guilty of the charge on the evidence and the section of the Liquor Control Act which permits him to draw inferences from facts, Mr. Fair said "I have no alternative but to appeal from such a decision."

A statement given by the accused to Corporal Gaudry was admitted as evidence, and stated that "a party" had brought the liquor to the premises where the police seized it. The statement signed by John Neil stated that he believed the party was from Peterborough.

Eldon Neil admitted he owned a residence on Brioux Ave., in the city but said he lived part of the time in the city and the remainder of the time at his place in Harvey township.

After convicting Neil, Magistrate Philp granted crown attorney John A. Bradshaw's request that the property be declared a public place.

Young Adults' Group Meets At Springville

SPRINGVILLE (ENS) — The Young Adult Group of Springville Church held their October meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kelk.

A special feature of this meeting was the visit of four guests from the Adult Group in the Oshawa Church where the Rev. Frank Whiteley was formerly the minister. The visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Canning, presidents of the Oshawa group and Mr. and Mrs. Dean Peel, secretaries.

Mr. Canning, in speaking of their organization, mentioned that they started with three couples at their first meeting, eight couples at their second one and now have a membership of 35 couples with an average attendance of 25 couples. They have used several ways of raising money, one a paper drive which netted them $1,000 in one year, but that was when paper was much more expensive than it is now. Another way is sponsoring plays. Mr. Canning is the superintendent of the Sunday School and he says that the adult organization has resulted in increased attendance at Sunday School as well as at church.

Their group differs from the Springville group in that in Oshawa the present adult group includes many of whom whose families are grown up while in Springville the group consists of those who are a few years older than the Young People's group.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Johnston had charge of contests on words ending in "sting" and an apple contest.

Mr. Charlie Knight gave a talk on Thanksgiving and lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Kelk and Mrs. Visee and Mrs. Clarence Johnston.

No Quota Against British Immigration

In recent criticism of Canada's immigration policies, suspicions have been aroused that the Government has in some way or another put a quota on British immigration. For instance, a Church of England canon in Toronto has suggested that the Government is attempting to keep the racial and religious balance which now exists by effectively, if not openly, hindering or not encouraging British emigrants. The inference is that French-Canada's hand is being put on immigration policy, and that the Roman Catholic church is at the same time putting pressure on the Government. The purpose of this suggested interference or direction would be to prevent too heavy a Protestant and Anglo-Saxon immigration.

* * *

It is hard to find either substance for these implications, or figures which disprove them utterly. Statistics can be twisted, and, further, figures accumulated for one purpose cannot be made to serve another. We have been in communication with appropriate officials in Ottawa, and from facts supplied by them cannot believe that there is any truth in the assumption or assertions that British or Protestant immigration is being discouraged. The opposite seems true. Here is the story that money tells.

* * *

The Department of Citizenship and Immigration spends money to encourage immigration and to assist immigrants. It maintains offices and agents abroad. While the accounting system of the Department does not segregate expenses according to individual countries, an examination of the Public Accounts for the fiscal years 1945/46-1950/51 reveals the distribution of expenditures in Europe. From these accounts, it is apparent that two million dollars or 66 percent. of the Department of Immigration's expenditures in Europe during those six years were made in the United Kingdom. This indicates, we think beyond any doubt, that the Government is encouraging and helping British immigrants far more than immigrants from other countries; and is certainly not discouraging them. It is true that the two million dollars spent included salaries and expenses of the European Immigration Headquarters until it was disbanded in the fall of 1950; but the amounts involved in this do not materially alter the results.

* * *

Here is the analysis of the Department of Immigration's spending in Europe during the last six years:

Country	Expenditure	Relation to Total
United Kingdom	$2,000,000	66 %
Germany	307,000	10 %
France	242,000	8 %
Belgium	161,000	5 %
Holland	122,000	4 %
Italy	84,000	3 %
Sweden	46,000	1.½%
Austria	35,000	1 %
Switzerland, Denmark, Eire and Greece	53,000	1.½%
	$3,050,000	100 %

* * *

In addition to the expenditures shown above, the Government paid Trans-Canada Air Lines (T.C.A.) $1,345,000 during the fiscal years 1948-49 and 1950-51 to transport immigrants from the United Kingdom. In conjunction with this, immigrants were assisted with passage loans in the United Kingdom and [illegible] Continental countries. Of this the United Kingdom took advantage; 13,341 people coming from Germany used it, and 1,665 in France, Sweden, Belgium and Switzerland. (The loans are repayable.) If the high German figure suggests partiality towards the Germans, it still does not mean that Roman Catholics were preferred above Protestants, for Germany is primarily a Protestant country.

* * *

Actually, no figures are available on the religious denominations of persons admitted to Canada. Canada has what we believe is a fair-minded policy in this regard; prospective immigrants are neither qualified nor barred because of their religious beliefs. Canada officially considers a man's religion to be his private and personal business.

* * *

The statistics cataloguing immigrants according to their "country of last permanent residence" and by "ethnic origins" (that is, by race), both show that immigrants from the British Isles in the last six years totalled almost as many as immigrants from all other overseas parts of the world together. This certainly does not show discrimination against the British, nor special favour to French, Belgian, Italian or any other people. It is interesting to compare the tables based on ethnic origins with those on "country of last permanent residence." There is not as much variation as might be expected; that is, the number of people of English origin compares pretty closely with the number who gave England as their place of last permanent residence. Thus, when figures are cited showing immigration from Britain, the figure means that most of the immigrants were British, and not Frenchmen, Hebrews or Slovenes who came to Canada via Britain.

* * *

We give below a sample of the immigrant record, according to racial origin, of the years 1946 to 1951. First, the British immigration:

	English	Irish	Scotch	Welsh
1946	38,370	3,218	8,647	1,173
1947	27,303	2,908	7,596	940
1948	30,210	4,178	10,771	898
1949	13,848	2,585	5,298	470
1950	8,700	1,362	3,123	242
1951	19,109	2,506	9,201	360
Total	137,540	16,757	44,636	4,083

Immigration from some other European countries—or rather, classified by racial origin, was as follows, for the same years. We select only the largest ethnic groups:

	Dutch	Polish	Italian
1946	2,146	565	145
1947	3,192	2,610	139
1948	10,169	13,799	3,202
1949	7,782	12,233	7,742
1950	7,404	6,612	9,059
1951	19,130	12,938	24,351
Totals	49,823	48,757	44,638

	Hebrew	Ukrainian	German
1946	1,517	114	449
1947	1,866	2,044	300
1948	9,386	10,011	3,051
1949	4,499	6,570	5,988
1950	2,429	3,769	5,825
1951	6,599	6,894	32,395
Totals	26,296	29,402	48,008

* * *

Compare the total British immigration of 203,016 with the total of any one of the six other leading races supplying immigrants during the last six years, and it is clearly seen that there is and has been no discrimination against the British. The total for the English alone is three times as great as for any other country.

* * *

A study of the figures shows, however, that emigration from Britain to Canada has declined lately in comparison with emigration of German and other continental people. This seems due to the fact that the big wave of hopeful Britons wanting to emigrate to Canada is subsiding, whereas some continental people are just getting the urge, and Canada is fortunately receiving them—fortunate for overcrowded Europe, fortunate for empty Canada. Great fluctuation in the British figures will be noticed. Last year, for instance, was a bigger year than 1950. It was last year that the British Government's restrictions on taking out money were eased slightly in immigrants' favour.

* * *

The currency matter is probably the chief impediment to British emigration to Canada—and not any restrictions or lack of encouragement on the part of the Canadian government. In fact, by Order in Council Number 2856, of June, 1950, the only persons who can emigrate freely to Canada at any time, provided they have means to maintain themselves until they gain employment, are British subjects born or naturalized in the U.K., Northern Ireland, Australia, New Zealand or the Union of South Africa; and French and Americans and citizens of Eire who have become citizens of the U.K. by registration under the British Nationality Act of 1948. All other intending immigrants have to be certified by the Department as being fit and suitable persons, in other words, selected.

* * *

We have written at length on this topic, because it is important, has been raised locally, and in letters to the Editor. The facts and figures given above show pretty conclusively that talk of quotas against the British is pure bosh.

NOTES AND COMMENT

It is excedingly easy for a woman to make a fool of a man because she has what it takes.

If there is such a thing as reincarnation, the victim of arthritis hopes that in future life cycles he will be an invertebrate.

Finance Minister Abbott says that only hard work can cut taxes. What does he suppose we have been doing in order to pay them?

An editor claims that the time will come when people will no longer be able to spend money they haven't got. If this should occur, people would be unable to buy things they cannot afford, which would no doubt be regarded as a calamity by many.

BIBLIOMANIA:

Not Even Disaster

THE GREEN MAN, by Storm Jameson (MacMillan Book Co. of Canada)

MISS JAMESON'S LATEST book is an outstanding achievement. Richard Daubney, distinguished scholar, hangs on desperately to the old family house. He runs into debt rather than compromise his principles by toadying to the powers that be, represented by his brilliant and unscrupulous brother Matthew Daubney. The sins of the father are visited upon the children, and the characters and the fates of their children are depicted with the penetrating realism of the North countrywoman.

This is a bitter book. The tragedy of the individuals, with their ideals, their corruption, their strength and weakness, is an epitome of the moral debacle into which the world has drifted since the 'thirties. And yet this is no mere essay on trends in contemporary history; the characters and the background are perfectly integrated.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN SPITE OF THE merciless denunciation of the breakdown of modern civilization this novel is shot through with glimpses of hope. It is true that these hopes are extremely slender, and Miss Jameson does not propose any more positive recipe for salvation than the Voltairean "il faut cultiver son jardin", a modern Stoicism. "Possibly, probably, we are living in the last years of a civilization, the only one we understand . . . We must expect nothing too much, not even disaster. Live without anxiety until the moment when darkness begins; then live through it to the other side, carrying what can be carried easily—a few images—a concert hall in the moment when the conductor raises his arm and the violins fly up together: words spoken in Athens, in Galilee, in Rome, and still echoing . . ." Cold comfort, doubtless, but with the barbarians hammering at the gates from without and undermining from within only a mighty faith or an invincible ignorance can ignore the troubles of the present day. This is a book to be pondered upon by thinking people.

RHYMES OF A REBEL, by Robert Service (McClelland & Stewart)

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS SPENT in the service of Robert Service might be rather tiresome. But this is no tedium for thousands of his readers of Songs of a Sourdough and his other Yukon ballads, boisterous and nostalgic as they recite them. And none, it is apparent from this latest collection, to Robert Service, now 75 or 78, (his age depends on whether you take the date the dust cover gives, or the evidence of Old Codger, the piece which beings the section of the book called Songs of Myself). Robert Service has not outlived his reputation, nor it him—both of which may be surprising until you get the testimony in Rhymes of a Rebel.

Many of these verses are as simple, breezy and directly sentimental as his very earliest—belying a near-lifetime of leisured ease spent in cosmopolitan France. Other of the verses show how Service has come to terms with his Yukon ballad reputation, his European existence and himself. 'Come to terms' is too forthright a way to put it; he has sidled up to all three without any resolution, mellowing but not changing in breadth or depth as the edges yellowed. People who breathed fast and delightedly over the Yukon and the soldier ballads of 1914 can quicken to these verses, especially if they, like Service, have eschewed sophistication in growing old.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT IS THE SAME Service as of old, without the impulse of a frontier and youth, and as his autobiographical book of a couple of years ago taught us (and reminded us that he was still among living writers) a Service translated into self-confessed low-brow versifying on bull-fights, gardens, chaufeurs and recollections of people and things, mostly on the fringe of international society in France. Metrically he remains. Here is a sample, the first of three stanzas about a bull (El Toro):

Green mountains reared against the sky,
And tranquil as a herd of cows,
With horsemen nonchalantly nigh
I saw a hundred bulls a-browse.
In supple strength and pride they grazed,
And life was simple, sweet and full;
With placid peace their eyes were glazed—
How good to be a bull!

It is a septuagenarian versifier's apostrophe.

Some of the best work in the book is in the first section which gives it its title: Rhymes for Rebels. The rebellion is through a plastic sieve.

Mr. Service makes a show of being a simple fellow, with no pretensions to philosophy, learning or high art. Let us allow him this honesty, but credit him with some real poems in the book. One is called Dust; sixteen lines which show that after all, he has ripened as well as aged, and has said something as affecting and sincere as it is simple and poetic. He traced his name with his finger on the dust of the desk. His "wistful snatch of rhyme" was wasted:

Our silly names in dust we write—
Dust ends the story.

THE KEY MAN, by Clarence Budington Kelland. (The Musson Book Co.)

A SULTRY BLONDE, a Stradivarius violin, murder and blackmail; all this and television too, makes exciting reading. Mr. Kelland is an accomplished teller of tales and those who have read his numerous books will find this equally satisfying.

Peter Mortain, a producer-director of a television show suddenly discovers himself as the key man in a murder, and is surprised and dismayed to discover also that the owner of the show appears to be a guilty party, together with the sultry blonde, who has everything a woman should have, plus rather more than most women would want to claim. In between shows Peter engages in detective work and obviously enjoys it without allowing the rougher side of the job to ruffle him. Everything appears to come his way, and things begin to look exceedingly black for some of his friends. However, with the help of a surprisingly polite and accommodating New York police detective, Peter and his girl manage to solve the crime and all guilty parties are brought to justice.

SKOAL SCANDINAVIA by Edward Streeter (Musson Book Co.)

READERS WHO LIKE TRAVEL books will enjoy this account of Mr. Streeter's travels through Norway, Sweden and Denmark. He writes well and easily of his and his travelling companions' adventures on their tour through Scandinavia. Besides containing interesting facts on Scandinavian customs, hotels, ferries and roads, its courteous and happy people and its wonderful scenic beauty, his book is also an amusing account of his companions' reactions to these things.

It is not, as the author himself explains, a guide-book for would-be tourists to Scandinavia, but perhaps one could best describe it is an excellent and inexpensive substitute for the real thing; for those who like to travel but have not the necessary means to indulge their taste. The advantage of a well-written travel book is that one can visit the different places written of and enjoy them almost as much as if one were really there, without having any of the discomforts and irritations that, seemingly, all tourists have no matter how well everything it arranged beforehand.

There are also some very graphic descriptions of driving over roads that cling to the sheer sides of mountains with nothing to prevent the careless or nervous driver from plunging to death, thousands of feet below into churning, glacial waters.

For the gourmet, the author gives some sample menus of the meals served in the hotels at a surprisingly low cost—approximately one half of what a person would pay here or in the States. The breakfasts alone, I think, would satisfy the appetite of an ordinary eater for at least three days, or so it seems to me.

Mr. Streeter seems to be constantly surprised at the variety and inexpensiveness of the hotels and food, and enters and leaves every hotel with the firm conviction that his bill will be faublous. Even though this never happens, his surprise remains with him throughout the whole tour. Perhaps being an American he has been conditioned to expect and accept over-charging as inevitable, owing to the belief, prevalent in many countries, that all Americans are millionaires.

An American Opinion: NO BETTER WAY THAN THIS?

Treatment Of Sex Perverts

(EDMONTON JOURNAL)

ONE of the most discouraging features of criminal law reform in Canada is the fact that judges and prosecutors so often fail to use the weapons which Parliament has placed in their hands for controlling crime.

Thus back in 1948 an amendment was passed to the Criminal Code dealing with that most difficult and dangerous of criminals, the sex pervert. It provides that after a person has been convicted of a sex crime, the presiding judge may order him examined by psychiatrists to determine the degree of abnormality. If they report that the accused is a "criminal psychopath"—that is, a confirmed sexual pervert—the court may order him detained for an indefinite period after the expiration of his sentence for the particular offence.

The prisoner cannot thereafter be released unless the minister of justice, who is supposed to review the case every three years, is satisfied that this can be done without danger to the public. This is an attempt to apply the provisions of the "habitual criminal" law to sex crimes, and if it were generally used it would do much to solve the problem. . . .

Unfortunately it is not being used widely at all, even in cases which seem to cry out for such treatment. An instance occurred in Vancouver the other day, when a 69-year-old man was convicted of molesting two small girls. His record showed that he had two previous convictions for similar crimes during the last 25 years. One of his offences must have been particularly aggravated, because he then received a sentence of 17 years in the penitentiary and 45 lashes.

✧ ✧ ✧

HERE, one would imagine, was precisely the type of man at whom the "criminal psychopath" law was aimed. Yet apparently the trial judge did not consider this section of the code at all. He merely sentenced the accused to two years imprisonment and 20 lashes. This means, presumably, that he will be out again in 18 months or so, under the parole system, ready for more trouble. The lashes may appease public indignation, but they will do nothing to reform the prisoner, any more than the earlier flogging did.

The case suggests that, despite many terrible tragedies in recent years, the gravity of the sex pervert problem is still not fully appreciated in some quarters. Men of this type are a constant danger to the community, and especially to children, as long as they are at large. They need to be locked up for life, or at least until competent authorities are certain they are "cured." The Criminal Code now provides a procedure for doing this, and it should be used as a matter of course.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Behold, the eye of the Lord is upon them that fear him, upon them that hope in his mercy; to deliver their soul from death, and to keep them alive in famine. Our soul waiteth for the Lord, he is our help and shield . . . Let thy mercy, O Lord, be upon us, according as we hope in thee. (Ps. 33: 18-20, 22.)

✧ ✧ ✧

In God I, will praise his word, in God I have put my trust; I will not fear what flesh can do unto me . . .For thou hast delivered my soul from death: wilt not thou deliver my feet from falling, that I may walk before God in the light of the living? (Ps. 56: 4, 13.)

✧ ✧ ✧

The Lord is my strength and song, and is become my salvation . . . I shall not die, but live, and declare the works of the Lord. (Ps. 118: 14,17.)

I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me. (Phil. 4: 13.)

Letters To The Editor

NO WAY TO WORLD UNDERSTANDING

Sir: The other night I attended a Peterborough theatre and was rather disgusted by the attitude displayed by a smug crowd of movie-goers.

The feature, which was definitely class "B", was received with rapt attention, and one could enjoy a relatively unenjoyable movie without interruption. However, an excellent short depicting the mode of life of the Bedouin Arabs in the Sahara Desert was met with such a lack of interest that it was difficult to follow the words of the commentator over the general din. In fact, the only interest shown by most appeared to take the form of derisive laughs and comments at the simple habits of this tribe.

Our spoken desire for world peace and understanding appears hollow when we cannot spare even twenty minutes of our time to learn something about our fellowmen!

M. O.

A COMBINED EFFORT

Sir: The undersigned would like to correct an impression given your readers in your Friday, October 17th, issue.

On that date an article and picture apeared regarding the presentation of a T. V. set to the Peterborough County Home for the Aged.

The funds for this worth-while project were raised by the combined efforts of Canadian Legion Branch 77 and their very fine Ladies' Auxiliary, under the leadership of Mr. Allen and Mr. Chappell.

To those many friends of the Canadian Legion, who so kindly helped with their donations, my sincere thanks.

The writer would like it clearly understood that this fine work was not an individual effort by Mr. Allen and Mr. Chappell, but by Branch 77 of the Canadian Legion and its Ladies' Auxiliary.

Respectfully,
C. D. HOPKINS.
Chairman of Executive, Branch 77.

A SHORT QUOTATION THIS week, and at this time when the dying year is at its utmost beauty what is more appropriate than the famous lines of Walter de la Mare:

Look thy last on all things lovely
Every hour. Let no night
Seal thy sense with earthly slumber
Till to delight
Thou hast paid the utmost blessing.

Two Motor Vessels Racing Against Northern Freeze-Up

EDMONTON (CP)—Two motor vessels today were literally dragging bottom up the shallow Athabasca River in a race against the freeze-up, closing out a record northern shipping season.

The ships, M.V. Clearwater and M.V. Radium Queen, owned by Northern Transportation Co., were reported about 140 miles north of Waterways, 280 miles northeast of Edmonton. They are returning from the Saskatchewan uranium centre of Beaverlodge.

They are expected to be in Waterways by the end of the week. The Athabasca is always shallow at this time of year. The ships were delayed after crossing Lake Athabasca when high winds blew most of the water out of the river delta at the southwest end of the lake.

Arrival of the Clearwater and the Radium Queen will mark the end of the last dash by inland water to supply northern outposts with winter supplies. Freeze-up normally occurs during October. Some boats have been on northern waters as late as Oct. 26 but most operators feel they are crowding their luck by operating after Oct. 10.

Home Building On Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Home-building is on the increase in Canada, Resources Minister Winters said last night.

The Minister, who directs federal housing activities, said it is likely that more new dwelling units will be started this year than in 1950.

In an address on the CBC's political free-time broadcast, "The Nation's Business," Mr. Winters added that housing starts of the last few months have been comparable to the record levels of 1950.

In that year, Canadians started 92,531 units and completed 89,015. Last year, there were 86,579 starts and 81,310 completions.

This year, Mr. Winters said, the trend has turned "decidedly upwards" as the result of government measures which strengthened the flow of mortgage money into houses.

HAIR - RAISING EXPERIENCE — Tommy Schultz, 4, of Cleveland, Ohio, was pretty tired of being mistaken for a little girl. Those long curls, left, were really beginning to annoy him. After a long campaign, his mother, Mrs. Norbert Schultz, finally consented to the shearing operation, and Tommy now feels he can face the world again with his new hair-do, right.

U.S. Has Lent Tenth Of Revenue In 7 Yrs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has lent or given more than one-tenth of its national revenue in the last seven years as foreign aid to friends and former friends.

This was disclosed yesterday in a roundup of foreign aid by the Department of Commerce monthly publication "Current Business." It said net foreign aid from mid-1945 to mid-1952 amounted to $35,000,000,000.

That was 11.3 per cent of the United States' $308,000,000,000 federal revenue in the seven years, and 10.6 per cent of national expenditures — $329,000,000,000 — in that time.

Congress authorized foreign aid in the current fiscal year—ending next June 30—of nearly $5,800,000,000. That would raise the total to more than $40,000,000,000 by mid-1953.

Nearly one-third of the total aid in the seven years ended last June 30 was in the form of loans, which recipients agreed to repay.

Altogether, the U.S. sent abroad $38,000,000,000 in grants or credits during the seven fiscal years from July 1, 1945 to June 30, 1952. Most of the aid in the last two years has been military.

But countries getting aid paid back $3,000,000,000, making net foreign aid for the seven years $35,000,000,000.

At least $1,091,000,000 went in the early post-war period to Russia and other countries that are no longer friendly. That was 3.1 per cent of the total net foreign aid.

Western Europe and its colonies or other dependent areas got the lion's share of net aid—$25,795,000,000 in grants and credits.

Britain's aid total was the biggest for any country. France was second, Germany third, Japan fourth and Italy fifth.

The report said the United Kingdom received a total of $7,176,000,000 help in the seven years, but paid back $813,000,000, for a net total of $6,364,000,000.

Senator Asks Official's Recall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Homer Ferguson (Rep. Mich.) said Tuesday he has demanded the return from Paris of Paul R. Porter, a Mutual Security Agency official, for questioning about writings which Ferguson called pro-Communist.

Ferguson said Porter "has a long record of advocating revolution — by violence if necessary."

The senator said he acted as a member of a Senate appropriations "watchdog" sub-committee that keeps check on foreign aid spending.

His office said M.S.A. had advised that Porter will return to the United States whenever the sub-committee desires. W. John Kenney, M.S.A. deputy director, said Porter wants to come back and answer all questions Ferguson may have.

The senator said the writings to which he referred were in the magazine "Revolt" in 1932 and in Socialist party pamphlets in 1934 and 1937.

Need Special Permit For Copper Products

WASHINGTON (AP) — An official in the Commerce Department's Office of International Trade said yesterday that the United States has taken copper and some brass products off the list of materials that can be shipped in bond through the United States for export without a special permit. He said the action was taken Oct. 4.

Canadian exporters protested Monday to their government because, they said, American authorities had suddenly decided to block trans-shipment of copper and brass unless the exporters had an Amer-

Kitchener Council Rejects New Area

KITCHENER (CP) — City council last night turned down a request for permission to construct a $3,000,000 business area and housing development in the new Rosemount Gardens sub-division here. Two Toronto men, Leo Perkal and Max Rochman, had asked permission to build.

Council decided Kitchener already has enough lots to take care of the city's growth for six years.

Newsprint Mill Planned In Ohio

CINCINNATI (AP)—A proposed newsprint mill between Cincinnati and Dayton, O., would be able to supply newspapers in Cincinnati, Columbus and Dayton with almost all the newsprint they now use daily, O.R. Emigh said Monday night.

Emigh, a papermaker for 50 years, now retired, said if present plans are realized, the mill would be able to supply 100 tons of newsprint a day by late 1953, and 200 tons or more a day upon final completion.

He said newspapers in the three cities use approximately 226 tons of newsprint a day at the present time, most of it supplied by Canada.

The mill, Emigh said, using a new process, would provide newsprint at sharply reduced prices.

Emigh described the new process as involving the reprocessing, bleaching and de-inking of old newspapers, magazines and sulphite pulp.

About three mills in the south now use the process.

Emigh would not disclose the names of the others who are in on the proposed mill, except they include "local, New England and possibly some Canadian" papermakers and business men.

MPP's Can Discuss Don Jail Break

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost told the Ontario Legislature yesterday that any member may speak during the present special session of the assembly about the Boyd gang's escape from Toronto's Don Jail last summer.

He added, however, that it "might be better taste and better tactics" to wait until a Royal Commission investigating the jail break has finished its work.

The Legislature adopted a government motion to do away with the Throne Speech debate. It will allow members to debate general topics, including the jail break, on a formal motion to go into com-

Magistrate Criticizes Warden's Prosecution

NORTH BAY (CP) — Magistrate James Schoffield Tuesday was re-M. G. Gould Tuesday criticized the practice of allowing game wardens to prosecute their own charges without benefit of a prosecuting attorney.

"It's unfair for the Department (of Lands and Forests) to expect these men to come into court and conduct their own prosecution. They have had no opportunity to study courtroom procedure."

Magistrate Gould made the statement after dismissing for lack of evidence a charge against Harvey St. Onge of Timiskaming of being in a fire area without a travel permit.

Two other men jointly charged with St. Onge were remanded to Thursday. Charges were laid by conservation officer Auguste Wissell.

Petes Plan To Withdraw Unless Eagles' Players Made Available For Play

By CEC. PERDUE

At an emergency meeting of the executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club Tuesday night, it was decided to withdraw the team from O.H.A. senior "B" competition this season unless former Eagles' players were made available to them. This move followed a decision by the Eagles earlier in the week to play for Norwood in the Trent Valley League this season under sponsorship of D. A. McGillis. If the Petes drop out of hockey for the winter, there will be no senior "B" games seen here during the season. While Eagles' players have been re-instated by the O.H.A., Eagles' officials are still under a one-year suspension for failure to play a scheduled game last spring in Kingston.

ONE STRONG CLUB

"We were depending on a number of the Eagles to fit into our lineup and enable Peterborough to ice one strong club in a good grouping," Secretary Baz Phelan of the Petes stated after the meeting; "their decision to play in the T.V.L. simply means that we haven't enough good players for a contending club against teams like Kingston, Belleville, Oshawa, Orillia and Stouffville. That leaves us no alternative but to fold up as we have only about six players now of senior calibre."

Treasurer Fred Scates added that it was now too late in the season to go after some imports to bolster the club as practically all good players were either signed at this time of year or committed to some club or other.

Questioned as to the possibility of the Petes and Eagles getting together and forming a combined club, including officers of each team, several of the Petes' officials said they had made efforts in the past to have Eagles' sponsor and president, D. A. McGillis, combine forces with them but without success.

HIS SIDE OF IT

Mr. McGillis was contacted Tuesday and he said he had been invited by Norwood officials to sponsor a team there in the T.V.L. He then checked with most of the 1951-52 Eagles' players and was assured by all but one that they would play for him in the Trent League this winter under Coach Red Creighton. Three pros, Bob Thorpe, Nip O'Hearn and Don Ashbee—who are not eligible to play O.H.A. this winter—were also expected to line up for Norwood.

"Though the O.H.A. squeezed me out this season by calling an early meeting and forming a group without our club being represented," Mr. McGillis said, "I am still willing to talk things over with the Petes to see if a combined club cannot be formeed here. However, it must be done immediately as Norwood officials want an answer from me right away. They have a meeting Wednesday."

NO RELEASES

He went on to say that if the Eagles' players signed up this season with the Petes, he would be unable to obtained their releases next year when his suspension is up. "I want to be fair about this, but I have not been fairly treated. The O.H.A. re-instated my players so they could play for the Petes but kept me under suspension. I have spent thousands of dollars on hockey here and will do so again, but I wasn't given the chance this season here." He hoped something might still be worked out to permit one good team to represent the city in O.H.A. competition.

While T.V.L. teams will be permitted to play a pre-season series a night a week in Civic Arena, no T.V.L. players who played in O.H.A. senior "B" company in the past two seasons will be allowed to perform at Civic, according to arena rules announced by Walter Smillie.

Nothing official could be learned today as to the attitude of other T.V.L. clubs or officials on the use of senior "B" players from here in that circuit. No league ruling has been made on it so far. An arena ruling here forbids T.V.L. teams in a proposed pre-season series at Civic to use players who performed last winter in any O.H.A. series higher than junior "B". More information is expected along these lines within a day or two.

M. Davies and R. Druce Win "Little Olympic" Titles At Kiwanis Schools' Meet

Marilyn Davies and Bob Druce captured the Kiwanis trophies as the 1952 outstanding public school girl and boy track and field athletes at the annual "Little Olympics" meet held in Morrow Park. Both were entered in the senior events, Marilyn gaining 20 points with four firsts, and Bob having 18 points with three firsts and a second. More than 400 competed from the city public schools, the annual meet being staged by the Kiwanis Club here as part of its boys' and girls' work to encourage younger athletes in track and field. President Walter Howell presented the awards later. Bob Faulkner was meet chairman, and officials in charge were Y.M.C.A. staff members and Kiwanians.

LED IN FOUR

The winning girl led the field in the 100-yard dash, standing broad jump, running high jump, and softball throw. The winning boy was second in the running high jump, and first in the running and standing broad jumps, and the 100-yard dash. Five points went for first, three for second and one for third place.

Second place for senior girls went to Clara Hayward with seven points, Beverly Thompson having five, June Ranesbottom three, and Marie Brown two. Second among senior boys was L. Ferguson with nine points, followed by Brian Clark six, Bill Macklin five, W. Hendry and P. Stewart three each, and W. Sorrie one. Queen Alexandra School won both senior relays.

WON HER SECTION

Shirley Howard won the Intermediate girls' section with 13 points, followed by Eleanor McIlmoyle with eight, Wendy Outram seven, Dianne Dalton and Gail Wilkinson six each, Elsie Taylor four, and Gayne Morgan one. Central won the relay, Pete MacFarlane led intermediate boys with nine points, one more than Charles Sorrie. Next were J. Pulkinghorn with six, Ian Faulkner five, John Parry and Calvin Parlee with three each, and Gary McArthur and L. Finney with one apiece. The relay was taken by Confederation.

Karen Hendry was junior girls' champion with 11 points. Nancy Gray came second with eight, followed by Margaret Pearse with six, Catharine Ovens five, Carole Davis three, Nancy Norris two, and Ann Gordon, Ann Hoar and Helen Wood one apiece. Queen Alexandra took the relay race. Don Ross with 10 points won the junior boys' title, followed by Bob Young and Eric Hughston with five each, Jerry Sedgewick four, Jim Forsyth, Wayne Mountford and Tom Coldwell three apiece, Gary Rowley two, and Joe Todd one. Confederation won the relay.

Former Netter A Keen Fan Of The Champs

An ace lacrosse goalie here for some 16 years, Joe Meyette may well have been written up in the recent lacrosse edition of this paper. He starred for years with players like Pete King, Doug Miller, Ira Dundas, Buster Whitton, Red Creighton and Mick Magee. He helped the team win its O.L.A. senior "B" title in 1938. Joe is now 45.

A deaf-mute, Joe Meyette started lacrosse in goal for Johnny Sutherland Riversides in the Junior City League when he was 17, and he played right up till the Second World War. Lately he has been going in for bowling and captains a team in the Major Bowling League here. Like his brother Charlie, he also played good hockey for some years.

A recent letter from Charlie Meyette brings to mind the lacrosse goaltending chore performed so ably by Joe. They are still keen followers of the game, as some excerpts from the letter show:

"Dear Sir—As a regular reader of your interesting sports column, I wish to say our family enjoyed reading The Examiner's special section on lacrosse, honoring the Peterborough Timbermen for winning the Mann Cup and Dominion championship for the second time.

REAL SUPPORTERS

We have been lacrosse supporters for years at the old and new bowls and attended the recent series in Maple Leaf Gardens. My dad is now 78 and still a great lacrosse fan, going to Toronto with us, too. We had some deaf friends in Toronto watching the series with us. We are indeed proud and happy that the Timbermen successfully won the championship again, and we hope they repeat it in 1953.

We send our sincere congratulations to them and praise the excellent work of President Bob Peirson, Ken Kingson, Howard McLean, Manager Bob Curtin, Coach Bob Thorpe and the rest. He did a fine job of handling former juniors like Lou Nickle, Grant Burns, Roger Smith and Gary Robinson, who played so well in the series. The team missed Arn Dugan, Jerry Fitzgerald, Ike Hildebrand and Al Garbutt. I predict that our team will have all fine homebrew players coming up from junior in a couple of years.

May I suggest that the Timbermen's executive send invitations to all former members of O.L.A. senior championship teams here for some get-together so they will have an opportunity to meet the players and officers of the Dominion championship team and talk over a lot of good old times with them. With best wishes, etc."

Still A Possibility Of Pre-Season Loop

A proposed four-team pre-season setup of T.V.L. teams from Hastings, Havelock, Norwood and Lakefield, more or less fell through at a meeting in the arena here last night. When arena manager Walter Smillie advised them that none of these teams could play in the series if they carried players who had performed in O.H.A. senior "B" ranks last winter, both Norwood and Havelock said they could not then ice teams, and the meeting broke up.

However, since then it was learned that Havelock might reconsider and that Omemee would like to get into such a season, opening early in November and running till natural ice was installed in village rinks. If these clubs are still interested, Mr. Smillie said today that arrangements can be worked out.

Pro mat fans who frequently saw huge Yukon Eric perform here last winter will be interested to learn that he had part of an ear torn off recently in a Montreal bout. Tangling with Wladek Kowalski, another large hunk of wrestler, Eric the derrick was drop-kicked into the ring turnbuckles and wound up in hospital with part of the ear torn right off. 'Twas said the ref picked up the piece and tossed it out; thinking it was just some more litter thrown into the ring by excited fans. Anyway, the Alaskan lumberjack is out of action till some plastic surgery is done on his hearing aid. These behemoths clown a lot for big dough in many of their bouts, but they do suffer quite a few injuries in the course of a year.

Two highly-important grid frays come up this weekend for local squads, and both are out of town. P.C.V.S. seniors trek to Toronto on Friday eve to meet Woodstock in the Red Feather tourney opener, bringing together the best high school teams in the province. Only one game played by each club, a panel of judges deciding on the best crew in the competition when it's over. Our O.R.F.U. Orfuns have a big scrap in Cobourg on Saturday aft, and can practically clinch top spot and group honors with a win o'er the Ghosts. If the latter win, it looks like the group will end in a tie between Orfuns and the Rapid Wraiths, requiring a playoff to settle it. Group winner goes into "A" playdowns and the runner-up hits the "B" trail.

Milt Wants Little Steel

An N.H.L. bulletin item says: "Milt Schmidt is one of the few players in the National Hockey League who likes to have his skate smaller than his boot. The veteran Boston Bruins' captain uses a skate one size smaller than that size of his boot. Milt likes the minimum amount of blade on the ice surface." Hm, most pucksters want lots of steel on the ice during play. Schmidt is a grand player and a likeable fellow—we've met him through his friend here. Dit Clapper, an all-time N.H.L. star himself. Milt takes a keen interest in Red Sullivan of this borough, in his second year now with the Bruins. No one will bump Red too much when Smitty is in the vicinity!

Belleville Glens, in our O.H.A. senior "B" group, are hitting stiff practise drills these nights to prepare for their opener with the Petes here a week from Friday. Coach Alfie Moore is trying to get a goalie and two more defencemen, as well as planning on the former junior line of Billy Strahan, Ted DeGray and Duke Doran. Then, he has the pick of last year's seniors, too. He could ice a real contending club in the Central Ontario setup. Red Doran expects a potent junior "B" team there, including five "gifts" from the Galt junior "A" club which, like Belleville, is in the Chicago Hawks' hockey chain. There has been no definite word yet on our junior group.

Puck Dish Here a Mess

The local hockey story is in elsewhere—and at the moment it is a grim outlook for senior "B" play here this coming season, which was due to open a week from Friday. Unless the Eagles and Petes can get together, it looks like no senior hockey at Civic Arena for the 1952-53 season. Wouldn't that burn you up? It's high time these fellows got together and iced one strong combined squad in a good grouping. With officials of the clubs concerned apparently unable to deal with each other, or unwilling, it seems to us to be up to vice-president Frank Buckland of the O.H.A., as a local puck official, to try to get an armistice talk going immediately. Personally, we're plenty fed up on the present mess.

* * * * * *

A more cheerful subject is that of our grid Orfuns' 28-6 win o'er the Raiders in Oshawa last p.m. It puts 'em out in front of Cobourg Ghosts, who still have a soft four-pointer with Kingston. So, the big game still is the Orfuns-Ghosts' clash in Cobourg on Saturday. The Kotowski crew turned in a whale of a job in the Motor City, a strong front wall giving the classy backfield time to untwist for runs or room for long passes. Naismith and Don McGillis scored majors on Milligan passes, Jim Wilde, Huntley and Jensen also went over for touchdowns, and Hodson and Armstrong kicked singles. The Raiders, who have one more group game here next week, put up a stiff fight but couldn't match the potent Orfuns in this scrap.

Local cricketers are checking into the matter of fielding one or two teams next season.... Results of Kiwanis' "Little Olympics" are in today.... No football here this week as far as we know now.... The planned exhibition puck game at Civic on Friday will go on; it's Oddfellows vs. Petes for a T.V. set and other prizes, proceeds going to aid minor hockey here.... A.H.L. printed schedules will be available shortly, according to the publicity director of that association.... Hastings, Havelock, Omemee and Lakefield can get a night a week at Civic Arena for a pre-season series, while awaiting natural ice in home rinks.... Arena manager Walt Smillie advised 'em last eve that the arena constitution will not permit T.V.L. puckists who played O.H.A. senior "B" in the past season to perform in this series.... Local senior club, if any, will really have to hustle to ice a club for the opener here a week from this Friday.... Wurra, wurra, wurra.

CURLING NOTES

By HERB MARTIN

In company with Ray Best and Fred Stevenson we attended the annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association, yesterday at the Granite Club, Toronto.

It was a real lively meeting with delegates present from a large number of curling clubs.

The reports of the different committees and the discussions that followed were really interesting. There is no doubt that curling is growing in popularity in Ontario.

BEST GIRL AND BOY AWARDS for last year's Grade Eight classes at King George public school were presented to Arthur Clarke, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Clarke, and Joan Hillis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hillis. Clarke won the annual Bousfield Medal, presented by Mrs. J. H. Bousfield, of Toronto, in memory of her son, George Hugh Oliver Bousefield. Miss Hillis won the Tinker Medal, awarded by Mr. and Mrs. William Tinker. Both medals are presented to students with all-round scholastic and athletic abilities. — (Examiner Staff Photo).

Orfuns Beat Red Raiders In 28-6 Grid Game To Keep In Front Of Pack

Orfuns continued their winnings ways at Oshawa Tuesday night with another fine victory over Red Raiders by a tidy margin of 28-6, to hold their position atop the intermediate "A" football loop in a virtual tie with Cobourg Galloping Ghosts. The two meet Saturday at Cobourg. Peterborough took the lead in the first quarter after 10 minutes of fairly even play when quarter Jim Milligan made his second pass, a long one from the home 50-yard line, to Clive Naismith at the 20 on first down after Raiders lost possession on downs; and the big blonde boy made no mistake as he sped quickly over for a major. The convert failed; but Orfuns continued a savage attack in the second quarter to increase their advantage though the Raider line held amazingly well and Kotowski's men relied on aerial attack for major gains with their own defences holding well.

SMASHING GAME

Led by Jimmy Wilde, who played a smashing game, Bill Huntley ditto and all the boys digging hard together with the clicking of the Milligan-Don McGillis-Naismith passing attack, the visitors gradually pressed the hard-plugging Raiders into their own end and near the two-thirds mark in the second quarter, Ronnie Hodson—whose great booting has featured Orfuns' play away—as has Matthews at home, hoofed a long punt from the rival 35 to Jimmy Loreno behind the line; there he was met by John Berry and Hodson and downed like a meal-sack for a single.

Raiders fought back but despite some nice runs by Ford, Loreno and Gary Smith, were unable to penetrate far into Orfun terrain with such as Bill Trimm, Gord Beatty, Frank Fitzgerald, Moe Fraser, Ken Newark, Berry, Al Beavis, Floyd Ouellette, Reg. Burns, Rock De Carlo, big Joe Berthelot, "Bounce" Howe, John Conlin, Lou Nickle, Johnnie Giardino, Beaker Bartley, Hawk Russelle and Bill Thompson, smashing and crashing their line both ways with relentless fury. Finally, near quarter's end occurred the picture play of the game, when once more the deadly arm of Milligan stretched out behind good blocking at the enemy 40 to throw a long pass toward the goal line. Out of nowhere came a fleeting figure in blue in front of that ball. It was Don McGillis and the great outside wing leaped high in the air to gather it in, just behind the line. The crowd gave the big boy a great hand. Army Armstrong who played his usual strong game converted this one from placement.

OSHAWA SCORES

Oshawa, undaunted, continued battling and finally hit pay dirt in the third quarter, when in the early minutes, fleet Gary Smith made a great run around right and on a reverse and eluded the Orf pack for a [illegible]

Then began a thrilling drive by Orfuns—the best of the game—when, following the kickoff, the team made an uninterrupted march down the field for a major aided by two forwards, the second of which climaxed the drive; it was taken in by Jimmy Wilde at the eight-minute mark behind the line. Four successive first downs featured the drive following the kick-off, and though Raiders' defence held well early, it faltered in the later stages of play; conversion failed on this third major.

HUNTLEY OVER

An off-tackle plunge by Bill Huntley for a major from the two-yard line at the start of the final quarter, after the gang had worked up field, was converted by Army to give Orfs a 23-6 edge as the Kotowski crew opened full-steam at this point and at the six-minute mark, they recovered an Oshawa fumble near the latter's goal line as the home team listed badly to starboard. Bus Jensen promptly smashed through for a touchdown; but the convert failed.

Red with Anger, the Raiders staged an amazing drive of their own to wedge through to the visitors' 20, but there it died and a ding-dong finish found the two fighting squads well up field.

The Peterborough boys to a man lived up to their best; while Raiders' choice included such as Loreno, Ford, Smith, Craweck, Schanks and Harper with all the boys trying hard.

Montreal Trips Galt 3-1 In First Game

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens of the Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association, playing their first interlocking-scheduled game with Galt Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association, turned back the visitors 3-1 last night.

Henri Richard, Phil Goyette and Claude Boileau were the point-getters for the Canadiens and Jim McBurney tallied for the Ontario team.

The Montrealers jumped into a one-goal lead late in the opening period, Richard clicking on a pass from Claude Provost. The goal came at 18:08.

KEEPS GOING

Goyette brought the count to 2-0 at the 4:39-minute mark of the middle session, converting a relay from Les Lilley, but Galt got back into the running a little more than a minute later on McBurney's goal. Toney Poeta and Ken Wharram drew assists on the play.

Canadiens got the only score of the finale, Boileau scoring on passes from Yvan Chasles and Brian McKay. The insurance marker came at 19:39.

Leaf, Red Wing Chiefs Blast Refereeing In NHL

By JACK SULLIVAN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

If Toronto's Conn Smythe and Detroit's Jack Adams get together today before the Leafs and Red Wings tangle at Maple Leaf Gardens you can bet they'll have plenty to talk about. And it's safe to say the subject will be the officiating in the National Hockey League. Smythe and Adams have been shooting verbal barbs at Clarence Campbell, N.H.L. president, and Referee-in-Chief Carl Voss the last couple of weeks. It's tough to reconcile their reasoning.

The pair, who deplore sissies in big-time play, are complaining that the get-tough policy of N.H.L. referees is making a farce of the game. They want fewer penalties and, in consequence, less whistle-tooting.

MOST PENALIZED TEAMS

It so happens Leaf and Red Wing players are the most penalized in the six-team league. The leader is that terrible-tempered Ted Lindsay of the Wings with 30 minutes and next is team-mate Marcel Pronovost with 22.

Detroit, which has been winning games despite the parade to the penalty box, has had its players 136 minutes in the box and Leafs just 18 minutes less. The Wings set an all-time N.H.L. record of 25 penalties in one game when the teams first met this season and there's no reason to believe—no matter what their bosses think — that they'll act like little Lord Fauntleroys tonight.

Lindsay also is up there in the scoring parade. With team-mate Metro Prystai he is tied for second place behind Leaf captain Ted Kennedy who has nine in five goals and four assists.

The other game on tap is between Boston Bruins and the Rangers at New York. The Blueshirts are the only club in the league without a victory and they are just about ruining the chances of Guelph Biltmores, Memorial Cup champions, in the bargain.

RANGERS HARD HIT

Rangers, hit badly down the middle with goalkeeper Chuck Rayner and centre Bones Raleigh out with injuries and pivot-man Edgar Laprade deciding to stick to his sporting goods store business in Port Arthur, have called up four members from Guelph Biltmores, their farm club in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A group.

Biltmores, who have salvaged only five points in as many games, have lost four players to Rangers. Dean Prentice left by plane yesterday for New York to join team-mates Andy Bathgate, Harry Howell and Ron Murphy who moved up a week ago on a three-game trial basis.

Tonight marks the third game for Bathgate, Howell and Murphy and if coach Bill Cook and manager Frank Boucher decide to keep them beyond this date it is possible Guelph won't be around when the Memorial Cup playdowns start next spring.

And Rangers, who have had only one tie in five games, probably will sit out the N.H.L. playoffs if they don't get cracking. This could be a mighty blue season for the Ranger organization.

Rangers Stress Youth Accent In Boston Debut

NEW YORK (CP)—New York Rangers, still looking for their first victory in the new National Hockey League season, make their home-ice debut against Boston Bruins tonight with the accent on youth.

Coach Bill Cook, trying to fill the holes left by injuries to goalie Chuck Rayner, defenceman Leo Reise and star centre Don Raleigh, will call on four youngsters just brought up from Guelph Biltmores, New York farm club in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series.

Latest arrival, Dean prentice, will alternate with veteran Gaye Stewart on New York's third line with Nick Mickoski and Jack Stoddard.

OTHER GUELPH PRODUCTS

Two other Guelph products, centre Andy Bathgate and winger Ron Murphy, will play on a line with Ed Slowinski. The fourth is defenceman Harry Howell.

A charlie horse is expected to keep Rayner out of the nets for at least another week and Lorne Worsley, brought in from Saskatoon, will continue in the nets.

Reise will be out for two more weeks with a shoulder separation and Raleigh's broken wrist will keep him out for three or four weeks more.

The Ranger first line of Wally Hergesheimer, Paul Bonty and Herb Dickenson is the only one intact.

MOVING VANN — Army back Peter Vann, carrying the pigskin, is uprooted in tackling Chester Rice (24) of Pittsburgh, after going for a short gain. Pittsburgh gridders downed the Cadets, 22-14.

Turpin Wins 4th Championship

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Randolph Turpin won the Empire middleweight championship at Harringay Arena last night, outpointing George Angelo of South Africa by a wide margin in a dreary 15-round bout.

The title became vacant when Dave Sands of Australia, the holder, was killed in a truck crash.

Turpin now holds four championships. He is British middle and light heavyweight titleholder and European middleweight champion. He formerly was world middleweight champion.

Turpin, superbly fit, did not show up at his best against the backpedalling Angelo who has wonderful defensive boxing skill but no punch.

Turpin weighed 158¼, Angelo 157¼.

Western Fans Have Fingers Crossed

CALGARY (CP)—Western football fans are waiting with fingers crossed for tonight's opening game of the Western interprovincial Football Union playoffs.

Edmonton Eskimos and Calgary Stampeders meet in Mewata Stadium, located near downtown Calgary, in the first game of a two-game, total-points semi-final series. The winner takes on Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a best-of-three final.

The game will be the first playoff seen here since 1949, the year that marked the end of the Stampeders' rule of western football. Since then they've been out of the playoffs.

Perfect Indian Summer weather has blessed western gridirons so far, but fans remember last year when the last scheduled game and two of the four playoff games were played in near-blizzards.

The long playoff grind and wear and tear on the players is a constant source of worry to coaches.

"SUICIDE SCHEDULE"

The winner of the western crown this year may play as many as 21 games before trotting out in Varsity Stadium in Toronto for a 60-minute shot at the Grey Cup.

If either of tonight's two contestants defeat Winnipeg, they'll have played at least 20, and possibly 21, games. Blue bombers, who gained a bye into the finals, can get by on 18 or 19.

That's hard on the playing material, and has been called "suicide" for the West's Grey Cup chances.

Both teams will start tonight with most of the material in fairly good shape. The only strength missing will be Edmonton's lightning scatback, Jim Chambers, out with a shoulder separation.

The odds are about six-to-five and take your choice on the outcome tonight.

ESKS HOLD EDGE

The Alberta rivals have met six times, Frank Filchock's Eskimos winning four and Les Lear's Stampeders two. But only once has the victory margin been more than one touchdown, when the Eskimos defeated Stamps 35-18 in Edmonton.

Barrie Edges Kitchener 5-4

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario and Quebec junior hockey teams tangled in Montreal last night in the first interlocking-scheduled game of the season.

Montreal Royals won their first victory of the season, downing the Three Rivers Reds 5-3 at Montreal.

Barrie Flyers stretched their lead in the O.H.A. standings, downing Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts 5-4 at Kitchener.

The Royals victory still left them at the bottom of the quebec league, two points behind the Reds. Real Vincent sank two goals for the winners and singles went to Brian McCann, Guy Cavier and Ross Watson.

SHIRTS STAGE RALLY

At Kitchener, the Flyers spun in three goals in the first but the Shirts rallied in the second for three against Barrie's one. Skip Teal and Ken Collins scored two apiece for the Flyers. Reale Mongeon sank the fifth.

Orv Tessier tagged two for Kitchener-Waterloo while singles went to Grieg Hicks and Bob McCord.

Mantle Taking 3rd Examination

The 21-year-old baseball standout previously has been rejected because of a chronic bone disease, osteomyelitis, in his left leg above the ankle.

It is doubtful whether the army will take him even if he passes his physical because of the number of persons dependent upon him. Since his father's recent death, Mickey has been the sole support of his mother, two brothers and a sister. He also is married and soon will be a father.

PW Cricket Club Checking Into '53 Teams

The Peterborough - Whitaker Cricket Club named a committee at its fall meeting this week to investigate the possibility of fielding two teams in competition next year. There was considerable discussion on the merits of one or two local teams playing.

Gordon Monkman, club president, presided at the dinner-meeting at the Kawartha Golf Club.

A. M. Hamilton reported a favorable bank balance from the 1952 season. Team captain Brian Roberts stated that during the year the club won eight and lost eight matches for a rather mediocre performance. Mr. Monkman paid tribute to the hard work of Frank Dyer and Charley Ireson, both of whom worked under difficulties due to poor health.

It was decided to purchase a new mat to replace the one which has seen service for 12 years. Distinctive black and white club caps will also be purchased.

Bob Harvey was presented with a gift in appreciation for his services to the club, and the press was thanked for its co-operation during the summer months.

Driver Blames Dog Crashed Into Tree

LINDSAY—A dog was blamed by John Quibell, 22, of Fenelon Falls for an accident on Highway 35 Saturday in which Quibell received facial cuts and a broken leg.

He told police he was driving toward Fenelon Falls when a dog walked onto the highway in front of his car. Quibell said he swung to the left to miss it and his car left the road and crashed into a tree.

Damage to the car was estimated at $1,000. After receiving emergency treatment at the scene, Quibell was taken to Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay.

ROYALS OUT FOR SEASON

TORONTO (CP) — Windsor Royals, fighting a losing battle on the field and at the box office have withdrawn from the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior series for the balance of the 1952 season.

Secretary Harold Bailey of the O.R.F.U. said yesterday the union agreed to the withdrawal "for the good of the game." The step wipes out two scheduled games for the team which hasn't posted a win since 1950. It was to play Balmy Beach in Toronto next Sunday and Erantford Redskins at Windsor Saturday, Nov. 1.

The two games aren't classed as defaults. Neither affects the playoff picture—Sarnia Imperials and the Beaches have won the two playoff positions in the four-team loop. They are just wiped from the books and the Union expects that the club will be back in the fight next year with an improved squad.

The action leaves the union with two scheduled games before its playoff series begins—Brantford at Sarnia this Saturday and Beaches at Sarnia Nov. 1.

After the Royals took a 36-0 defeat from Beaches here last Sunday, manager Sam Sasso told reporters: "We're only a punching bag now and it's costing us money."

The Royals had only 16 men—12 starters and four subs—for the game with Beaches, their ninth straight defeat this season. They have scored only 60 points with 274 against them.

Coach Jack Alexander said import quarterback Bobby Lee, the only paid hand, was dropped because of lack of funds. He took with him two other players. Injuries cut the roster further.

A $1,000 grant from the city of Windsor helped the team get along, despite scanty attendance.

The Royals played before practically deserted stands this season. It is estimated that an average of only 500 fans saw their home games.

INJURED JOCKEY DIES

TORONTO (CP) — Donald Bennett, 23, apprentice jockey who was struck on the head by the hoofs of a race horse Monday, died yesterday.

Bennett, riding Wolf Whistle at Dufferin Park, tried to take his mount down on the rail to pass Chief In, the pacemaker. Wolf Whistle ran up on the heels of the other horse, stumbled and threw Bennett. As the jockey raised his head, Broad Bend collided with him and the horse's plates struck him on the skull.

He is believed to be a native of Glace Bay, N.S.

Bennett never regained consciousness.

Bennett was the second jockey to be killed on Toronto and district tracks in little more than a year. Hugh (Scotty) Campbell was fatally injured in a similar accident at Long Branch Oct. 10 last year.

THE ROCKET FINED

VALLEYFIELD, Que. (CP)—Maurice (The Rocket) Richard, star winger with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, yesterday was fined $10 and costs for assaulting a policeman here Sept. 22 last. A plea of guilty was entered by Gontran St. Onge, representing Richard in the case, arising from an exhibition hockey game here between the Canadiens and Valleyfield Braves of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

JOCKEY SEEKS $450,000

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — Jockey Howard Hall sued for $90,000 yesterday, charging he was sent out to ride a blind horse.

The jockey's suit is against Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Carver and Ellaine C. Pergoy of Baltimore, owners and trainer of a horse named Chalglass.

Hall was the jockey on Chalglass at Pimlico last Oct. 31 when the horse wheeled to the left after breaking from the starting gate, bolted into another horse, struck the inside rail and threw the jockey.

Hall charged the horse at the time had a disease which made it practically blind in both eyes.

Crawls Over Line Runner Wins Race

SENDAI, Japan (AP) — "I'm going to run to the finish," gasped marathon runner Isamu Kojo as he staggered toward the finish line today in a 13-mile run.

Kojo fell eight times in the last 80 yards and virtually crawled the last few feet. A thunderous ovation went up as he crossed the line and collapsed.

"Kojo showed fine fighting spirit," one meet official remarked as the runner was taken to hospital on a stretcher.

Order Champs To Defend Title Before Jan. 1st

QUEBEC (CP) — Gene Letourneau, chairman of the Canadian Boxing Federation's rating committee, said last night the C.B.F. is ordering three Canadian champions to defend their titles before Jan. 1, 1953.

They are: Eddie Zastre, Montreal, light-heavyweight champion; Frankie Almond, Vancouver, featherweight champion and Fernando Gagnon, Quebec, bantamweight champion.

Letourneau said elimination tournaments will be held next year to find new champions if the title-holders do not defend.

He listed the following contenders:

Light-heavyweight — Gordon Wallace, Brantford, and Billy Fifield, Toronto.

Featherweight — George St. Pierre, Dave Mitchell, Tommy Corrick and Maxie Males, all of Toronto, and Clement Bolduc, Sherbrooke, Que.

Bantamweight — Stan Almond and Jackie Turner, both of Vancouver, Ray Edwards, Calgary, Bobby Bacon, Edmonton, Claude Meunier, Three Rivers, Que., and Dave Pearl, Edmundston, N.B.

Franz Lehar, the famous Hungarian operetta composer who died in 1948, was the son of a military bandmaster.

Stevenson Aims Shafts At McCarthy In Speeches

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Governor Adlai S. Stevenson said today that "the quackery of medicine men who claim to cure the disease with words of hate and loud accusations" cannot banish communism from the United States.

The Democratic presidential candidate swung into Indiana on his campaign eastward, with a blast at Republicans who have accused him of "coddling communism."

In a speech prepared for delivery on the University of Notre Dame campus, the Illinois governor said thes same Republicans were among those who voted against "almost every proposal of the Democratic administration to destroy communism by pulling out—in America and the free world—the roots of poverty and ignorance and insecurity from which it grows."

McCARTHY A TARGET

Although he did not name them, it was obvious that Stevenson was aiming his shafts at Senator Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin and Senator Richard M. Nixon of California, the Republican vice-presidental nominee.

Stevenson praised what he called the foresight of the Roman Catholic church in opposing communism. He said:

"Your church leaders have approached this disease, communism, not with a politician's bombast, but with the care and method of a doctor."

He said the record of the Democratic party parallels that of the Catholic church and other faiths in the drive for social justice. He added that he believes most Republicans have the same objective.

"But I do say that it seems to me high time that the leaders of the Republican party—or at least one wing of it—start realizing that their opposition to the programs of social justice in America is opposition to the building of our strongest defences against communism."

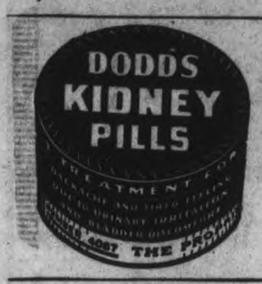
He said such opposition has been expressed in votes against he Marshall Plan and foreign aid program, against the "Point Four" program and other measures.

URGES MORE TRADE

However, Stevenson said in Chicago last night that the solution of the world's ills will not be found "in an international give-away program." He thus placed himself on record against too-long-continued foreign aid spending, a point on which his Republican critics have been harping.

He said that international trade, on a two-way street basis, may be the way to offset the poverty, ignorance and political instability he said is threatening world peace.

Retired Druggist Dies



LONDON, Ont. (CP)—P. Bruce Wallace, 84, a retired London druggist, died last night.

Born in Brantford, he came to London 60 years ago. For 25 years he operated a drug store on Richmond Street, retiring in 1927.

Surviving are his widow and one son, Bruce F. Wallace, of London.

Favor Russian Visit

TORONTO (CP) — Students yesterday voted in favor of the University of Toronto joining with any other interested Canadian universities in supporting a proposed visit by Russian university students. The action followed a decision by the National Federation of Canadian Universities in Quebec last week not to support the Russian visit.

THE DEVASTATION inflicted on a Communist rail line and tunnel in North Korea is clearly illustrated in this low-level aerial photo. The rail line, connecting Kaesong and Hongsu-ni, was hit by land-based U.S. Marine aircraft. The sealed entrance to the tunnel (arrow) can be seen in the lower part of the photo, with a large bomb crater above it. The other big crater at top centre, effectively seals the tunnel at the other end. Just beyond are the torn and twisted tracks.

Two Eggs Tossed At Truman

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Many unscheduled things are happening in the United States political campaign.

A ramp collapses, an elevator gets stuck, the loud-speaker fails, trains pull out with the candidate still talking, a firecracker explodes in a crowd, a television prompter slows down, causing a candidate to blurt out: "Yah, damn it," and now, the egg-tossers.

Yesterday somebody pitched a couple of eggs in President Truman's direction in Jersey City, N.J. They landed at least 25 feet away from him and he gave no sign of having seen them.

G.O.P. HAVE TROUBLES

The Republicans have had the most trouble. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who apologized for the broadcast "damn it," though he said he didn't recall saying it, was in the one mishap that could have had tragic consequencies.

Eisenhower had just finished a speech in Richmond, Va. Mamie Eisenhower, preceding her husband down a temporary ramp, remarked:

"I don't like the way this thing feels. I'm afraid it might fall."

Moments later it fell six feet to the ground with Eisenhower on it. Eisenhower was thrown to his knees but was not hurt.

Less spectacular but more painful was a bump on the head that Eisenhower received in Chicago when his train was tripped to an abrupt halt by a mechanical failure.

The Republican nominee had so much train trouble that he received an apology from James P. Shields, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Among the incidents: At Saginaw, Mich., the loudspeaker system went dead. Hardly anyone could hear Eisenhower.

In Kentucky, at two places, the train stopped too soon, so that many were unable to see Eisenhower.

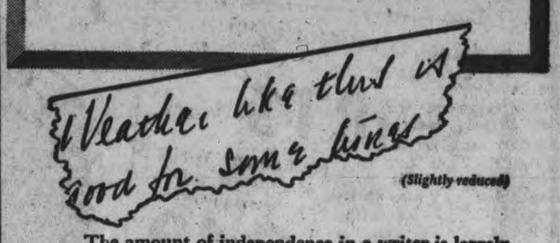
TAFT JOLTED

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio was with some Indiana Republican leaders when a service elevator dropped them below the ground level with a jolt.

The Democrats have had confusion, too—the firecracker that startled a Stevenson crowd, for example. Governor Adlai Stevenson, who had been talking about liberating oppressed people, turned it to advantage by quipping: "I hope somebody has been liberated!"

Ede Defends Comic Books

LONDON (Reuters) — James Chuter Ede, former Labor Home Secretary, came out last night as a champion of the blood-thirsty "comic book."



He told the Commons he does not think the comic books, subject of criticism here, do much harm.

Ede said that in his youth comic books were known as "penny bloods."

The worst hiding he had ever had in his life was given by his schoolmaster for reading Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island." He commented: "If there is a bloodier book I would like to read it."

He made his defence of the comic books in a debate about children's movies.

"Here's Character"

(Slightly reduced)

The amount of independence in a writer is largely determined by the amount of mental maturity present in the script.

In the above specimen, the pointed letter formations, firm pressure and straight line down-strokes of the 'y's' and 'g's' reveal the writer's independent nature.

He has a keen, critical mind. There is aggressiveness and executive ability expressed, but the writer dislikes being bothered with non-essentials.

There is some arrogance indicated in the way the 'e's' look down on the other small letters, but because of the writer's high degree of intelligence, he will be able to keep this trait under control.

Discuss Labor-Management Difficulties

By FORBES RHUDE

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Chamber of Commerce today discussed the "responsibilities of labor and management in economic education" and, as might be expected, produced some searching statements.

For instance, this from J.P. Nicol, Jr., director of the Canadian department of education and research, International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers:

"Sometimes I wonder if a union's preoccupation with money is not a reflection of a similar preoccupation on the part of the employer. Economics can be overstressed."

And from the employer or management side of the fence, J.R. White, Toronto, vice-president of Imperial Oil, Ltd.:

"The phrase, 'management and labor' seems to imply some inherent difference between the people who manage an entire factory or company, and those who manage its component parts and equipment.

VALID DIFFERENCES

"There are valid differences between management and other personnel, but they are differences of degree, and not of kind. To an increasing extent, management of industry is in the hands of people who sell their services either on a wage or salary basis—people who are, to use the phrase of Professor Slichter (of Harvard University), 'all members of the proletariat.'

"The assumption that management and labor are different kinds of people could lead us to assume that they have different responsibilities in regard to economic education.

"Personally, I am of the old school which holds that there can be only one form of education worthy of the name—that which tells the truth. One contributes little to genuine education by merely presenting that part of the truth which appeals to the immediate interests of a particular group or section."

Mr. White also said:

"When we realize that many of the issues on which opinions are formed and elections fought are of the economic nature, the fact that some 95 per cent of the electorate lacks economic schooling is rather alarming. . .

"APPROACH WITH CAUTION"

"On the whole, I believe that business should approach the theoretical side of economic education with a great deal of caution. . ."

Mr. Nicol, in his address, said:

"Any program of economic education must be primarily to the advantage of the individual to whom it is directed. If it is designed to 'sell' an employer point of view, the employee will shy away from 'buying'. There is much more to economics than a financial statement or an inventory position or an orders backlog. A narrow approach suggests a selfish motive. . .

"Before we embark upon a program of economic education it might be worth while to conduct a painstaking inquiry into existing attitudes and their causes. Too much time and effort and money have been wasted in developing elaborate communication programs which have no relation whatever to the faulty conditions which inspired the programs.

"Too much effort is expended during wage negotiations explaining economic conditions which everyone already knows. If people know the facts but are reluctant to face them, a lengthy repetition of facts doesn't force a facing of the issues."

While minimizing the value of discussions of "economics" Mr. Nicol said that in every large group of employees there will be a few who are interested in economic matters "and it is dangerous to ignore them." He also said:

COULD CAUSE SUSPICION

"The cause of most suspicion and hostility shown by employees toward employer information services may stem from the tendency of employers to mix together facts and opinions."

Dr. G.E. Hall, president and vice-chancellor, University of Western Ontario, in a review of Canada's development, said:

"I hope we never forget that the greatest asset of which this country can and should boast is its people. They have been responsible for Canada's gross national production of goods and services; have raised our standard of living; have tapped our resources; manufactured our goods; and sold those goods and services."

At the First Sign of a COLD

and feel better FAST!

Here's sound and effective advice about colds.

No matter how you try to stop or shorten a cold, the first thing to do—before you do anything else—is to take Aspirin.

You should do this because a cold is almost invariably accompanied by muscular aches and pains—and a headachy, feverish feeling. And for your own good, you need a medication that will relieve these distressing symptoms—relieve them quickly.

One reason Aspirin tablets bring this relief is that they're ready to go to work with amazing speed . . . actually start disintegrating almost instantly.

So don't experiment with a cold. Use Aspirin. And for sore throats due to colds, gargle 3 times daily with 3 Aspirin tablets dissolved in ½ of a glass of water.

Poetry In Schools Said Improperly Taught

May Hill Arbuthnot, associate professor emeritus of education at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, said yesterday.

Speaking to members of the Toronto and District Council for the Improvement of Reading Instruction, Dr. Arbuthnot said:

"By the time they get to the end of high school, most students feel that poetry is either too high-falutin' or too sissified. How many adults ever buy a book of poetry? The poor poets could tell you that."

DON'T LIKE FIGHT

YAMAGATA, Japan (AP)—Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako witnessed their first boxing bouts yesterday—and had a somewhat uneasy time. Both appeared relieved when a towel was thrown into the ring by a nervous second whose fighter was being chased around the ring.

WOULD IGHT RAGWEED

WINDSOR — (CP) — City council last night passed a resolution calling on the provincial government to inaugurate a program to stamp out ragweed in Ontario. City engineer R.J. Demarais told council that appropriations—most are made on the municipal level—are generally insufficient to control the weed.

Movie Column

Red Skelton May Quit Television Work

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (CP) — Red Skelton may quit television after his first 13 weeks of this season are finished. .

The carrot-topped comedian has received a request from his sponsor to again present his show on a live basis. Since the beginning of the fall season, the Skelton show has been on film, and the quality of the shows has been rapped by the critics. .

Skelton's reply to the sponsor's request: "He can either have a live comedian on a filmed show or a dead comedian on a live show."

He was referring to his experience on last year's program, when he was on the border of complete collapse.

TOO ROUGH

"Now that Red's doing his show on film," remarked his business manager, "he can at least go home and sleep after a performance. Last year when he came off stage, we'd put him on a couch and place an oxygen mask over his face.

His TV director, Marty Rackin, said:

"Other comedians can introduce other acts and stay offstage for five or 10 minutes. But not Red. He's onstage nearly the whole half-hour. People expect it of him."

Skelton remarked that the film version is just as hard as live in some respects. "The important thing is building up the studio audience to a peak," he said. "On the live show, I could do it in the half-hour. But when I take time out for a costume change now, I have to work hard to get the audience back up to the point where I left."

WOUNDED TRANSFERRED AT SEA— An American sailor wounded by Communist shore fire is transferred from the picket destroyer U.S.S. Perkins to the cruiser U.S.S. Helena at sea off the North Korean coast. An emergency blood plasma bottle stays with the wounded seaman as the stretcher-carrier is swung over the side.

Blind Quad Goes Home, Can See Again

LONDON (AP) —Georgina Brown, 14-month-old quad, went home this week able to see although doctors had declared her incurably blind at birth.

The curly-haired baby was given a civic reception when she returned to her Petts Wood home after eight months in a home for blind children.

For her mother, Mrs. Murial Brown, the civic reception was the least important of her joys

When the quads were born one died and the other three, Georgina, Tony and Denise, were pronounced incurably blind.

All three were sent to a blind home.

Then Georgina, under treatment, began to see. "There is no question of any sudden or miraculous restoration of sight," said John C. Colligan, secretary-general of the National Institute for the Blind. "Georgina was found to have a certain measure of sight and consequently has gone back to her parents."

Thus far the other two quads have shown no sign of gaining their sight.

Shingles May Develop With Or After Acute Infections

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

An attack of shingles, or herpes zoster as it is known medically, is merely an unpleasant experience which fades into a memory for most victims of this peculiar disorder.

For some, however, particularly elderly people, shingles is a severe, long-lasting affair, causing a great deal of suffering, taxing the patience of the individual, and presenting a real problem of medical care.

Judging by the constant stream of letters received by this column on the subject of shingles, the latter situation is by no means uncommon.

Herpes is an acute inflammation accompanied by characteristic blisters on the skin, involving only that part of the skin which is reached by certain nerves. It occurs on one side of the body only and is especially common around the chest, just over and parallel to the ribs, on the forehead, face, lower back and abdomen.

The blisters (which appear several days after the pain starts) begin to open and dry up in a few days and finally disappear altogether. In young and middle-aged people this is about all there is to it, but in older people severe neuralgic pains often last for months.

Herpes may develop with or immediately after acute infections like pneumonia or meningitis; it can come in epidemics or without any cause which can be identified. It is probably caused by a tiny, living organism called a virus.

An interesting point about shingles is its relation to chickenpox, which is also a disease caused by a virus. Small epidemics of herpes have developed at the same time as epidemics of chickenpox, and there seems good reason to believe that an occasional person can develop chickenpox from contact with a patient with shingles and the other way around.

X-RAY IS ONE TREATMENT

Many kinds of treatment have been used for shingles with greater or lesser degrees of success. Among the more recent methods is the use of X-rays.

When herpes develops on the forehead, it can move down into the eye and this can be a most serious and painful condition.

It seems possible that sooner or later one of the anti-biotic relatives of penicillin may turn out to be of real value in treatment—especially if given early in the course of the disease.

In long-lasting nerve pain following shingles, nerve surgery may offer the only means of bringing relief.

Legion To Press For Higher Vets' Allowances

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Legion will press for increased war veterans allowances and higher ceilings on permissible incomes for allowance recipients during the forthcoming session of Parliament, the Legion's Dominion Command headquarters said in a statement today.

Dr. C.B. Lumsden of Wolfville, N.S., Dominion president of the 250,000-member ex-service organization, has sent a special message to the 2,000-odd Legion branches urging them to place the Legion's proposals before their members of parliament.

The Legion is asking for basic rates of $60 a month for single veterans and $120 a month for married veterans. The present rates are $50 and $90. Under the War Veterans Allowance Act, permissible income for a single recipient is $720 a year and $1,200 for a married recipient. The Legion seeks to have these amounts raised to $1,200 for single and $2,000 for married veterans.

An official brief to the government will be presented by the Dominion president and executive council at a meeting here Nov. 11.

Fares Go Up, Fewer On Buses

MONTREAL (CP)—Introduction of higher street car and bus fares in Montreal Sept. 26 resulted in a decrease of about 1,329,000 passengers during a 20-day period, the Quebec Public Service Board was told yesterday.

The figures were contained in a submission by Arthur Duperron, chairman and general manager of the Montreal Transportation Commission. The city is asking for a revision of fares, although the system is city-owned.

Although the number of passengers dropped, compared with the corresponding 20-day period last year, Mr. Duperron's report showed that the increased fares brought increased income of $181,000.

Under the new fares, three tickets cost 30 cents instead of 25 cents, and the cash fare is 12 cents instead of 10 cents.

During the 20-day period this year passengers numbered 19,253,734 compared with 20,582,718 in the corresponding period last year.

Canadians "Can't Take It" Arctic Teacher Tells W.A.

OMEMEE (ENS)—Canadians just can't take it. That is the opinion Miss Audrey Weir, former schoolteacher in the Arctic, expressed to Christ Anglican Church W.A. Friday evening.

She cited the case of a man and wife who were sent to a charge by the church at a cost of $1,000. Four days later, the couple went home

Of her own life in the Arctic, Miss Weir said she knew of no place "prettier or more friendly; the building where I stayed was warm and comfortable and at school all the odd chores were done for me."

Dressed in her Arctic costume—parka, tappis, beaded shoes with moose hide soles—Miss Weir showed samples of beautiful beaded work in ornaments, on shoes, mittens and belts.

Eskimos, said she, are a religiously-minded people, but lack leadership. At Tuktoyaktuk, where she taught, the two main religious groups were Roman Catholic and Anglican. Beyond church matters, all lived amicably enough.

At Tuktoyaktuk, the Anglican church provided "only an Eskimo preacher," and the teacher who had to look after medical work besides teaching school.

The white population had a habit of not attending church. "What's the matter with the Canadians?" she asked. Her answer was, "They haven't the guts."

Mrs. S. Nurse introduced Miss Weir, and she was thanked by Mrs. A. Stephenson.

Fegan was struck by a warning shot while attempting to escape from a used car lot. A city funeral is planned.

Elect P. Sanders Y.P. President

MILLBROOK (ENS) — At the meeting of the inter-church Young People's Group held in Grace Presbyterian Sunday school Sunday evening, the following slate of officers was elected for the coming year:

President, Paul Sanders; 1st vice-president, Helen Fallis; 2nd vice-president, Donald Kent; secretary, Muriel Elliott; treasurer, Frances Dawson; social committee, Irene Trick (convener), Diann Hogaboam, June Anderson, A. J. Ball, and Allan Hutchinson; worship service committee, Jean Smith (convener), Donald Spicer, Mac. Ingham and Donald Kent.

The meeting opened with a sing-song led by Jean Smith.

Paul Sanders was in charge of devotions and gave a talk and showed a film strip on "Martin Luther and the Reformation". It was decided to show a full length film on the reformation at the next meeting, to be held on November 2, and to invite the general public.

Plans were made for as many of the members of the C.Y.U.C. as possible to attend the youth rally in St. Paul's Church, Toronto, on Friday evening when Canon Bryan Green, outstanding world preacher, will be the speaker. Plans were completed also for for the band concert being put on by the junior band of the Salvation Army, Peterborough, in Millbrook town hall on October 30 under the sponsorship of the C.Y.U.C.

Warns Highways Pivot For Security

QUEBEC (CP)—Col. J. R. B. Jones, chief engineer of the Canadian army, said yesterday that highways are the pivot of national security.

In an address at the 33rd annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association, Col. Jones said many varieties of bottlenecks are present in Canadian road systems and they impose drastic restrictions on military, economic and civil defence planning.

"Our present roads are not in shape to take the increased volume of heavy traffic that a war would bring," he said. "This seriously prejudices our national security. New Standards must be set for new roads and old roads must be brought up to these standards."

Labor MP's Ask Gold Price Up

LONDON (Reuters) — Labor members raised a clamor in the House of Commons Tuesday for a rise in the world price of gold.

Richard Stokes, former Labor minister of raw materials, contended that Britain should step into the controversy on the side of the Commonwealth gold producers. He termed it ridiculous that gold prices should remain pegged at the United States rate of 35 an ounce while costs rise.

The U.S. treasury is the main force opposing a higher price for gold. A price rise would have the effect of reducing the value of the dollar.

The agitation for a rise is led by South Africa and Australia, the main gold producers. Stokes pointed out that 75 per cent of world production (outside Russia) comes from the sterling area.

But Richard Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, refused to be drawn into making a statement on behalf of the government.

The Dunnville group included Lorne Bradley, Ken Pratt, Phoebe Dickout and Roy McIntee.

MOROCCO AND SPAIN LINKED BY URANIUM—The dotted line on the Newsmap above shows areas in Spain and Morocco where deposits of uranium ore have been found. Rich finds of the stuff that makes atom bombs have been found in the Strait of Gibraltar, and zeunerite, a uranium ore, has been found in the Granada-Loja area. According to a German technician, the Spanish Sierra Nevada Mountains hold large deposits of radioactive material. In Morocco the areas around Larache, Petitjean, and further south in the Atlas Mountains and near Ouarzazate all contain radioactive minerals. The Colomb-Bechar region abounds in similar metals and an American geologist thinks that the Timimoun area also contains many such minerals.

Price Competition Discussed By Chamber Of Commerce

By FORBES RHUDE

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Chamber of Commerce yesterday discussed prices—particularly what puts a brake on them.

The discussion centred around "the new competition," a recent phrase which is taken to cover later-day developments in the business and industrial world.

"The new competition," as defined by various speakers, emphasizes the braking power on prices of such factors as research, advertising and substitute products. It differs in emphasis from the "classical" concept of competition which simply envisioned many people making product, with many buyers picking and choosing among them.

Combines Commissioner T. D. MacDonald said literature on "the new competition" tends to indicate that emphasis on price competition is becoming increasingly unnecessary.

He repudiated any such idea. He said that undoubtedly certain elements in competition, such as research, even if not new, have taken on new significance, and it was not the purpose of Canada's combine legislation to "turn back the clock."

Nevertheless, the purpose of the legislation was to eliminate any situation which might forbid price competition and which was to the public detriment. Whatever price competition was possible should be maintained; and he felt that it was the real spur to many of the factors included under "the new competition."

R.M. Fowler of Montreal, chairman of the panel discussion, asked Mr. MacDonald:

"If, in an inflationary period, a group of business men agreed to keep prices down as an anti-inflationary measure, would that be contrary to the combines statute?"

Mr. MacDonald: "If business men have such a situation which they want to discuss, the door is always open to them."

Chaplin Fails To Make Show

LONDON (AP)—Charlie Chaplin won't be among those drawing regal laughter from the Queen Nov. 3 at the royal command variety performance, high spot of Britain's vaudeville year.

The little Cockney comic, now making his first London visit in 21 years, is not on the star-studded bill announced Tuesday. The line-up includes more than 50 leading variety artists from Britain and abroad.

Chaplin's secretary blames it all on "some confusion."

Chaplin is due in Paris Nov. 3 for the French premiere of his latest film, "Limelight," and apparently misunderstood an informal, initial approach, asking if he would be available for the royal show.

Then Harry Marlowe, organizer of the show, by telegram asked him to appear but Chaplin "did not know who Marlowe was," the comic's secretary added.

UK Car Industry Has New Models

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's automobile industry unfolded its 1953 bid for the world market at an $8,000,000 motor show yesterday.

Designers have concentrated not on producing radical changes, but on achieving greater comfort and running economy. Engines have been designed to give more miles to the gallon, and foreign criticism has been answered by better dust-proofing and heating and provision of roomier luggage compartments.

A spokesman for the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders said that though production of cars in Britain fell during the first nine months of this year, exports for the year are expected to set a record.

There are 197 British cars in the show while 31 overseas makers are displaying 90 models from the United states, Canada, France, Italy and Spain.

Principal Prefers Spanking To Strap

TORONTO (CP) — Spanking, says one school principal, is his treatment for naughty children. He doesn't believe in strapping

M.W. Nichol, principal of Dewson street junior school, Monday night told a home and school association meeting that it is his practice to turn children over his knee and spank them when he considers they need it.

Dr. C.C. Goldring, city director of education, said today he isn't sure whether it is permissible for a teacher to turn a pupil over his knee and spank him under regulations laid down by the Ontario Department of Education.

The regulations state that: "A teacher may exercise such discipline as might be exercised by a wise and judicious parent."

250 Patients Apply For Hospital Transfer

SUDBURY (CP) — More than 250 Sudbury and Algoma district residents who are receiving treatment for tuberculosis in institutions throughout the province have applied for transfer to the new sanatorium here.

This was announced Tuesday by Dr. C. J. Doherty, medical director of the new 155-bed Sudbury and district sanatorium which opens next month.

Dr. Doherty said three or four new cases of tuberculosis turn up weekly in the two districts and priority must be given to these cases. Persons in other institutions in the province who have urgent reasons for being closer to home will also be given special consideration.

PARIS (CP)—Two men, Roy Weir, Burford, and Martin McLaughton, Brantford, are in hospital here suffering from injuries when struck by a falling 3,000 pound I-beam at the Department of Highways yards just east of Paris yesterday.

Weir has a fractured right ankle, bruises and shock. McLaughton has injuries to his left side.

Killed In Fall

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Jean Baptiste Laniel, 27, of Toronto last night plunged 18 feet to his death from a scaffold while installing a sprinkler system at the John Labatt Ltd. plant.

At first it was believed he had been electrocuted by touching a live wire but later investigation showed the power on the rail wires was not on.

Coroner Dr. A.R. Routledge said there was no apparent cause of death and an autopsy will be conducted.

Saint John Port Business

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—The port of Saint John is big business for the city in particular and New Brunswick generally.

National Harbors Board and shipping officials expect the port's business this winter will exceed the figures for last winter, when the traffic volume was the greatest since the Second World War.

During the previous season, grain shipments from Saint John set a post-war record of approximately 15,000,000 bushels—nearly a 50-per-cent increase over the corresponding 1950-51 period. In the coming winter season they may hit 20,000,000 bushels.

Handling freight from most parts of Canada when St. Lawrence River ports become icebound, Saint John is an outlet for products from throughout New Brunswick—mainly lumber, pulpwood, pitprops, woodpulp and potatoes. Forest products exported through New Brunswick ports last year were valued at more than $82,000,000, up $20,000,000 from the previous year, and most of them were shipped from Saint John.

The gradual build-up in port business since 1945 was emphasized last winter when the volume of traffic pouring in and out strained all waterfront facilities.

This was a big factor in a federal government decision to extend the new Pygsley terminal on the east side of the harbor The 875-foot pier, opened in February, 1950, cost about $3,300,000. The extension, also 875 feet, may be completed next fall at a contract price of $2,390,183.

It will replace the "Digby Boat" and Reed's Point wharves. New docking facilities for the S.S. Princess Helene, which plies across the Bay of Fundy between Saint John and Digby, N.S., have been built near Market Slip.

Extension of two piers at West Saint John and a major improvement program along the eastern waterfront are under consideration.

Seven children came into the society's care during the month. This action was the result of evictions, lack of planning by parents, illness of one parent, and one child born out of wedlock.

They presented it with a flourish to the president of the Toronto Board of Trade. Last year, with much fanfare, Toronto planted a line of red maples on University Ave. They were extremely embarrassed this fall when the trees' leaves turned yellow and were discovered to be Norway yellow maples.

Lindsay Accepts Lower Offer For Gravel Pit

LINDSAY (ENS). — Lindsay council last night accepted a $1,200 bid for the former gravel pit opposite the town dump, at the same time turning down an offer of $1,500.

Bidder at $1,200 was Ray Weldon of Lindsay, who plans to build a large garage and storehouse for an implement agency and two houses. The $1,500 was offered by the Wilson Construction Co., of Cannington, who planned to build 19 houses on the property.

Last night's special session was the fourth meeting on disposal of the property, and it brought charges from one alderman that Mayor Charles Lamb was trying to have the Weldon bid accepted "by hook or crook."

When council split four-four on a recorded vote, Mayor Lamb cast the deciding ballot in favor of the Weldon bid.

Mayor Lamb sponsored the motion for acceptance of the $1,200 offer, in spite of a motion by Alderman Vince Cote asking for tenders to be called.

HOW JUSTIFY IT?

When the Mayor broke the tie, Alderman James McQuarrie asked "How can you accept $1,200 for a piece of property that you are offered $1,500 for? How can you justify such an action?"

Said Mayor Lamb: "It is useless, worthless, filled with holes. The property has been idle for 30 years. I think we should accept the first offer on it."

First offer for the property—of $1,000—came from Mr. Weldon. The land has 400 feet frontage on Highway 35 leading to Fenelon. Ald. McQuarrie fought the Weldon bid through the four meetings of council, and demanded that the land be offered for tender.

Later an offer from the Cannington construction firm of $1,200 was received, and Mayor Lamb spoke angrily of "underhanded methods" used in obtaining the second bid. The Cannington firm later raised its offer to $1,500.

Had the land been sold to the Wilson firm, said Ald. McQuarrie, they would have started erection of the 19 homes next spring.

Vote on the Mayor's motion to sell to Weldon went this way: yes—Ald. Butler, Pierce, Baker, Burrows; no—Ald. Hick, McQuarrie, Cote and Stevens. Length of the meeting was an even 10 minutes.

CGE Employees Buy $1,185,350 In Savings Bonds

Employees of the Canadian General Electric have subscribed $1,185,350 in bonds in the Canada Savings drive. This total is rapidly nearing the 1951 campaign final. The subscription total of the employees in the big electrical plant is more than three times that so far subscribed by all other employees in the Peterborough, Port Hope and Lindsay area.

The area's total subscription is $1,675,600.

Most enthusiastic reports are being received from the drive in Peterborough. One married woman who is an employee of a plant, which has not been working full time, subscribed $800. Her husband working in another plant also bought a bond. But for the next 50 weeks the woman is going to do the saving and the husband will finance the running of family.

FEW $50 BONDS.

It is also said that the $50 bond is partically a thing of the past and very seldom does a purchaser ask for them.

Second place in the progress report issued on Tuesday night has been taken over by employees of the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co. with $92,850. Western Clock Co. employees in third place with $74,200.

Employees of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds in fourth place are standing higher than some other larger and considered higher scaled industries in the city.

Other industries tabulated are De Laval $44,250; Canadian Seal-

Hope Of Peace Improving Journalist Tells Sales, Ad

Three kinds of peace are sought by diplomats of the western world today, a Washington news analyst told the Sales and Advertising Club Tuesday night at Club Aragon. John C. Metcalfe, guest speaker at the club's annual manufacturer's night, said that the three forms of peace were all steps in logical sequence. Although the threat of war was still clouding the horizon, a better hope was still held out for peace.

Mr. Metcalfe listed his three kinds of peace as: short, durable and lasting.

Defining them, he said that a short peace was an uncertain one, a period of cold war with a diplomatic no man's land.

The durable peace was one which could last from 10 to 15 years. It was the kind of peace immediately in view.

A lasting peace, he said, would be one that would last 25 years at the outside limit, and about 20 years as a minimum.

TOO MANY CHANGES

Mr. Metcalfe, at one time Washington diplomatic correspondent for Time magazine and the New York Herald Tribune, blamed a good deal of the unsettled condition of the world today on the rapidity with which the United States has changed secretaries of state.

With each resignation of a secretary of state, it was customary for U.S. top diplomatic officials to submit their resignations automatically. The upheaval in the state department and in U.S. policy because of this was difficult to estimate, but it had been damaging.

Five secretaries of state had ruled the U.S. state department in the last seven years. First of the five was Cordell Hull, a representative of the conservative democratic element in the south.

Mr. Hull was the vaguest man that had ever headed the state department. His successor, Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., was the "most beautiful"; Mr. Metcalfe did not compliment him further.

Neither of these men had much diplomatic experience, and there was a reason for such appointments, declared Mr. Metcalfe. Franklin Roosevelt wanted to act as his own secretary of state.

Following Stettinius was James F. Byrnes, now governor of South Carolina, who was charged by the speaker with part of the responsibility for the blunders at Yalta and Moscow.

At Yalta, among other things, three votes in the United Nations were promised to Russia; one for the Ukraine, one for Byelo-Russia and a third for Russia itself. The other two, Stalin argued, were sovereign states. At Moscow, Byrnes had agreed, as had British diplomats, to the promise that Russia had to approve of the post-war governments of the Balkan states.

MARSHALL BEST

Best of the five was the fourth—Gen. George Marshall, sponsor of the European aid plan which bore his name. His foresight enabled the U.S. and the rest of the western world to keep foreign markets out of Russian hands.

Fifth was the much maligned Dean Acheson, who was damned with faint praise by Mr. Metcalfe as a man who "doesn't deserve some of that criticism."

Mr. Metcalfe made it clear that he regarded Germany and Japan

Car, Truck Collide At Intersection 3 Escape Injury

A panel truck was spun around and overturned on its side after a collision with a car at King and Stewart Sts. at 10 a.m. today.

Except for a shaking up, the driver, William H. Robinson, 658 Aylmer St., climbed out uninjured.

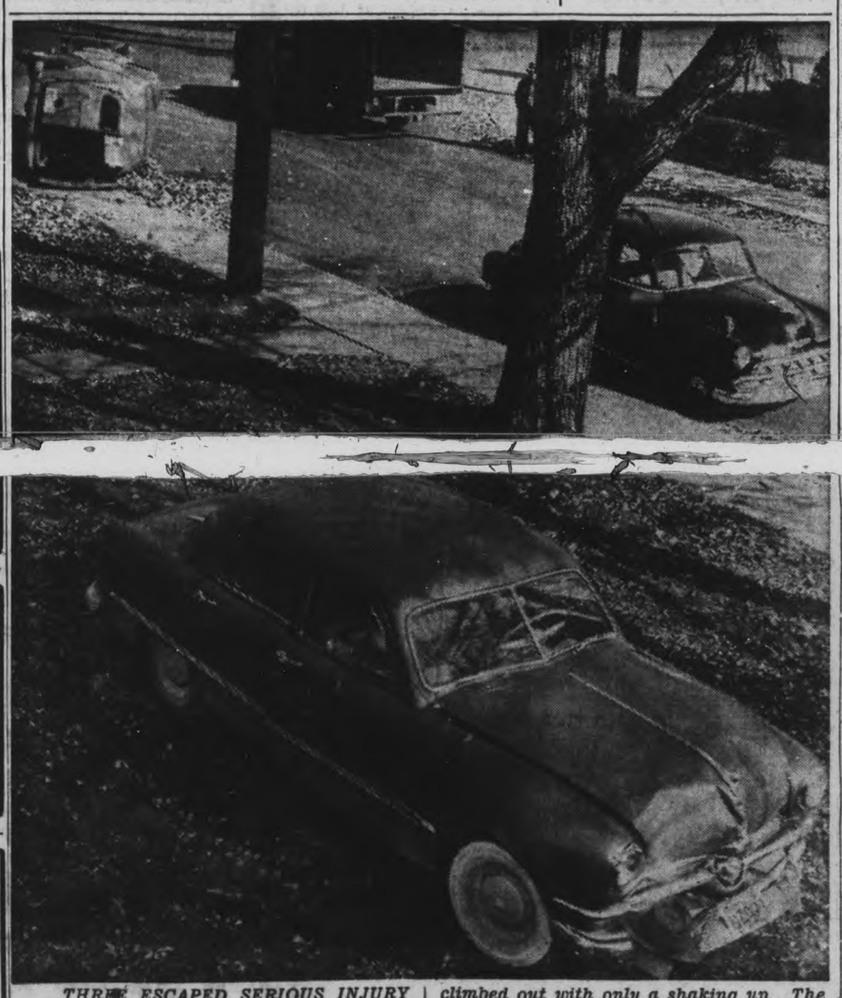
The car ended up 50 feet south of the overturned truck on the lawn of Andrew Tyndall, 277 Stewart St.

Three-year-old Judith White, a passenger in the car, driven by Mrs. Muriel White, Wallace Dr., received a severe bump when her head struck the windshield as the two vehicles collided.

X-rays are being taken to determine if she received any head injuries, but a medical examination after the accident failed to reveal any apparent injury and she was allowed to return home.

There are no stop signs at the intersection. Robinson, driving the panel delivery truck was going south on Stewart St. Mrs. White was driving the car west on King St.

ROLLED UP IN BALL



"I saw it coming and rolled up in a ball," said Robinson in explaining how he happened to escape injury.

Mrs. White said she saw the truck coming and "was stopped" when the impact occurred a few feet south of the centre of the intersection. After the collision the White car veered sharply to the left, jumped the curb and must have barely missed a second collision with the panel truck which was spun around and ended up on its left side partly on the sidewalk, facing northeast. The car driven by Mrs. White continued across the lawn of Andrew Tyndall, at the southwest corner of the intersection and rolled to a stop.

Both sides of the body of the truck were crumpled, the left side, by the impact with the car and the other side when it overturned.

Extensive damage resulted to the front end of the White car and both vehicles had to be removed by tow trucks.

THREE ESCAPED SERIOUS INJURY when a panel truck and a car collided at King and Stewart Sts., at 10 a.m. today. This view from an upstairs verandah shows the delivery truck in the background, overturned on its side, from which the driver William H. Robinson of 658 Aylmer St., climbed out with only a shaking up. The car, driven by Mrs. Muriel White of Wallace Dr., ended up on the lawn of Andrew Tyndall, 277 Stewart St. Mrs. White's three-year-old daughter Judith bumped her head on the car windshield as the two vehicles collided.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Help Not Forced Says Aid Society

[illegible] the Children's Aid Society forces its services on the people of the city and district was expressed Tuesday at a meeting of the society's board of directors.

This alarm was expressed by Miss Rachael Young, superintendent of the society, in her report to the board.

"There is a great need to assure people who either need help with behaviour problems or with marital problems that not only are our services available, but unless it is neglect of children where protection is necessary to prevent physical ill-treatment, services may be terminated either by those receiving them or by the society at any time," she said.

"Something needs to be done to do away with the mistaken conception that once the Children's Aid Society has its foot in the door you can never get it out."

Miss Young explained that this idea usually arose in a situation where physical neglect of children has made it necessary to continue visiting to the home where there is no wish to change.

"It is natural that they should be critical of the agency which makes them aware of this inadequate care."

"In cases where this neglect is not present, we give services only when they are solicited by the people involved," she concluded.

Busy Noon

LINDSAY (ENS) — Lindsay fire department had a busy day Tuesday when three calls were answered within two hours at the noon hour. None were serious. The first call was to a Cambridge St. south residence, where W. W. Hutchinson reported a chimney fire. It was extinguished in time for the department to answer the next call, a leaf fire in front of the home of Dr. W. R. Crowe, on Kent St. W. Returning from that small blaze, the department did a public service act when they answered a call from a Colborne St. E. housewife, whose pipes had collapsed in her kitchen. The men reassembled the pipes, which were still hot when they arrived at the house.

Had Active Life On Both Sides Of Atlantic Ocean

The death of David James More at Lakefield, Monday, recalls to his Peterborough friends the young man of seventeen who arrived here in 1912 from England, and two years later was on his way home again as a soldier in the volunteer army from Canada in the First World War.

He was born at Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire, son of Mr. and Mrs. James More. He was a baby of two years when his father died. His coming to Peterborough was partly to see the country, but mainly in quest of opportunity. He obtained employment at the De Laval Company, but ended his work there to enlist with the 21st Battalion which was recruiting in the Peterborough-Kingston area.

PROMOTED IN FIELD

Mr. More volunteered as a private, and it was evidence of his spirit and abilities that he was promoted on the field in France to a captaincy, and awarded the Military Cross. After five years in the Canadian army.

Mr. More returned to Peterborough, and married Ethel Sheppard, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sheppard of Alfred St. Concerned about the uncertain health of his mother, Mr. More went back to England in 1937, accompanied by his wife, and was successful in business in Daventry.

He became widely known and respected in that industrial city of which he was elected Mayor in 1949-50, and was also the founder president of its Rotary Club.

On a visit here four years ago, Mr. More was a guest at a Peterborough Rotary luncheon. After returning to England in September 1950, he sold his business, came to Canada again and lived in Toronto where he had once had an insurance agency. The family took a house at Lakefield last year. This spring, Mr. and More went on a vacation trip to the Old Country, spending five months there.

On the home voyage, Mr. More became seriously ill, was in the ship's hospital with heart ailment, followed by two weeks in a Quebec hospital.

He arrived home last Thursday, and his physician's diagnosis held out scant hope for him. Mr. More died on Monday. He leaves his wife, and daughter, Eleanor, of Lakefield.

The funeral from the Comstock funeral home, will be Thursday at 2 p.m. to Little Lake cemetery. The service will be conducted by the Rev. W. H. Tonge of Lakefield United Church.

Grand Jury Urges Court Loudspeaker

Microphone Installed In Witness Box Has Varying Success

A Peterborough County grand jury finished a tour of public buildings Tuesday and had only a few general recommendations to make.

To improve acoustics in the courtroom they suggested that a loud speaker should be installed. There is already a microphone and amplifying system installed in the witness box but its usefulness varies with the witness.

Some other recommendations:

The usual suggestion that the antiquated men's washroom facilities be removed from its present location near the county council chambers.

Hardware should be obtained so members of the Peterborough Bar may close their lockers and secure them shut if they wish.

WATER STILL TEPID

A cold water fountain should be installed in the front hall. (The present one has the cold water pipe running along underneath the floor beside the hot water pipe, and the result is tepid water for drinking.)

In the county jail an electric or gas stove should replace the present coal stove, say the grand jury. This would allow more room for the staff and allow a continuous supply of hot water for maintenance.

At the Anson House it was suggested that lighting should be improved. This would include a light at the top of the main cellar stairway.

St. Vincent's Orphanage should be entirely redecorated.

The dining room of the Children's Shelter should be redecorated and repairs made to the main chimney on the north side of the building.

A mechanical lift for bringing trays back and forth between the kitchen and upstairs should be installed in the House of Providence, the grand jury found. This would assist the staff. A new floor should be laid in the men's dining room.

Expect U.S. Government Circles Disappointed In Steel Survey

NEW YORK AP) — Some United States government circles probably will be keenly disappointed in results of a current National Production Authority survey of steel expansion by products, the Iron Age predicted today.

This is because some of the product capacities the government would like to see expanded most are considered least profitable in a peace-time economy, the metalworking weekly said.

The N.P.A. survey is to see whether steel items needed for defence are being expanded as rapidly as high-demand, high-profit peace-time items. The government would like to see capacity boosted for large-diameter bars, heavy piles, medium and heavy plates and seamless pipe and tubing—among others.

"These products are in extremely short supply now," the Iron Age said. "However, industry expansion plans are based on estimates of demand over the next several years. When put to this test some of these products do not look like good breadwinners. Once the basic expansion phase of the defence program is completed, demand outlook for these products is not so promising."

The Iron Age estimated steelmaking operations this week at 106.5 per cent of rated capacity, unchanged from last week's record high.

"Going into the winter, scrap stocks are in fine shape," Iron Age said. "A number of mills are stocked to the limit of their storage capacity. But record-breaking pressure on scrap sources, especially when winter weather tends to curtail collection."

Sunday School Enrolment Can Be Doubled

SARNIA (CP) — It's possible for every Sunday School in Canada to double its attendance in two years, Rev. J.H. Watt of Windsor said yesterday at the annual meeting of the Union of Regular Baptist Churches of Ontario and Quebec.

In his own church, Sunday School enrolment has increased from 70 to 800 in the last eight years.

Mr. Watt deplored the general declining school attendance of recent years. He sugested visitation in the students' homes as a means of combatting the situation. Special attention also should be given to students who attend only occasionally.

Bequest Of $200 Left Red Cross

LAKEFIELD (ENS). — The Lakefield Branch, Canadian Red Cross Society held their October meeting in Memorial Hall on Tuesday evening. The president, Mrs. Albert O'Donnell, presided. A minute of silence was observed in memory of the late E. W. Bailey, an executive member, and chairman of the national campaign, who died during the spring.

In reporting for the Loan Cupboard, Mrs. W. W. Leonard stated that the beds and wheel chair were in constant use, and that there was a great need for another wheeled chair.

School nurse, Mrs. Wallace Hendren, reported that the recent dental inspection had been completed and the children's teeth, generally, were not in good condition. Of a total of 278 children inspected, only 47 were found to have no dental cavities. The number of cavities totalled 457. There were 265 baby teeth that should be removed and 37 permanent teeth. In the eye examination, 283 children were inspected and 66 found to have defective sight, some quite serious. There were only two cases of pediculosis.

Mrs. Hendren also said that the cards for the osteotabs had been sent out and the parents had cooperated very well in returning them. Only 11 children were refused permission to take the tablets. Immunization cards were out but not returned yet.

Blood donor chairman, Mrs. Stanley Goodall submitted a report showing that in April 13 donors had been taken to Peterborough hospitals.

The resignation of Mrs. Harold Wilford as chairman of the swimming and water safety program was received and accepted with regret. Mrs. Wilford has held this position for several years and has done a great deal to build the program to what it is today.

The secretary read a letter from the Public Trustee, Osgoode Hall, to the effect that in his will, the late Mr. Bailey had made a bequest of $200 to the Lakefield Branch, "to assist the said society in their very commendable work". This will be used to buy some specific item in his memory.

An appeal for clothing for a needy family will be looked after immediately, it was decided.

Kittens Help Solve Baby Blindness

By FRANK CAREY

CHICAGO (AP) — Kittens have helped point the way to a possible means of preventing a common cause of blindness in premature human infants, a Texas researcher reported today.

Dr. W.R. Hepner of the University of Texas said experiments with new - born kittens supported a theory that a diet high in salt might tend to produce a visual defect known as retrolental fibroplasia — and that therefore a low-salt diet might prevent it.

Retrolental fibroplasia is a condition wherein blood vessels behind the lens of the eye become thickened—often resulting in total loss of sight. It has been known to affect up to 90 per cent of a given group of premature infants and ranks high among the causes of blindness in all pre-school children. The specific cause is still unknown.

Dr. Hepner told the American Academy of Pediatrics that kittens have an "immature" eye closely akin to that of the premature human infant.

Following the kitten tests, he declared, diets "extremely" low in salt were fed 27 premature infants in the "acute stage of the disease — and 24 of them achieved "perfectly normal vision."

Rev. H. G. Douglas Speaks At Cavan

CAVAN (ENS)—Cavan United Church held its thankoffering services on Sunday. At the morning service the regular choir, with Mrs. A. Kennedy as organist, led the singing. Fraser Carr and the male quartette from St. Andrew's Church, Millbrook, sang. In the evening the choir from St. Andrew's, Millbrook, led the service of song and Miss Estella Hetherington was at the organ. Mrs. G. A. Spicer sang a solo.

The Rev. H. G. Douglas of Knox United Church, Peterborough, was the guest speaker at both services. In the evening his text was Genesis 43, 3, taking as his subject the latter part of the verse, "Ye shall not see my face except your brother be with you." He told of the traits of Joseph's character, his sense of vocation and destiny. He was not a waster, but in the years of plenty stored the grain and was able to help those in need when famine came, especially his brothers. He brought out the thought that "sharing" is the right relationship in the world and today there is a great opportunity when 15,000,000 people are homeless and one-half of the people of the world are hungry. According to statistics, Canadians give less than one per cent of their income to charitable purposes.

Climbers Fail To Scale Mount Gilbert

VANCOUVER (CP)—Seven Vancouverites—six men and a girl—failed by just 75 feet in their bid to top the nearest unconquered 10,000-foot mountain north of the United States border.

Leader of the party was Dr Neal Carter, chairman of the Vancouver section of the Alpine Club of Canada. Other members were Miss Alfreda Pigou, Alan Melville, Ian Kay, Fred Rogers, Tom Marsden and David Young.

To get to 10,200-foot Mount Gilbert, 120 miles from here, they chartered a plane to the head of Butte Inlet, and after trucking six miles to a logging station began the grim hike up Southgate River, each carrying two heavily-loaded pack sacks.

"The mountain was 15 miles inland, said Dr. Carter, and "it was terrible. We had to fight our way through for hours at a time, then clean up the trail as we went back for another pack.

"That 15 miles took us a week."

To reach the summit they broke camp before dawn. They climbed all day and it was 5:30 p.m when they reached the snow-dome that seemed to top Mount Gilbert.

"We were bitterly disappointed," said Dr. Carter. "We found the summit was 75 feet below the main one, and separated from it by 500 yards of knife-edged pinnacles. It would have taken us a day to cross."

The climbers had run out of time and decided to turn back to civilization.

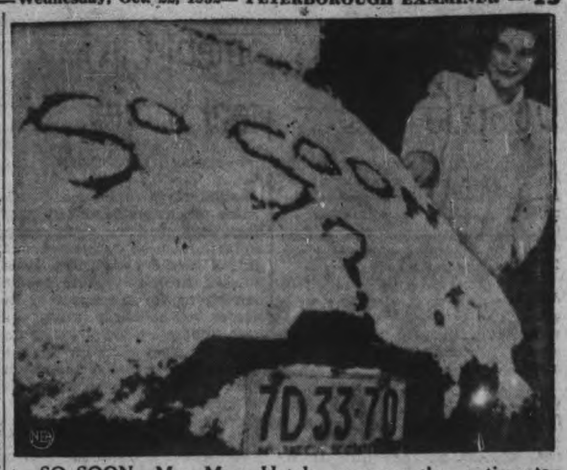
Must Continue U.S. Help To Free Lands

NEW YORK (AP)—The two major presidential candidates say the United States must continue to help the free countries—and lead them—in the struggle against communism.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican, and Governor Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic candidate, addressed the New York Herald Tribune annual forum last night.

Eisenhower, who spoke directly to the Forum session here, urged "a new economic alliance of free nations" to confound Kremlin predictions of economic doom for the free world.



NEED COALITION

Stevenson, who delivered his address from Chicago, said the U.S. should lead in developing a "coalition of free nations strong enough to remain the masters of their destiny" and meet communism's threat. He said such a coalition could not be built without full-time American participation.

The two candidates' 15-minute talks were relatively free of campaign politics.

Eisenhower called for "a substiture for the purely temporary business of bolstering the free nations through annual handouts" which get "neither permanent results nor real friends."

Stevenson said leadership must be borne by the U.S. and added: "We must be strong until the enemies of freedom are ready and willing to join the free nations in honest disarmament."

Luftwaffe Designers Ready To Begin Production Again

By JACK HENRY

DUSSELDORF, Germany (Reuters)—The men who designed and built the planes the Luftwaffe sent screaming across the skies in the Second World War are getting ready to set up shop again as soon as post-war restrictions are lifted.

The industry, closed down by the Allies after the war, now is like a head without a body. Leading manufacturers Ernest Heinkel, Claude Dornier, Willy Messerschmitt and others, still are available, but there are no manufacturing plants.

The Allied ban on aircraft manufacture is intended to be maintain-voluntarily by the West German Government. Former manufacturers, however, are already saying that these regulations "have long been overtaken by actual events."

Messerschmitt has gone on making and developing planes in an office in Spain, and Dornier and Heinkel have been travelling about Europe and talking with foreign aircraft manufacturers.

FORM OWN COMPANY

Their efforts were officially coordinated when the "Verband zue Foerderung der Luftfahrt E.V.," a private organization, moved here from Stuttgart a few weeks ago and started working in earnest.

The association came to North Rhine-Westphalia, the home of the Ruhr, because the state government had given more help in aviation research and manufacture than the federal government has been able to under Allied restrictions.

The North Rhine-Westphalian government has, for instance, provided research facilities for the 40-year-old German Aviation Research Institute at a technical college in Aachen, and at the former Luftwaffe airfield of Essen-Muelheim.

At the same time, a staff of highly-qualified men, including the head of the Luftwaffe's radar research and development department Leo Brandt, radar expert Prof. Abraham Esau, and gas-turbines expert Prof. A. Schmidt, are preparing blueprints which will enable German aircraft making to swing into action once the go-ahead is given.

French, British and other aircraft manufacturers have been in close contact for some time with the leading German manufacturers. Heinkel, Dornier and others were invited to the British industry's recent display at Farnborough, England.

WANTS TO BUILD COMET

Heinkel, the most active of all, says he wants to build Britain's latest commercial airliner, the jet-driven Comet, under licence in Germany. Others also said that if they were given licences they could start building planes at short notice.

The manufacturers say that they expect the economic volume of a reborn West German aircraft industry will exceed $345,000,000 a year and will yield up to $138,000,000 a year in taxes.

Sitwell Advises Artists Travel

MONTREAL (CP) — Sacheverell Sitwell, British essayist, novelist, poet and critic, has this advice for young, would-be artists—"travel."

"Do not take up painting, writing or any art permanently until you are certain of your vocation, and then travel a great deal," he said in an interview here.

"I would advise all artists to travel, especially around the age of 26. Even before is a good time but 26 seems the perfect time. Travel, observing every detail of life and looking beyond the visible object."

Mr. Sitwell said the Commonwealth can contribute a great deal towards world culture.

"This is the time for the Dominions to write books about their land, paint pictures about their scenery and write music about their great doings. Canada, Australia and others should bring out works depicting their ways of life, their peoples and what is going on. There are many subjects for every artist, and it is just a matter of hard work, determination and constancy."

Warns Britain Keep Her Sea Lanes Open

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain, celebrating the battle of Trafalgar which enabled the Royal Navy to rule the waves, was warned yesterday that she can be brought to her knees if her sea lines are cut.

Londoners marked the 1805 victory with a rally in Trafalgar Square around the 170-foot memorial column to Admiral Lord Nelson, one-eyed victor in the greatest sea battle of the Napoleonic wars.

Admiral Sir Cecil Harcourt, commander of the Home Fleet's base, delivered the warning. If Britain's ocean communications were blocked, he said, an enemy could defeat her without landing a single soldier or dropping a single bomb.

Keeping Britain's sea lanes open is just as vital now as in Nelson's day, Harcourt said.

Missing Pistols Back

TORONTO (CP)—Two air pistols, exhibits in the Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson murder trial, have turned up after a brief disappearance. It was believed the pistols were "borrowed" from the their conviction and death sentence for the slaying of Det.-Sgt. Edmund Tong.

No Violent Repercussion Over McCarthy At Home

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Senator Joseph R. McCarthy's campaign for re-election may be political dynamite elsewhere in the United States but is causing no violent repercussions in his home state of Wisconsin.

McCarthy, Republican senatorial nominee, is opposed Nov. 4 by scholary Democrat Thomas E. Fairchild, who delivers his arguments to the man-on-the-street in villages and cities with a personal approach.

McCarthy, on the other hand, is doing virtually no campaigning in the state, with only a few radio speeches scheduled in the week before the election. Nevertheless, his backers think he'll win by a landslide.

The voluble McCarthy, though absent from Wisconsin much of the time, has been far from silent. Pounding away at his Communists-in-government theme, he has appeared on platforms from Connecticut to Texas.

Moreover, McCarthy continues to be an issue in the presidential contest. Democratic spokesmen, led by Governor Adlai E. Stevenson and President Truman, lambast Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's endorsement of the Wisconsin senator.

WON PRIMARY EASILY

McCarthy piled up a smashing total of 515,481 votes in the September primary — more than the combined vote of all other candidates for the office in both parties. The total Democratic vote was only 191,862 as compared with 759,343 for all Republican senatorial candidates in September.

Fairchild, 39, a former attorney-general of Wisconsin, seldom attacks McCarthy personally. He stresses McCarthy's voting record which he says shows McCarthy's lack of interest in domestic problems.

McCarthy, 42, first won his senate seat in 1946.

Overseas War Brides Create Greater Demand For Travel

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — The women who were the overseas brides of the last war are maintaining their contacts with the old land and incidentally creating a three-generation thirst for travel.

The girls, their children and the folks at home have become nonchalant about a 3,000-mile boat trip or plane hop.

And the Canadian War Brides Association, a hands-across-the-sea organization aimed at keeping homesickness to a minimum, is nourishing the travel bug.

In the association's 40-odd groups across Canada members busily study ways of accumulating money for the yearned-for trip home.

MONEY FOR TRIPS

Bazaars, raffles, teas are held frequently and the money cached away to help with travel expenses.

On the other hand those same nickels and dimes frequently go to assist a member who has fallen upon hard times.

"We have a welfare fund to help girls who are finding things difficult," said Mrs. Ray McCauley of Toronto.

At least 40 women and children are scheduled to fly to Britain next April for a three-month visit.

A United States and Canadian War Brides Parents Association exists in Britain and operates in the same way as the Canadian organization and its corresponding group in the U.S. Only in this case it's the parents who hold the meetings, talk about their far-off daughters and discuss means of visiting them.

PUBLISH BULLETIN

A "Federation of trans-Atlantic Brides and Parents Association" bulletin published in England gives names, address and destinations of parents due to visit Canada. Last year 30 came on one ship alone, visiting daughters as far west as Winnipeg, Regina and Victoria.

Twenty-one war brides and their 33 children returned to Britain for the summer. Several others also visited the United Kingdom, either travelling individually or in groups.

A little more than a year ago the War Brides association at nearby Ajax collected enough money to help pay the passage of a dying mother, her husband and family back to the homeland.

A member of the Ajax group, Mrs. Wyn Ellis, who also is president of the Ontario organization, says her club has a welfare fund "to my idea the most important part of the association."

"And also it helps girls feel that they belong to some organization which really cares whether they are lonely or depressed," she said.

Speaking on the subject, "The Judicial System," Mr. Grant traced its history through the ages. He explained how this system had grown out of the need for survival of the people. Do your duty as you see it in the light of Jesus Christ's teaching, following Jesus' example, who in all moments of trial turned to God in prayer." In conclusion, he urged "In prayer and meditation look to God to aid in what lies before you. Try always to be the best for God, for church, for country."

A solo was rendered by a former member, Mrs. Gladys Todd, now of Niagara Falls. She chose "Moment by Moment."

Expression of thanks to the speaker and soloist was made by Mrs. W. Hargreaves.

Mrs G. Close reported that the W.A. play is to be presented for the 18th and final time this Friday evening at the church. More than $400 has been raised already. It was decided to send used clothing donated in bales for Korea instead of holding a rummage sale.

I.O.D.E. Chapter Sponsors Beauty Clinic

Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. extended the invitations to a beauty clinic which brought about 125 women to the Y. W. C. A. on Tuesday evening. Regent Mrs P. C. Sanders extended welcome and introduced the guest speaker.

The beauty lecturer was representing a manufacurer of cosmetics but it was notable that she first outlined and laid stress on the natural fundamentals of beauty— diet and exercise. Her company's products were called "the polish of the natural."

Because she believed that women do not follow diets and continue exercises because they do not set themselves a time limit, the speaker suggested two things to do for just one week.

1st: To read one article a day on food, in newspaper or magazine. This is to gain knowledge on foods that are good for you, because, as she said "the less you know the less you are interested."

2nd: To do one exercise which she demonstrated, every day. (The exercise while producing good posture, and strong muscles also promotes good circulation which stimulates the natural oil in the skin.)

Throughout the clinic the lecturer referred to replacing the natural oil of the skin and scalp. For hair care the four principals she gave are: clean, condition, stimulate and protect; for skin care: clean, lubricate, firm and protect. For cleansing the face she recommended cream instead of soap and freshener instead of water unless the skin is excessively oily, and the use of hand lotion every time the hands have been in soapy water to keep this skin lubricated.

Mrs. M. E. Clarke submitted herself as the model for a complete facial make-up which highlighted natural beauty with attention drawn to the eyes.

Each guest received a gift of four sample products and ful. size gifts were awarded the longest married woman, Mrs. W. G. McLaren, the newest bride, Mrs. Graham Carruthers, the woman with the nearest birthday, Mrs. C. A. Craig, and the most recently engaged girl. A complete beauty kit was the company's gift to Mrs. C. L. Upper who was the Chapter's convener of this event.

DOROTHY DIX

Separated From Sweetheart Brooding Can Be Harmful

DEAR MISS DIX: My sweetheart left three weeks ago, to be gone six months. We have been going steady for two years. I promised I would wait and be true to him, but it is so lonesome. I go out with a group sometimes, but it only brings back old memories and makes me feel worse. None of the boys interest me, and I have grown away from our group after going with the same boy two years. I know Tommy wants me to have fun, but he is very jealous. What can I do during these six months? I am 16.

MOLLY P.

ANSWER: First of all, of course, you are too young to be so seriously involved with one boy. You have never had a chance to know other boys and it wouldn't hurt you one bit to get back into the group and share their dates.

If you are firmly convinced that there is no one for you but Tommy, you'll just have to learn to spend time by yourself. Either you date, or you don't; there isn't much alternative in a high school group. Most school activities include boys and girls, and I certainly think you would be foolish to give up everything in school for the next six months.

BROODING IS HARMFUL

So many girls are faced with this same problem today when their young men go into service. They are much better off keeping up with social activities rather than brooding at home alone. Of course, if a formal engagement exists between the two, all dates are off. An engaged girl is naturally not available for indiscriminate dating.

Why not connect with some girls who are similarly situated in a manless state? As junior members of an active women's group, you could doubtless find some worthwhile cause to sponsor.

If you are determined, Molly, to forego dating until Tommy's return, the best way to pass the time is to take up some sort of project, either with a group or by yourself You might decide to learn to knit, sew, or cook, for instance. Under Mom's auspices you could come up with a sweater, dress or a fine angel food cake. Nothing adds so much to one's ego as a new accomplishment. Try to work out something that will keep you from becoming a recluse entirely.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: We are two young girls with an embarrassing problem. We are fairly attractive, have no difficulty getting boy friends, and our families are perfectly willing to let us date. However, we find that whenever we go out on a date, we become so excited and nervous that we feel nauseated. We have been forced to come home early from dates on several occasions due to this condition, and now refuse to accept invitations out.

ROSE AND ANN

ANSWER: You have apparently, and very foolishly, concealed this problem from your mothers, who would have been glad to help you. It is by no means uncommon for girls to be afflicted with "butterflies in the stomach" when dating. It's the result of a nervous reaction, and nothing to embarrass you so greatly that you must hide it. Your family doctor can cure, or at least alleviate, the situation very easily with soothing medication. See him at once before all your dating days are spoiled.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a senior in high school and would like to go to business college in New York next year. If I like it, I would plan to stay there and work. However, my parents want me to go to a university here as they feel I should have a college education. Which do you think is more practical?

UNDECIDED

ANSWER: You have certainly chosen to go a long way from home for business college. I would'nt advise that distant a city, since I know there are fine business colleges in your own locality. The question of whether to go on to business school or college should be decided with the help of your principal and faculty advisor. They are acquainted with your capabilities and will, I assure you, give the advice that is best for you. Consult them.

What's Right?

You are having dinner with your husband in a resaurant and would like a second cup of coffee.

WRONG: Attract the waiter's attention and ask for a second cup of coffee.

RIGHT: Ask your husband if he will ask the waiter to bring you more coffee.

Home and School Association News

MAY'S SCHOOL

A large crowd attended the meeting of May's Home and School Association Monday evening. President Mrs. A. Downer conducted routine business.

It was decided to hold open school in January this year instead of March and to have a card party, the date to be set later. At the November meeting there will be a skate exchange. Everyone agreed to the purchase of a safety cone for the school safety patrol.

Miss L. Kidd conducted the devotional part of the meeting. This was followed by Miss Irene Williams playing two lovely piano selections, "March of the Imps" and "Love's Awakening."

Mrs. R. Waldie gave a report of the meeting which she attended at the Park Hill School at which Miss Hucks of the Milk Foundation Fund of Toronto was speaker.

Constable Donald Mackay, the speaker of the evening, was introduced by Mrs. F. James. Constable Mackay outlined the school safety patrol plan now being put into effect. He emphasized that he is endeavoring to cut down on the number of bicycles used by school children. By riding bicycles to and from school they only increase the chance of accidents unnecessarily. Through time there will be a safety patrol organized at May's School.

The attendance banner was won by Miss J. Grills' kindergarten room. The membership for this year is now 45.

Mrs. Dantzer moved a vote of thanks to Constable Mackay and Miss Williams.

Lunch was served by Mrs. O. Weese, Mrs. W. Bugg and their committee.

COMPANY DINNER

Cream of Chicken and Mushroom Soup
Roast Leg of Lamb
Mint Jelly (see notes)
Baked Potato au Gratin (see notes)
Broccoli with Chive or Parsley Sauce (see notes)
Waldorf Salad
Mocha Refrigerator Cake
Coffee

DIRECTIONS

An English butcher revealed to me in a sage voice that Canada is not "lamb country". I think it is. I love Canadian lamb, so regardless I ordered a leg of the beautiful stuff, for I had made Mint Jelly and was fairly drooling to taste it—the fruits of my honest labor—in the just-right combination. See Mint Jelly below.

The Mocha Refrigerator Cake is a recipe for your files and it may be—should be—made the day before the party—a wonderful boon in households where one pair of hands has to do all of the last-minute preparation at once.

The soup is a combination of canned cream of chicken and canned cream of mushroom and will serve 6 or 8 people, depending on the capacity of your cream soup bowls.

MINT JELLY

Wash and cut tart apples or crabapples in quarters, add cold water to nearly cover and cook slowly until a soft mush. Drain through cheesecloth but do not squeeze bag if you want a clear jelly. Measure juice, boil 20 minutes and add two-thirds as much sugar and boil 5 minutes or, if you have a thermometer, to 220 deg. Fahr., or until you can get jelly test. (Jelly Test: mix together 1 teaspoon each syrup and methyl hydrate—which is poisonous—stir a bit and if juice forms fairly firm lump jelly will congeal.) Now add 2 teaspoon mint extract and green coloring — I cannot tell you amount of coloring for brands vary in strength—but do have it bright green. OR add 1 cup well-packed mint leaves to juice when you are boiling it for the 20-minute period and you can then omit mint extract. Pour into sterile jelly glasses and seal with 2 coats paraffin. (Strain out mint leaves if used.)

BAKED POTATO AU GRATIN

Peel hot or cold boiled potatoes and measure. Add two-thirds quantity of medium white sauce, and 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley, ½ teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon salt (or less), ⅛ teaspoon pepper, and turn into shallow baking dish. Mix together 2 or 4 tablespoons dry grated cheese and ¼ cup dry crumbs and 2 tablespoons butter (melted) and sprinkle over top. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. until bubbling and brown. You could remove lamb to warming oven if it is done for the temperature for it is 325 deg. Fahr. uncovered throughout.

Chive or Parsley Sauce is merely medium white sauce with ¼ cup chopped chives or parsley added and if desired, 1 or 2 beaten egg yolks.

MOCHA REFRIGERATOR CAKE

I'd give a dime to have a picture of this at the top of the column.

Cream together until smooth and fluffy 1 cup soft butter, 2 cups icing sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, and ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Then add to it, beating after each addition, 2 squares melted unsweetened chocolate, 4 tablespoons very strong coffee, and 2 eggs which have been first beaten for 2 minutes or until thick. Now line a round mould that is about 7 or 8 inches wide by 2 inches deep, with waxed paper. Sprinkle bottom to depth of ¼ or ½ inch with crumbled cake or lady finger crumbs. Line sides of mould with sawed-off lady fingers or fingers of white cake. Fill with alternate layers of chocolate mixture and crumbled ladyfingers or cake crumbs. Cover with wax paper and stand in refrigerator overnight. Turn out carefully, for top side should be up on serving plate. Pipe inside border of ladyfingers with whipped cream and dot this with halves of maraschino cherries.

This is a good item for a Dessert Party—pass nuts and coffee if you use it for this purpose.

Member Of Heiress' Family Galt Woman Dies In Hotel

NEW YORK (CP)—Mrs. Marion Willison, found dead in the bathtub of her hotel room here yesterday was reported in Galt, Ont., today to be the daughter of Mrs. Langdon Wilks of Galt and a member of the family of Hetty Green, famed American recluse-heiress. It was said she inherited $25,000 of the Green fortune.

New York police reported that Mrs. Willison had apparently taken an overdose of a sedative.

The 32-year-old woman registered at the Hotel Barclay Sept. 27. Detective John Kenny said her body had been found, fully clothed, by a maid shortly before noon.

Kenny also reported that a note was found saying that she couldn't "go through another day" and asking "Please watch over my daughter, Toni." Mrs. Willison was said to be the widow of a Toronto soldier, Lieut. William Willison, missing in the 1941 evacuation of Dunkerque. Her daughter, 12, is living with an aunt in Canada.

Police found a business card of New York lawyer Bernard L. Alderman in the hotel room. Alderman was summoned and identified the body.

Mrs. Willison was reported in Galt to be the niece of Mrs. Matthew Astor Wilks, the former Howland Green and daughter of the heiress. Mrs. Wills died in New York Feb. 5, 1951, leaving a small part of her $125,000,000 fortune to Mrs. Willison.

It was also said Mrs. Willison inherited $5,000 in 1948 from Miss K.L. Wilks of Blair, Ont., and that she was the daughter of the late Langdon Wilks, brother of Matthew Astor Wilks who married Hetty Green's daughter.

Youth Given Probation On Charge Of Theft

LINDSAY (ENS). — Nineteen-year-old Ralph McCabe of Lindsay pleaded guilty today in Lindsay Magistrate's Court to a charge of stealing the cigarette lighter from the car of Hilton Manley, Lindsay, two weeks ago.

Constable Gord. Eberts of the town police, testified he had received a complaint from Manley after he had returned to his car, parked on Kent St., and found the lighter missing. Manley questioned Thomas Hall, sitting in his car next to the Manley vehicle, and learned the name of a youth who had entered the car and sat in the front seat for a few minutes.

Constable Eberts stated that when he found McCabe, the youth could not tell what he had been doing but found the lighter when he searched his own pockets. Magistrate Gee placed McCabe on six months' suspended sentence and assessed him costs of $18.50. Crown counsel Lorne Jordan warned local youths that underage drinking and "contemptible thievery" must stop in the town.

Baby Asphyxiated In Boarding Home

SYDENHAM (CP) — The four-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ford of Toronto was found dead yesterday in an infant boarding home here. Death was attributed to asphyxiation.

Mrs. Phyllis Switzer, proprietor of the nursery, told police she found the baby lying face down in his crib. She said she attended the child about an hour before and that he seemed normal at the time. No inquest will be held.

Sydenham is 10 miles north of Kingston.

Car On Crossing Demolished By Engine

GALT (CP) — A 1952-model car was demolished near here early today by a Canadian Pacific Railway engine after the car stalled on a crossing.

Angus McArthur, 21, of Hespeler, driver of the car, escaped before the crash. The impact locked the car to the engine and the auto's wreckage had to be chained to the track and the engine reversed to separate them.

"If we had made it clear to Russia that such would be our policy on Korea, it is doubtful there would be a war in Korea today."

Introduced by Vince McCabe, Mr. Metcalfe was thanked by P. J. Angelesey.

Mayor Hugh Waddell spoke briefly, congratulating the club on its annual manufacturers' night. Don Loucks reminded members of the annual retail night to be held November 18.

After the dinner meeting, the club proceeded to the Peterborough Lumber Company to inspect its plant. Fred Overend, general manager of the company, said it was the oldest industry in the city, having been founded in 1840 by the Dickson family. The firm became the Peterborough Lumber Co. in 1906.

Following their tour of the plant, members were shown a color film on lumbering on the west coast.

Upholds Conviction

LINDSAY (ENS)—Judge J. A. McGibbon Tuesday upheld a magistrate's court conviction under the anti-warble fly act against a Mariposa farmer, when the appeal was heard in county court here. The farmer, Beverly Webster, had been convicted and fined $10 and $20.50 costs earlier this year when he was charged with refusing to spray his cattle against the flies. Crown counsel Lorne Jordan, Q.C. prosecuted the appeal and H. E. Richardson acted in the defence.

Council Changes Parking Rules On Many Streets

Minor recommendations of change in the city's traffic by-law were approved by the finance committee of the council Monday night.

Some of these amendments are: No parking on the west side of Monaghan Road between Wolfe and Frank Streets.

No parking on Chambers Street. It runs from Brock Street to Hunter Street between Aylmer and George Streets. No parking on Aylmer Street, both sides, in front of King Edward School.

No stop-and-go lights at Simcoe and Water Streets. Prospect for a means of control at that corner was that the Police Commission might assign a constable at rush hours.

Ald. Syd Black said motor traffic sometimes extended south from Hunter Street in a line crossing Simcoe Street, creating a barrier to cars on Simcoe Street trying to cross in either direction or turn into Water Street.

Monaghan Road is narrow opposite the rear of C.G.E., and cars parked on the shoulders reduce the width of passage practically to one

Canada's Main Air Base Centre Of Defence Control

Canada is relying mainly on the jet fighter for defence, but fighters need an intricate ground set-up to direct them to their prey. This story, one of a series, describes the air defence headquarters being established in Montreal.

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The most important defence base in Canada is being formed at St. Hubert airport.

It is the brain of the 20th century minute-men who, above all others, will be responsible for the defence of Canadian homes and factories if war comes.

Headquarters of the R.C.A.F.'s first Air Defence Command must act in seconds, because it is the core of the network of radar stations, fighter bases and anti-aircraft posts Canada is building to meet air attacks.

In the operational control room—only one in eight of the headquarters staff may enter—the course of bombers would be plotted as they raced toward key targets such as Montreal.

LINKED WITH U.S.

From the office of Air Vice-Marshal A. L. James, Officer Commanding, it is less than a minute by direct line to his opposite American number in Colorado Springs, Colo.

That is how close the two air defence systems are being knit for continental defence. The integration is going on at various levels. Its most tangible form is the building and manning of radar stations in Canada by the United States.

When the special communications system is set up to tie it all together, it will be a matter of seconds from A.D.C.'s control room to any part of the far-flung air defence network emerging in Canada.

Will it work? Can a country as immense, as wide open and as thinly-peopled as Canada be defended?

Air Vice-Marshal James says so. So do other senior officers of the R.C.A.F. They would be happy and relieved to see parliament vote them more air squadrons and more radar, but they think this sort of strange, mobile, electronic fortress without walls can defend parts of Canada which might invite attack. And they are comforted by the thought that there are relatively few places offering temptation.

EFFECTIVE DEFENCE

Nobody thinks air defence could stop everything trying to get through. Nobody thinks saturation raids could be halted. But, as a calculated risk, it is believed that the network Canada is building could put up an effective fight against foreseeable dangers during the next few years.

A.D.C. is in business on a 24-hour basis. If war came tonight, a plan of air defence would go into effect immediately. The plan is amended as strength builds up.

It will be at least a year before A.D.C. is backed up by the sort of strength Canada envisages under her three-year defence plan started in 1951; before most of the radar stations are sending their waves northward; before squadrons of CF-100 Canuck long-range jet fighters are available in numbers; before the communications are in.

At this stage, the strength is not impressive. The radar is just beginning to function. There will be no CF-100 squadrons until early 1953 and the defence rests on short-range F-86 Sabre jets, destined eventually for Europe, and older planes. The army's anti-aircraft command is trying to decide whether to revamp existing guns or wait for guided missiles. The Ground Observer Corps of volunteers is only beginning to take shape.

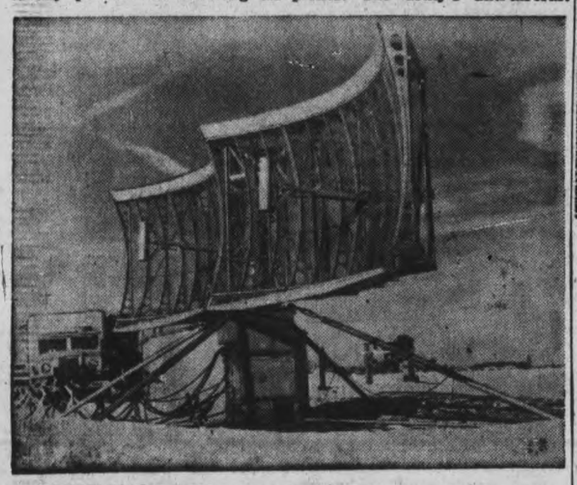
COVERS MAIN TARGETS

Even at its peak, the network won't be elaborate. The popular idea of a complete radar screen across the Arctic is a myth. The screen will be much farther south and will have nothing like a coast-to-coast frontage. Its main aim will be to protest the most inviting targets, largely in Eastern Canada.

There has been no public breakdown of the disposition of 41 air force squadrons Canada aims to have by 1954 but the chances are there will be fewer than 10 regular Canuck squadrons on duty in Canada, backed by roughly that many reserve or part-time squadrons.

The radar stations, under the over-all command of A.D.C.'s operations room, will be the key in any aerial combat over Canada. They would not only track down incoming attackers but would control the fight against them. Because of the importance and isolation of the stations, the radar staffs are to be trained to defend them against paratroop attacks.

At St. Hubert, the national picture would be available. Jet squadrons could be pulled out of one area and sent into another, even right across the country to the Pacific coast.



BUILDINGS ARE PERMANENT

A new headquarters is being built at St. Hubert for A.D.C. On nearby tarmac, jet engines whine. Young fliers scramble for their Sabres. The privileged few come and go from the operations room.

Wartime buildings are being replaced by new ones. The new control centre won't go underground but it will be reinforced and, like the other new buildings, will be permanent. It is another reflection of official feeling that the world tension of 1952 may go on for a long time.

RADAR DEFENCE — The most important defence base in Canada, the brain-child of the 20th century minute-men, is being formed at St. Hubert Airport, near Montreal. Here is the core of the network of radar stations, fighter bases and anti-aircraft posts Canada is building to meet any air attacks. It is less than a minute by direct line from its opposite United States number in Colorado Springs, Colo. The two air defence systems are closely knit for continental defence.

LISTENING POST—Canada is relying on mobile radar warning sets, such as this, while she and the United States are building permanent radar stations across the isolated Canadian terrain. They will continue to be used to supplement the new network. Their location, character and abilities are strictly secret.

AIR DEFENDER—Air Vice-Marshal A. L. James is Air Officer Commanding, Air Defence Command. While nobody thinks air defence could stop everything trying to penetrate Canada's defences, senior officers of the R.C.A.F., including Air Vice-Marshal James, thinks Canada's strange, mobile, electronic fortress, including the radar network, can defend parts of Canada which might invite attack.

Release Names Of Bomb Victims

OTTAWA (CP)—Names of six Canadian soldiers who were injured in a training accident last Thursday in Japan were released by the army yesterday.

The names, last to be released of a group of two killed and 21 wounded in the accident, had been withheld pending notification of next-of-kin. The other 17 names were released last Saturday.

The accident occurred when a bazooka bomb exploded.

Yesterday's list reported one man dangerously ill and five accidentally wounded. The list included:

Davis, Roy John, Cpl., R.C.R., Shelburne; Mrs. Laura Davis (mother), Toronto.

Pennaccheitti, Antonia, L. Cpl., R.C.R.; Mrs. Inez Pennaccheitti (mother), St. Mary's.

Gas Superintendent Dies In Guelph

GUELPH (CP)—Harry St. Clair Williams, 71, former superintendent of the gas department of the board of light and heat commissioners, died yesterday following a lengthy illness.

A native of Sarnia, he started in the gas business there with his father who was manager of Sarnia department.

Ava Gardner, Frankie Quarrel, Separate

NEW YORK (AP)—Columnist Frank Sinatra and Ava Gardner have separated after a spectacular quarrel in which the singer called police to put Ava, actress Lana Turner and other friends out of his Palm Springs, Calif., home.

Wilson said Sinatra returned home after a television show Saturday night to find "his former girl friend (Lana) and his present wife (Ava) cutting him up." He became so indignant about the remarks that he summoned police.

Sinatra has moved in with a friend and Miss Gardner just "took off," Wilson said.
